The Bishops of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the jo

A MEMORIAL MEETING IN HAYTI.

SAN DOMINGO MISSION, } August 17th, 1887. }

At a meeting of the Official Board, held August 3d, instant, Superintendent H. C. C. Astwood announced to the Board that, in accordance with a notice read from the New York Freeman of July 2, he felt pained to announce the sudden death of our beloved missionary Bishop, James A. Shorter, and moved that a committee of five be appointed to draft suitable resolutions of sympathy; a copy duly engrossed be sent to the family of the deceased in token of our sincere condolence with them in their trying hour of distress, and that a copy be sent to the CHRISTIAN RECORDER for publication, and one sent to the Missionary Secretary, J. M. Townsend, to be presented to the Missionary Board. The superintendent further suggested that the church be draped in mourning for the space of sixty days, in memory of our departed father and friend, and a funeral sermon be preached to his memory; the sermon to be forwarded, with the resolutions, to the Editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER with a request for its publication.

Rev. A. H. Mevs was appointed the following committee: Superintendent H. C. C. Astwood, Deacon Francois Ciandio, Local Preacher Simon J. Hall, and Secretary Charles H. Williams. By request of the Board Rev. A. H. Mevs was added to the committee Brother Astwood was appointed to preach the sermon on Sunday, the 14th instant.

The committee reported the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, In the providence of Al mighty God, the source of all blessings and goodness, our beloved Brother and Bishop, James A. Shorter; has been called from labor to reward; and

WHEREAS, His life of Christian rectitude and philanthropic deeds in behalf of his race and the cause of Christianity has called forth the admiration of all good men who knew him; and

WHEREAS, As a missionary Bishop he has always stood ready to propagate the gospel of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, at home and abroad, for the uplifting of down-trodden humanity and the salvation of souls, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of the San Domingo Mission, recognizing the virtues, goodness and bright Christian principles of our beloved Bishop Shorter, hereby extend our sympathies to his beloved family and our sorrowing church connection, praying for the support and comfort of our Heavenly Father in this trying ordeal of suffering and deprivation.

Resolved, further, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of this mission, and copies be forwarded to the bereaved family, to the Missionary Secretary and to the Editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER expressing our great sorrow for this irreparable loss to our Church, our missionary and educational departments.

Signed:

H. C. C. ASTWOOD, Superintendent,
A. H. MEVS, Pastor.
FRANCIS CLAUDIO, Deacon,
SIMON J. HALL, Local Preacher.
CHARLES H. WILLIAMS, Secretary.

IN MEMORIAM.

Funeral sermon preached in memory of Bishop James A. Shorter, Missionary Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, by Superintendent H. C. C. Astwood, of the San Domingo Mission, Sunday evening, August 14, 1887.

Opening hymn, 747:

"Servant of God, well done,
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter the Master's joy.

The voice at midnight came;
He started up to hear;
A mortal arrow pierced his frame;
He fell, but felt no fear."

Theme, Victory. Text, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace."—37th Psalm, 37.

One of our great secular poets has splendidly and truthfully written that "Lives of great men all remind us,

We can make our lives sublime;
And departing, leave behind us
Footprints in the sands of time.

Footprints that, perhaps, another,
Sailing o'er life's solemn main,
A forlorn and shipwrecked brother,
Seeing, shall take heart again."

These words are not foreign to our subject to-night. They are conspicuously applicable, as we view the great Christian character of Bishop Shorter, teeming with spiritual excellence, like a beacon light, pointing upward to the skies. We would tread this gloomy pathway of duty with sadder hearts than we do, but for the splendid victory achieved on the Lord's side. This great soldier of the Cross, after many battles and conflicts, when death was about to do its worst, could exclaim, "Jesus is able, is willing to save, Jesus savees me now!" Blessed words! Glorious words! Victory for God! Victory for the Church! Victory for the race he so nobly represented.

The words of our text are fittingly suitable to this noble and great Christian character; so full of light and love, attracting with great power all thoughtful minds toward it like a magnet.

He began life like a hero. At 21 he did not, like most young men, go out into the world depending upon himself as most of them generally do. The saloon and the gambling institutions were not his choice, worldly allurements did not attract him at all, he seemed to have had a higher aim, and stepped at once into the army of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. Thus equipped, he was prepared to fight the battles of life. At once he took a bold stand as a Christian. In it he could see all of the true greatness to be achieved in this life and a glorious hope beyond. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace." At the age of 29 years we find him entering the Christian ministry, step by step following the path of duty laid down by the Master. He did not stop, nor weary nor tire by the way until he had reached the very climax of Church preferment, when, at the age of 51, he was elected and ordained Bishop in the A. M. E. connection. He became at once a Paul, "not ashamed of the gospel of Christ," expounding it to be the "power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."

The author of our text was a man supremely fitted to point out the character of the good and the great; he began life so lowly himself, with a strong belief in the God of his fathers. His experience was so varied, his faith so severely tested, his hope so permanently fixed, that under the most trying circumstances and under the severest ordeal of trial, forgetting his kingly power, his worldly greatness, the strength of his armies, the wealth of his dominions, he flies to a higher refuge and exclaims, "The Lord is my Shepherd, I shall not want: he maketh me to lie down in green pastures, he leadeth me beside the still waters, he restoreth my soul: though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff shall comfort me."

This was Bishop Shorter's reliance: "Jesus saves me now." The psalmist, in his criticisms upon the characters of good and bad men, begins by saying, "Fret not thyself because of evil-doers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity. For they shall soon be cut down like the grass and wither as the green herb. Trust in the Lord and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land and verily thou shalt be fed." He continues his criticisms by saying,—"I have seen the wicked in great power and spreading himself like a green bay tree. Yet he passed away, and, lo, he was not; yea, I sought him, but he could not be found. Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace."

Divine excellence! Stupendous power! We apply the words of our text to the unblemished character of Bishop Shorter. He was a perfect man. Perfection in its general sense does not belong to frail humanity, but as far as it is possible to apply it to mankind, Bishop Shorter was a perfect man. His truthfulness made him so, his generosity, so conspicuous and his charity so large and unselfish, and his love for mankind so marked, that in looking over the vast field of beneficence, we cannot fail to apply the language of the text, "Mark the perfect man."

I point to his character to-day with pride, and say to our young men, follow in his footsteps. "This is the way, walk ye in it." No drunkard's grave will overtake you, none of the dissipations of youth, with their leprous stains, will cling to you, causing you to cry out, "Unclean! unclean! unclean!" Ah, nay; but, being washed in the blood of Jesus Christ, you would become good citizens of the commonwealth and anticipated residents of the glorious city beyond. His home was a happy home No domestic discords to mark those sacred relations which made him happy, thrice happy. The altar of Christ was erected at the marriage stand and carried into his peaceful abode. His children were reared up under its influence and lived to call him blessed. It was a home of peace, it was a home of love. His last family prayer was a remarkable one, and as significant as it was remarkable: "If it should be Thy will to call me hence before the day closes, I pray Thee to take me to dwell with Thee, O Father, forever." Blessed is the man who can pray such a prayer upon the very verge of eternity. "Mark the perfect man."

The sudden death of Bishop Shorter is not only sufficient cause to awaken the Church with which he was so long identified, but the whole Christian world. What infidelic theory can gainsay the glorious and rapturous victory achieved for the Bible and Christianity in the death of this good man?

No donbting theories, no blasphemous braggadocio, no evolution or beclonded scientific dogmas, but one bold and unflinching declaration of Christian faith whilst looking straight into the spirit world, "Jesus is able, is willing to save; Jesus saves me now." The ministry of the A. M. E. Church, this is a loud call to encourage us "to press forward to the mark of our high calling as it is in Christ Jesus." To its membership it is a glorious victory, assuring you of free salvation if you prove faithful to the end. To our Bishops and patriarchs it is a consolation, knowing that after the battle of life is fought and the victory won, that "Jesus is able, is willing to save; that Jesus saves me now." "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace."

He was an upright man in the full sense and power of that word. No immoral debris surrounded his splendid character; he was a bright example of true Christian manhood, toiling on for the betterment of mankind and the defense of the Cross. He came upon the stage of action at a peculiar time; men tried and strong were needed then; it was an era of the persecution of a race; a Chinese wall of ignorance surrounded them, the chains of bondage enslaved them, the Church of Christ rejected them. They were helpless, down-trodden and forlorn; they had a Saviour and a hope in the Cross, but it was beclouded by the cruel Christian institutions of that age, which preached the enslavement of humanity and tolerated the oppression of human bondage. They found no consolation in the word of God preached from the mouth of many a prophete, and the then sanctuaries had no place for them in common with the people of God. The words of Holy Writ, like a distant hope, kept ringing in their ears, "How long, O Lord, holy and true, dost thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell upon the earth?" They clung to that hope, being made doubly strong by the invitation of the Master, "Come unto me, all ye that do labor and are heavy laden, and I will give thee rest."

God has never failed to listen to the cries of his people, and ere the shackles of slavery were broken by the strong arm of the Nation, our spiritual Joshua came, in the person of the immortal Allen, and proclaimed religious liberty. It was a good time. Wounded hearts that were sorely bleeding rejoiced when the A. M. E. Church was born Bishop Shorter joined the army of saints that were to do battle for the religious freedom of his people. How well that duty was performed the Church's history will proclaim until its entire membership will have been translated and all mankind called before the judgment seat of Christ His efforts were not fruitless; but, working and waiting with that unbounded faith which possessed Abraham to offer up Isaac, Elisha to be translated and Simeon to behold the salvation of Israel, he lived to see his race emancipated and his Church established upon a permanent and lasting foundation. One of Bishop Shorter's greatest desires was the education of his people. To that end he worked as zealously as he had worked for their spiritual amelioration Bishop Shorter was certain that without the cultivation of the mind, so long deprived of educational facilities, they could not be prepared to enjoy that freedom providentially destined to be bestowed upon them. He saw perceived that religion and Christian education were the twin alliances to be relied upon to fit them to enjoy the rights of true citizenship, to become true mothers and fathers and the builders up of those happy domestic firesides whose influences would go further in that direction than the enactments of State or national legislatures. To this end he became a special votary of Wilberforce, an institution of which the A. M. E. Church will ever have cause to feel proud and our people just motive for popular acclaim. When the summons was about to be given to call him from labor to reward he seemed to have been inspired and opened his bountiful hand, which was ever ready, and poured into the lap of that noble institution a generous gift, which cannot fail to be a lasting monument to his memory. He was not ostentatious; vanity did not seem to be a counterpart of his nature; what he did was always done without courting eclat or popular applause other than that which emanates from a conscience void of offense toward God and men. His life was an active one: he did not rust, he died as he lived, in the harness, with his armor always buckled on ready for the Master's service. He was an upright man. Bishop Shorter was a stannch friend of the missionary cause; he not only cared for the Church at home, he was also anxious about those souls abroad who were longing and thirsting after righteousness. His heart went out toward to the Dark Continent of Africa and he was solicitious in sending the gospel message to those hungry souls. He remembered in his prayers the isles of the sea, and was waiting with great anticipations the report of Bishop Campbell and Secretary Townsend from Hayti and San Domingo, for whose people he had shown so much sympathy—in fact he was President of our Missionary Board. Here are tears for him to-night because of our great loss, but there is joy in heaven. We cannot in one sermon record all the good deeds of this good man; they are too numerous; but we can say, we will say and we do say that he was an upright man.

His sudden taking away is a warning to our Church. Since the last quadrennium three of our Bishops have gone—the youthful Dickerson, then the middle aged Cain, and now our aged and beloved Bishop Shorter. "If judgment begins at the house of God where shall the sinner and the ungodly appear?"

It is a serious warning, the Church has been shaken from center to circumference. The ministry is called upon to reflect. What may we not have to pass through before the meeting of the next quadrennial? Our Bishops are all veterans, scarred and bruised by the battles of many ages. The venerable Payne, Campbell, Brown, Ward, Wayman and Disney have all passed the meridian of life; they need our prayers, that God, in his wise judgment, might spare them to us, so that by the council of age we might be guided in the selection of those who must fill the places of those who have fallen asleep The life of Bishop Shorter is a splendid criterion by which to judge the men who may be called upon to fill these responsible positions—men who are fit to live, men who are not afraid to die, men who, like our lamented Bishop Shorter, when passing through the vale can exclaim, "Jesus is able, is willing to save; Jesus saves me now." Mark this perfect man; behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

Bishop Shorter's peaceful end is a gracious reward for his eminent services; it would seem that divine favor was especially reserved for him; he had lived to a good old age, and was beloved by all mankind. He had laid to rest his saintly wife; she was already in heaven calling him there. He had been blessed with five worthy sons. The barrel of meal and cruse of oil had never wasted, and his children had all reached beyond the age of childhood. The Church which he served so long and so well had multiplied greatly, and Wilberforce, which he nurtured by his wisdom and material aid, had reached the full stature of manhood. The Bishop himself had passed his three score years and ten; therefore he could look back and exclaim with Simeon of old: "Lord, let now thy servant depart in peace, for mine eyes have seen thy salvation."

He was not to be a sufferer; he had contributed too often toward relieving the suffering of others; hut when the Master's call was given, "Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," with out any need of an earthly physician, without any lingering care, without any protracted malignant diseases, without causing sleepless nights and anxious days to the many loved ones who would have gladly watched around his dying couch, in the vigor of good old age, surrounded by the trophies of life, in the happiness of his own beloved home, in the arms of his own beloved family and people, he could confidently resign the pleasures of life, amidst angelic shouts, peace peacefully away, exclaiming that "Jesus is able, is willing to save; Jesus saves me now." "Mark the perfect man and behold the upright: for the end of that man is peace."

Bishop Shorter's triumphant Christian death is one of the best tributes that have heen given in behalf of Bible Christianity. It breaks down the barriers of skepticism and points all to Jesus and to the truths of the gospel After such a triumphant end, an exemplary Christian, he reaches Pisgah's height; viewing the landscape over, he realizes the happiness beyond and falls asleep in the arms of a saving Jesus

To the Church I need not repeat the blessed assurances held out to you; hut but to those who are outside of the ark of safety, it is a timely and a splendid appeal to you, and it invites you to-night to imitate the exemplary life of Bishop Shorter and step at once in the Church of Christ, being assured by this triumphant Christian death that "Jesus is able, is willing to save; Jesus saves me now."

These badges of sorrow and mourning here to-night, these hearts howed low with grief, these eyes suffused with tears, though separated by distance and the mighty deep from those who are weeping for the lost, the loved and the brave, yet our hearts are united with the hundreds of thousands of voices in prayer to Almighty God for the grief-stricken Church and bereaved family. With these we add our fervent prayers, and as the great wave of praise and song swell to high heaven in behalf of this great Christian victory, we shout: "Glory, and honor, and praise, and thanksgiving, and power be unto our God and to the Lamb forever and ever," that "Jesus is able, is willing to save; Jesus saves me now."

One sweetly solemn thought,
Comes to me o'er and o'er:
I'm nearer home to-day,
Than ever I've been before.

Nearer my home, nearer my home,
Nearer my home to-day,
Nearer my home in heaven to-day
Than ever I've been before.

Nearer my Father's house,
Where many mansions be;
Nearer the great white throne to-day,
Nearer the crystal sea.

Nearer the bound of life,
Where burdens are laid down,
Nearer to leave the cross to-day,
And nearer to the crown.

Be near me when my feet
Are slipping o'er the brink,
For I am nearer home to-day,
Perhaps than now I think.

A WORD FROM THE MANAGER.

To my dear brother ministers of the Church: The last round of annual conferences for this quadrennial term has begun. Our Bishops have been obliged, we suppose, to group the fall and early winter conferences close together—eight in August and September, eight in October, ten in November and eight in December, making thirty-four of the forty-four conferences of the connection in a little more than four months. Of course it would be impossible for us, even if our editor could go out and stay in the field with us, to visit all, or even a majority of these sessions, to collect our subscriptions and press the sale of our books.

We are heartily thankful to the dear brethren in Iowa, Illinois and the little new-born Michigan for the noble pecuniary aid given us by the band of Dr. Lee. Two hundred and eighty dollars came to us from these three little conferences for subscriptions, bills and merchandize We ought every pastor to pay the real success; and here the Saviour's sayings are truly applicable, "Ye are the salt of the earth;" "Ye are the light of the world;" "Let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." And though the private Christian needs this heavenly adorning, yet how important in the ministry of the Lord! The ensuing General Conference is fast approaching, at which time, according to the writings of Dr. Johnson, the Church needs eight more Bishops. If they are needed through the judgment of the General Conference, I suppose they will be elected. But they should be men who possess self-government and are full of the Holy Ghost and of faith, and much people will be added unto the Church. Great are the advantages of self-government in relation between rulers and subjects. Under its influence, rulers properly estimate the origin and dignity of their authority; so far from presuming that right to rule others is the effect of chance, or that it is an inherent right, or that it is merely the gift of the people, they humbly confess that they have derived it through the people from God. Realizing the principles of ministers of God, they feel the force of their high obligations, and far from trusting solely to human wisdom, which has led so many of the great and mighty men of the earth in the paths of cruelty and oppression. Great are the advantages arising from self-government in our religious relations.

To view the subject particularly as it applies to ministers and hearers, the work of the ministry must be acknowledged, by all who believe the truths of revelation and hope for happiness beyond the grave, to be the most important in which fallible man can possibly engage. It extends in its effects and consequences beyond the limits of time and involves the future happiness or misery of millions by leading them to felicities or woes which defy description. The political decisions of senates may inflict nations with calamity or deliver them from it, but the good or the evil which they administer must terminate with the present life. It is not so with the ministry of the gospel. The effects which result from the faithful or unfaithful labors of those who stand forth as ministers of Christ to persuade sinners to be reconciled to God may, indeed, be perceived in every stage of human probation; but they will become more conspicuous as life draws toward its close. They will remain unextinguished at death and assume in eternity a visible and permanent character. Great are the advantages arising from self-government in our social relations.

Of all the associations formed in this life that of the conjugal state is the most endearing and the most important. But the happiness of this relation depends so much on the principle of self-government that, without the proper management, reciprocally, in the parties, of temper and conduct, the happiness contemplated will not be realized, but the connection itself will become an occasion of the most direful ills of life. Still, when those who have formed this important relation and taken upon themselves these solemn obligations have learned to rule their own spirits, "to walk in all the commandments and ordinances of the Lord blameless," they will realize the blessings of a happy union of kindred minds and will aid each other in ruling their own spirits and in preparing for higher enjoyments.

By a good man we may understand a benevolent man. This definition is strictly applicable to Barnabas, born in Cyprus, an isle of the Mediterranean Sea. Visiting Jerusalem, as some suppose, at the feast of Pentecost, by the preaching of the Apostles he is converted, sells his land, and brings the sum thus obtained and lays it at the apostles' feet,—not a part, Ananias like, but the whole sum,—thus at once commiserating and supplying the necessities of the poor persecuted followers of his Lord. He was full of the Holy Ghost. Alinsion is not so much made, we apprehend, to the marvellous gifts of the Holy Ghost as the indwelling of the spirit,—happifying the soul, illuminating the understanding, correcting the judgment, subduing the will, hallowing the affections, purifying the conscience and captivating the thoughts; thus sanctifying the whole man.

His success. "Much people was added to the Lord." Not only had cash to rejoice in witnessing the effects of divine grace in the conversion of Grecians at Antioch, through the instrumentality of his countrymen, but his own labors, it would seem, were blessed to the salvation of many more; "much people were added," not merely proselyted to an opinion, creed or sect, but "to the Lord." Convicted of sin, converted from the error of their ways, they joined the band of young converts, or the first named "Christians" in that city. Though they had been "aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, strangers from the covenant of promise, without God and hope in the world," and many of them thus far off, they were now "made nigh by the blood of Christ."

In conclusion let me say that some of the conferences have already elected their delegates, and some are to be elected to represent them in the ensuing General Conference of the A. M. E. Church. Be sure, brethren, you send your best men, and if more Bishops are needed, try to select such men as will emulate the example of Bishop A. W. Wayman, then you can rest satisfied that the Church is safe under their care, and "much people will be added unto the Lord."

MEETING OF DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

BY REV. A. J. NIXON.

MR. EDITOR:—Please give space in your valuable paper for a few sketches of the meeting of our district conference, which met in the little historic town of Graham, N. C., on the 9th August, ult. Suffice it to say, Elder D. F. Newby and his good people spared no pains in making preparations for our reception, and, indeed, we were received, appointed, a grand session. The conference was called to order by Rev. P. F. Giles, presiding elder of the Greensboro District, who made a few very interesting and pointed remarks touching the business of the conference and his regret of not being able to have called the conference earlier. He then announced the conference ready for business. We then proceeded to the election of the different officers, whereupon Rev. C. Sampson, of Greensboro, was elected vice-president, and your writer secretary. By consent of the conference the president was allowed to appoint the several committees, as per discipline. This being done, the hours of meeting and adjournment were fixed and also the boundary of the conference. At 8 o'clock p. m. Rev. Moses B. Shepard preached to a crowded house, using for his text, Phil. 3, 8: "Yea, doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord," &c. The subject was masterly handled, and the audience appeared to enjoy it splendidly. After the sermon Rev. D. F. Newby lifted a collection of $2.88. The business of the conference was systematically carried on and not a stone left unturned. Rev. F. F. Giles, president of the conference, proposed three applicable subjects for discussion of the conference: 1st subject, "Shall the ministers of the traveling connexion organize and attend Sunday schools?" Rev. D. F. Newby led off on this subject, and was followed by Revs. Jas. Jenkins, J. M. D. Hill, C. Sampson, G. A. Smith, F. P. Greenlee and F. F. Giles. They all held that that was a part of the ministerial duty, and any minister thus refusing to act in the premises would soon find himself a failure. Rev. Giles stated that he had a certain reason why he proposed this subject, and he also wanted to hear the brethren speak their sentiments as to pen confessions sometimes are good for the soul. Next, 2nd subject, "Why have the people departed so far from the old landmark of the fathers as to refuse preachers when sent to them by the proper authority, and are they justified in so doing?" Your writer led off on this subject, followed by Revs. G. A. Smith, D. F. Newby, W. M. Chavis, C. Sampson, and F. F. Giles. Various reasons were given as the causes which lead to this rebellion. Rev. Smith said that outgoing ministers are more the cause than anything else. He says to the people, "Conference disregarded you. They sent B, but he can't preach; he is broken down spiritually and morally; and besides, he is no elder. I am an elder, and can do the business of the church, and if you will say so, I will stay here and serve you all the year," &c. Elder Giles also stated that he had grave reasons for proposing this subject; the evil is becoming seemingly greater with our people. The 3rd subject, "Shall a Christian minister take an active part in labor organizations and prohibition movements?" Rev. G. A. Smith first fired at this mountain and was followed by Revs. F. P. Greenlee, C. Sampson, J. M. D. Hill, F. F. Giles, M. B. Shepard, and Brother H. S. Roberts. All the brethren made telling and soul-stirring remarks, and they seem to think that a Christian ministers ought not to take stock in these issues, but his sphere should be limited to the pulpit. Next, singing, "Stand up for temperance," &c. The several committees made their reports, and the conference being through with its business, adjourned sine die. Benediction by Rev. C. Sampson.

THE TEST BY RESULTS.

When George Steveuson, the inventor of the locomotive, was about to start out on his first trip, he declared that the waier in his boiler carried a power that would revolutionize the carrying trade of the world. The same test which decided the merits of the claims for the powers of steam, is a fair one for to-day. One of the most striking of these developments is Compound Oxygen. For while it cannot act with incredulity. The idea that it could be stored in water and transported long distances met with the same donbt that had greeted every other new statement as to the powers in nature. But the same perseverance that had in so many fields won success led to patient endurance of the test by results; and they have made it an accomplished fact that oxygen in a compound form can be stored away for future use to be drawn upon as may be required. Tens of thousands are now living witnesses of this truth. The letters received and on file in the office of Drs. Starkey & Paten, No. 1529 Arch St., Philadelphia, from their patients, report cures in asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, dyspepsia, eczema, diseases of the eye, of the ear, consumption, rheumatism, diseases of the kidney, headaches, and other diseases. Nervous prostration from mental strain and overwork has in many cases given way to renewed powers and enjoyment of life.

These reports are numberd by thousands and come from men and women in every position in life. A college president in Vermont, writes that though he is well on in years, his voice has been restored so that he can give his lectures and addresses without inconvenience, after for a long time having been a sufferer from throat disease. When such wide-spread agreements as to results is witnessed, there can be no doubt as to Compound Oxygen. A well prepared digest of the history and working of this remarkable revitalizer in the form of a two hundred page brochure will be sent free by addressing Drs. Starkey & Palen, No. 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

BOOKS.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints. 1st. Because it furnishes the most valuable matter for the pulpit in the most effectively. 2nd. Because it shows how to preach with ease and grace, and yet with power and success. 3rd. Because it exposes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to correct them. In reviewers advise ministers to read the work carefully, because "they will find in it much that they never thought of"—because "the choicest seed to receive are not furnished by other homiletical works."—because "it is replete with shrewd, hard, practical wisdom"—because "it is a book for all ministers, however educated,—because it is assured by many to be the most helpful book they ever read. —"Worth its weight in gold."

IS THE BIBLE TRUE, AND FROM GOD?

Read Dr. Porter's late book called "Christianity Demonstrated By Experience." It will settle the question forever and set your souls on fire. Buy a copy and keep it to lend to the poor society, and especially to unbelievers. On sale by Rev. J. C. Embry, Price, $1.50. A new supply just received.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FOR PREACHERS AND OTHER PUBLIC SPEAKERS.

Dr. Porter's Hints to them is one of the most useful.—"Worth its weight in gold," says the Christian Guardian. $1.25.

For teaching everyone how to do good, "The Whining Worker or the Possibilities, Duty and Methods of Doing Good to Men" by the same author. Order of J. C. Embry, 811 Pine Street, Philadelphia. Why not make presents that will do good?

"WORTH MORE THAN ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD" to young ministers and local preachers. "Many a preacher would have been saved from failure in the early study of such a book."—Christian Guardian.

PHILADELPHIA, SEPT. 15, 1887.

REPLIES to Revs. Johnson and Kershaw's serise of articles are coming in. Correspondents will find them both pretty well intrenched.

THE COLORED press is improving weekly, and is attracting the attention of all men. The colored newspaper is not tossed aside as it once was.

PROGRESS does not coneist in marching, alone. The children of Israel were making qnite as good time standing still seeing the salvation of God as they were when going forward.

WE RESUME our position at the desk, glad to greet our familiar correspondents. Much matter has accumnlated during the past five weeks. It will be worked off as fast as possible.

AT ITS meeting last Monday, the Philadelphia Preachers' Meeting discussed "The qualifications essential for a Bishop." The probability is that this is a question of one side only.

THE ceqteunial will be worth the consideration of the whole connection. A thousand timee we have talked of "gala days." In November every Afrioan Methodist should try to find one of those days if he has to make one "gala day."

THE ENTHUSIASM over the prospects of our centennial scene to be increasing. Dr. J. T. Jenifer has ordered four hundred centennial envelopes, Dr. W. B. Derrick has issued a very lengthy programme. Othere are preparing to maks it a great day in Zion.

THE PROGRESS of literature is equal to the progrese of art and soisnce; as literatnre is the indieation of a people'e state. Tho literatnre of our own race offere an excellent opportunity to observe this fact. Its development is marked; yet there is great room for improvement.

IN OUR edncational notes wo olip from the Xenia, (O.) Gazette a note to the effect that a new school distriot will be created, centering at Wilberforce. To any one familiar with the territory this is regarded as a good movement, if it has for its objeot the oreation of a black distriot.

WE HAVE received a card from Hon. Charles H. J. King, U. S. Consul to Liberia. Among other things, Mr. King wisely orders the CHRISTIAN RECORDER as a paper from his country that will "truthfully tell the movements of his race." Mr. King expects to visit America next winter.

NEXT SUNDAY is Edneational Day. How much will the Chnrch realize? Another demand for a generous effort on the part of all members is made. It being the last annual call for this pnrpose till next General Conferenes, Secretary Johnson expects a good report. If everybody pays something we shall settls matter with ease.

BESIDES THE air of devotione! busiiness that a nice hymn book givee a lady or gentleman on his way to ohnrch, the interesting appearance of a hymn book in hand in ths assembly would seem to excite avery ohnrch member to buy a hymn book. There are some congregations in which there are next to no hymn book sometimes not even on the pulpit. Hymn books cost only from 90 cents to $4 00.

THE WORK and character of Allen were consistent with those of general American Methodism and its propagators. Speaking of the Baltimore Conference of 1784, when Amerioan Methodism was organized, he says, "Many of the ministers were set apart in holy orders at this conference, and were said to he entitled to the gown, and I have thonght religion has been declining ever since."

OUR GOOD Southwestern Advocate friend aesures some unnamed complainant against the A. M. E. Pnblishing Honse that he wonld he well treated at the M. E. Pnblishing House. Yes, but there are a few of ns who know that in the Church represented by the Southwestern, there is many a complaint against the M. E. Pnblishing House. Of oonree the editor of the Advocate knows nothing of them.

BISHOP BROWN calls on the brethren of the Fonrth District to forward their Dollar Money on to Dr. Arnett at onos. This is the first appeal of the kind we have seen for a long while. It would he well for all concerned if some one would call the attention of brethren to this snbject; many who are holding their money for annnal conferenoe would gladly forward it, if they had the least suspioion that it was needed.

AFTER ALL it is evident that Georgia does oare something about what the outside world thinks. It does not like to eend the good professors of the Atlanta Univereity to the chain-gang while the world ie looking on. That is very oonsiderate in Georgia; there is no better way to exeito the world against it than by throwing lo it a martyr or two. Two or three teachers put on "the gang" would bring against the State an irresietihle force. It can enjoy its modified sin better than it would have done the unmodified.

MR. WANAMAKER, whoee inventive genius, like his commeroial genins, seems almost exhanstless, last week distrihnted a ohaste little book of 64 pages, entitled "A Sonvenir of the Constitntional Centennial," containing the Declaratiou of Independenoe, the Constitution of the United Statee, Washington's farewell address and Lincoln's speoch at Gettysburg, with the following pledge printed on the back:

> Recognizing the importance to every American of the documents printed in this book, I hereby accept this copy from the firm of John Wanamaker npon the condition that I will observe the Centennial Anoiversary of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States by carefully reading it.

THE Xenia (O.) Gazette annonnoes the death of the venerable Samuel Wilson, D.D., September 5th. Dr. Wilson was about sighty years of age. He was of the United Presbyterian Chnrch, one of the noblest of men. For several years he was professor of Hebrew at Wilberforce University. All the theological graduates of that institntion prior to 1874 got their Hebrew from him. Though he tanght by the old methods, he was an sffioient teacher. His devotion to the Christian eause was great. A more highly conscientions man is rarely met. With him the ten commandments meant eternal life to the faithful and ohedient, and eternal death to the unfaithful and disobedient. His personal object lessone are as precions as his lessons in the Hehrew.

WE VERY much regret the pnbliesation of the article from Brother I. S. Grant, justly criticised by Brother Nelson. It is contrary to our enstom to pnblish what evidently wrongs either the living or the dead; this article does both. As to the living, it involves all inelnded in its terms. It has been the custom of the Manager and Editor dnring the past three years to interchange services whenever they conceived it necessary to the advancement of the department. Preparing to transact business at several conferences for the Manager, being hurried in the preparaiion, we hastily handed the article to the compositors. But for a statement from the Manager in a letter that he had written an editorial on the snbject, this note would have appeared three weeks ago. The Manager failed to publish the editorial hecanse he was informed that we had handed the Grant article to the compositors.

THE WESTERN CONFERENCES, like those of the East and South, are prodncing some very promising men. The transition in our pulpit is, perhaps, quite rapid enough. We are informed by onr aged ministers, now and then, that the fathers inclnded some ministers who were superior to almost any of our modern preachers. This is evidently trne, but the number of well furnished ministers was not nearly so great as now. Preaching is an act that does not depend alone upon advanced learning. There are some ministers who are so thoronghly endowed with native pulpit elemente that, without high edncation, they are more powerful than many others who are well edncated. Bnt in addition to all this there were some men among our ministers forty years ago who were well informed. It is not comparison, however, that we started to make, but declaration of facts. The nnmber of ministers who are masters of their position is increasing so rapidly that it looks as if we should soon be able to snpply all our ohnrches with pious, scholarly pastors.

THIS ISSUE of the RECORDER comes out amid the rush and excitement of the Constitntional Centennial in Philadelphia. At this writing great preparations are being made to parade, display, entertain his excellency, the President of the United States, etc. It is a big time to those Amerioans who have inherited all the favors of a century of American constitutional liberty. The negro is little inspired. The constitution has recognized and protected his manhood only eighteen years. He is trying hard to attach himself to the enthnsiastic train, bnt it is difficnlt for enthnsiasm to enable the oreature of eighteen years as strong as those of one hnndred years. The negroes of 1969 will find something that will awaken great centennial enthusiasm; when they will have been moving under its provisions a full centnry. It is very important, however, that the negro take on just as much of the general spirit of rejoicing as possible. In recognition of his suffering in the development of the materially and socially, he should have received an especial place of honor in the provisions for celebrating, not in a "separate wagon," bnt on the committees, etc.

THIS WORLD and this life are organized of mysteries. The crystalization of matter is as wonderful as is its creation, when pushed to the most remote extremity. No topic relative to mind, carried to ths greatest possible study is less mysterious than is the existence of mind itself. Last week a man who had been unconscious twenty days died in Buffalo. Though he was dead (to the appearance) he still livsd dnring those days; bnt there came a day when he did not live—he died. Dying, did he still live? "If a man die, shall he live again?" comes rolling up on the wheels of time. What is life? What is death? There are many conditions in life concerning which science can gay bnt little. There are comatose states occnpying from one hour to several months, in different cases, from which the subjects make no returns. They tell us nothing of where they have heon, what they have been doing, what they have seen, heard or felt. They evidently have broken the lins of self-knowledge, either entering the lethargic state and oanght the chain again, on being awakened, or they have broken it a second time upon resnming activity.

Man, by wisdom, knew not God. It has plsased God by the foolishnese of preaching to save them that believe. Faith can do what fancy and science fail to do—give rest and peace to the inqniring mind. With faith Christ is "the life." Whosoever hath the Son hath life. Whosoever liveth and believath in him shall never die. Here is a haven into which the storm-toesed harque of speonlation may lie more ecure, certainly, than in any other.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

I had no intention to represent the good people, especially the ministers of Gibson City, Ill., where I was so kindly treated, as being affected by the "Horse-shoe Bend," as appeared in recent editorial correspondence. In connection with the letter an editorial on the "Horse-shoe Bend" was sent; pages were confused; hence the reflecting editorial correspondence. The ministers of Gibson are a conrteous brotherhood and the people very hospitable and some thinking men in the city The chief manufacturing interest is that of canning. In this several colored persons are engaged The celebrated historic name, "Mark Anthony," is honored in the person of Mr. Mark Anthony, who was for many years manager of a section of the largest farm in the country, more recently proprietor of a large stone manufactory. At present Mr. Anthony is managing two barber shops in Gibson. He has a pleasant home and an interesting family. His eldest son, Mr. Robert Anthony, is a graduate of the city high school and at present a student in the law department of Wilberforce University, expecting to graduate next June He is an excellent penman, having received several medals in recognition of his originality and advanced standing in this art. He has taught penmanship in several teachers' institntes in his State, where all were Caucasians Brother S. S. Mitchell, lay delegate to the late General Conference, is also in business in Gibson. He is not enjoying good health. A very husy man is Brother J. H. Dorsey and a very thoughtful one is the Rev. Robert Green, local deacon in the M. E. Church. Brother Green is a quite well posted Methodist. One of the best blacksmiths of the city is Mr. W. H. Conners.

THE ILLINOIS CONFERENCE.

Though I spent hnt three days in this conference in Cairo, I found it a warm conference, sitting in a warm city in very warm weather. The brethren of the conference treated our Department handsomely. Brother E C. Joiner, then pastor at Cairo, had made ample provisions for entertaining the conference, though he was in poor health. I was pleasantly sitnated on Eleventh street, near Commercial avenue, with Mr. George Bell, who proved to be very conrteous, entertaining and patient. The Illinois Conference is advancing. They have the presiding eldership in accordance with law. The two presiding elders are Revs. H. Brown and P. C. Cooper. Rev. J. D. Peterson was chief secretary of the conference. Bishop Brown extended all the favor to the Pnblication Department that could be asked. Mrs. Brown was at the conference and, as at all conferences to which she accompanies the Bishop, was highly appreciated as a visitor. I was mistaken when I reported in former correspondence that Mrs. Brown accompanied the Bishop to the Pacific Coast. Dollar Money at this conference was on the up grade. Missionary and educational reports were fair. Considerable new work was reported The Bishop was very careful that brethren should aim at still advanced work next year.

In addition to General Officers reported from the Iowa Conference we had the company of our Secretary of Education, Rev. W. D. Johnson, D.D., on his first visit to the far West. As usual Dr. Johnson carried away the people's notion that he is a good preacher. The conference lasted only six days. This left me five days before the Michigan Conference. It requiring ons of these to reach Chicago, I spent three days there, the guest of Rev. W. G Reed, pastor of Bethel Church. Elder Reed has accomplished a wonderful work there in the past two years, having lengthened the church building and added a story to it, besides having it finished and furnished in modern style. His spiritual success is equalled his financial. Easy-going and nnassuming, he is exerting a powerful influence in his society. He is a hard student, a progressive and vigilant pastor. I took a few minutes' time to call npon friends formed while attending the Iowa Conference: Mrs. Hall, who entertained me at the expense of Brother Weekly, presiding Elder Trevan, whose wife is that noble wife of a pastor, Mrs. T. W. Henderson, just in from a day's pastoral visit, her husband being absent. I also called on Rev. B Knight, Mr. Lloyd Carl, an old schoolmate, Mr. David McGowan and others.

On Sunday I preached in Rev. T. W. Henderson's church, Quinn Chapel, the mother church of the city. With that people the name of no other seems to outrank that of their pastor. At night I preached in Bethel Church.

There are many of our people in Chicago in good circnmstances. Judging from the Dollar Money reports rendered by the city pastors, one would infer that our churches there are quite as favorable to their local existence as to their connectional, yet I cannot forget that Elder T. W. Henderson sent $100 to the cause of missions. That is a good cause to be good on.

THE MICHIGAN CONFERENCE.

I had the pleasnre of seeing this little gem organized and so declared by Bishop Campbell, at Battle Creek, August 24th. The Rev. James M. Henderson was elected Secretary and the Rev. D. A. Graham, Assistant secretary. Eighteen members composed the roll. Drs. W. D. Johnson, Arnett, Tanner and Townsend were present. The conference was highly appreciated by our good Northern friends. Battle Creek is the American headqnarters of the Adventists, who have there a mammoth temple, a large pnblishing house and not a little control of affairs. They keep seventh day going in both departments of our world—its physical and its moral—that must necessarily continne until time delivers np its keepings to the great hereafter. There seems to be a journal in Battle Creek also; one of her danghters still lives near there The attendance at conference was nnusually large for a small city. The edncational sermon, by Rev. D. A. Graham, was thonghtful and forcibly delivered. He reminded me of our dear father Graham, in the Ohio Conference, in style of delivery. The Michigan Conference got only about one-third of the men formerly in the Indiana Conference, hnt it got some of their best. I do not think I have observed minntes ol conference taken with so great precision and good taste elsewhere Rev. W. H. Brown preached the annual sermon. He was very earnest in his delivery. The finances of the conference were small, hnt proportionally as good as those of other conferences visited. Bishop Campbell preached a sermon to the candidates for orders that will he remembered a long while. On one night Dr Townsend gave the conference an extensive, interesting sketch of the jonrney of himself and Bishop Campbell to Hayti.

On Sunday afternoon Bishop Campbell gave a history of the organization of African Methodism in Hayti. Hearing these two addresses, I could hut wish that they, the two travelers, would pnblish a pamphlet of what they saw, heard and did in Hayti, and that Dr. Townsend, according to promise, would give the Church the narrative through the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The conference adjonrned Sunday night.

Monday morning, in company with Drs. Johnson, Townsend and Bishop Campbell, I moved down to the Indiana Conference, at Richmond, where I remained hnt one day; hence can say little concerning it. Rev. J. Bass was re-elected Secretary and Rev. D. P. Roberts, M.D., Assistant Secretary. Bishop Campbell opened the conference with great fervor in worship. The pastor, Rev. M. Lewis, made an extraordinary plea with the brethren to be engaged in behalf of the salvation of sinners while in Richmond, declaring that thet was the one great want there Bishop Campbell seconded that plea and charged preaching accordingly.

I met Mrs. M E. (Binford) Perry in Richmond. Mrs. Perry is ons of the graduates of Wilberforce University I was pained to learn that she had lost her only child last spring. The mixed school system has displaced hoth her and Mrs Landonia (Williams) Brown, hoth excellent teachers. Mrs. Brown has taught there ten or twelve years and Mrs. Perry seven or eight; yet both had to go.

In company with Revs. George H. Shaffer, M D, of St. Louis, and H. H. Wilson, of the Indiana Conference, I dined with Mrs. Mary J Quinn, a well-known friend of African Methodism, widow of the sainted Bishop William Paul Quinn. Sister Quinn is not in good health, hnt in good spirits, living in her cosy home with little grandson and daughter, looking much like herself of years ago. By the way, I learned there that the life of Bishop Quinn is to be brought ont by Dr. Arnett. If this is a secret, it is now an open secret. I was the guest of Rev. Dr. Townsend, Secretary of Missions. Though anxious to return to my office and home, I could hnt regret leaving that house that became so home-like in two days. My ideal of a home in which to have a home is realised in Dr. Townsend's magnificent cottage and my ideal of life, in so mnch as I conld get of life here in two days, i. e., after Sister Townsend recovered for the time from the loss of her Haytian parrot The missionary office is an interesting place also I should like for some who say "Townsend's got nothing to do" to go there and see the amount of work innsed ont by him and his good assistant, who has to be his chief sometimes.

From Richmond I came on to Pittsburgh, where I attended a celebration held hy one of my Wilberforce friends, Rev. W. H. Palmer. The celebration was a failure, hnt the man is apparently a great snccess. At the celebration I met Revs. W. H. Brownstone, of New Brighton; W. S. Lowry, of Allegheny; B. Wheeler, of Pittsburgh; J. H. Morris, of Connellsburg; Brooks, of the Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, and Brookens, of the Zion Church. Brother Palmer had a good hand and all that, but the people failed to materialize extensively. From this place I come home to attend to my official duties.

THE A. M. E. CHURCH—THE VALUE OF ITS FAULT-FINDERS.

BY REV. A J. KERSHAW.

No. 6.

We ask permission from your many readers to change the lines of our discussion as mapped ont in our paper No 5.

Nature presents in all of her courses two antagonizing forces; or, in the language of Seward, there is an "irresistible conflict" going on in both departments of our world—its physical and its moral—that must necessarily continne until time delivers np its keepings to the great hereafter. There seems to be a journal in Battle Creek also; one of her danghters still lives near there The attendance at conference was nnusually large for a small city. The edncational sermon, by Rev. D. A. The finances of the conference were small, hnt proportionally as good as those of other conferences visited. Bishop Campbell preached a sermon to the candidates for orders that will he remembered a long while. On one night Dr Townsend gave the conference an extensive, interesting sketch of the jonrney of himself and Bishop Campbell to Hayti.

On Sunday afternoon Bishop Campbell gave a history of the organization of African Methodism in Hayti. Hearing these two addresses, I could hut wish that they, the two travelers, would pnblish a pamphlet of what they saw, heard and did in Hayti, and that Dr. Townsend, according to promise, would give the Church the narrative through the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The conference adjonrned Sunday night.

Monday morning, in company with Drs. Johnson, Townsend and Bishop Campbell, I moved down to the Indiana Conference, at Richmond, where I remained hnt one day; hence can say little concerning it. Rev. J. Bass was re-elected Secretary and Rev. D. P. Roberts, M.D, Assistant Secretary. Bishop Campbell opened the conference with great fervor in worship. The pastor, Rev. M. Lewis, made an extraordinary plea with the brethren to be engaged in behalf of the salvation of sinners while in Richmond, declaring that thet was the one great want there Bishop Campbell seconded that plea and charged preaching accordingly.

I met Mrs. M E. (Binford) Perry in Richmond. Mrs. Perry is ons of the graduates of Wilberforce University I was pained to learn that she had lost her only child last spring. The mixed school system has displaced hoth her and Mrs Landonia (Williams) Brown, hoth excellent teachers. Mrs. Brown has taught there ten or twelve years and Mrs. Perry seven or eight; yet both had to go.

In company with Revs. George H. Shaffer, M D, of St. Louis, and H. H. Wilson, of the Indiana Conference, I dined with Mrs. Mary J Quinn, a well-known friend of African Methodism, widow of the sainted Bishop William Paul Quinn. Sister Quinn is not in good health, hnt in good spirits, living in her cosy home with little grandson and daughter, looking much like herself of years ago. By the way, I learned there that the life of Bishop Quinn is to be brought ont by Dr. Arnett. If this is a secret, it is now an open secret. I was the guest of Rev. Dr. Townsend, Secretary of Missions. Though anxious to return to my office and home, I could hnt regret leaving that house that became so home-like in two days. My ideal of a home in which to have a home is realised in Dr. Townsend's magnificent cottage and my ideal of life, in so mnch as I conld get of life here in two days, i. e., after Sister Townsend recovered for the time from the loss of her Haytian parrot The missionary office is an interesting place also I should like for some who say "Townsend's got nothing to do" to go there and see the amount of work innsed ont by him and his good assistant, who has to be his chief sometimes.

From Richmond I came on to Pittsburgh, where I attended a celebration held hy one of my Wilberforce friends, Rev. W. H. Palmer. The celebration was a failure, hnt the man is apparently a great snccess. At the celebration I met Revs. W. H. Brownstone, of New Brighton; W. S. Lowry, of Allegheny; B. Wheeler, of Pittsburgh; J. H. Morris, of Connellsburg; Brooks, of the Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, and Brookens, of the Zion Church. Brother Palmer had a good hand and all that, but the people failed to materialize extensively. From this place I come home to attend to my official duties.

THE A. M. E. CHURCH—THE VALUE OF ITS FAULT-FINDERS.

BY REV. A J. KERSHAW.

No. 6.

We ask permission from your many readers to change the lines of our discussion as mapped ont in our paper No 5.

Nature presents in all of her courses two antagonizing forces; or, in the language of Seward, there is an "irresistible conflict" going on in both departments of our world—its physical and its moral—that must necessarily continne until time delivers np its keepings to the great hereafter. There seems to be a journal in Battle Creek also; one of her danghters still lives near there The attendance at conference was nnusually large for a small city. The edncational sermon, by Rev. D. A. Graham, was thonghtful and forcibly delivered. He reminded me of our dear father Graham, in the Ohio Conference, in style of delivery. The Michigan Conference got only about one-third of the men formerly in the Indiana Conference, hnt it got some of their best. I do not think I have observed minntes ol conference taken with so great precision and good taste elsewhere Rev. W. H. Brown preached the annual sermon. He was very earnest in his delivery. The finances of the conference were small, hnt proportionally as good as those of other conferences visited. Bishop Campbell preached a sermon to the candidates for orders that will he remembered a long while. On one night Dr Townsend gave the conference an extensive, interesting sketch of the jonrney of himself and Bishop Campbell to Hayti.

On Sunday afternoon Bishop Campbell gave a history of the organization of African Methodism in Hayti. Hearing these two addresses, I could hut wish that they, the two travelers, would pnblish a pamphlet of what they saw, heard and did in Hayti, and that Dr. Townsend, according to promise, would give the Church the narrative through the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The conference adjonrned Sunday night.

Monday morning, in company with Drs. Johnson, Townsend and Bishop Campbell, I moved down to the Indiana Conference, at Richmond, where I remained hnt one day; hence can say little concerning it. Rev. J. Bass was re-elected Secretary and Rev. D. P.

fault-finder, or its counteracter, our earth would be enveloped in flames that would soon reduce to liquid form the hardest substance in nature Separate the atmosphere's oxygen from its nitrogen and you have a place hotter than all the furnaces of Bahylon; hnt the air's great fault-finder is the lightning. It is an admitted fact that our atmospheres often becomes impregnated with the germs of deadly diseases, and the lightning, finding fault at the corrupted state of our air, gathers her spear, leaps from angry clouds to taunted earth, burns up these germs and purifies the air and makes it fit for the use of man, animal and plants.

Time and space will not allow us to iravel through all the departments of physical nature in search of her fault-finders The inventory is too nnmerous, our collections would he too large. A few more illustrations and we must dismiss this member of our discussion. Friction is the fault-finder of motion; attractive the fault-finder of repulsive force; distance the fault-finder of gravitation; and so is heat to cold, light to darkness. So much for a sketch of the physical world. We pass to the moral and when we find ourselves upon the very threshold of our theory and a boundless field for discussion. We claim, first, that the world's fault-finders are among its greatest heroes and without them she would have been still wrapped in the primitive darkness, both civilly and religiously. We think that it is high time that some one was paying dne respects to this class of the world's benefactors, and when we undertake to dem as demagognee and fanatics yon simply condemn your true friend. To what class, let us ask, is the world indshted for its republican form of government if not to its fault-finders? This class, becoming dissatisfied with despotism, tyranny and the "divine rights of the kings," has transformed the governments of the old world into republics and constitutional monarchies. It was the fault finders who laid the fonodation of our own government and fault-finders cleansed it from the seven-headed monster of human slavery It was the great Luther and his fault-finding colleagnes that led the reformation and put a stop to the onward movement to the "mother of harlots;" it was John Wesley and his fault-finding allies that gave a mortal wound to the doctrine of predestination. It was the fault-finders of our own Church who strangled, killed and buried, the very hour they were born, those three strange babies—high churchism, rotten and apostolic snccession. Christ found fault and for the fault finding the world's first gift was a manger for a cradle; the last, a cross. Paul was another great fault-finder, hnt if he had lived in our day he would have no one else would have read to him the riot act and demanded that he stop habbling or he hanged by sheriff "Fussation."

So much for the value of the world's fault-finders. Let us return to our own Church. Admitting that there is a class of our preachers who demand that all fault-finders of our Church have their places in that lake that burns with "disappointments" and no opportunities; that we ask these brethren to look well and examine the class of men whom they want thus punished? We think it a nnfair to hang us young sinners for the sin of fault-finding, when you allow to go scot free such hardened sinners as Bishops Payne, Campbell, Turner and all the rest of the Bench, for if fault-finding is a sin, Bishop D. A. Payne is the greatest sinner in our Church, because for nearly sixty years he has stood pointing out our defects as a Church, our unholiness as Christians and our ignorance as a race. Dr. Tanner is another great sinner; for sixteen years he has slept and talked with the greatest fault finder of the age (the RECORDER), for remember evil communication corrupts good manners, and I repeat, you shall not hang me so long as you allow him to continue to sin. Dr. B. F. Lee is another big sinner, and if hanging is to be the order of the day he must be the third man hanged, for look at his fault-finding editorials Some call them "pop guns," but I am sorry for the man behind whom they "pop." Let us take a retrospective view of our past history as a Church and the first that we see is the great fault-finder, Rev. Richard Allen. He being a fault-finder he built a fault-finding Church, and you should not be surprised if some of his sons should strive to follow in his tracks So much for the fault-finders of the moral world, now for the contrast in the physical world.

We have light as the fault-finder or counteracter of darkness in the moral; we have the pnlpit, the school house and the press as the fault-finder of ignorance, superstition and crime. In physical motion we have friction as its fault-finder; in the moral there is the sanctified heart and a purified conscience; and so on we could multiply illustrations by illustrations to an indefinite length. Bnt time and space will not allow, so we hasten to a close Now, brother A. tells you that our argument is too far from the snbject of discussion. Says he, "We are only talking about those who are always finding fault with that which is right." Well, brother, we have read somewhere in a book where it is said, "All men are right in their own sight, bnt God examines the heart." From this you see the fault-finders are as much right as those who find fault with them. Finally, we have adopted fault-finding as our life-work, so you must not blame me for followiog my calling.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHUROH.

LESSON HELPS IN FOUR GRADES.

THE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY. A thirty-six page pamphlet devoted to lesson helps for teachers and other scholars. Its value is enhanced by the introduction of appropriate forms for opening and closing exercises, hymns and tunes, maps, dictionary of proper names, etc.

THE SCHOLAR'S QUARTERLY. Similar to the above, but with such necessary changes as adapt it to the wants of scholars in the main school. It is marvelously cheap. Five or more copies to one address, per year, 7 cents each.

THE JUVENILE LESSON PAPER is a four page weekly, designed for younger scholars who have outgrown the infant class, but who retain their fondness for pictures and simple stories. 208 pages for a dime!

THE GEM LESSON PAPER is a beautiful lesson sheet, four pages handsomely illustrated and printed on pink paper; for primary or infant scholars. Each number contains besides the lesson, a page or more of "baby-land" talk. All for 5 cents a year, where five or more copies are sent to one address.

AN APPEAL IN BEHALF OF WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY.

Dear brethren and friends, the condition of our university makes it necessary for me to appeal to your noble generosity in this our great crisis. We are compelled to raise, by some means, fifteen hundred dollars in a short time; that amount is past due, but our creditors are indulgent and have promised to give us an opportunity to raise the money. We, the Executive Board, have had the matter under advisement and have appointed President Mitchell and Secretary Maxwell local agents to collect as much as they can in order to meet these urgent demands. We have further authorized and ordered an appeal to be published in our local papers and also in our Church organ, which appeal you are now reading. What will you do with it? How will you answer it? Will you respond to it as liberally as you can? May God help you so to do. We ask, we beseech you in all kindness not to pass over this matter carelessly and cast it from your minds. Brethren, this is your institution; it is the property of our Church and not a State normal, as some have already said. Our doors, it is true, are opened to all and we cordially invite and joyfully hail students of every nationality and religious faith; but this university is the property of the A. M. E. Church, owned and controlled by this Church as a body, and the day that her doors are closed for the want of means that day the 400,000 members of the A. M. E. Church become responsible and are or will be justly charged with the folly and crime of their negligence and stupidity. But her doors will not be closed; you will not suffer such a shame to blot the fair name of our grand Church. Brother Trustees, we appeal especially to you. We as a Board are your servants, executing, as far as we can, your will. We ask you to give us aid and our agents cannot call upon many of you in person. To you who read this appeal and are at a distance too remote for our local agents to call upon you in person and present the cause of our university and the great need of immediate action, we earnestly ask you in the name of God and a common humanity; in the name of the work accomplished in the past by Wilberforce; in the name of her many noble sons and daughters that have gone out from her and in their moral, intellectual and religious strength have lifted high the torch of reason and intelligence and with Christian heroism have unfurled the banner of the Redeemer; for the sake of all this institution has been the primal order in the hands of God in the past and for the sake of what lies within the realm of her power to do in the future we beseech and implore you to send as early as possible to the Secretary whatever you may be able to give in this direction. And for every dollar you give God will bless you many fold. Any amount you may send will be duly acknowledged and judiciously applied. We feel assured that our friends at home are going to aid us, but we want our friends and brethren abroad to co-operate with them. If they will do this in a liberal way we feel perfectly satisfied that within the next thirty days the fifteen hundred dollars will be realized and the burden removed. Brethren, for once respond to our earnest call, and relieve us of this embarrassement. It is our purpose to publish the names of the donors after the expense of our local agents shall have been concluded, and we sincerely hope to be able to have in the list the name of every trustee of the University.

Yours, with anxious waiting, signed by order and on behalf of the Executive Board of Wilberforce University,

J. P. MAXWELL,
Secretary.

EDUCATION.

Dear Brethren:—The time is fast approaching for us to make another grand rally for the cause of Christian education. Our district comprises all the conferences in the States of Arkansas, Louisiana, Texas and the Indian Territory. With our host of earnest and sacrificing workers we expect great results from the endowment effort. The educational interest is increasing all over our broad connection, and thousands of young men and women rap at the doors of our institutions. The 4th district has over three thousand soldiers on the field, and they expect us who stand at the head of affairs to make such provisions and to furnish such supplies as will enable them to wage a successful battle against ignorance, vice and superstition.

Let no man in our ranks falter, and remember that all moneys collected on the third Sunday in September must be sacredly consecrated to education.

The Southwest this year must rise and shine, but it must do so through us as leaders. Great things are expected of you, brethren, and in God's name let us make one grand rally for the elevation of our race and the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom.

This is our last effort before General Conference, and we urge you, dear brethren, to stir up your whole people, and rally all your forces for Endowment Day, so we may render a good account of our stewardship. Let no man be unfaithful in this great struggle. Come forth and show your strength.

Send 75 per cent. of all collections to me at Waco, the remaining 25 per cent. to Dr. W. D. Johnson, at Athens, Ga.

Yours for God and humanity,

I. M. BURGAN,
Secretary Fourth Educational District, Waco, Texas.

THE FOURTH DISTRICT.

Send to I. M. Burgan, Waco, Texas, and includes the following Conferences, viz: Arkansas, South Arkansas, Louisiana, North Louisiana, West Texas, North East Texas, Central Texas and Indian Conferences.

THE LAST ENDOWMENT DAY BEFORE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

This is Centennial year for the A. M. E. Church; it is also the last year before General Conference. Endowment Day will come on the 18th of September.

Let the effort made by us this year for education be worthy of the occasion. Life's great mission is to enlighten and Christianize the word. This is every man's highest calling.

Now, my dear brother in the ministry, we ask you in the name of your high and sacred calling, in the name of the elevation of our race, in the name of the enfranchisement of ten thousand of our brethren in the South, to raise as much money as you possibly can for Christian education.

To aid in this work a beautiful Gold-plated Medal, with the Lord's Prayer engraved on one side, will be awarded to every child or adult who may raise sixty cents by Endowment Day Punch Card and forward it to me. Every member of the Church should secure one of these medals. Urge the Superintendent and Sabbath school to commence the work immediately. Give the Superintendent his circular.

I can send by return mail all the cards you want. Write immediately and let me know how many to send.

Our sincere and fervent prayer is that God may bless abundantly your efforts.

Very respectfully,

JOHN G. MITCHELL,
Sixth and Broadway, Cincinnati, O.

ENDOWMENT DAY, SEPTEMBER 18TH.

Brethren of the Pittsburg conference to the front, and let it be published far and near in the bounds of our Conference that we must try and do our best for the work of education this year. Try to do better than we have ever done. Our monument of pride (Wilberforce,) is calling loud and long for help, with all of our other worthy institutions. And the 18th of September, which is the 3rd Sabbath, is the day set apart for educational work. See chapter 5, page 340, of Discipline.

Yours for the work of Christian Education,

GEO. C. SAMPSON,
Member of Board for Pittsburg Conference.

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The secretaries of the Conferences that have elected ministerial and lay delegates to the General conference to convene at Indianapolis, Ind., May, 1888, are hereby urgently requested to forward, at once, names of said delegates, and name of conference. The conferences that have not yet elected said delegates, secretaries are requested to forward names of delegates and name of conference at their earliest opportunity. We are anxious to push the work of preparation as fast as possible. Please write names plainly that there be no mistakes.

Delegates bringing their wives, and all visiting brethren not directly connected with the Conference, must come prepared to pay for board and lodging. We shall provide for members of the General Conference only.

Direct all communications to John W. Gezsway, 214 West Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind.

THAT TWENTY-FIVE PER CENT.

By order of the Board of Education, all pastors, without exception, must send 25 per cent of the Endowment Money to Rev. Wm. D. Johnson, D.D., box 263, Athens, Ga. This money will now be used to pay the expenses of the Educational Department, including the salary of the Secretary of Education.

J. P. CAMPBELL,

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

EPISCOPAL ROOMS, AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH,
No. 1424 R. I. Avenue,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb 4, 1887.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHUCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask your father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness!"

Next November will be one hundred years since Richard Allen and his compeere left St. George's M. E. Church, in the city of Philadelphia, (1787) and the Bishops of the semi-annual meeting adopted the following Preamble and Resolutions.

WHEREAS November next, 1887, will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because the colored people belonging to the Methodist Society of Philadelphia convened together in order to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of worship, and even pulled them off their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seats." (See Preface to the A. M. E. Church Dicipline,)

AND WHEREAS: This is the most decisive act of the religious colored people in the United States, and we know of none like it of the descendants of Africa; in the world; if we except the Resolve of the Haitians under Toussaint, Cristophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo, in a civil and political sense, what Allen, Jones, Tapsco and others were to the colored Christians of America; their act was manhood, freedom, and manhood christianity. We must fully recognize their action a successful republic we have—all therefore recognize their manhood because their acts prove it. To resist oppression in Church or State is manly. Toussaint and Allen are by us honored, reverred and loved. The anccess of Allen and his compeers is pronounced, for it has become the largest colored organization in the world. It is therefore proper and right that we should commemorate an event so important and so full of interest to us as a race. Therefore be it, Resolved, first, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed, to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that services be held at all our churches throughout the connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each Conference, quarterly conference, and pastor and each church. A general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Resolved, second, As our publishing interest has long suffered, because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected to be appropriated to assist in the paying off of debts now reeting on our Publication Department.

Adopted.

COMMITTEE OF ARRANGEMENTS:
J. M. BROWN,
T. M. D. WARD,
H. M. TURNER,
R. R. DISNEY,
B. W. ARNETT.

We ask co-operation. If you intend to cooperate will you send to me signifying your approval and intention to act, by addressing a note to No. 1424 R. I. Avenue, Washington, D. C.

Any plan suggested by you please forward to me.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN M. BROWN, Chairman.

P. S.—I wish you unity, prosperity and holiness, and that next year will be the crowning year of our Church.

ATLANTA, GA., August 26, 1887.

To the Ministers and Members of the Second Educational District, including the following conferences, viz: Columbia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, North Georgia, and Macon:

DEAR BEETHREN:—Our next Endowment Day will be the third Sunday in next September. I earnestly trust that each minister will endeavor to do his best to make our educational collection a success. "Dr. William D. Johnson, our Secretary of Education, is anxious for his department to stand second to none. Therefore, let us rally, as this is the last educational collection this side of the General Conference.

I am fraternally yours,

W. J. GAINES,
Secretary Second District.

OFFICE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL WHO HAVE BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS WITH THIS DEPARTMENT.

READ, RE-READ AND REMEMBER.

1st. We do not take postage stamps. If you cannot obtain Post Office Money Order, which is the safest method to send money, you can send by registered letter. These are issued by every post office in the United States. If your postmaster insists on selling you stamps you insist the more on having him register your letter.

2nd. Send the exact amount of money required to pay for the goods you order. When this is not done our rule is to send that amount of supplies which the money sent will pay for.

3rd. When you order from us, always write plainly at the bottom of your letter the place where you wish your supplies sent. Very often persons write us an order from one place on a circuit desiring it sent to some other place, and do not mention this very important fact.

4th. For all money sent to us for Sunday school literature we send a postal card receipt, numbered. If your order is delayed, or if there is any irregularity concerning it, write to us about it, but be sure to give the number of your receipt card and the name of the person who sent the order or signed his name to it. When a pastor writes to us that his superintendent sent us money, etc., we do not know who is his superintendent unless he writes us his name. Always send the names of persons and not names of churches, schools, circuits, stations, etc.

5th. Sign your name to your communication. We cannot tell who sent a letter to us when there is no name signed to it.

6th. Write your name in large, plain letters. Avoid flourishing. It is useless and often renders obscure what would otherwise be legible writing.

7th. Never send a postal note, money order or express package without any instruction accompanying it. How do we know what to do with money sent thus?

8th. We have lost a great deal of money by sending supplies C. O. D. because the parties whom we thus favored failed to take them from the express office. In consequence of this neglect and absolute loss which we have borne because of it, we have decided to positively refuse to grant any more C. O. D. favors to anyone. Please do not request them.

9th. Our business is conducted on a strictly cash basis. If you are not familiar with our prices write to us when you wish to buy and we will freely quote them or send you a catalogue, price list, blank and return envelope.

10th. Always collect your money for supplies and have it appropriated for them at least two weeks before the beginnig of each quarter; this will prevent much delay. Very often orders do not arrive until one-half or two-thirds of the quarter is past; in which case we have to print an extra amount of literature for the benefit of two or three persons or else lay ourselves liable to a "raking over" by them.

11th. When the Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterly, the Juvenile and Gem Lesson Papers are ordered, they are rolled in one package together. The catechisms, song books, primary lessons, reward cards and other such matter are never in one wrapper. When you order both inquire for two packages at the post office.

12th. If your city has the free delivery system have your mail directed to the street and number. Unless you do this it will be returned to us while you are abusing us for neglect.

13th. Every pastor is hereby earnestly requested to have some one, who is permanently located in his work, elected Sunday school supply clerk, whose duty it shall be to send for all orders for his Sunday school supplies.

We hope this will be done at once by each pastor and that he will send us the name of the one elected to this office. This method of communicating with us through a person who has permanent location in a place will lessen difficulty and greatly facilitate intercourse between us and our patrons. It is hoped that this request will receive immediate attention. We have purchased new books in which to record the names of Sunday school supply clerks and we anxiously await their names. A postal card will serve for this purpose. Hoping that the above instructions will be received with the kindly spirit with which they are given, and praying the blessing of Almighty God upon all those who are, with us, intrusted with the children's welfare. Fraternally,

C. S. SMITH.

The following words, in praise of DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION as a remedy for those delicate diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, must be of interest to every sufferer from such maladies. They are fair samples of the spontaneous expressions with which thousands give utterance to their sense of gratitude for the inestimable boon of health which has been restored to them by the use of this world-famed medicine.

$100 THROWN AWAY.

JOHN E. SEGAR, of Millenbeck, Va., writes: "My wife had been suffering for three or three years with female weakness, and had paid out one hundred dollars to physicians without relief. She took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did her more good than all the medicine given to her by the physicians during the three years they had been practicing upon her."

THE GREATEST EARTHLY BOON.

MRS. GEORGE HENGER, of Westfield, N. Y., writes: "I was a great sufferer from leucorrhœa, bearing-down pains, and pain continually across my back. Three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' restored me to perfect health. I treated with physicians for nine months, without receiving any benefit. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

THREW AWAY HER SUPPORTER.

MRS. SOPHIA F. BOSWELL, White Cottage, O., writes: "I took eleven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of your 'Pellets.' I am doing my work, and have been for some time. I have had to employ help for about sixteen years before I commenced taking your medicine. I have had to wear a supporter most of the time; this I have laid aside, and feel as well as I ever did."

IT WORKS WONDERS.

MRS. MAY GLEASON, of Nunica, Ottawa Co. Mich., writes: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' has worked wonders in my case.

Again she writes: "Having taken several bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' I have regained my health wonderfully, to the astonishment of myself and friends. I can now be on my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household.

3 PHYSICIANS FAILED.

A Marvelous Cure.—MRS. G. F. SPRAGUE, of Crystal, Mich., writes: "I was troubled with female weakness, leucorrhœa and falling of the womb for seven years, so I had to keep my bed for a good part of the time. I doctored with an army of different physicians, and spent large sums of money, but received no lasting benefit. At last my husband persuaded me to try your medicines, which I was loath to do, because I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I finally told my husband that if he would get me some of your medicines, I would try them against the advice of my physician. He got me six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of Dr. Pierce's 'Discovery,' for ten dollars. I took three bottles of 'Discovery' and four of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been a sound woman for two years. I then gave the balance of the medicine to my sister, who was troubled in the same way, and she cured herself in a short time. I have not had to take any medicine now for almost four years."

JEALOUS DOCTORS.

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adjusting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the uterus, or womb and its appendages, in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. It promotes digestion and assimilation of food, cures nausea, weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating and eructations of gas.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequalled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.

As a "Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, or "whites," excessive flowing at monthly periods, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

In pregnancy, "Favorite Prescription" is a "mother's cordial," relieving nausea, weakness of stomach and other distressing symptoms peculiar to that condition. It is its use is kept up in the latter months of gestation, it so prepares the system for delivery as to greatly lessen, and many times almost entirely do away with the sufferings of that trying ordeal.

"Favorite Prescription," when taken according to directions with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Purgative Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes cancerous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years. Large bottles (100 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's large, illustrated Treatise (300 pages) on Diseases of Women.

Hair Neglected

Soon becomes dry, harsh, coarse, and full of dandruff; it loses vitality and turns prematurely gray, or falls out rapidly and threatens early baldness. A careful dressing daily with Ayer's Hair Vigor—the best preparation for the purpose—will preserve the hair in all its luxuriance and beauty to a good old age.

Frederick F. Coggeshall, Rockville, St Merrimack St., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Some six or seven years ago my wife had a severe illness, in consequence of which she became almost entirely bald and was compelled to wear a wig. A few months since she began to apply Ayer's Hair Vigor to the scalp, and, after using three bottles, has a good growth of hair started all over her head. The hair is now from two to four inches long, and growing freely. The result is a most gratifying proof of the merit of your admirable preparation."

THE NORTHWEST.

BY REV. JOHN M. HENDERSON.

Environment has a very apparent influence in moulding and determining the character of individuals, as well as directing and shaping the fortunes of a community or nation.

I never yet, during years of extensive travel, have found a thrifty class of our people among slow-going, prejudiced and thriftless whites; but in towns and cities of stirring enterprise, pure social life and good educational facilities, you will usually find that our people, if there, are like their surroundings. The influence of association, and even the influence of example, is most potent. The whites of the South, being the dominant class, because of the shiftlessness and immorality existing in their midst, are, to a great extent, responsible for the perpetuation of a similar element among our people.

In this far away North western section, nestled among the hills, at the head of the navigation of the Mississippi river, is a civilization destined to become the marvel of America. No one without a personal visit could or would be able to conceive of the marvelous twin cities. The limits of St. Paul and Minneapolis are adjacent, and together include a population reaching nearly one-half million of persons. At present over five thousand houses are in process of erection. Large factories and shops are building, while Eastern capital is busy securing sites to locate others. The people of this country are energetic and boldly enterprising. Business goes ahead with a dash and vigor which mocks the slower and more cautious methods of the East. Capital seems to be inexhaustible and enterprise knows no fear. Religion is not neglected, but rather occupies a prominent place in the attention of the community. The church is held in high esteem and exerts a powerful influence. Social life is unburdened with many of the shams and notions of the East; yet to have a good and respectable social stand is held as one of the darling aims of all. In the midst of such a community are about two thousand or more colored people. Many of them have not been impervious to the influences at work around them, but have imbibed the prevalent spirit of enterprise. Those who have gone into business or entered into the industrial struggle with the same spirit that characterizes their neighbors, have been about as successful as white men of equal ability and means. Some of our people, such as Mr. Syles and others, are the owners of valuable residences, each of which will rent for sixty dollars and upwards per month. Colored men who seek wealth here are called upon to confront about the same obstacles as lay in the path of our people all over the land, the only difference being the surroundings are a greater source of inspiration and incitement. Consequently many of our men have had the courage to go ahead, regardless of discouragement, and have won victories most surprising.

St. Paul is a city of beautiful homes. Architecture here takes a bolder flight than in any other American society. English precedents are forgotten and we have a style of architecture peculiarly and exclusively American. Architecture is a recognized and respected art, and architects are held as professional men. Mr. Frank Robinson, lately returned from Europe, has already made a mark as an architect and artist.

We are represented in the civil service as well as in trade and city positions. Some of our young men occupy honorable places as clerks and book-keepers with our leading merchants; we also have a few young ladies whose ability has been recognized. Thus you can see there is no great antagonism between the races here. We have two colored churches—Baptist and Methodist. The Baptists have lately completed the Pilgrim Church, begun by Rev. Bird Wilkins a year ago. It is a most magnificent and beautiful structure, thus far unrivaled in the West. Not from a desire to surpass but for the reason our larger and more wealthy congregation demands it, we have undertaken a building which in size and interior finish will surpass the splendid Pilgrim Church. Our building was commenced by my predecessor, that prince of pastors, Rev. C. S. Jacobs. By October 1st we hope to have entered our Church. Its seating capacity will be over 550. The interior will be finished in true Gothic style. Three of the large windows are marvels of beauty and art. We have a congregation suitable for such a church.

In this city is presented the unusual phenomenon of well defined social circles. The line of discrimination is closely and fearlessly drawn—character, culture and tastes are made the criterion. In the last two years over four hundred new comers have settled here, many of whom already own beautiful homes. The openings and advantages offered worthy and industrious colored people of the better class are unexcelled anywhere.

I must close. It is pleasant to note that the A. M. E. Review has a larger circulation in the twin cities than in any other Western community. By Christmas, I intend by God's help to send in a club of at least fifty subscribers to the RECORDER. We are now earnestly engaged in an effort to raise $2,400 by October 1st and the prospects are that we will exceed that amount. We have issued one hundred and fifty books. The bearer of one of these, Mr. Gilliard, a grandson of Daniel Coker, received over one hundred dollars during the first day of his effort. Daniel Harding, Richard Taylor, Carlos Williams, Wm Queen, Columbus Waldon and Thos. H. Lyles have each undertaken to raise at least four hundred dollars apiece, with the aid of a band of twenty each which has been assigned them. Mrs. Lyles, Mrs Russell and others are also enthusiastically at work. Pray God that our undertaking, which is rather a stupendous one, will be successful and that by next conference we can pay off every dollar of indebtedness which will necessitate us to raise for trustee purposes over six thousand dollars.

DEFENSE OF THE COLUMBIA CONFERENCE.

BY REV. C. PIERCE NELSON.

MR. EDITOR:—You will favor us by allowing space in the CHRISTIAN RECORDER for the purpose of defending the fair names of the members of the Columbia Annual Conference than whom a better body of men cannot be found. For several issues of the past, articles of scurrility and of a libelous nature, defaming the fair name of one of the grandest conferences of the connection, composed of men noted for their virtue, morality, honesty and the highest Christian qualities, are and have been held up to the world as being composed of men who are purchasers of the Bishops and of the presiding elders and of their appointments, and their seats in the General Conference of the Church.

I beg to reply to the article in your issue of August 11, 1887, under the caption, "You Cannot Buy Me," by Rev. I. S. Grant, of Orangeburg, S. C. The brother says that these words were those of Bishop Shorter, and that he used them, "it seems as if he had a knowledge of the fact that some man or set of men had been in the habit of buying their appointments with presents of $50 and $60." He says the brethren knew who did receive these presents, and from whom they came." Now, Brother Grant, let the public know the set of men who buy their appointments; secondly, the Bishop that received such a bribe of from $50 to $60. Brother, says, "If I have to be a lackey to be a presiding elder I never will be one; to buy my way to the General Conference I never will get there. Many of the delegates to the last General Conference bought their way there." Now, will the brother tell the public, before whom he slanders his own conference delegates, the price agreed upon and to whom it was paid, and name the men who purchased their seats? I was a delegate, so I ask you to name all the parties. You say this fact can he demoustrated; let your truth be forthcoming; name the guilty ones and I will assist in spoiling the briber and the bribe-taker for his seat in the last General Conference. The brother says that he hopes that the next Bishop we shall get will be a man of honor. Of course, I presume he is. Will the brother name the preacher, for the information of the public, whom he undertakes to instruct on the subject of bribery in the Conference of which he is an honored member? And again he says that Bishop Shorter "threw out a dynamite and uprooted many things," but he does not and cannot tell us about a single thing that he has uprooted; but he further says, in the same breath, that that class intended for positions to seek them, and not they seeking position. If such was true of the writer himself, he would have no need of writing such opprobrious articles against the presiding elders and a certain class of men whom he terms as purchasers of the Bishops and presiding elders of the Columbia Conference. If the brother is waiting for the position to seek him he would he more quiet; but the trouble is this: position seems to be against him, and for that he charges the members of conference with corruption, because some other brother appointments than the writer, perhaps, thinks he has himself. The brother says that "upon 1888 there are many eyes opened, and the boys (meaning brethren,) are going to speak their opinion though the heavens fall." What does the brother mean by this? Does he mean to say that there is a combination for disloyalty or for evil? We have a guide to go by in the election of delegates to the next General Conference, and it is no more than the duty of every member of the Conference to be governed by the law, and when the brother writes such defamatory articles against his own conference, and when the Church organ publishes to the world that the leading men of the conference are corrupt bribe-takers, and the Bishops, all save Bishop Shorter, have been aiding and abetting this wicked practice, somebody believes it to be true, or they believe the writer to be an insane man. Brethren of the connection, I most emphatically deny the bill of charges made against my brethren and my conference, my Bishops and presiding elder. I further denounce the article before the connection as being absolutely and unqualifiedly untrue, and, if not as I have stated, let him name the Bishops, the presiding elders, the ruling elders, the delegates to the last General Conference who are and were guilty of these low, wicked and unministerial practices; and should he fail to made good these grave charges against a class of men in the conference, to be held before the conference responsible for the article.

In conclusion I have to say that no other conference has been ridiculed through the RECORDER as this conference, and the general tone of the articles has been to arouse the suspicion of the public against the honesty, integrity and morality of the conference The lessons left by the late lamented Revs. A. T. Carr, Edwards, Miller, Graham, and a host of others shall never be forgotten. The life of the late Rt. Rev. Wm. F. Dickerson, D. D., who comes in clandestinely for some of the blame and abuse of some of the articles that have maligned the conference before the public, will always be precious. When he fell he left us his mantle. We would say to the brethren that we should not quarrel with the dead. Let us be Christian enough to settle our differences without publishing them to the world. The Columbia Conference stands ready to do her duty by her self-defense, and when she fails it is because such is an unwritten law. Always watchful vigorous and faithful, her members seek only to put the law into execution, so if Brother Grant fails to substantiate his charges he must be held guilty before the connection as defaming the name of one of the grandest conferences in the connection.

Newberry, S. C.

THE ILLINOIS CONFERENCE.

Owing to the Bishop finding it necessary to his getting to the site of the California conference at the proper time, he called the Illinois Conference for August 13th, instead of 17th, as published in the paper.

At Cairo, Ill., on the morning of August 13th, at 9 o'clock, Rt. Rev. John M. Brown, D.D., D.C.L., called the conference to order and conducted the preliminary religious service, in singing hymn 331, praying and reading 23d Psalm. The prayers of Revs. E. P. Moore and P. W. Chester followed.

The Bishop's address to the conference was graceful, thoughtful and calculated to leave proper impressions upon our minds much longer than the time of this conference. Bishop Brown is a wise, pious and fatherly man, whom every one must love.

Rev. N. J. McCracken, secretary of the last conference, called the roll. The conference was organized by electing Rev. J. D. Ferguson secretary; Rev. E. P. Moore statistical secretary; Rev. H. Simons, engrossing secretary; T. A. Clark, reporter to the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, and the announcement of the committees and I will assist in spelling the briber and the bribe-taker for his seat in the last General Conference. The brother says that he hopes that the next Bishop we shall get will be a man of honor. Of course, I presume he is. Will the brother name the preacher, for the information of the public, whom he undertakes to instruct on the subject of bribery in the Conference of which he is an honored member? And again he says that Bishop Shorter "threw out a dynamite and uprooted many things," but he does not and cannot tell us about a single thing that he has uprooted; but he further says, in the same breath, that that class intended for positions to seek them, and not they seeking position. If such was true of the writer himself, he would have no need of writing such opprobrious articles against the presiding elders and a certain class of men whom he terms as purchasers of the Bishops and presiding elders of the Columbia Conference. If the brother is waiting for the position to seek him he would he more quiet; but the trouble is this: position seems to be against him, and for that he charges the members of conference with corruption, because some other brother appointments than the writer, perhaps, thinks he has himself. The brother says that "upon 1888 there are many eyes opened, and the boys (meaning brethren,) are going to speak their opinion though the heavens fall." What does the brother mean by this? Does he mean to say that there is a combination for disloyalty or for evil? We have a guide to go by in the election of delegates to the next General Conference, and it is no more than the duty of every member of the Conference to be governed by the law, and when the brother writes such defamatory articles against his own conference, and when the Church organ publishes to the world that the leading men of the conference are corrupt bribe-takers, and the Bishops, all save Bishop Shorter, have been aiding and abetting this wicked practice, Church is justly prond of the erudition and good judgment displayed by the Dr. in managing the Review. At night Rev. Wilkins preached in the Missionary Baptist Church. Bishop Brown in the M. E. Church and Dr. B. W. Arnett in the A. M. E. Church. It is said that the M. E. audience was delighted with the Bishop's sermon. As always so on these occasions, Dr. Arnett was quite equal to the demands of the hour.

On Monday morning, after a learned sermon on education by the Rev. W. H. Chambers, the conference held an interesting mass meeting, at which spirited speeches were made by Drs Arnett and Tanner and others.

On Tuesday the missionary meeting was well attended by the populace, and who responded to the call for missions with $25. The missionary sermon by Rev. Charles Holmes was accompanied by much ardor. Elder Holmes' manner pleased the audience as well as the Bishop.

The conference temperance society held its anniversary Wednesday; the sermon was preached by Rev. J. B. Dawson. The sentiment, style and subject were all that the conference could ask. Impromptu addresses were made by several brethren. Rev. B. F. Lee preached the ordination sermon, after which four candidates were ordained. The reports to the conference show an increase in membership, church building and finances over last year. About $6 dollar was raised in the Springfield District, $385 70; in the Cairo District, $253 20; total, $638 90.

The conference was highly pleased to have the presence of Mrs. Brown, whose excellent qualities the Bishop so frequently mentions as exemplary of a good Methodist minister's wife. All must agree with him, for Mrs. Brown is all that is included in the term, a Christian lady.

Drs. Lee, Arnett, Johnson and Tanner were kindly received and entertained personally and as representatives of their respective departments, and in a rare treat to have so large a number of General Officers at our Western Conferences. We esteem it as an especial honor conferred upon the conference, and invite them to come next year or advise their successors so to do.

The literary meeting was a success. Our conference is improving in point of education. The manner of conducting it is strictly adhered to, yet five young ministers admitted this year were equal to the demands of the Discipline. The hot weather that attended our session did not seem to diminish the interest created in the city by the first sessions. The house is crowded at every session at night. The conference lasted but six days, including Sunday. Dr. W. D. Johnson preached a sermon on the closing night, Thursday, that will be remembered long.

The conference has been grandly impressed by Bishop Brown and regrets having to give him up next spring. He is kind, fatherly, strong and impartial. We voted him a material indication of our good feelings for him, but that only poorly expressed our hearts. Mrs. Brown is quite as popular with us as the Bishop. We were pleased to have Revs P. M. Lewis, of the Missouri Conference, and T. W. Henderson and J. Woods, of the Iowa Conference, with us. So far as I have learned the most of the brethren are well pleased with their appointments.

The conference regretted the absence of Dr. O. S Smith, whom the General Conference has placed in the position of Secretary of the Sunday School Union; the cause is a domestic one, his absence was caused by severe sickness. However, trusting that God will raise him up, we are comforted by the brilliant record he is making in the department.

A WORD FROM THE MANAGER.

To my dear brother ministers of the Church: The last round of annual conferences for this ecclesiastical term has begun. Our Bishops have been obliged, we suppose, to group the fall and early winter conferences close together—from August and September, eight in October, ten in November and eight in December, making thirty four of the forty-four conferences of the connection in a little more than four months. Of course it would be impossible for us, even if our editor could go out and stay in the field with us, to visit all, or even a majority of these sessions, to collect our subscriptions and press the sale of our books.

We are heartily thankful to the dear brethren in Iowa, Illinois and the little new-born Michigan for the noble patronage given us by the hand of Dr. Lee. Two hundred and eighty dollars came to us from these three little conferences for subscriptions, bills and merchandize. We urge every pastor to pay his subscription in full to the paper, and at the same time get two or three subscribers in your charge. We will send the paper from now until January 1st to any address for fifty cents. Show the paper to your people and ask them to subscribe.

2. We have still on hand a few copies of that truly great work, "Genesis Revised," that we offered sometime back at seventy-five cents to clear a 200 lot. If you would supply yourself with a copy before they are all gone, now is your time. Send your orders at once.

3. Have you seen our new Ritual yet? If you have not you have missed a treat. Send for it. Only 45 cents. A very nice one, leather bound, 50 cents, and a fine morocco bound copy for $1.00. The handsomest little book ever published by our Church, 202 pages.

4. During the three months, September, October and November, we have some heavy bills to pay. We need money and must have it.

From now until December 1st we will give 20 per cent. off and prepay the freight on orders for Hymn Books and Discipline and Rituals and love-feast tickets, etc., on all orders of $10 worth or more. On $20 worth, cash with order, we will give 25 per cent. off and prepay the freight.

Last of all, we want to speak once more for the RECORDER. We have resolved to raise one thousand new subscribers for the RECORDER by the 22nd of December, if possible. On that date our publishing house will issue our centennial number of the paper. This issue is to contain the list of churches and pastors who take part in the celebration, and the amount contributed by each for the Centennial Fund. We shall send out five thousand copies for distribution and sale.

Now, in order to get our one thousand subscribers, we will offer the following liberal inducement: When two hundred and fifty cash subscribers have been obtained, we will give to the minister or other gentleman who procures the highest number of names the following premium: A handsome gold watch, for Mrs. Brown is all that is included in the term, a Christian lady.

Drs. Lee, Arnett, Johnson and Tanner were kindly received and entertained personally and as representatives of their respective departments, and in a rare treat to have so large a number of General Officers at our Western Conferences. OUR NEEDS.

BY REV JNO. C. BROCK.

Again in our history as a Church the time is rapidly rolling on when our legislators shall assemble for the purpose, we trust, of deliberating wisely relative to the needs of our Zion. More now, perhaps, than ever before in the history of our Church is needed all the wisdom, loyalty, religion and discretion that can be commanded by the respective delegates to the General Conference of 1888. Much of our future prosperity, as a Church, will largely depend on the wisdom of the legislation of this body. It is well, therefore, that the views of the constituency from different sections of the country be given, that the thinking minds of the General Conference may be the better enabled to judge of the enactments that may be necessary for the general good of the whole. A broad and comprehensive legislation is necessary. Sectional needs may not be the necessities of the whole, and from this standpoint we think all judgment should be based.

1. As a presiding elder I admit more Bishops are necessary. Since the last quadrennium three of our executive officers have passed away; of those who still survive four at least give evidence that they are being ensnared by Time, the enemy's flag is waving on the outpost, and soon they must surrender. Their names are household words all over the land; but we must soon give them up; therefore wisdom dictates that more are necessary; just how many let the assembled wisdom of the General Conference decide—certainly not less than five. The kind we need is portrayed in 1 Tim. 3, 1-7. No better description can he given by any man. If they come from the North, South, East or West let them be measured by St. Paul's estimate of qualifications, let them be both mentally and physically strong—men who possess the ability and the will to travel at large through their districts. Go to any of these sessions and present our connectional interests to the people, and almost the first complaint we meet, and perhaps the most difficult to apologize for, is, we are hardly ever so fortunate as to see our Bishops. In the past we have been enabled to partially meet these objections with the plea of an extensive district, increasing weight of years and physical disability. That excuse is admitted so far as our venerated fathers of long years' service is concerned, but it will not be so readily accepted in reference to the episcopates who may be selected in 1888.

Another characteristic to be considered is evenness of temper. A tyrannical elder is apt to impress much in disposition after he is elevated to the episcopal bench. Bishop Ward, in his "closing words for the quadrennium," published in the RECORDER of September 1st, presents the names of nine different places lost to us because somebody blundered. The responsibility of those blunders lies, perhaps, on more than one pair of shoulders. Supervision is necessary, and supervision cannot be unless some episcopal head is near of access to supervise. May heaven direct our legislators to a righteous selection in their vote for the Bishopric.

2. As to presiding elders: It must be conceded that Section 7, articles 1 and 2, page 117, [reudered this sub-executive department obnoxious. There has been a manifest hostility on the part of the ministry and laity ever since that enactment has been on the statutes. Various opinions are extant relative to the necessity of the office. Arguments pro and con have been given by learned magnates as well as by the lesser lights. It will be perhaps one of the most difficult questions for the nineteenth session of the General Conference to solve. But I am of the opinion that no better disposition can be made of the matter than to leave it optional with each annual conference to decide whether it is a necessity for them to have presiding elders or not. If that is not done, then at least allow the annual conferences to elect their own presiding elders, that our Bishops may be relieved from the suspicion of favoritism that is too often hinted. If the annual conference elects the wrong man, then they must confess their own error of judgment and cannot throw the responsibility off their own shoulders. We as a people have settled in different parts of our country by force of circumstances, consequently our population in some sections is much more sparse than in some others; therefore the needs of the one section are not the necessities of the other, and each conference can best decide for itself as to its relative wants or needs in this particular direction; and when I say this, I am satisfied that I voice the sentiment of a large majority of the First Episcopal District at least. In our next we will say a word in relation to the many collection days now incumbent upon us as to whether or not this is the best method.

It is said that a base ball pitcher cannot improve his curves by gatting on a bender.

THE ROMANCE OF MISSIONS.

Bishop Taylor's little band of missionaries is making steady progress in its march across Africa. The letters sent home are as full of interesting incidents as Haggard's story of the search for "King Solomon's Mines." Yet time and distance are for these missionaries shattered by modern science. The telephone is to be placed along the Congo route, and about the same time this will be put up the little steamer for navigating the Congo River is expected by the Bishop. The steamer will be supplied with apparatus for throwing a stream of water on the belligerent natives. There will also be an electric light on the boat, and in time this also will be introduced into the mission stations of the African wilderness. Thus doubly armed with the Gospel and with the magic of modern scientific invention the missionary hopes to complete a chain of mission stations completely across the heart of the dark continent. This hard working Methodist missionary is accomplishing more than the wildest dreams of any romancer ever dazzled by his mystical adventures. He has called for a new band of earnest Christian workers to go out to him in the Fall, and farmers, builders, or men with a trade are doubly useful in this new country.—Christian at Work.

THE OLDEST CITY IN AMERICA.

Santa Fe is said to be the oldest city in America. That the statement is not true would be hard to prove, because the question of its origin and age is wrapped in mystery. When Coronado explored Mexico in 1542 he found many Indian pueblos on the Rio Grande, and speaks of several which must have been near the present location of Santa Fe. The one which it is generally supposed was on its precise site was called Tequa, and at that time stretched along its river banks for six miles. Coronado reported that he found here a beautiful and fertile valley, under high cultivation by the Indians.

This was in 1542. Visiting Santa Fe to-day it is hard to realize, ancient as the old ruins look, that one can really be gazing on walls which Coronado saw nearly three centuries and a half ago. It is still harder to realize what must have been the oppressions and cruelties which have brought about the present degraded and wretched condition of the Indians whose ancestors formerly occupied and cultivated the whole valley. That a race which over 300 years ago had reached comfort and success in agricultural and mineral occupations should be to-day an abject, supine, wretched race of beggars, is a melancholy comment on the injustice they have received. They did not sink without struggles. In 1680 they rose out all the Spanish settlers and all the Roman Catholic priests, pulled down most of the churches, and—pathetic and significant act—covered up and concealed, so far as they could, every mine in the country. Only too well they knew that it was to the presence of the precious metals that they owed all their sufferings. For twelve years they held their own, but in 1692 they were again conquered and the Spanish power there established. After the last great battle in this contest 400 young Indian men and maidens are said to have been distributed as slaves in the Spanish families. After this there were frequent, to time revolts and insurrections, but each one only plunged the unfortunate Indians into deeper misery.

Santa Fe, as the seat of government, was always the point of attack, the chief centre of strife, and very terrible scenes have been enacted here. As late as 1837 the Mexican Governor, who had ruled with great severity and had oppressive and unjust taxes on the Indians' crops, was murdered by them under circumstances of tragic horror. Several of the pueblos, united together, had raised an army and marched on Santa Fe. Underrating their force, the Governor went out to meet them and was driven back. He then attempted to treat with them, but they would hold no parley with him as the enemy from the city he was captured, stripped, his head cut off and kicked like a football from camp to camp. They then put it on a pole and set it up defiantly within a few rods of the city walls. The secretary in whose handwriting the obnoxious decrees had been promulgated they treated with subtile cruelty, sparing his life but cutting off both his hands and setting him free with the taunt that he would not any longer write orders for tyrants. At night three brave Mexican women stole out of Santa Fe, found the Governor's body, wrapped it in a blanket, and buried it in the cemetery, now deserted, on the hill Northeast of the plaza. This was the last struggle the Indians made. They were soon subdued and remained peaceable until they came, with the rest of the New Mexico citizens, under the government of the United States in 1846.

There is still standing in Santa Fe one building which has been the home of the most prominent persons and the scene of the most important events through all these vicissitudes of the city and its government. It is still called, as it was called when it was built in 1631, "The Palace." Anything less like a palace could hardly be conceived of. It is a low adobe building, one story high, with a veranda running its entire length. It makes the North wall of the plaza, and in it are still the Governor's home and all the offices of the government, the United States and Territorial court room, libraries, Congress halls, etc. It has been so often repaired that it has lost much of its ancient look, but the massive walls and heavy hewn beams remain unchanged, and will no doubt bear their mute witness to its antiquity for a century or more to come.—St. Louis Republican.

WORK NOW.

Young man, do not leave it to a future day, but do it now. Man of middle age, you have a vivid sense of the rapidity with which your years have gone, but they will go just as rapidly in the future as in the past. Man of old age, you have to make haste—you have no time to lose.

The ancient law said concerning the sale of an estate: "According to the number of years thou shalt diminish the price." The nearer they were to the jubilee year the cheaper they were to sell their land. So the nearer you come to the end of your days you ought to hold earthly things more loosely and prize heavenly things more highly. When your business day is drawing to a close, you hasten to conclude your work, dispatching sometimes in an hour more than in all the day that went before.

When Napoleon went on the field of Marengo it was late in the afternoon, and he saw that the battle was really lost, but, looking at the western sun, he said: "There is just time to recover the day!" and giving out his orders with rapid and characteristic energy, he turned defeat into victory. So, although your sun is near to setting, there is time to recover the day. Avail yourself of the eventide, lest your life end in eternal failure.—Rev. William M. Taylor, D.D.

A FORTUNE IN AN ACCIDENT.

A rather laughable story is that anent the origin of blue-tinted paper, one so much in vogue for commercial uses. The wife of an English paper manufacturer, named William East, going into the factory on the domestic wash-day with an old-fashioned bluelag bag in her hand, accidentally let the bag and its contents fall into a vat full of pulp. She thought nothing of the incident, and said nothing about it either to her husband or his workmen. Great was the astonishment of the latter when the paper turned out a peculiar blue color, while the master was wroth at what he regarded as gross carelessness on the part of some of the hands. His wife—the same woman—kept her own counsel. The lot of paper was regarded as unsalable, and was stored for four years. At length East consigned it to his London correspondent, with instructions to sell it for what it would bring. The unlucky paper was accepted as a happily designed novelty, and was disposed of in open market at a considerable advance in price. Judge of Mr. East's surprise when he received from his agents an order for a large invoice of the despised blue paper! Here was a nasty dilemma: he was totally ignorant of the manner in which the paper had become blue in color, and in his perplexity he went to the matter to his wife. She promptly enlightened her lord; and in turn kept the simple process secret, and was for years the monopolist of the blue commercial paper manufacture.—Science.

RECEPTION TO BISHOP BROWN.

The reception of Right Rev. John Milton Brown will take place in Bethel A. M. E. Church, San Francisco, Thursday evening, September 8th, at 7.30 o'clock. Bishop Brown, of the A. M. E. Church of America, who has full jurisdiction, by authority of his church, over this, its Fourth Episcopal District, is now presiding over the deliberations of the twentieth session of the A. M. E. Church, California Annual Conference, in this city and county of Sacramento. This, we are informed, is the fifth official visit to this State of the distinguished divine, to attend the ecclesiastical bodies of his church; and the good people of California, regardless of faith or creed, who have the honor of his acquaintance, thrice greet and welcome him. The Bishop will preach Sunday evening, September 11, at 8 o'clock, in Bethel A. M. E. Church, Powell street.—Elevator.

TO SECRETARIES OF CONFERENCES.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Many thanks for favor. Please send me a copy of your last conference minutes.

WM. D. JOHNSON,
Secretary of Education, Box 263, Athens, Ga.

PROGRAMME OF THE GREAT CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH TO BE HELD IN ALL THE CHURCHES IN THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER, 1887.

1. In all the cities where there are two or more A. M. E. Churches; as in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Wilmington, Charleston, Nashville, Savannah, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, etc., etc., we earnestly recommend a grand union opening meeting on Wednesday night, November 9th, or on the night of the 16th, uniting all the choirs of the city in one grand sacred concert. Local committees will see to it that the exercises are made lively and effective—a real time of gladness, thanksgiving and praise. Let pastors, choirs and officers be all thoroughly alive to the occasion.

2. On Thursday or Friday night a public oration or several addresses on the independence and successful work of our Church. We urge that this meeting be made free of charge, and that tickets therefor be given to all respectable persons who will attend.

3. On Friday, or on the same night of addresses, prepare a "Centennial Banquet." Make it a season of congratulation and pleasure for all.

4. On Sunday morning a Centennial prayer-meeting from 5 to 7 A. M. At 10 o'clock a sermon on the rise and progress of the Church—text, Acts 13, 41. Collection of envelopes.

5. At 2 P. M. Union Sunday School concert, with short addresses, by chosen persons. Collect envelopes. Philadelphia Sunday schools to be united as follows: Bethel, Zion Mission and Murray Chapel Sunday schools together at Bethel; Allen Chapel and Mt. Pisgah Sunday schools together at Allen; Union Church and Morris Brown, at Union.

6. At night, hymn, O, God our help, etc, 701, Ritual 16. A eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Conclude with the prayer for the clergy and people. Ritual of the A. M. E Church, page 160. The prayer for all men, and the general thanksgiving, page 162. Sing the hymn 862, Ritual No. 12, and doxology, "Praise God," etc., Ritual No. 26. Collect envelopes, and report the amount. The creed and benediction.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the presiding elders of the Columbia Annual Conference. Dear brethren: Please inform me by postal at once if you have any applicants for the ministry or candidates for local orders.

To the General Officers of the Connection: Dear brethren, as many of you as expect to visit the Columbia Conference at Newberry, S. C., Dec. 7th, you will favor the pastor by dropping him a postal to that effect, who is leaving no stone unturned that will add to the pleasure of the conference.

Your yoke-fellow in Christ,
C. PIERCE NELSON, Pastor,
Address, Newberry, S. C.

THE A. M. E. Church at Newark, N. J., is lost to the counestion after a struggle of many years. The facts are that the building is on entailed land. This fact was only recently discovered; so the society, after having paid thousands of dollars on the property, decided to abandon it and are worshiping in a hall, intending to build soon.

GOING TO press two days earlier last week than usual, September 13th we received the following pungent telegram after our forms were on press: "Facing impending obligations, Wilberforce awaits with intense anxiety the resnlt of next Endowment Day. The child of a great connection appeals for help from her founder. Will the Church hear? Will the Church answer? God will return seven-fold every gift. S. T. Mitchell, President Wilberforce University."

DR. MARSHAL W. TAYLOR died in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 11th. From his own standpoint Brother Taylor has made a lively editor. He has not had an enviable position. While the majority of the members of his church are white, he has edited a paper almost entirely for colored readers. He has certainly shown himself zealous for his church and the success of the Southwestern. His poeition on race relations as they exist in this country in general differed widely from that of many of our leaders, but he has probably been as wise as any other would have been in the same office. We mourn his death and sympathize with the Church in its loss.

THE REV. HORACE TALBERT, the new after his fourth son was born, September 15th, laid a corner-stone for a new chyrch in Westhury, Long Island, N. Y. It is seldom that a greater enthusiasm is evinced by a people on such an occasion. Westhury is a borough in which a number of colored peresons live in good style, mechanics, farmers and commou laborers. The people have been formerly worshiping as Free-will Baptists, with few excep ions, but lately were organized as African Methodists. There are thirteen members. They propose paying for their church, which is to be 26 by 36, as they go. They raised about $150 at the stone laying and have several huudred more in sight. Among them are some good farmers. Mr J. A. Payne is a nurseryman, Mr. A. A. Cunningham is a blacksmith and Mr. E. Williams is a farmer, owning a good sized farm for New York. He reminds those who know them, of Mr. M. R. Badger, of Cedarville, Ohio, and Mr. W. C. Lee, of Gouldtown, N. J. These people had provided dinnor for hundreds ont under a temporary shed and ample arrangements for worshipers under a oopions tent. There were present Revs. Jackson, Heath, Gibbons, West, Townsend, Hamilton, Shapherd, Stevenson, Cole and Hunter, of the New York Conference, and Mowbray and Digge, of the New Jersey Conference.

The presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Hunter, delivered the dedioatory sermon. The neighboring towns were very generous, especially Jamsico, which probably feels a little motherly pride in the infant church. The Jamaica choir, under Brother Brooks, who is one of the lay delegates to our next General Conference, made very beautiful musio. It has seldom been the privilege of the editor to spend a more pleasant day than that spent at Westbury.

IN A DISCOURSE last Sunday, the Rev. Mangasar M. Mangasarian, a quite popular Armenian pastor of a Philadelphia church, speaking of the National Constitution, pronounoed it defective, in that it does not give "equal rights" to women. Among other things he says, "We allow the lame, the blind, the slave and the negro to vote." Who constitute this "we," Brother Mangasarian; and in what sense do you nse the term "allow" in reference to the negro? Certainly if the negro is simply allowed, Mr. Mangasarian is not party to the grace exercised. We rather feel inolined to think that the United States has shown no grace, bnt, considoring that it is civilized and christianized, a hard, ungracious heart to the negro, but a gracions heart to men of the olass which includes Brother Mangasarian. The negro has every olaim npon this country that enters into the sum of olaims to any country. It is simply nonsense for this yonng minister of only a few years in the United States to ohime in with the general song of the white American, which makes all the better standing of the negro "by grace allowed."

Foreigners require bnt a few years to enable them to fall in with the popular line of miscouception on this subject. If the Afro-American is a oitizen by allowance, we should like to know what, according to our good Armenian's judgment, constitutes a oitizen by merit. Is it two and a half conturies' residence? The negro has it. Is it birth on American soil? This boon is the Amerioan negro's. Is it sufferings and privations? The negro has borne them. Is it thrift? That of the negro, considering oiroumstances, is unparalleled in this country. Is it patriotism? A score of battle-fields, from Boston to Appomattox: from the 18th to the 19th century, including all the wars of the colonial and constitutional Americas, shall answer for the negro. We have heard this oant argument used by Susan B. Anthony, Olive Logan and Anna Dickinson; we can endure it from Amerioan white women who, having a oase to gain, catch at a straw; bnt we cannot allow a man who has only fairly learned the glorious features of our great government to deal in such silly reference to us without calling his attention to the fact that the negro has never asked any favor, but his dnes only from the U. S. Government. This he will continue to demand, until the last vestige of injustice towards him is swept from oivil, social, religious and political life and every right accorded other oitizens be acquired by him.

THE DEATH OF REV. T. A. CUFF.

A note was just prepared for publioation in this number of the RECORDER, stating that Brother Cuff was improving, when word came saying that he had passed away about 6 o'clock Monday morning, September 19th. He was descended from two of the oldest colored families in New Jersey, the Cuffs and Murrays. His grandfather, Reuben Cuff, was one of the historio sixteen men who signed the charter of religions rights that constitntes the Disoipline of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. The Cuffs are almost all African Methodists, and are numerous in New Jersey, principally in Salem and Cumberland counties. They are a thrifty and respectable family. Elder Cuff was born in Salem county. He was converted in early life; has been a preacher for about thirty-five years and an itinerant preacher about twenty-five years. His itinerant work has been confined to the Philadelphia and New Jersey Conferences. He lies down to his everlasting rest without a blemish on his personal character or ministerial record. He has not been noted as an extraordinary preacher, bnt easy, uniform and practioal, he has done much to sustain the oross of Jesus Christ. Revivals under his preaching have been occasions of many hundreds coming into the Church. He leaves a widow and several children. May the church be tender toward them.

OUR MODELS.

The object lessons in everyday life are our most potent edncators. The Afrioo-Amoricon people in all matters of civilization and religious affairs have the patterns set by our brother in white. In government, in philosophy, economy, in thinking and writing, in speaking and singing he is our type. His excellence is the some of our ambition and his extreme degradation our darkest ideal of ruin. His wealth and the way of obtaining it; his poverty and his way of shunning it—all are the best we have; and, with him, we believe he represents the highest type of oivilization attained by sinful man. We frequently twit one another on the one hand with being mere imitators, and, on the other hand with being mere imitators, and, turning next instant, admiringly point to the great accomplishments of the white race and say, "Now, look at the white people; they never do that way, or you never see them doing thus and so."

This kind of contradiotory talk oconrs very frequently in a colored organization with the presumption and energy of our Church. A good friend says, "Yes, let us have the episcopal district plan and be original" forgetting that there is no element in the idea that has not its counterpart in some church economy. The combination may have some originality; but the same man is likely to tell us a dozen times a year in a warning tone, "You would not see church do that way." We are told, by our own brethren, with a ourl of scorn on the lip, "O, this is all the white man's religion; we are only imitators." Yes, this is true, but thank God, it is the black man's religion, too. It is the best known to us. When we shall, by the perfect works of the Holy Ghost, become ahlo to lead in religious matters, if he wishes us to do so, religion as tanght by us to those who are rising in the scale of personal support and diffeotiveness may speak of the black man's religion, hnt that will not change the religion. The grace of God has appeared unto all men; now let the grace of man appear unto all men. As he has laid down his life for us, so we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. Dr. W. D. Johnson says, "When a man is in the darkness he does not care who brings the light to him." It is a very weak thing for us to make light of the religion of Jesus coming to us in the white man's form. Still it is as weak to be placid receivers and not doers of the word. We must follow and lead at the same timo. We should not undervalue the ability to do either. There are many good things for us to learn yet from the Canoasian race.

THE GREAT CONSTITUTIONAL CELEBRATION.

During Thursday and Friday of last week Philadelphia was the gayest, happiest, freest and fullest city in the union. It was literally overrun by the hundreds of thonsands of visitors and the many thousands officially connected with the Centennial. The great event of the termination of the first hndred years of the constitutional nnion was so wisely and gloriously celebrated as to leave no donbt on the mind of observers that the people appreciated the constitutional liberties granted by our magna charta and are equal to any emergency connected with constitntional responsibilities. The adequacy of a people to the constantly growing demands of a nation is demonstrated as grandly and impressively by snch display as hy the severe test of arms.

The management of the great Centennial Exposition of '76, and of this of '87 must be sct down by historians as brilliant accomplishments of stupendous designs. The conception and adjnstment of the millions of details and the anpport of the ponderous weight of snch expositions call ont the most manly, wise and rugged mental character, while the sotnal harmonions performances completed according to design almost to a letter indioate a highly refined natnre.

The whole city glittered with intellect, trembled beneath the gravity of a century of high mental onltivation, glowed with good cheer and snsoinod itself hy a higher virtne. Rulers, diplomats, military ohiefs, exalted jurists, profound scho'ars, eminent writers and holy prelates actually linked hands and braced hearts with the poor, the outcast, the ignorant and the vicious in common joyousness. Horses, horses and shipping were regaled in flags, the air resounded with music and the sound of guns.

On Thursday the grandest parade of industries and display of art that has ever been seen in this country took place. A whole day the long line of wares, machinery, the wagons of trade, practical demonstrations of machinery, etc., was in motion. On Friday was the grandest military display that Americans ever witnessed. On Friday night the Centeunial Commission tendered a reception to President and Mrs. Cleveland, in the Acadeny of Music. This was practically a reception by the President; for he and Mrs. Cleveland shook hands with several thousand persons. During an hour and a half their hands and heads were in motion, responding to similar movements by the masses. What a pity that we Americans, after looking at this popular couple all day, subjecting them to the ordeal of recognising thousands of saintes and shaking thousands of the hands that lie nearest to the more important handles of government, could not be satisfied till we had forced them to take just as many of us by the hand as could possibly orowd into their immediate presonce in one and a half hours. It is well, however, in a country whose chief magistaste is practically limited to a term of four years, that he should not be allowed to remove too far from the masses. It is well also that every man for his own sake avail himself of opportnities to come into close relations with the Amerioan representative of exalted powers; since every American is a possible candidate for the most responsible positions in the gift of the people. While monarchies are best conserved by surrounding princes and kings by inapproachable mystery and grandeur, republics are best conserved by bringing all olasses into harmonious oneness at every point.

The reception was a grand affair. One is seldom awarded the sight of so much brilliancy of position, talent and power in a single gene. The only two men who have graced the presidential chair, Hayes and Cleveland, were there, with the two remaining leading chieftains, Sherman and Sheridan. Then there were governers, honored foreign diplomats and home statesmen with most attractively attired ladies. The effects of this whole affair—the Centennial—like that of 1876, is to impress a colored Amerioan with the thought of how much work he has done to reach the present American achievements and how small a recompense he has received; how loosely, after all, he is donnected with other Amerioans. Here and there a colored soldier, here and there a colored regiment, here and there a representation of industries by colored men, but onr attachment to all that make our friends respected, loved, feared, honored and followed is by far too weak. Those friends are elevated many degrees by all snch demonstrations and, in the world they have many of them. At the Presidential reception it was a pleasure to observe four or five colored officers among the military personages present. The inspiration of the whole exposition was not small upon any man. The colored Amerioan should study these demonstrations of American grandeur and greatness with pride and hope, fixing his determination strong and large to exort all his powers to reach the some of the American idea. He has a great way to travel, bnt he also has a great power by means of which to accomplish the journey. The growth of men and the growth of great men are different phases of the same thing.

Rev. J. H. Morgan, presiding elder of the Sixth District, New Jersey Conference, writes: "A review of my district shows the following: Salem is about holding her own. Yorktown, Rev. R. H. Coleman, is struggling along under adverse circumstances. The same may be said of Rev. W. M. Watson at Bushtown. At Sweedeboro, Rev J. W. Rose is doing a grand work. He has torn down the old church and is building anew, and has quite a nice sum to start with. Bridgeton, Rev. A. H. Newton, has borrowed $800 from the building association, thereby arranging the old debt and repairing the tenements, which will pay off the claim in rents Gouldtown, Rev. H. P. Thomas, is somewhat unsettled as yet. Greenwich, Rev. G. T. Waters, is doing a good work At Franklinville, Margaret Wilson, our evangelist, is finishing a new church."

THE LOOM OF LIFE.

All day, all night, I can hear the jar
Of the loom of life, and near and far
It thrills with its deep and muffled sound,
As tireless the wheels go always around.

Busily, ceaselessly goes the loom
In the light of day and midnight gloom,
The wheels are running early and late,
And the woof is wound in the warp of fate.

Click, clack! there's a thread of love wove in;
Click, clack! another of wrong and sin!
What a checkered thing this life will be
When we see it unrolled in eternity!

Time, with a face like mystery,
And hands as busy as hands can be,
Sits at the loom with arms outspread,
To catch in its meshes each glancing thread.

When shall this wonderful weh he done?
In a thousand years, perhaps in one,
Or to-morrow. Who knoweth? Not you nor I;
But the wheels turn on and the shuttles fly.

Ah, sad-eyed weavers, the years are slow,
But each one is nearer to the end I know;
And some day the last thread shall be woven by
God grant it be love instead of sin.

Are we spinners of wool in this life-web—say?
Do we furnish the weaver a thread each day?
It were better, then, oh, my friend, to spin
A beautiful thread than a thread of sin!

Literature.

Mr. Frank R. Stockton's sequel to "Mrs. Lecks and Mrs Aleshine" will be called "The Dusantes," and it is authoritatively announced that the new story will thoroughly and satisfactorily disclose of Mrs Lecks, Mrs. Aleshine, and other old friends, and will, moreover, tell all ahont the famous, but so far invisible, family whose name it bears. "The Dnsantes" will begin in the December Century, and will be concluded in three numbers.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett will contribnte a short serial to the coming volnme of St. Nicholas, which is said to be a worthy snccessor of that author's famous "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which appeared in St. Nicholas a year ago. Joel Chandler Herris, John Burroughs, Frank R Stockton, H H. Boyesen, J. T. Trowbridge, Col. Richard M. Johnstone and Louisa M. Alcott are among the many distingui-hed writers who will contribute serial and short stories to St. Nicholas for 1888.

One of the most prominent personages of the literary world just now is Miss Marietta Holley, popularly known as Samantha Allen, or Josiah Allen's wife She became a favorite very early in her literary career, and each new issue from her pen has added to her fame, until, for her latest work, "Samantha at Saratoga," Messrs. Hubbard Brothers paid her a princely sum, and the book is declared by a hit It will donbtless outsell all her previous issnes, as it nnqnestionably outshines them all in the fascinating vein of humor in which Miss Holley is so happy and so rich Preparing for this work, Miss Holley went to Saratoga and spent an entire sea son, with eyes and ears open, and with brain and pencil vigorously at work She went in her famous assumed role of Josiah Allen's wife, her imaginary Josiah at her side, with his characteristic blunders, faux pas, and quick, boyllke enthusiasm. As Samantha Allen Miss Holley is observant, unsophisticated, outspoken, and sound to the core on every questiou of propriety. Such a couple in the whirl of Saratoga would certainly develop many remarkable situations and utter many funny comments It is here the humor of the book arises Plain, back-country village life, and gay, artificial Saratoga life are so wide apart, that each side becomes ludicrous to the other. These ludicrous, laugh-provoking contrasts are the dominant features of Miss Holley's book. To these mirth-making presentations of the author the artist's pencil has added a rich entertainment. Over a hundred drawings have been made to illustrate the text by Frederick Opper, the leading artist of Puck. Burt Wilder, too, has done a share in embellishing this attractive book. These artists make their pictures talk, and between the text and the talk of the pictures the reeder looks and laughs and laughs and looks again. Altogether, the book is a rare product, and its purchasers will not be disappointed. Published by Hnbbard Brothers, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Martha H. Moore has bequeathed to Colby University $5,000 The proceeds are to be applied for the use of the library, the same to be known as the "Martha Moore Library Fund."

OUR WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Mrs. Anna B. McMahon has just issued a little pamphlet of "Outlines" for the study of Shakespeare and Browning.

Mrs. Maria White, an old friend of the Beecher family, has rented the house of Henery Ward Beecher, and will let furnished rooms to lodzers.

Mrs. Kilpatrick, widow of the late General Kilpatrick, Minister to Peru, is on her way to this country with the remains of her hnsband, which are to be buried at Deckertown, N. J.

Mrs. Garfield expects to remain in Canada nntil the latter part of the present month. She will then return to her Cleveland home and, it is said, begin arrangements for the nuptials of her daughter Mollie and J. Stanley Brown.

Mrs. Elizabeth Sands still lives in Baltimore at the age of 99 to tell of her doings to help the troops in 1812, and she is called an "Old Defender." She was feasted on the 12th with the three remaining "Old Defenders" of Baltimore.

The latest California hoom story is of interest to the fair sex. It says a Mrs Henderson recently found a $20 gold piece in the streets of Los Angeles, invested the same in a snbnrban corner lot, and in a fortnight realized the handsome sum of $1250.

Mrs. Gould is one of the richest widows in the Woodland district of California. Recently her only daughter eloped and the old lady proceeded to disinherit the girl with a heart. Three days later Mrs. Gonld learned that the parents of the groom had also closed their doores against the yonng conple, so she became angry, declared her daughter as good as any woman on earth and concinded by forgiving all and presenting bride and groom with a comfortable share of her home and fortune.

Certain men in times past, as well as in Georgia at present, have clamored to be protected from the ambition of the black man. We have a very poor opinion of such chape, for they admit their inferiority when they ask for special legislation to bar ont the blacks; bnt much as we despise this cowardly exhibition of intolerance, we despise the man more who will by word, act or deed prevent a woman from entering the lists to compete with him in her endeavor to earn an honest livelihood. Woman should have an equal chance with man, and so far as we are concerned we are not in the least afraid to arm her with the ballot.—Beadville Republican.

Mrs. Ada C. Bittenbender, who is making an active canvass for Judge of the Supreme Court in Nebraska, is the first woman ever nominated for a seat on the Bench and the only lady lawyer in the State. She is Superintendent of the Department of Legislation and Petition in the State Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and Associate Superintendent of the same department of the national body. In 1882 she was admitted to the Bar, passing a very successful examination in open Court, having studied in the office of her husband, and is his partner therein. She is spoken of as having an impressive address, magnetic personality and winning manners, and as very courteous and conciliatory in Court towards opposing connsel She has often practiced at the Bar of the bigest tribunals, traveling from Court to Court, and ranks among the leaders of her profession. She was ostensistically nominated by the Prohibition party.

Notes on Education.

Prof. Peter H. Clark, Ohio's most prominent colored democrat, has been appointed principal of the State Normal School at Hnntsville, Ala.

The Southern Workman of September reports 217 pnpils entered to date of writing; 15 more boys than girls, a smaller majority than usual. Besides Virginia, which furnishes 140 stndents, fourteen other States, including Massachusetts, contributed to the number.

After fifty years of experience in the higher teaching of women, South Hadley, the pioneer of all our schools, now proposes to become a full-fledged college. It was necessary. or it would be left far behind The new time requires new plans. We welcome the sixth college, and the third in Massachusetts. Massachusetts needs no fewer female colleges than male, and no institution has earned a higher honor than that founded by Mary Lyon.—Independent.

The question of forming a new school district at Wilberforce will be decided to day. Probate Judge Cooper appointed E. J. Williamson, of Beavercreek township, Dan. H. Geet, of Spring Valley, and Leroy Green, of Yellow Springs, as commissioners to take testimony as to the necessity of establishing a district, to fix the boundary and locate the building, and they are on the grounds to day viewing the situation. The district will undonbtedly be made. —Xenia Gazette.

Principal B. T. Washington, State Normal School, Tnskegee, Ala., says: "As an evidence of the value of industrial training in our graduating class, 1886-'87, are two painters, one tailor, two carpenters and five farmers. All the girls will go out with good training in general housekeeping. All are prepared to teach. We are making a special effort to reach the country students, for these are the ones most likely to reach the plantation and give the people the benefit of their training."—Southern Workman.

MANAGER'S COLUMN.

Our premium offer: In the RECORDER of last week we offered premiums in cash or its equivalent for subscribers to this paper. We propose to distribute $100 cash for every two hundred and fifty names we shall receive in. We open our roll for the names of our workers who propose to compete for these prizes. Send in your hames and get our commission as agent. Our traveling preachers do not need snch commission; but all others must have one.

Premiums will be graded as follows: To the one procuring the highest nnmber of the first 250 names, with the cash, a hunting case gold lever watch, worth $50, or $45 in gold. Lady or gentleman the same.

2. To the one procuring the highest number we will give, if a gentleman, a "RECORDER premium" overcoat worth $25, or $20 gold. Or, if a lady, we will give her a "RECORDER premium" silk dress pattern, worth $25, or $20 gold.

3. To the next highest, or 3rd competitor, we will give $15. To the 4th competitor, $10, and to the last, $5. Total, $100. Now well? If two parties shonld succeed in getting precisely the same nnmber, the award will be to the one first enrolled. Send on your names. Rev. Dr. Mitchell, of the Ohio Conference, will engage in the second effort for 250. He says he'd like first-rate to begin now, bnt prior engagements prevent. He is intending, however, to have one premium ont of the first 500. I can see those nine $5 gold pieces in the palm of his hand now, for when he begins—well, wait.

OUR CENTENNIAL is a constantly growing movement. Never saw any thing like it in our Church. The man who will take no part in celebrating this grand occasion will get badly left. No use talking against it; its gone! Ohio Conference fairly boomed it; Cincinnati, Columbus, Springfield and Xenia, Chillicothe, Gelipolis and Zanesville will all be heard from, "And all the stars that round them beam." Hurrah!—No;—well, we're going to have a good time, God willing.

Pastors will please take notice that the new Revised Ritnal and Church Service is now ready for orders. Price, 45c., 202 pages, 16mo. (just 6 inches long by 4 inches wide), handy for the pocket. Soft silk finished linen cover. Bound in roan, flexible cover, 60cts. Finer ones in morroco, gilt, $1.00. Fifteen per cent off when ordering one d zen or more. Fifty or one hundred copies for churches, 20 per cent off Send for a copy at once. Ministers wishing a copy for inspection can obtain it by sending 42 cents.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E Church and African M E Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15-17, A. D. 1885

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in May, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alahama at the date fixed.

Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

Obituary.

DEATH OF REV. GEO. H. SIMMONS.

Rev. George H. Simmons departed this life Monday, August 15th, 1887. He was stricken with paralysis in the early part of 1885, on the Goose Creek Circuit, Charleston District. Unable to do any work, he and wife moved to Marion to be with their only daughter, Mrs. Georgiana Ward, where he was a sufferer till the day of his death. Rev. Simmons was one of the pioneers of the African Methodist Episcopal Church in the Marion District. He held successfully every charge that was assigned him, and was much beloved by all who knew him. He passed away in full triumph of faith on the day and date above mentioned. He has left a wife, a daughter, a little grandson, and many friends to mourn his loss.

Another saint quit the troublesome shores of time:
Another soul has gone to heaven to rest.

HOME THE PLACE FOR THE SICK.

Home comforts and the congenial society of loving friends will do more toward effecting a cure, if accompanied by proper treatment, than a long and lonely sojonrn in some far-away famed health resort. One of the saddest wordpictures ever drawn is that of the resort for consnmptives described in Dandet's "Nnma Rnmestan." Visitors to Pau or Nice are constantly reminded of the futility of the climate cnre by the deaths that thin the ranks of the hopeful patients. Drs. Starkey & Palen therefore recommend the Home Treatment by their Compound Oxygen to patients suffering from lung or throat diseases as ler preferable to the Southern or European journey, with all the attendant vexation and expense that traveling entails. They will send from their office, No. 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., a complete treatise on the use of this new healing agent. It costs nothing.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat;"

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitians, under Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, R. S. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

1. The History of Bethel A. M. E Church, of Philadelphia, Pa., by Rev. J. W. Beckett, B. D.

2. The Pioneer Preacher and Layman of the East.—Bishop J. P. Campbell.

3. The Pioneers of the South and West in 1848 and Beyond.—J. M. Brown.

4. The Pioneers of the Southeast.—Bishop H. M. Turner.

5. The Father of the Alabama Conference and his work.—Rev. M. E. Bryant.

6. The Pioneers to Gold Coast.—T M. D. Ward and J. H. Hubbard.

7. The A. M. E. Church from Alleghany Mountains to the Mississippi.—T. H. Jackson.

31. The A. M. E. Church as one of the Intellectual Forces for the Elevation of the Race: What has she done and what is she doing?—W. D Johnson.

32. One Hundred Years of Individual and Local Effort, and Seventy Years of Organization and Work.—B. W. Arnett.

33. The Relation of the Church to Its Baptized Children.—L. J. Coppin.

34. The necessity of order in worship and uniformity in services in our Church —W. H. Thomas.

35. The origin and development of the A. M. E. and B. M. E. Churches in Canada.—J. A. Johnson.

36. African Methodism as seen from without.—Durham.

JOHN M. BOWN Chairman.
BENJAMIN W. ARNETT, Secretary.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that services be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys he sent to Bishop J. P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes.

AN APPEAL IN BEHALF OF WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY.

Dear brethren and friends, the condition of our university makes it necessary for us to appeal to your noble generosity in this our great crisis. We are compelled to raise, by some means, fifteen hundred dollars in a short time; that amount is past due, but our creditors are indulgent and have promised to give us an opportunity to raise the money. We, the Executive Board, have had the matter under advisement and have appointed President Mitchell and Secretary Maxwell local agents to collect as much as they can in order to meet these urgent demands. We have further authorized and ordered an appeal to be published in our local papers and also in our Church organ, which appeal you are now reading. What will you do with it? How will you answer it? Will you respond to it as liberally as you can? May God help you so to do. We ask, we beseech you in all kindness not to pass over this matter carelessly and cast it from your minds. Brethren, this is your institution; it is the property of our Church and not a State normal, as some have already said. Our doors, it is true, are opened to all and we cordially invite and joyfully hail kindness of every nationality and religious faith; but this university is the property of the A. M. E. Church, owned and controlled by this Church as a body, and the day that her doors are closed (or the hand of means that day the 400,000 members of the A. M. E. Church become responsible and are or will be justly charged with the folly and crime of their negligence and stupidity. But now our doors will not be closed; you will not suffer such a shame to blot the fair name of our great Church. Brother or Trustee, we appeal especially to you. We as a Board are your servants, executing, as far as we can, your will. We ask you to give us aid. Our agents cannot call upon many of you in person. To you who read this appeal and are at a distance too remote for our local agents to call upon you in person and present the cause of our university and the great need of immediate action, we earnestly appeal in the name of God and a common humanity; in the name of the work accomplished in the past by Wilberforce; in the name of her many noble sons and daughters that have gone out from her and in their moral, intellectual and religious strength have lifted high the banner of education and intelligence and with Christian heroism have unfurled the banner of the Redeemer; for the sake of all this institution has accomplished under the guidance of God in the past and for the sake of what lies within the realm of her power to do in the future we beseech and implore you to send as early as possible to the Secretary whatever you may be able to give in this direction. And for every dollar you give God will bless you many fold. Any amount you may send will be duly acknowledged and judiciously applied. We feel assured that our friends at home are going to aid us, but we want our friends and brethren abroad to co-operate with them. If they will do this in a liberal way we feel perfectly satisfied that within the next thirty days the fifteen hundred dollars will be realised and the burden removed. Brethren, for once respond to our earnest call, and relieve us of this embarrassment. It is our purpose to publish the names of the donors after the close of our local agents shall have been concluded, for we sincerely hope to be able to have in the list the name of every trustee of the University.

Yours, with anxious waiting, signed by order and on behalf of the Executive Board of Wilberforce University,

J. P. MAXWELL,
Secretary.

NOTICE.

To the Presiding Elders of the Pittsburg Annual Conference.

You will please notify me, at once, how many candidates each will have for traveling work. We also wish to know of the general officers who of them will be present at our Annual Conference, so that homes may be prepared for them.

When the system is debilitated by disease, it should be strengthened and renewed with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine invariably proves itself worthy of all that can be said in its favor. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines. Price $1. Six bottles, $5.

OFFICE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL WHO HAVE BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS WITH THIS DEPARTMENT.

READ, RE-READ AND REMEMBER.

1st. We do not take postage stamps. If you cannot obtain Post Office Money Order, which is the safest method to send money, you can send by registered letter. These are issued by every post office in the United States. If your postmaster insists on selling you stamps you insist the more on having him register your letter.

2nd. Send the exact amount of money required to pay for the goods you order. When this is not done our rule is to send that amount of supplies which the money sent will pay for.

3rd. When you order from us, always write plainly at the bottom of your letter the place where you wish your supplies sent. Very often persons write us an order from one place on a circuit desiring it sent to some other place, and do not mention this very important fact

4th. For all money sent to us for Sunday school literature we send a postal card receipt, numbered. If your order is delayed, or if there is any irregularity concerning it, write to us about it, but we beg to give the number of your receipt card and the name of the person who sent the order or signed his name to it. When a pastor writes to us that his superintendent sent us money, etc., we do not know who is his superintendent unless he tells us his name. Always send the names of persons and not names of churches, schools, circuits, stations, etc.

5th. Sign your name to your communication. We cannot tell who sent a letter to us when there is no name signed to it.

6th. Write your name in large, plain letters. Avoid flourishing. It is useless and often renders the name what would otherwise be legible writing.

7th. Never send a postal note, money order or express package without any instructions accompanying it. How do we know what to do with money sent thus?

8th. We have lost a great deal of money by sending supplies C. O. D. because the parties whom we thus favored failed to take them from the express office. In consequence of this neglect and absolute loss which we have borne because of it, we have decided to positively refuse to grant any more C. O. D. favors to anyone. Please do not request them.

9th. Our business is conducted on a strictly cash basis. If you are not familiar with our prices write to us when you wish to buy and we will freely quote them or send you a catalogue, price list, blank order and envelope.

10th. Always collect your money for supplies and have it appropriated for them at least two weeks before the beginning of each quarter; this will prevent much delay. Very often orders do not arrive until one-half or more of the quarter is past; in which case we have to print an extra amount of literature for the benefit of two or three persons or schools, and are liable to a "raking over" by them.

11th. When the Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterly, the Juvenile and Gem Lesson Papers are ordered, they are rolled in one package together. The catechisms, song books, primary lessons, reward cards and other such matter are never in one wrapper. When you order, be sure to inquire for two packages at the post office.

12th. If your city has the free delivery system have your mail directed to the street and number. Unless you do this it will be returned to us while you are abusing us for neglect.

13th. Every pastor is hereby earnestly requested to have some one, who is permanently located in his work, elected Sunday school supply clerk, whose duty it shall be to send for all orders for his Sunday school supplies.

We hope this will be done at once by each pastor and that he will send us the name of the one elected to this office. This method of communicating with us through a person who has permanent location in a place will lessen difficulty and greatly facilitate intercourse between us and our patrons. It is hoped that this request will receive immediate attention. We have purchased new books in which to record the names of Sunday school supply clerks and we anxiously await their names. A postal card will serve for this purpose. Hoping that the above instructions will be received with the kindly spirit with which they are given, and praying the blessing of Almighty God upon all those who are, with us, intrusted with the children's welfare. Fraternally,

C. S. SMITH.

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE. MRS. MARY A. MCCLURE, Columbia, Kansas, writes: "I addressed you in November, 1884, in regard to my health, being afflicted with liver disease, and heart trouble, etc. I was advised to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription and Pellets. I used one bottle of the 'Prescription,' five of the 'Discovery,' and four of the 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' My health began to improve under the use of your medicine, and my strength came back. My difficulties have all disappeared. I can work hard all day, or walk four or five miles a day, and stand it well; and when I began using the medicine I could scarcely walk across the room, most of the time, and I did not think I could ever feel well again. I give your remedies all the credit for curing me, as I took no other treatment after beginning their use. I am very grateful for your kindness, and thank God and thank you that I am as well as I am, after 5 years of suffering."

LIVER DISEASE. MRS. I. V. WEBBER, of Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes: "I wish to say a few words in praise of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' For five years previous to taking them I was a great sufferer; I had a severe pain in my right side continually; was unable to do my own work. I am happy to say I am now well and strong, thanks to your medicines."

Chronic Diarrhœa Cured.—D. LAZARUS, Esq., 276 and 277 Decatur Street, New Orleans, La., writes: "I used three bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it has cured me of chronic diarrhœa."

GENERAL DEBILITY. MRS. PARNELIA BRUNDAGE, of 81 Lock Street, Lockport, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with chills, nervous and general debility, with frequent sore throat, and my mouth was badly cankered. My liver was inactive, and I suffered much from dyspepsia. I am pleased to say that your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets' have cured me of all these ailments and I cannot say enough in their praise. I must also say a word in reference to your 'Favorite Prescription,' as it has proven itself a most excellent medicine. It has been used in my family with excellent results."

Dyspepsia.—JAMES L. COLBY, Esq., of Pocatan, Houston Co., Miss., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion, and would eat heartily and grow poor at the same time. I experienced heartburn, sour stomach, and many other disagreeable symptoms common to that disorder. I commenced taking your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' and I am now entirely free from the dyspepsia, and am, in fact, healthier than I have been for five years. I weigh one hundred and seventy-one and one-half pounds, and have done as much work the past summer as I have ever done in the same length of time in my life. I never took a medicine that seemed to tone up the muscles and invigorate the whole system equal to your 'Discovery' and 'Pellets.'"

INVIGORATES THE SYSTEM.

Dyspepsia.—THERESA A. CASE, of Springfield, Mo., writes: "I was troubled one year with liver complaint, dyspepsia, and sleeplessness, but your 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me."

Chills and Fever.—Rev. R. B. MONTGOMERY, Montgomerat, S. C., writes: "Last August I thought I would die with chills and fever. I took your 'Discovery' and it stopped them in a very short time."

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, and bodily health and vigor will be established.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-Joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores, and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

INDIGESTION, BOILS, BLOTCHES. REV. F. ASBURY HOWELL, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silverton, N. J., says: "I was afflicted for years with catarrh and indigestion. Boils and blotches began to arise on the surface of the skin, and I experienced a tired feeling and dullness. I began the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as directed by him for such complaints and in one week's time I began to feel like a new man, and am now sound and well. 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best remedy for bilious or sick headache, or dizziness about the chest, and fast taste in the mouth, that I have ever used. My wife could not walk across the floor when she began to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Now she can walk quite a little ways, and do some light work."

HIP-JOINT DISEASE. MRS. IDA M. STRONG, of Ainsworth, Ind., writes: "My little boy had been troubled with hip-joint disease for two years. When he commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' he was confined to his bed, and could not be moved without suffering great pain. But now, thanks to your 'Discovery,' he is able to be up all the time, and can walk with the help of crutches. He does not suffer any pain, and can eat and sleep as well as any one. It has only been about three months since he commenced using your medicine, and I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude for the benefit he has received through you."

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION. Skin Disease.—The "Democrat and News," of Cambridge, Maryland, says: "MRS. ELIZA J. POOLE, wife of Leonard Poole, of Wilkinsburg, Dorchester Co., Md., has been cured of a bad case of Eczema by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The disease appeared first in her feet, extended to the knees, covering the whole of the lower limbs from the knees, then attacked the elbows and became so severe as to prostrate her. She was treated by several physicians for a year or two she commenced the use of the medicines named above. She is now well and is now well and hearty. Mrs. Poole thinks the medicine has saved her life and prolonged her days."

MR. T. A. AYRES, of East New Market, Dorchester County, Md., vouches for the above facts.

WASTED TO A SKELETON. JOS

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E. Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat"

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our venerable colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitians, under Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and East Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E. Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, B. B. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

36. African Methodism as seen from without.—Durham.

JOHN M. BOWN Chairman.
BENJAMIN W. ARNETT, Secretary.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that it be appropriated to a date in that month he hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that services be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J. P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes.

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The secretaries of the Conferences that have elected ministerial and lay delegates to the general conference to convene at Indianapolis, Ind., May, 1888, are hereby urgently requested to forward, at once, names of said delegates, and name of conference. The conferences that have not yet elected said delegates, secretaries are requested to forward names of delegates and name of conference at their earliest opportunity. We are anxious to push the work of preparation as fast as possible. Please write names plainly that there be no mistakes.

Delegates bringing their wives, and all visiting brethren not directly connected with the conference, must come prepared to pay for board and lodging. We shall provide for members of the General Conference only.

AN APPEAL IN BEHALF OF WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY.

Dear brethren and friends, the condition of our university makes it necessary for us to appeal to your noble generosity in this our great crisis. We are compelled to raise, by some means, fifteen hundred dollars in a short time; that amount is past due, but our creditors are indulgent and have promised to give us an opportunity to raise the money. We, the Executive Board, have had the matter under advisement and have appointed President Mitchell and Secretary Maxwell local agents to collect as much as they can in order to meet these urgent demands. We have further authorized and ordered an appeal to be published in our local papers and also in our Church organ, which appeal you are now reading. What will you do with it? How will you answer it? Will you respond to it as liberally as you can? May God help you so to do. We ask, we beseech you in all kindness not to pass over this matter carelessly and cast it from your minds, Brethren, this is your institution; it is the property of our Church and not a State normal, as some have already said. Our doors, it is true, are opened to all and we cordially invite and joyfully hail students of every nationality and religious faith; but this university is the property of the A. M. E. Church, owned and controlled by this Church as a body, and it is that her doors are closed for the want of means to pay the 400,000 members of the A. M. E. Church become responsible and are or will be justly charged with the folly and crime of their negligence and stupidity. But her doors will not be closed; they will not suffer such a shame to blot the fair name of our great Church. Brother Trustees, we appeal especially to you. We as a Board are your servants, executing, as far as we can, your will. We ask you to give us aid. Our agents cannot call upon many of you in person. To you who read this appeal and are at a distance too remote for our local agents to call upon you in person and present the cause of our university and the great need of immediate action, we earnestly ask you in this, the hour of God and common humanity; in the name of the work accomplished in the past by Wilberforce; in the name of her many noble sons and daughters that have gone out from her and in their moral, intellectual and religious strength have lifted high the torch of Christian intelligence and with Christian heroism have unfurled the banner of the Redeemer; for the sake of all this institution has accomplished under the guidance of God in the past and for the glorious work that lies within the realm of her power to do in the future we beseech and implore you to send as early as possible to the Secretary whatever you may be able to give in this direction. And for every dollar you give God will bless you many fold. Any amount you may send will be duly acknowledged and judiciously applied. We feel assured that our friends at home are going to aid us even as we want our friends and brethren abroad to co-operate with them. If they will do this in a liberal way we feel perfectly satisfied that within the next thirty days the fifteen hundred dollars will be realized and the burden removed. Brethren, for once respond to our earnest call, and relieve us of this embarrassment. It is our purpose to publish the names of the donors after the close of our local agents shall have been concluded, and we sincerely hope to be able to have in the list the name of every trustee of the University.

Yours, with anxious waiting, signed by order and on behalf of the Executive Board of Wilberforce University,

J. P. MAXWELL,
Secretary.

NOTICE.

To the Presiding Elders of the Pittsburg Annual Conference. You will please notify me, at once, how many candidates each will have for traveling work. We also wish to know of the general officers who of them will be present at our Annual Conference, so that homes may be prepared for them.

When the system is debilitated by disease, it should be strengthened and renewed with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This medicine invariably proves itself worthy of all that can be said in its favor. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines. Price $1. Six bottles, $5.

A man may scoff at religion and laugh at the pleadings of a revivalist, but it takes but a very slight cold to bring him to his senses.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

CHARMING EFFECT.

Dr. J. R. SCHWARTZ, Harrisburg, Pa., says: "I used it in a case of dyspepsia, with charming effect, and am much pleased with it."

OFFICE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL WHO HAVE BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS WITH THIS DEPARTMENT.

READ, RE-READ AND REMEMBER.

1st. We do not take postage stamps. If you cannot obtain Post Office Money Order, which is the safest method to send money, you can send by registered letter. These are issued by every post office in the United States. If your postmaster insists on selling you stamps you insist the more on having him register your letter.

2nd. Send the exact amount of money required to pay for the goods you order. When this is not done our rule is to send that amount of supplies which the money sent will pay for.

3rd. When you order from us, always write plainly at the bottom of your letter the place where you wish your supplies sent. Very often persons write us an order from one place on a circuit desiring it sent to some other place, and do not mention this very important fact

4th. For all money sent to us for Sunday school literature we send a postal card receipt, nnmbered. If your order is delayed, or if there is any irregularity concerning it, write to us about it, but be sure to give the number of your postal card and the name of the person who sent the order or signed his name to it. When a pastor writes to us that superintendent sent us money, etc., we do not know who is superintendent unless he writes us his name. Always send the names of persons and not names of churches, schools, circuits, stations.

5th. Sign your name to your communication. We cannot tell who sent a letter to us when there is no name signed to it.

6th. Write your name in large, plain letters. Avoid flourishing. It is useless and often renders obscure what would otherwise be legible writing.

7th. Never send a postal note, money order or express package without any instruction accompanying it. How do we know what to do with money sent that?

8th. We have lost a great deal of money by sending supplies C. O. D. before the parties whom we thus favored failed to take them from the express office. In consequence of this neglect and absolute loss which we have borne because of it, we have decided to positively refuse to grant any more C. O. D. favors to anyone. Please do not request them.

9th. Our business is conducted on a strictly cash basis. If you are not familiar with our prices write to us when you wish to buy and we will freely quote them, or send you a catalogue, price list, blank form of order, etc.

10th. Always collect your money for supplies and have it appropriated for them at least two weeks before the beginning of each quarter; this will prevent much delay. Very often orders do not arrive until one-half or two-thirds of the quarter is past; in which case we have to print an extra amount of literature for the benefit of two or three persons or else lay ourselves liable to a "raking over" by them.

11th. When the Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterly, the Juvenile and Gem Leaves Papers are ordered, they are rolled in one package together. The catechisms, song books, primary lessons, reward cards and other such matter are never in one wrapper. When you order,

Good jockeys get salaries of from $10,000 to $15,000 a year, and the heiress who elopes with her father's coachman may not be so silly after all.

It is a settled fact that summer is over, but nearly every young man in America would be almost heartbroken if some bee were taken away from him.

One reason why the United States is known as the land of liberty is because it is easier to obtain a divorce here than in most other civilized nations.

The opening of the theatre season has caused a demand for big hats, and it is now the duty of the clergy to denounce big hats as being productive of profanity.

A saloon in New York has the floor ornamented with silver dollars. To the man with the jimjams the polished coins look like the glistening eyes of the snakes a man sees when in liquor.

We are like southern plants taken up to northern soil. They grow the same, but they are always failing of their flowers. The poor exiled shrub dreams by a native longing of a splendid blossom which is has never seen, but is dimly conscious that it ought somehow to produce. It feels the flower which it has not strength to make in the half chilled but still genuine juice of its southern nature. That is the way in which the ideal life, the life of full competitions, haunts us all. We feel the thing we ought to be beating beneath the thing we are.—Phillips Brooks.

The Great Success
Of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is due to the fact that it meets the wants of the people, being economical to use and always reliable and effective. Its ingredients are the best, and their combination the result of profound study and skill. Thus, for all diseases originating in impure blood, Ayer's Sarsaparilla stands unrivaled.

"As a blood-purifier and general builder-up of the system," says Eugene L. Hill, M. D., 381 Sixth ave., New York, "I have never found anything to equal Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, Matron of the M. E. Seminary, Tilton, N. H., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful blood-purifier, it is superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla."

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla gives better satisfaction than any other blood medicine I handle."—Geo. W. Whitman, Druggist, Albany, Indiana.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

BOOKS.
HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.
Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints. 1st. because it furnishes the most matured method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. because it shows how to preach with ease and grace. 3rd. because it removes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to correct them. 4th. because it gives advice ministers to read the work carefully, because when they find it such a much they never thought of. 5th. because "the very hints they most need to receive are not furnished by other homiletical works.—book-net." 6th. because "it is rich, hard, logical sense;"—because "it is a book for all ministers, however educated,—because it is earned by many to be the most helpful book they ever read." —Worth its weight in gold.

LESSON HELPS IN FOUR GRADES.
THE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY. A thirty-six page pamphlet devoted to lesson helps for teachers and older scholars. Its value is enhanced by the introduction of appropriate forms for opening and closing exercises, hymns and tunes, maps, dictionary of proper names, &c.
THE SCHOLAR'S QUARTERLY. Similar to the above, but with such necessary changes as adapt it to the wants of scholars in the main school. It is marvelously cheap. Five or more copies to one address, per year, 7 cents each.
THE JUVENILE LESSON PAPER is a four page weekly, designed for younger scholars who have outgrown the infant class, but who retain their fondness for pictures and simple stories. 36c per copy for a dozen.
THE GEM LESSON PAPER is a beautiful lesson sheet, four pages handsomely illustrated and printed on pink paper; for primary or infant scholars. Each number contains besides the lesson, a page or more of "baby-land" talk. All for 6 cents a year, where five or more copies are sent to one address.
THE CHILD'S RECORDER, now beginning its eighth volume with a larger issue than ever before, offers superior attractions for the coming year. With additional editorial force, and a list of regular contributors skilled in the style of writing required by the young no pains will be spared to put this publication abreast with the foremost of its class.

XI.

THE BUSINESS IDEAS NEEDED IN THE EPISCOPACY FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF CHURCH WORK.

Great institutions are moved by ideas. A host of men with brain force sparkling like a glittering constellation can turn every wheel of the highest organization. That bright conception of contrivances and of remedies for necessities, which puts in motion latent agencies for practical results, is the essential power underlying all organic existence. It impels, develops and establishes organized bodies for the general good of man. Words without ideas are like arrows without heads. Men of ideas start the wheels for human progress and supply the means for keeping them in motion. The interests of society depend upon them.

A great institution like the A. M. E. Church continually needs the application of vital force to drive it ahead in meeting its obligations. And, moreover, in proportion to its development it must be supplied with such accelerants as will meet its demands. Adulations of some great founder, clapping hands in the intensity of joy, productions of all the wealth of verbosity form no fulcrum for ascending nor basis for existence. Business ideas are needed in proportion to the advancing age.

The episcopacy of a church is as a grand observatory. It is the station at which, and in which, men must see, form conceptions, and devise plans with "malice toward none, and with charity for all" to promote every interest of the church, both spiritual and temporal. It is the position in which men must be placed to see the difference between fossilized notions and timely ideas. The A. M. E. Church to-day, more so than at any other period, needs qualified, grave, active business men added to those who are at the head of government. The harping upon any old-worn out plan of a past generation does not suit the present time and the connection suffers by a toleration of it. In every annual conference is found the same financial problems, great and small, which demand the consideration and advice of Bishops who know something about financial matters. Economy and correct appropriation are topics to be considered by them and to be disposed of by them to the highest degree of advantage. To this end it requires men who know the value of a cent and the proper place for its application. And not only so, but men who will take the time to ponder, as seriously as bankers do, every monetary question affecting the progress of the ministry and the church. The need of such men and a good many number of them, one of which certainly is the well-known Dr. James A. Handy, is manifest by the condition of every department of the Church and the sufferings of our faithful ministers. Confirmation of the fact is made by every project we may call up for testification. What advancement has been made in any land for church extension? What amazing degree of prosperity has marked the cause of missions? What arrangement has been effected to inspire the church by an influential publishing department?

Much more could have been done in those directions, if in connection with the business ideas already in the Board, there had been a number of them equal to the demand. The business energy and perseverance, and clear conception of Dr William H. Hunter, of the Virginia Conference, a man of exalted character and moral courage, added to the Episcopal Board, would have made the church a stronger organization to-day. If there had been all the force needed, and a concentration of mind upon well formed financial plans, there would be to-day a flourishing condition of the Metropolitan Church, a better support of the suffering preachers, and more facility for the extension of education. Let no one think that the mere qualification of a Bishop to preach a good sermon, cultivate popularity and do a great deal of traveling is the principal thing in the efficiency of his life. If such ever was the case it is not the case at present.

The magnitude of the A. M. E. Church now is so great that its business features must have the strictest attention. The forming of corporations, the entering into contracts, the drawing of deeds, the erection of buildings, the nature of liens and mortgages and various other kinds of transactions are subjects which frequently require the advice of Bishops. Let them be men, then, able to give advice on these subjects and eminent indeed will be their services to the Church. The temporal affairs by this means would be so regulated that great benefit would be experienced by every department of the Church. Business management would produce a surplusage of the collections brought into every conference and this could, from time to time, be turned into a fund to be kept in reserve for emergencies. The advanced business talent of the board could then be concentrated upon the aggregates and be directed to the end of utilizing them for the good of the whole connection. Conference money is too frequently now regarded to be of but secondary importance. A few hours are spent upon subjects which should require days for consideration, and then appropriations are made without due comprehension of the applicability. There ought to be a remedy for this defect, because it is a matter that belongs to the public welfare. People make their contributions for the purpose of advancing ecclesiastical causes—missions, theological institutes, religious publications, etc., and to improvement in management ought to be made every year. Business capacity in the ordinary walks of life is increased according to necessity—brains; varied talent, experience and learning are added from time to time as business establishments grow, and by this means the growth is perpetuated for them to sustain the test of every competition. In strict keeping with this analogy, the A. M. E. Church is to have due attention paid to its business development, and the business qualification of its episcopacy increased according to the spirit of the times. The demands for such a provision are urgent on every hand. There are many more projects than there were notions and timely ideas. The A. M. E. Church to-day, more so than at any other period, needs qualified, grave, active business men added to those who are at the head of government. The harping upon any old-worn out plan of a past generation does not suit the present time and the connection suffers by a toleration of it. In every annual conference is found the same financial problems, great and small, which demand the consideration and advice of Bishops who know something about financial matters. Economy and correct appropriation are topics to be considered by them and to be disposed of by them to the highest degree of advantage. To this end it requires men who know the value of a cent and the proper place for its application. And not only so, but men who will take the time to ponder, as seriously as bankers do, every monetary question affecting the progress of the ministry and the church. The need of such men and a good many number of them, one of which certainly is the well-known Dr. James A. Handy, is manifest by the condition of every department of the Church and the sufferings of our faithful ministers. Confirmation of the fact is made by every project we may call up for testification. What advancement has been made in any land for church extension? What amazing degree of prosperity has marked the cause of missions? What arrangement has been effected to inspire the church by an influential publishing department?

Much more could have been done in those directions, if in connection with the business ideas already in the Board, there had been a number of them equal to the demand. The business energy and perseverance, and clear conception of Dr William H. Hunter, of the Virginia Conference, a man of exalted character and moral courage, added to the Episcopal Board, would have made the church a stronger organization to-day. If there had been all the force needed, and a concentration of mind upon well formed financial plans, there would be to-day a flourishing condition of the Metropolitan Church, a better support of the suffering preachers, and more facility for the extension of education. Let no one think that the mere qualification of a Bishop to preach a good sermon, cultivate popularity and do a great deal of traveling is the principal thing in the efficiency of his life. If such ever was the case it is not the case at present.

The magnitude of the A. M. E. Church now is so great that its business features must have the strictest attention. The forming of corporations, the entering into contracts, the drawing of deeds, the erection of buildings, the nature of liens and mortgages and various

REV. W. S. LOWRY,
OF THE PITTSBURG CONFERENCE.

The subject of this sketch was born near Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 5th, 1848. His father, Valentine Lowry, was the son of a Scotchman and a native African woman, who was brought to Fayette county, Pa., a slave in 1787. Valentine Lowery was born in Fayette county, a slave, under the "28th law. He married Mary Jane Butler, daughter of Adam Butler. She was a native of Washington county, Pa. The parents of Walter were Christians, the father Free-will Baptist and the mother Methodist. They reared their family in independence. Washington county, Pa They became redneed in worldly circumstances by aiding slaves to escape, moved off their farm and went to the coal mines. The mines did not suit Walter; it was too far from the moving world He tried steamboating. His father's health declining, he assumed the responsibility of the family's support and moved them to Birmingham, now South Side, in 1863.

In 1863, being fifteen years of age, he was converted in the Wylie Street A. M. E. Church, under the preaching of the Rev. Solomon H. Thompson, and at once united with said church His father, dying in 1864, left Walter the sole support of his mother and eight brothers and sisters. All who knew him in those days of trial have a high regard for him on account of his faithfulness to his father's family. When in his sixteenth year he enlisted in the army, receiving $350 bounty. He gave all but $10.00 to his mother. He was at once quartered at Camp William Penn, in the 12th Regiment, Co. K under General Wagner. He was made first non-commissioned officer Having been carefully taught in earlier life to obey and respect law, he made a competent and dignified officer. In October, 1864, the regiment, under command of Col. G. Gibbens, was ordered to Baltimore, thence on to join the Army of the Potomac. This was shortly after the terrible slaughter at Deep Bottom; the country was everywhere marked by the footsteps of death. He was set digging trenches; building temporary houses, hospitals, etc., under rebel fire. He was in the destruction of Fort Brady severely injured and obliged to remain in hospital. He was in the engagement beginning March 28th and continuing till Sunday, April 1st, when the rebels evacuated Petersburg and Richmond, and the Union soldiers sang, "Old master's run away," etc. W. S. Lowry was honorably discharged Oct. lober, 1865, when he retnrned to Pittsburgh disabled for work. He recovered by spring and learned the trade of plastering.

He was licensed to preach in Wylie Street Church by Rev. W. H. Hunter, 1868. On the 7th day of November, 1869, he was, in the interval of conference, appointed to Bellefonte Circuit. He first met the annual conference (Pittsburg) in Pittsburg, 1870, reporting the best year's work that Bellefonte had ever made; over seventy conversions in about six months. Bishop Brown, acting for Bishop Payne, returned Brother Lowery to Bellefonte. He had some unpleasant experiences on his way back to his work. At Tyrone he was obliged to lie over all night. Prejudice would not allow to him the common treatment given to travelers; so he was obliged to camp in the mountains all night. In the fall of 1870 he entered Wilberforce University, where he remained three years under the training of Bishop D. A. Payne and others. In those three years, doing missionary work, he organized three churches, being assisted in one—Cedarville—by the late Rev. Burton Lewis.

The church east Jamestown, Cherry Grove and Union Village were organized by Rev. Lowry. In fifteen days he raised $600 on the Union Village church At the end of three years, his health failing, he was obliged to leave school. He was appointed to the Allentown charge, Pittsburgh Conference. His work there was excellent. During the year he built a church at Philipsburg, on the top of the Alleghenies. In 1864 he was transferred to the Ohio Conference and stationed at Portsmouth. Later he was appointed to Carthagenia Mission, where his work required him to walk twenty miles between appointments every week. After two years here he was appointed to Stenhenville, where he found the church pulled down, the funds squandered and the former preacher driven away in bad repute. By diligent searching he found the officer who had misappropriated the church's money and recovered it. While at Steubenville, Rev. Lowry began a course of study at the West Theological Seminary at Allegheny, Pa. Owing to increased responsibilities in his pastorate he was obliged to abandon his course of study before its completion. While on this work he married Miss Lida A. Robinson, of Shelby County, O., a lady of high degree of refinement, who has proven a very helpmeet to him. His next appointment was Newark, O, where he remained one year, when, by especial request of Bishop Wayman, he was retransferred to the Pittsburgh Conference and stationed at South Side, Pittsburgh. At the end of two years of good work here he was appointed by Bishop Shorter to Uniontown, Pa., where he remained three years, remodeling the church. From there he was appointed to Canonsburg, remaining two years, improving the church building and receiving a considerable accession of members He was afterwards appointed to Brown Chapel, Allegheny, which charge he is now serving his third year. Here the greatest work of his life, thus far, has been accomplished.

By a natural tendency to pry into the affairs of his church he has discovered $7,000 worth of real estate belonging to the church, but which had been appropriated by individuals. He is also presiding elder of the Second District, Pittsburgh Conference. He is a brave, thoughtful minister. While preaching in his present church one Sunday night a bullet passed through the window at his back, barely missing his head, a supposed attempt at assassination, when he brushed the broken pieces of glass from his person and continued his sermon from the text, "Thy word is a lamp to my feet," etc.

He is really a successful pastor. His worth to the Church, measured alone by the property saved, is not small. While some lose what others have saved, he saves what others have lost. He has reduced the debt on Brown Chapel considerably and had the building tastefully repaired. This brief sketch places before the youths of to-day the case of a thoughtful, Christian gentleman, who has made a success of life under great disadvantages.

"MORE BISHOPS" REVIEWED.

BY REV. P. M. LEWIS.

[The writer has written a review of Dr. Johnson's papers, quoting extensively. Our limited space will not permit the publication of his article in full.—Ed. Rec.]

Dr. James H. A. Johnson is a scholarly Christian writer. However much others may differ from him, it must be conceded that he has made a worthy attempt to throw light on an important subject.

I propose to state my objections to some of his positions: First, we do not need more Bishops. As to the mode of electing Bishops in the apostolic ages, the Dr. must refer to the spiritual features and not to the rude proceedings, which could not be applied to the proceedings in these times; as the Doctor thinks seekers of the office unworthy of it. Our Church claims to be actuated and guided by the same spirit as they of olden times and to possess the same grace. This does not prevent the entrance of a Judas now, as it did not then. As the apostolic church survived, so will the African Methodist Church.

In his second article, Dr. Johnson speaks of one Bishop as quasi, and refers to the death of three, and refers to the age of half the present Bishops as rendering them feeble. Proceeding the Dr. shows that, having deprived of three by death, and liable to be deprived of the full service of others by age, we must elect others. But when the General Conference raised our number of Bishops to ten it gave us more Bishops than we needed; for, notwithstanding our loss, the remaining able and grand Board of Bishops move on upon a well-regulated line of true progress. Our Church, under them, is sweeping the enemies of good from the field. Nor do we feel that any part of our work suffers. Of course I include Bishop Disney as one of our regular Bishops.

Admitting the Dr.'s correctness of judgment concerning the declining vitality of half the board, what does the argument show hnt that even in this state seven Bishops can do our episcopal work? Their good judgment and long years show that God has blessed them peculiarly to live beyond the allotted time of man. Though five of them will be seventy and one eighty by 1892, this, though a good old age, is not beyond that attained by other good, wise men, who have discharged equally responsible duties; hence, our Board of Bishops need not be superannnated in 1892 The physical declension may not necessarily impair their mental powers. According to the general usages of Methodist Episcopal Bishops, these men can perform their official functions, as some have done, with weak bodies. The functions of such office do not coincide so extensive traveling and frequent preaching, as the Dr. thinks.

Physical powers are not the chief and highest requisite for the advancement of the Christian Church. The well-developed Christian character, assisted by highly cultured minds.

Our Church is infinitely better off with our wise, holy and just Campbell, Payne, Brown and others, than it would be in the hands of men, ever so strong physically, lacking wisdom and godliness. Too much of the physical, without the proper graces, has already done us much harm. A carcass is not for the lion strength which we require.

The Dr.'s reference to the practice of the United States in retiring officers is not well chosen. The United States retires these men at given ages mainly because they are unable to perform the ardnous physical duties required of them, not the mental duties. The church is that spiritual kingdom. God spare our Bishops and give us more like them when we shall need them.

"THOU SHALT NOT LIE."

BY S. A. HARDISON.

There are too many persons who sometimes find it convenient to lie a little The following incident in the life of General Grant is a severe rebuke to such persons. An important conference was being held in the Executive Mansion in Washington. A caller had sent in his card, but either the caller was unwelcome at the time was quite unexplicable for his admission and one of the persons present turned to a servant and said, "Tell the person who sent up the card that the President is not in." "No," said General Grant, "tell him no such thing." Then turning to his friends, the General remarked, "I don't lie for myself, and I don't want my servants to lie for me." That was noble. If our boys want to copy the example of great men let them pick out such things and follow them. Great men, as well as others, make mistakes. The mistakes they make are not any better or nearer right because they were made by great and leading men. We are not to be excused for following great men into wrong-doing; we should copy their examples only when they do right. The example of General Grant in reference to telling the truth is worthy of copying; his words, with a little change, are worthy of being used as a motto: "I do not lie for myself, and I do not want any one else to lie for me."

WHERE ARE WE DRIFTING?

IS THE EPISCOPACY A SACRED OR POLITICAL OFFICE?

BY REV. N. B. STERRETT.

MR EDITOR:—As the General Conference approaches it is surprising to see the many aspirants for the holy office of a Bishop. Our fathers taught us to believe that it was an office for which God selected men and set them apart for the government of his church, and the office and the men that filled it have always, therefore, been looked upon with the highest degree of reverence But men in these latter days seem to think that God does not know what man he wants to fill that office. They have, therefore, resorted to political rules, with all the chicanery pertaining thereto Men are nominated for that sacred office six months and a year before the General Conference convenes. They declare their nominees to be the most qualified for this sacred office, and if St Paul's description of the qualifications of a Bishop be true, God knows they know no more about some of the men they are nominating than I know about Napoleon Bonaparte's horse The episcopal field is full of candidates working up delegates and forming combinations, all to secure their election to that sacred office, and thereby defeat God in his design.

I know an aspirant who has his henchmen out organizing societies among a certain class of ministers in his conference, so as to control them in the election of delegates, and thereby get a delegation that will support him for Bishop. Now I say, unhesitatingly and unreservedly, that such men are no more fit for the Bishopric than any other bad man. No man can dictate for God He knows best whom he wants Samuel thought at one time he knew who the Lord wanted, but the Lord went out and got the shepherd boy that Samuel was not thinking about So He will it be with the Bishop in the next General Conference, if men do not pack the thing so that God cannot get at the man he wants.

Now, I ask for the sake of the A. M. E Church and the God whom we serve, let God have a chance at the General Conference of 1888, and then we will have such Bishops as God has called to the holy office, and some of them will be men who have not yet been mentioned for the office. If God has the control of the matter we will not have eight more, either, for he knows everything and he knows three more are a plenty The General Conference of 1888 could not do a better thing than to pass a resolution that these aspirants should not be elected. Men of brain and piety would do well to stop nominating and and give the men who are elected and those who may be elected some advice in regard to the law that should demand their attention. Let the men go to the General Conference unpledged and unbiased, and God will take care of the Bishopric. Alia tentanda via est.

A CHRISTIAN SOLUTION OF THE PRESIDING ELDER PROBLEM.

BY REV. D. A GRAHAM.

Every writer or legislator upon a question of church polity should first of all rid himself of all selfish considerations. Then he should see that there is no prejudice, revenge, sectional jealousy, or any other fruit of the flesh prompting him in his action He should love the Church and every member thereof, willing to suffer wrong rather than to do wrong to any. Believing that all agree with me I ask that this may be the spirit of our council this evening, while the despisers and advocates of the presiding elder system sit down as one family to adjust their differences

1st Is there any real need of the system? Yes, there certainly is In those sections of the country where the colored population is large, and our work not well organized, a presiding elder is of great benefit to the Church, if he be the right kind of a man There is so much missionary work he can do for which the pastors have not time. In these same sections there is stronger denominational competition, and a judicious presiding elder can keep the work in better condition to compete with rival churches. Where neither of these reasons are found another steps forward. Every pastor in the connection needs a higher authority over him, in closer proximity than it is practicable to have a Bishop When a pastor and his congregation, or a considerable portion there of, become dissatisfied, it is quite essential that some judicial person have the authority to settle the difficulty, if possible, or to remove the pastor and place a more acceptable one in his stead. The need of such authority has been sorely felt in many charges previous to the last General Conference, while its utility has been blessed by hundreds who could say no other good word for the system.

And now let us see what are the objections to the system.

1st. The expense is vehemently urged by the enemies of the system. This item differs in different sections. Where the population is dense, with from two to twenty churches in every county, the presiding elder seldom travels twenty miles without one or more stops, and is seldom one hundred miles. In other sections where the colored population is sparse, he seldom finds more than one charge in a county, seldom finds two charges nearer than thirty miles apart, and often fifty. The limits of his district are often three hundred miles. In these sparsely settled districts the number of churches is not only small, but the membership is also small.

For example, when we undertook to lay off the Michigan Conference into presiding elder districts, we took thirteen charges, as per Discipline, in the eastern half of the State and then had but 640 members Now, these 640 members must, to keep the law, support thirteen pastors and a presiding elder 13x200=$2,600, pastors' salary; 13x200=$2,600, pastors' board, then $1 000, presiding elder's salary. Here is $8 800 these 640 persons as called on to raise for ministers alone. Of course the $7,800 they take hold of cheerfully, because they think it necessary; but not so this additional $1,000 Don't forget the traveling expenses in riding a district about 100 miles square. This is a fair sample of presiding elder districts in many of the Northern conferences. I have seen them more than these; but yet we are told that we should not consider the money at stake, but the good to be accomplished In these districts, however, there is nothing for the presiding elder to do outside of holding his quarterly meetings and collecting his salary.

2nd The next objection to the system is the tyranny exercised by presiding elders in demanding their salary, whether the pastor gets his or not. I heard a high functionary of the Church, who lives in the South, say, "We presiding elders always get our money; because we just let the pastor know that he must have it or we'll see him at the annual conference" This is the worst feature of the whole thing. A tyrannical, wicked hearted presiding elder can yoke and the appointing power can compel you to do his bidding or you and family must suffer for bread and butter. If you are able to pay your presiding elder well and make him fine presents, lick the dust off his feet, you may expect good appointments. I have shown that in all cases of common opinion there is always something more than a mere superficial appearance of truth.

All organizations of whatever nature, political, social or religious, fully recognize the power and value of its systems Politics bodies are called together not so much for the purpose of selecting candidates for office as for the purpose of vowing certain sentiments, declaring certain principles, and, more than all else, enlisting an enthusiasm that shall rise and fall, swell and fall along, rising higher and higher, until it shall finally become lost to all control and sweep over the entire nation

No one thing has done more these last twenty years in bringing together and systemizing our people as a race than the transfer system It has not injured the fine qualities of our intelligence, but strengthened them. It has gone forth consentaneous of the end in view. How are nations and people to become acquainted and familiarized—how is the cement of brotherly love to be nurtured, if not by some confraternity?

As was see in the opinion expressed in the article of the 18th, a soul as large as the world, which embraces the command of Christ, "Go ye into all he world and preach the gospel," or one bordering too near to the principles of sordidity, and not enough of confidence in unity. Our experience has demonstrated to us beyond a shadow of donbt, that the A. M. E. connection and its transfer system is a grand concatenation of this confraternity

What of it if Brother A. or B. should, through the providence of God, occupy one of the higher seats in Jerusalem. God grant that I may be kept from being taught the lesson of the Pharisee, when the little child was brought and seat in their midst. No general systematic plans have been in operation for the building up of the Church and connection at large in a most holy faith, other than has been possible in this system.

God in his providence has opened the door of possibility in this direction, and we believe the system will commend itself to every chaste intelligence all over the land, as well as enlist the enthusiasm and devotion of both old and young. In reaching out for a more satisfactory experience in practical piety we have only to listen to the voice that now comes echoing over the land with all the force of a divine prophecy, stirring the hearts and energies of the people with a determination to extinguish everything that would blight the race, and we shall be recreant to the best interests of the connection and the general good of the people, and if he system fails to give a hearty and joyous response to the heaven-born inspiration that now demands, and will be satisfied with nothing short of the transfer system.

"Take my life and let it be Consecrated, Lord, to thee;
Take my feet and let them move,
At the impulse of thy love."

THE ONE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY

BY REV. WM. H YEOCUM.

Reading carefully the history of the Jews, it is observed that, through all their peculiar conditions, which commenced after their departure from Egypt, they thought it worth while to hold celebrations and jubilees on past events These were continued for perhaps two purposes: First, as a recognition of God's favor and divine blessings; secondly, to keep the events fresh in the minds of the children, that they might be handed down by history or tradition to unnumbered generations. And although few is found in all parts of the civilized world, far from the ancient Jernsalem, many of their former jubilees, celebrations and feasts are observed to-day among that class of people A few days ago a friend sent me a card written in Hebrew characters sent to him from the old country, informing him that the observance of the New Year would be in (this) September; that he, with an Jews, though in strange lands, must observe it. The Fourth of July in this country is observed as the day on which the nation was born. Again, Washington's birth is observed generally by the people of New England, the Middle and North ern States A few years ago the centennial of the nation was held on a large scale in the city of "Brotherly Love" Not long since witnesses the proud waters of the Atlantic the fiftieth anniversary of the reign of the Queen of England was observed throughout her domain. The colored people of this country do and should observe the emancipation of the slaves as one of God's divine blessings to the race Because this meets the eye of the reader the people of the nation will have celebrated the adoption of the constitution, the grandest instrument of the nation these deliverances of common sense, after distinguishing the real common opinion from the fallacious simulations of common opinion set up (according to him) by some pretenders who declare

THE REVS. J. W. BECKETT and C. H. Johnson will preach for Dr. J. S. Thompson, Sunday, Oct. 9th, the former at 10:30 and the latter at night. The occasion is quarterly meeting. The doctor raised nearly $150 last Sunday.

REV. I. S. GRANT has sent the RECORDER an article seconding Dr. Johnson's nomination of Elder M. B Salter for the episcopacy. Rev. J. P. Chavis adds the name of Rev. Samuel Washington and Rev. G. E. Taylor seconds the nomination of Rev. A. Grant and nominates Rev. W. B. Derrick, D. D.

THOUGH Endowment Day is over, Dr. J. G. Mitchell still keeps up the fire. He wishes to have the sums received thus far greatly augumented during the fall. He is distributing reward medals to those who push the canvass. The medal is beautiful, bearing on its face the motto, "Edncation, virtue and truth" and on its reverse the Lord's Prayer.

REV. W. G. ALEXANDER, of Montgomery, and J. T. Jenifer, of Providence, write congratulatory words concerning the change in the form of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The New York Christian Advocate, the Afrioo-Presbyterian, the Philadelphia Sentinel and other exchanges have also made complimentary notes on our change. Thanke, good friends; it is our desire to make the CHRISTIAN RECORDER worthy of your commendation continually.

THE Evansville (Ind.) Daily Journal of 19th inst. publishes a very flattering commendation of Rev. D. L. Bentley, by "W." Rev. Bentley has been transferred from the Indiana to the Pittsburgh Conference. The Journal, in bad Methodist taste, telle where he is going to set se pastor next year. Another prominent minister of a good Western conference transferred last year to take a given charge, bnt somehow, things changed. This appointment business is "mighty uncertain," till yon are settled.

SERMONS are heard every week by a large majority of our readers. The fact is, sermons are designed to reach the mind through the ear rather than through the eye. It is rarely that Brother Teneyke sends anything to the RECORDER. His sermon is published, but we do not solicit sermons, nor publish nearly all that come here. They are usually too long for a small paper. Preach your sermons, brethren, and write popular literature. As a rule sermons will not be published in the CHRISTIAN RECORDER.

THE MICHIGAN CONFERENCE pnblished its minntes in two weeks after adjournment in good style. The Ohio Conference, published its minutes by the time of adjournment, bnt not in so good style. Their pages are heavily leaded; hence are abont twice as numerous as they should be. No conference can publish a perfect record and have it bound by the day of adjournment. Changes are made immediately afterwards. That is a little too progressive. It is astonishing how nicely Ohio has arranged her minutes, however.

PROF. J. W. H. WKINS, of the Kittrell School, in North Carolina, returned home last week, after raising over two thousand dollars in the East. This is what we may safely call success. It is the work of about nine weeks. Prof. Hawkins is a young man, bnt strikes those who meet him as being intensely engaged in and well adapted to his work. It is a pity that the authorities of the school call him in to the work of teaching, when there are scores who could fill that position, bnt not one in a thousand who could equal him in soliciting money.

WE HAVE NEVER been in sympathy with nominating ministers for the highest position in our Church through the Church organ. We have published a few, bnt beg brethren to refrain from asking that papers dealing in nominations simply be published. There is nothing in these nominations for anyone. There are bnt few conferences that have not some minister who, they believe, would make a good Bishop. Their delegates can represent them in the General Conference. If we are going to leave this matter with God, Elder Sterrett is quite right, it is time we were submissive.

WE TAKE the liberty to eliminate from the article of Prof. J. W. Morris, president of Allen University, all reference to one of the attorneys retained in the case of the Columbia Church, inet as we have failed to publish an article from said attorney on the opposite side of the subject. The Columbia Church has had sorrow and shame enough. The RECORDER will eay anything right for its peace and prosperity; nothing, designedly, for its inconvenience. Brethren determined to make it their fighting ground mnst eenure some other carriage for their cannon. Talking with a prominent business man of Colnmbia, a member of the Governor's guard from that State, in our centennial week, we learned a good deal about the Columbia trouble. He says the loyal 300 have the sympathies of a majority of the citizens of his race-variety.

SEVERAL of the Ohio towns that are making a great "fuss" about the new school laws are republican, bnt that does not mean that the white people of those towns are willing thet black children shall heve equal chances with their own in the race of life. A set of hypocrites, they love the black man, his children, his wife and his condition on election days. A set of numbskulls; they do not know that they are bnt exposing their hypocrisy that has heretofore been hidden ingeniously. The mixed schools are coming, mixed teachers and all. There is no nee of being squeamish about it; it is in the course of republican logic. Every republican vote has tended in that direction. Of course the term "mixed" is senseless. The common school law in Ohio ineludes no such term.

Those awfully outraged towns are in the midst of towns their equals in all respects—both republican and democratic towns—that have by their own option adopted the so-called mixed schools before the State law made them obligatory. They are as virtuous and as free from frightful race incursions as are the little immaculate Ohio towns that close their schools. We can bnt regret that even the Wilberforce District was formed to satisfy this contemptible foolishnese.

TIME AND discrimination are wanting in the preparation of too many books written by colored men. The fact that books of this olass sell readily has struck both colored and white men. A loosenees and slovenliness that are simply criminal mark about nine-tenths of their works. Snch colored writers only hring uncomplimentary criticisms upon the race. Snch white writers simply help to maintain the character of their race, to get all they can. Language, biography, history, apologetics, poetry, song and romance have suffered from this haste to be colored authors. It is the same in reference to press articles. More than nine-tenths of these are sent to editors written loosely, many in lead pencil. Why do not writers weigh their thonghts? They will keep while being weighed. Why do they not study and correct their writings? The world will give them ample time. Many articles going to our editors lie on the table weeks, for the editor to find time to correct them, which in too many oases means to re-write them. Now and then we receive a scoring from a really good writer, a critical writer, for not properly crossing his "t's," bnt occasionally, like other human beings, he crosses a "t" incorrectly. We ask no thanks for correcting; we like to find an indication now and then that he may fail, hnt we do not enjoy so much complaint from those who have pnt little time on their articles before sending them, because we require time to publish them. Only a moment ago a letter read, "I have no brains for your waste basket. If you are not going to publish my article send it back." This comes from one of our best and most original writers, whose articles would always be published without any delay so far as these facts are concerned, bnt we cannot do in the RECORDER what we would not do in the African Methodist pulpit, publish heresy. We have published over and over that we do not return unpublished papers. Discrimination is worth as much as time in respect to an article for the public. Of course heresy will read as well as orthodoxy, often better. There are itching ears ready for it, bnt our writers must discriminate. Books will not always sell among colored people simply because written by or about colored people; for there will be critical and correct books on the same topics and by representatives of the same class. There are books ont now that might as well be right as strong, and long lived as short lived, bnt which, because of bad judgment, must be redneed to the "choice for 15 cents" shelf very early.

CAKE WALK.

All ministers should be ashamed to allow their names to be connected with these disreputable displays. No church is bound to subject its young gentlemen and ladies to this nonsensical performance for money. Of course it is quite as honorable as some other unbecoming acts which churchmen practice, but that is saying nothing in its favor.

MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT AT BETHEL CHURCH.

Rev. J. W. Beckett, B. D., pastor of Bethel Church, Philadelphia, deferred his Endowment Day to Sunday, 25th inst. It was our pleasure to be with him in the morning when his congregation gave $50 to the cause of edncation. The Snnday school gave $105.67 in the afternoon and the congregation $150 at night; making a total of $310.67. In the evening a young man preached his "trial" sermon, neither he nor the pastor knowing that he had as auditors Revs. Dr. Speare, Courtney, M. P., and Mr. Edwin Lawrence, all of London, England. Having deep interest in our race these gentlemen had come to Bethel to study the snbject. Elder Beckett sang some of his soul-cheering songs after preaching; the charm was irresistible. When the appeal was made for money to edncate our yonthe, two of the Englishmen responded with $50 each.

"IT'S THE CENTENNIAL OF OUR CHURCH."

Three girls, each abont thirteen years old, were discussing the object of the recent centennial demonstration in Philadelphia. Two of them were white and Roman Catholics, the third was colored and African Methodist. One of the Catholics said the centennial celebration was in respect to signing the Declaration of Independence; the other, that it had reference to the adoption of the constitntion. The dispute grew warm, when the African Methodist girl, who had read and heard of the movements of our Church with respect to the coming centennial, seriously said, "Girls, yon are both wrong; it's the centennial of our Church." Her conception of what an African Methodist centennial should be was about the right size. Like the little bird that sang, "All the world was made for me," she thought the great excitement that was going on in Philadelphia all concentered in the African Methodist Church. It will be a pity if the Church of which she is a member should allow her high notions concerning her connection to take a great fall next November. Philadelphia, the base of the grandest American jnbilees because of the mighty civil American ideas that have been realized here, may well be proud that it is the spot on which one of the noblest of religious struggles of the Afrioo-American race was organized—a struggle that has contributed in no small measure to the settlement of the race questione of the country and to the general advancement, peace and prosperity of the nation. As the whole nation has been stirred by the impulses of the constitutional centennial, so should the whole A. M. E. Church be; in fact the whole Americo-African race. The question of finance should not enter in our consideration so much as the questione of appreciation and celebration of the completion of a hundred years of the most pronounced and independent organization of the Afrioo-Americans for religione freedom, personel freedom and race advencement. No one can read the sketch of the life of Richard Allen carefnlly without observing all these facts in his grand stroke and manly stand for room in which and appliances by which to act. His life work was in the interest of his suffering people. Who will deny that the influence of the manly department, commendable thrift, dignified conrage and determined push of the African Methodist Episcopal Church was a highly important factor in bringing about the freedom of the race? No one can question its influence in holding and honoring that freedom when obtained. As it is the pioneer of Afrioo-Americau snccessful organization, so it has been the pioneer in questioning the rights of slave holders to impede religions exercise, organization and movement by black men. Its early apostles had many a thrilling adventure in advancing their cause in Southern and Southwestern States. The African Methodist Church penetrated into the South more deeply and diffused the Christian doctrines more extensively than all other colored organizations combined, before the war. Its fearlessness in this respect is equalled by its courage in pushing the cause of equal rights in all respects. The world may be directed with pride to its glorious achievements under Christ. Now, for a general declaration by the four hundred thousand to whom the heritage of the fathers is given, that the Church shall continue to lead the hosts of our race still in the wilderness. "It is the Centennial of our Church."

Notes on Education.

Wilberforce has enrolled an nnusually large nnmber of yonng ladies this year.

W. A. Robineon, son of Dr. Thomas H. Robineon, of the Western Theological Seminary, Allegheny, has been appointed Professor of Greek in Bucknell University, Lewisburg, Pa.

The connty commissioners of Green Connty, Ohio, have made the black school district, for that is what it means, abont Wilberforce University. Its directors will be colored; its teacher will be colored and its pupils will be colored (?) In a New Jersey district we have had colored school directors more or less, for forty years.

Two yonng ladies after writing to Prof. Holbrook, of the celebrated Normal School, at Lebanon, O., and receiving his circnlar and catalogne, were refnsed admittance because of their color. The Rev. S. G. Dorce, B D, at once escorted them to Wilberforce University, where they were received the same as white students. Wilberforce is a good asylum from the storms of color-caste.

The University of Pennsylvania recalls the part it playa in original research by the return to this city of the biological expedition, headed by Dr. Dolley, which has spent the summer on the Bahamas and whose work ought to be the beginning of a permanent station there or on our own coast. Professor Jo Drummond, one of the most distinguished of the foreign visitors now in this country, addresses the students of the University next week.

That the young women of America are likely soon to surpass their brothers in their intellectual development, seems a startling assertion. But the facts presented by Anna B. McMahan in the American Magazine certainly point in that direction. Women's clubs and similar organizations have provided means of improving the minds of their members, while the meles of similar age have been expending their energies on billiards and base-ball.

The superintendent of schools in Cleveland, Ohio (perhaps the model school city of the second class in America), two years ago reported, on the part of the boys in the High School, a loss of 10 6 per cent. from the ratio as it stood ten years before. The superintendent at St. Joseph, Mo., whose own proportion of boy-graduates stood sixth highest in a list of thirty schools that he tabulated, says: "The young of the country will be compelled in self-defence to prolong their time of study at school or college, or else enhmit to a continual reminder of their inferiority in scholarship to the young ladies with whom they mingle in the social circle."—American Magazine for October.

The operation of the law of last winter which repealed the statute authorizing the establishment of separate schools for colored pupils is producing friction in many places. At Oxford, O., the colored population recently all deserted their own school and applied for admission to the white school. A public meeting was held, and the School Board was asked to order the colored pupils to their own school. The Board complied with the request, and the colored people propose to apply for a mandamus. At Yellow Springs the School Board has ordered the ecocle closed indefinitely or until the legislature shall meet and take some action. At Ripley, O., a suit in mandamus has been entered to compel the School Board to admit colored pupils.

Mrs. C. L. Roddey is the inventor of many devices used in kindergarten work. Jnst now she is superintending the manufacture, at Springfield, of 500, models of a kindergarten slate.

Queen Victoria has presented Miss Agneta Ramsey, the Senior classic at Cambridge University, with her royal portrait, in appreciation of the high honor gained by Miss Ramsey in the recent examinations.

Dr. Fanny Dickinson, of Chicago, is the first physican of the gentler sex to be admitted as a member of the International Medical Congress, lately assembled at Washington. Her speciality is diseases of the eye.

The Pensylvania Prohibitory Convention, at Harrisburg, last week, declared that "American women should be clothed with legal power, their rightful due, to practically and efficiently defend 'home and native land' with their ballots."

The higher education of women is not lessening their fitness to be mothers of the next generation; it is furnishing the mothers of the race to be with the education and culture which will make the training of the generation worthy of its origin.—Herald.

Miss Henrietta Brooke Davis, in the Nineteenth Century, advises the establishment, by women, of a college in which the duties of the household, the art of cooking, etc, may be tanght. The great advantege of this will be that it will raise the standard of domestic service.

Dr. Elizabeth Beatty, of Indore, sent ont by the Presbyterian Church in Canada as a medical missionary, has treated over 6,000 patients in the past twelve months, and thinks a hospital and training-school for Hindoo women would make thousands of converts to Christianity.

All the training-schools for nurses in Philadelphia are free. This is one profession for women that is not overcrowded, and where women can earn good wages. The chief qualifications are good health, good temper, general intelligence, and a fair common-school education.

Are we an unhealthy nation? There are more than three times as many physicians in America as in France, proportionately. What would become of this army of doctors if American women were to dress properly and exercise in the open air regularly?—Eliza Putnam Heaton, in Brooklyn Times.

Mrs. Governor Claflin, for the purpose of saving influence on the children who roamed near home, has organized them into a Loyal League, to be officered by the young people themselves. The members all sign a pledge to use no oaths or vulgar language, neither alcoholic liquors nor tobacco, and to seek to perform as many acts of kindness as possible. A fine play-ground on the premises is arranged for them. At their meetings, which are quite frequent, all the formalities of a well-conducted club are scrupulously attended to—of itself an invaluable discipline for the children.

MANAGER'S COLUMN.

Our premium offer: In the RECORDER of last week we offered premiums in cash or its equivalent for subscribers to this peper. We propose to distribute $100 cash for every two hnndred and fifty names that shall be sent in. We open our roll for the names of our workers who propose to compete for these prizes. Send in your names and get our commission as agent. Our traveling preachers do not need each commission; hnt all others must have one.

Preminme will he graded as follows: To the one procuring the highest nnmber we will give, if a gentleman, a "RECORDER preminm" silk dress pattern, worth $25, or $20 gold. Or, if a lady, we will give her a "RECORDER preminm" silk dress pattern, worth $25, or $20 gold.

2. To the next highest, or 3rd competitor, we will give a $15. To the 4th competitor, $10, and to the last, $5. Total, $100. Note well: If two parties should succeed in getting precisely the same nnmber, the award will be to the one first enrolled. Send on your names. Rev. Dr. Mitchell, of the Ohio Conference, will engage in the second effort for 250. He says he'd like first-rate to begin now, hnt prior engagements prevent. He is intending, however, to have one preminm ont of the first 500. I can see those nine $5 gold pieces in the palm of his hand now, for when he begins—well, wait.

OUR CENTENNIAL is a constantly growing movement. Never saw anything like it in our Church. The man who will take no part in celebrating this grand occasion will get hedly left. No use talking against it; its gone! Ohio Conference fairly boomed it; Cincinnati, Columbus, Springfield and Xenia, Chillicothe, Gelpolis and Zanesville will all be heard from. "And all the stars that round them beam." Hnrrah!—No;—well, we're going to have a good time, God willing.

RESOLUTIONS OF SORROW.

At a regular meeting of the Preachers' Meeting of the Philadelphia Annual Conference and vicinity, of the A. M. E. Church, held at 631 Pine street, Philadelphia, Pa., a committee was appointed to draft appropriate resolutions in memory of Rev. Thomas A. Cuff, of the Philadelphia Annual Conference, who departed this life September 19, 1887, at Salem, N. J., in the full triumph of faith. The following were offered and adopted:

WHEREAS, It has pleased Almighty God, in his wise providence, to remove from our midst our late Brother, Rev. Thomas A. Cuff, and,

WHEREAS, It is but just to declare our high appreciation of the great benefits his life has been to the Church; therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we bow with humble submission to the will of our heavenly father, we do not the less mourn for our worthy brother.

Resolved, That in the death of our late Brother Cuff, the Church lamente the lose of one who was ever ready to proffer the hand of aid and the voice of sympathy to the needy and distressed.

Resolved, That we tender to his bereaved family our deep sympathy, and present to them a copy of these resolutions as a token of our respect and veneration for the Christian character of a good man gone to rest, and, with them, we hope to share with our brother the reward of eternity.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE
IN NERVOUS PROSTRATION.

Dr. O. C. STOUT, Syracuse, N. Y., says: "I have no doubt of its efficacy in all cases of nervous prostration. I gave it to one patient who was unable to transact the most ordinary business; as he explained it, his brain was 'tired and confused' upon the least exertion mentally. Immediate benefit followed the use of the Acid Phosphate, and he owed his recovery to it."

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22 1887;

WHEREAS, November next (1887) will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat"

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitians, under Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it,

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1857.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, B. R. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

1. The History of Bethel A. M. E Church, of Philadelphia, Pa., by Rev. J. W. Beckett, B. D

2 The Pioneer Preacher and Layman of the East.—Bishop J. P. Campbell.

3. The Pioneers of the South and West in 1848 and Beyond.—J. M Brown.

4. The Pioneers of the Southeast.—Bishop H. M. Turner.

5. The Father of the Alabama Conference and his work.—Rev. M. E. Bryant.

6 The Pioneers to Gold Coast.—T M. D Ward and J. H. Hubbard.

7. The A. M. E. Church from Allegheny Mountains to the Mississippi.—T. H. Jackson.

8 A M E. Church beyond the Mississippi.—J. M. Wilkerson, John Turner

9 The Organizing and Developing Power of the A. M. E. Church.—B. T. Tanner.

10. The Advancement of the Intellectual Standing of the Ministry of the A. M. E. Church.—Bishop D. A. Payne.

11. The A. M. E. Church and its Relation to the Elevation of the Race.—T. G. Steward.

12. The Mission of the A. M. E Church to the Darker Races of the Earth.—J. M. Townsend.

13. The A. M. E. Church in Texas.—Richard Haywood, Emanuel Hammitt, A. Grant, Frank Green, Henry Wilhite, W. E. Carson.

14. The A. M. E. Church in its Relation to the Societies among the Colored People.—Moses Dickerson.

15. The Publication Department: Its Rise, Power and Influence on the Church Members and its Work.—J. C. Embry.

16. The Place and Power of the Lay Element of Methodism.—J. P. Shorter.

17. The Influence of Preaching on Society. Has it been a success?—T. W. Henderson.

18. What has been the Moral, Social and Religious Influence of the A. M. E. Church on the Progress of the Race and its influence on the Colored Societies?—S. F. Lee.

19 Our children: What are they doing, and what are we doing for them? C. S. Smith.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be fixed upon to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that services be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of worship to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J. P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes.

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

HE WOULD NOT PAY A CENT FOR IT.

A gentleman in Birmingham, Ala., seventy-five years old, who had suffered with gout for thirty years, was recommended by a friend to try the Compound Oxygen, but he had so little faith in it that he "would not pay a cent for it." This friend then sent for a Treatment and he consented to try it. At that time he was suffering with intense pain in the knees and feet; the latter much swollen Was greatly emaciated and had been prostrated for weeks at a time. A few weeks since this friend visited him, and then wrote as follows:

COLUMBUS ALA., June 15, 1886.

"I have just returned from visiting Mr. Ward, and was highly pleased to find him much improved. He and his wife are in high spirits. He has had a very hie time for several months. Feet, hand, ankles and knees had been terribly swollen. For months and months he had not been able to have even a part of a night's sleep. After commencing the Home Treatment he had one of his worst spells for two or three days, and had given up all hope even of the Compound Oxygen. But he stuck to it. The first of last week he got one night's good, refreshing sleep. When he awoke the next morning he said to his wife, 'I have had a good night's sleep for the first time in months. But this is only temporary. I fear I shall not be able to sleep any to night.' But he did, and every night since he has slept well. He told me, on Sunday, that his hands were in their natural shape now, for the first time in many months, and that he believed the swelling in the knees and ank es would now subside, as they were itching a great deal"

In the Treatise on Compound Oxygen can be found a full history of the remedy, and a large list of many more such interesting cases, which will be sent free by addressing Dr. Starkey & Palen No. 1529 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!
Always ask for Dr. Pierce's Pellets, or Little Sugar-coated Granules or Pills.

BEING ENTIRELY VEGETABLE, Dr. Pierce's Pellets operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation. Put up in glass vials, hermetically sealed. Always fresh and reliable. As a LAXATIVE, ALTERATIVE, or PURGATIVE, these little Pellets give the most perfect satisfaction.

SICK HEADACHE,
Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their curative influence. Sold by druggists, for 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

BOILS CURED.
WILLIAM RAMICH, Esq., of Minden, Kearney County, Nebraska, writes: "I was troubled with boils for thirty years. Four years ago I was so afflicted with them that I could not walk. I bought two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and took one 'Pellet' after each meal, till all were gone. By that time I had no boils, and have had none since. I have also been troubled with sick headache. When I feel it coming on, I take one or two 'Pellets,' and am relieved of the headache."

THE BEST CATHARTIC.
Mrs. C. W. BROWN, of Wapakoneta, Ohio, says: "Your 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best cathartic I have ever advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

CONSTANTLY HAWKING AND SPITTING.
Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience astounding results and a permanent cure."

THREE BOTTLES CURE CATARRH.
ELI ROBBINS, Runyan, P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. And it has proved a permanent cure.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.
Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. However, only a few of the above-named symptoms are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, less understood, or more successfully treated by physicians. By its mild, soothing, and healing properties.

UNTOLD AGONY FROM CATARRH.
Prof. W. HAUSNER, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards evening, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. On the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost strangle me. By the use of Dr.

In All Complaints

Of the Stomach, Bowels, Liver, and Kidneys, Ayer's Pills are taken with excellent results. Being purely vegetable, they leave no ill effects, and may be safely administered to any one, old or young, in need of an aperient and cathartic. Physicians, all over the country, prescribe Ayer's Pills and recommend them as a good Family Medicine.

"If people would use Ayer's Pills," says Col. D. W. Bozeman, of Franklin, Texas, "in course, as you direct, very many of the serious ailments that come from torpidity or derangement of the liver and from malarial infections would be avoided. I have used these pills above a quarter of a century and know whereof I affirm."

Herman Bringhoff, jewelry engraver, Newark, N. J., writes: "Costiveness, induced by my sedentary habits of life, became chronic. Ayer's Pills afforded me speedy relief. Their occasional use has since kept me all right."

THE RENSHAWIAN CURE

Dr. Lewis A. Seyre, Prof. Orthopedic and Clinical Surgery, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, wrote to Thos. O. One of these cases was at my Clinical Lecture s: Believe Hospital, and unable to speak without the most horrid grimaces and stammering. In five weeks he went before the audience and read a paper from a medical b ok without stammering at all.

MORE BISHOPS.

BY REV. JAMES H. A. JOHNSON, D.D.

XII.

THE ANIMATION CREATED IN CHURCH ORGANIZATIONS BY EPISCOPAL VISITS.

It is a good thing for a Bishop to uniformly go from place to place in his district. The title-of his office is more impressive than that of any other preacher, and gains more respect, when he be be a man of great or small ability. People are generally inclined to esteem the office as pre-eminently sacred; and if some of them can do no more than term its occupant a "Bushop," they will signally show that they have a conception of the sanctity of the office They will evince this by the manner in which they honor the occupant in word and deed His station will be and is regarded to be as the medium by which the Church represents all the meritoriousness of the ministry,—truth, honesty, gravity, grace, love and wisdom A Bishop fortified with such ingratiatory characteristics of an office can go forth qualified to do more than any ordinary man. People wait to receive him.

What, then, are the effects produced by his visits? He does not go into his brethren's various charges without having his services to be as "bread cast upon the waters." Here and there he will find weak and sluggish societies. He will find the members careless, stewards inefficient, trustees indifferent and Sabbath school scholars inattentive. Something must be done to arouse them. Something can be done to arouse them He can do it. Let a set of people be found in this different state, and it will be seen that there is efficacy in the services of a good Bishop. The announcement of a prospective visit from him will quickly cause the lethargic members to get up and rub their eyes that they may see what is best for them to do by the way of making decent preparation for his reception. Two or three episcopal visits will stir them up to duty, and bring them together, and incite them to take steps to increase their strength that they may make some kind of respectful appearance as a church organization. Episcopal visits will produce these effects when nothing else will do it. Tongh, indeed, must he the crowd that remains unacceptible to this instrumentality. They must be worse then toads which refuse to move under the genial rays of the vernal sun; worse than turtles standing still under the excoriating temperature of a red hot iron. A Bishop's visits arouse careless members, ameliorate the condition of inefficient stewards, besir indifferent trustees, draw inattentive Sabbath school scholars and create a lively degree of interest in a part of every community. And still there is set of "penny-wise and pound-foolish" fellows who are everlastingly cursing the columns of the RECORDER and abating the action of the Church by carping over the necessary expenditures to keep the Church alive and make it a moving, godly power. Well would it be if the Church should so fix them thet it might say, They have —

"No, not a tooth or nail to scratch,
And at my actions carp and catch."

Let one speak of the necessity of electing more Bishops and they will, in opposition, speak of their notion of abolishing the presiding eldership, advancing hereby the unsavory theory springing from ignorance that if we have more Bishops we do not went presiding elders. Truly a little learning is a dangerous thing. I believe in a full and extensive Methodist government, which gives such fruits as are indicated by the uncompromising Kershaw. Having now made this digression, I come back to my line of argument to show that episcopal visits are often the means of buoying up discouraged pastors.

When a minister in charge has done all he can and still the people will lie as dead weights upon his hands, episcopal relief is to him a heavenly blessing When a kind, paternal Bishop comes along, it gives him an inspiration that makes his work more effective. Hundreds know this to be true and that such aid is all the time needed from this source. We sometimes hear preachers sighing from the very depths of their souls for a Bishop—for a visit from a Bishop. They admit that a visit from such a dignitary would promote their ministerial spirit as could be done by no other cause if they could secure that visit just at a certain time. But what prevents them from being successful at this point? Why the number of Bishops is so limited and they have so much to do thet it is impossible for them in scores of cases to go to the relief of such brethren, no matter how great may be their discouragement. They must be left to dwell in their dispirited condition, to communicate their gloomy feeling into those around them, to experience more damaging results in the end? Even a single case of this kind is sufficient to cause any amount of reasonable regret, and this is intensified by bringing it into contrast with that one that has been subjected to the magnetic influence that extends through the pastor to the organization. Here we perceive the ministerial efficuity that exists throughout all grades, Bishops, presiding elders and pastors.

More remote still is this peculiar influence that goes beyond even the bounds of the Church and effects those who are outside of it. There are many people who attend services at the A. M. E Churches and are still unconscious of the magnitude of the connection. They are ignorant of the duties and routine of duties and sometimes they see a presiding elder, and sometimes only the prestension of one, going his rounds, and this is the sum and substance of all the connectional power manifested to them from year to year. In the face of this they have a measnred degree of interest in the Church. Episcopal visits, though, paid to the Church cause them to increase this interest and to become deeply concerned in its welfare. They grow animated on the anticipation of the event and join in with the members as they do on no other occasion to make it beneficial to the Church. This is true concerning friends both white and colored. The inference is clear, then, that in proportion to the extension of episcopal visits will be the increase of attachment of people to the Church. This is true. Its attainment, it is well known, is experienced wherever the visits are made.

A failure to make provision for the accomplishment of work to this extent would be nothing less than a calamity. The animation of weak and sluggish societies, of churches and stewards and aside elements by the reiteration of an adequate number of Bishops, is as pertinent an argument as can be applied non-to the case. Let us have more Bishops, making the episcopacy itself still more effective, and God will bless the Church.

Hagerstown, Md.

"MORE BISHOPS" UNDER REVIEW.

BY REV. P. M LEWIS.

No. 2.

In this reply I shall begin by transposing, to some extent, the Dr.'s order of advancing his arguments herein. Dr. Johnson declares, first, that an episcopal district comprising three annual conferences would constitute a work large enough for one Bishop to superintend. Second, that the aggregate number of church societies in such a district for him to oversee would be 360. Third, the Bishop is to visit each one of these societies once in a conference year. He is to preach and deliver addresses to them such as would inspire them to both temporal and spiritual improvements. Fourth, he is to study the literature and science of the dey, prepare sermons and addresses, and give the people new thonghts and theories and keep his district abreast with the times. Fifth, the Bishop is to visit every part of his work, dedicate churches, and, I suppose, lay corner-stones, etc., and not to cease traveling. Sixth, he is to hold three conferences during the year, make extra visits and pay polite attention to all of his correspondence, which I suppose the Dr. to mean.

I reply, that from A. M. E. standpoint and view of her church work and system by which it is carried on, three such conferences as we have would not constitute an episcopal district large enough to give one Bishop all the work he could do the conference year around, if said Bishop be in good health. I believe that he could with the very best results superintend at least six, if not seven; and I shall endeavor to substantiate this by the time I close my arguments.

2. For a Bishop to labor in the sense that Dr Johnson argues, never was the intention of the A M. E. General Conference. Had they intended the Bishops to labor thus, one Bishop to the conference would be sufficient. According to the amount of work, and the manner in which it is to be performed, you will find it meager calculating to allow a Bishop to travel and do this work, and average one society a day. At this rate he would get around in one year less five days and a fraction of a day. You may say that I have run into an absurdity here as to the time required to do this in, but clear reasoning will justify me in my position Suppose you could make, along the railroads and in counties some-times, two or three societies a day, it is certainly unreasonable to expect the Bishop to average one a day in the favorable sections and in out-of-way localities he would sometimes fail to reach one place in two or three days. This plan is not the literal nor spiritual meaning of the law which says "they shall travel and visit" every part, circuit and station in their respective districts The literal sense is, (a) that the Bishop is to travel through his entire work as conveniences will enable him to, and (b) whenever his presence is needed in any part of his special or connectional work. (c) He is to do all of this first, to the glory of God, and, second, to the good of man, and this is the spiritual meaning. The Bishop is sacredly bound to constantly travel and superintend all of his work wherever needed according to his abilities in every respect.

When a Bishop has traveled as far as pecuniary provisions and other conveniences allow, and has decided or settled all of the difficult matters that he could, preached and lectured when he could, given counsel when and where needed, got all of the general information respecting his people, temporally and spiritually, that he could, so as to enable him to provide wisely for the improvement and continuation of the work among them at the annual conference, he has fulfilled the law to the letter and spirit. The unnecessary expenses and loss of time which would be required to carry on Dr Johnson's plan of traveling by the Bishops, would require a sum of money sufficient to build and support hundreds of churches and schools and feed and clothe many worn-out preachers and dependent widows and orphans. It is also evident that no Bishop could do this work according to the Dr.'s plan His physical and mental powers would not be sufficient for so onerous a task. The plan is entirely impracticable and impossible. The greater part of the labors he declares to be the duty of a Bishop to perform belong properly to the regularly appointed pastors and presiding elders, and can only be successfully and effectually performed by them

3. The Bishop is to study the literature and science of to-day, prepare sermons and addresses and give the people new thoughts and theories all along the line. It never was the intention of the M. E. General Conferences nor the letter nor spirit of our law that Bishops should perform this kind of work. How fruitless would be nine-tenths of the efforts of a Bishop or Bishops, going through the country, stopping at each of these societies, discussing the plan of salvation according to the theories and sciences on the same of to-day. If Dr. Johnson means that the Bishop is to carefully consider every letter note and card and give each a respectable reply, he would assign him a work within itself that would require, at least, one-fifth of his time. Some will need no reply. Doctor, this old Board, with other noble souls, are doing all the legitimate work that you require to perfection, and if these grand old heroes are the little wheels you have reference to in your article, the majority of the big wheels will never catch them until we get into glory, if then.

Now, throw out of the scales all of the work spoken of by Dr. Johnson for the Bishops to do, but which really does not rest upon them, and we have a sum, plain to every practical mind, entirely too great for any mortal man to perform according to the doctor's earnest and practical ideas but impracticable plan. Dr. Johnson's plan introduces an almost entirely new system of episcopal superintendency in the A. M. E. Churches, and as yet it does not seem in the least degree feasible.

Cape Girardeau, Mo.

At an election for principal of the Thirty-third Ward School, in Pittsburg, last night, Rev. Father McTighe, a Roman Catholic, was chosen. "The reason Father McTighe applied for the position was, as he claims, because there are over 400 Catholic children in that ward and only 30 or 40 Protestant school children.

OUR AFRICAN LETTER

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE AND CENTENARY CELEBRATION AT FREETOWN, SIERRA LEONE

BY REV. J. R. FREDERICK.

MR. EDITOR:—Since our last the Queen's Jubilee and Centenary of this settlement were the greatest occasion of interest in this colony. One hundred years ago the first settlers landed from England. These people were slaves from America and the West Indies, whose masters took them to England, and who, according to an act of Parliament of 1772, were free on touching British soil. These and others who had servived during the American Revolutionary wars in the English army and navy, about four hundred in number, were thrown on the streets of London without any claims of support. Through the instrumentality of Granville Sharp, the great philanthropist, this settlement was formed, and they were transported here by the "Nautilus," a British vessel, in April, 1787.

The week from the 19th of June was specially set apart for the celebration of the two great events, which was characterized by a series of religious and social meetings The programme for Sunday, 19th, runs thus: Thanksgiving services in all the churches; special sermons, and offertory, which was given to the Jubilee and Centenary Fund. We had four gatherings in our church that day. At 5 A M, a meeting was held for prayer and thanksgiving, when by a short address we pointed out the providential order of things in the past history of this individual church, and the more remarkable coincidence in the organization of the A. M. E. Church in the colony just at this period when the Church at home is preparing to celebrate her own Centennial Jubilee I am sure it will be long remembered by every one that devoutly participated in this religious exercise, which, whilst characteristic of the Methodist Church, was nevertheless enjoyed by all other Christians present, who appeared to manifest a perfect pleasure in all that was said and done. At 10 30 A M. we assembled again, when special prayers, psalms and lessons were read at the request of the government by all the churches. This service was prepared by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and supplied by the local authorities. We preached the jubilee sermon, subject, "The claims of God and Cæsar reconciled," from the text Mark 12, 17. It home that day with glad hearts and we are inexpressibly thankful to our blessed Lord for the satisfaction of being participators in this glorious cause.

It is only to be regretted that some substantial memorial was not transmitted to the coming generation portraying the progress of the first century of the existence of the colony Some, however, have branded the colony a failure, but if these are only the opponents of the negro advancement beyond the limits of serfdom, and would naturally try to intervene our progress by shutting out the first rays of advancing civilization. It is clear to any unprejudiced mind that one century has produced more fruit of light and civilization in this soil than ever germinated in any of the favored connries of the world for more than three centuries of their seedtime. Sellrs Leone, I am happy to state, with all the remnant of heathen superstitions in her midst, is more Christianized and civilized to-day than Britain was when Egbert completed the union of the Saxon Heptarchy into what is now called England, fifty eight centuries after the Roman invasion. From the paper sent you will see that by God's help we have gained a footing here. I hope to be able to write more fully on the subject next time.

Dr. Hull, formerly a member of the Iowa State Board of Health, declares that "opium is to-day a greater curse than alcohol, and justly claims a greater number of helpless victims, which do not all come from the ranks of reckless men and fallen women, but the majority of them are to be found among the educated and the most honored and useful members of society; and as to sex, we may count out the prostitutes so much given to this vice and still find females far ahead so far as numbers are concerned."

Europe spends annually on the maintenance of fleets and armies nearly $900 000,000. In 1880 we expended $54,000,000.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S TEN MINUTE SERMONS.

BY REV. M V.N. TENEYCK.

EVERLASTING LIFE.

"He that believeth on Me hath everlasting life."—John 6, 47.

Hark, he still while our ears catch the sweet words of love and mercy dropping from the lips of heaven's blessed King! Nowhere in the volume of truth do we find utterances of grander significance. It is the offer of life, happiness and riches to the poor and helpless, whose mortal life is but a quivering thread and whose ways are over shadowed with gloom. And as we stop to consider these words let our prayer to God be, that he will incline our hearts by his sanctifying spirit to believe and trust in the promises of the Redeemer of life.

1st. What is everlasting life? Is it merely a dream floating before us, depicting fancies upon our inward visions, which, when vanishing, leave us sad and disappointed; or is it the continuation of this present mortal existence, with all its heavy toils, cares and distresses? No, blessed be truth and thanks to God, it is none of theee. Everlasting life is life in its realness, life in its fulness, life pure, life perfect in all its capacities.

SPEAK OF THIS LIFE!

This life is mockery and our struggles to keep it are all vain. By its excitements we are deceived; by its counsels we are misguided, and in seeking after the objects of its promises we invariably find disappointment. How often do its pleasures carry us to the summit of delight and then vanish, leaving us to fall into the valley of despair! How often does joy come, bringing with it laughter and song, and then depart, leaving behind it weeping and mourning! How often do riches take wings and fly away and the princely millionaire step down beside the lowly, and the brilliant nobleman becomes the companion of the beggar! Such life has been, such it is, but the future life spoken of in the text promises better things. There all surrounding objects, all events and every act will awaken within us most blessing conceptions and possess a perfect consonance to our finest feelings.

2nd. Who have need of it? All have need of it. You have need of it. Every falling tear symbolizes this fact. Every pain, every feeling of discontentment, every ungratified desire, every groan that is heaved from the bosom of grief, rolling years and changing seasons, old age with its tottering gate, which now to you seeme distant, but whose approach will steal upon you like a thief in the night, and death with its terrible workings,—all, all tell you that you have need of that life that is free from these dreaded cousualities. And this is your only escape; if you mise this, what the text terme everlasting life, you will mise everything that will be worth having. You will then have imposed upon you a life of sorrow, which is really this life continued with its all enfferinge and miseries increased and intensified. It will be a life that will be equivalent to death, and where death will be preferable to life.

The most intricate and complex of all organizations is the human society. Philosophy and science have contributed largely to the advancement of art, but fails almost entirely when attempting to facilitate and improve the regulation of society. The same fiery conflict of political and social conditions is raging to-day as they were 4000 years ago. Our weakness is demonstrated in every effort we make, and our constant failures prove our need of help from on high. Yes, from Him who is mighty and able to save us, and who we hear speaking to us in the words of the text. This is Jesus coming to help ne. Jeens coming to do us good. Jesus coming to make us happy forever; precious Saviour! May he ever be precious to yon in redeeming, renewing and sanctifying your soul for that high and happy condition which only the glorified can ehare. There only will society be perfect in its government, regnlar in all its operations, free from all domestic jarrings, social inharmonies and political agitations. Ah, this will be a life worth seeking after and worth the earifice of all earthly things to be obtained. It is just the life that you need and must obtain in order to become happy, or if you come short of it you will be forever miserable, where the sunshine of eternal grace will never fall upon you and the light of hope never break through the clouds of deepair. Every young man and woman needs it. Time is swiftly carrying yon away; the approaching grave is making haste and soon the merry voices that ring aronnd the hearthside of your home and greet you upon the street and in your social gatherings will greet you for the last time in this word. Oh, the sad departure! And must it be forever? No; not necessarily. Not if we make Christ the object of our livee. Not if we make him the special object of our affection. If we do this then we ehall meet again. Jesus will bring us all together face to face; he himself being the central object of endearment and attraction. Then will come the hand-shaking, the hearty congratulations as we enter into this life which will have no ending. And this will not be all. Here we shall meet the good people that have lived before us; here we shall meet the ouce little Joseph, who was so pure and virtuous, and whose good behavior won for him the favor of Egypt's highest rulers; here we ehall meet the once little David, who by putting all his trust in the Lord, slew the mighty gient and routed the Philistian army; here we ehall meet the little Samuel, who held conversation with the Lord and the little Daniel who would not be tempted by the sparkling bowl of intemperance. And also thoee good women who have immortalized themselves by their good and brave deede, such as Hannah, who prayed in the Lord's house; Mary, who washed the Saviour's feet; Lydia, noted for her hospitality, and Tahitha, for her good worke. They will be there to welcome and join you in everlasting friendship. Then for the first time you will find pleasnre without pain, joys without eorrows and society without its upheavale and strifee.

3d. How can it be obtained? Not by earning, not by wealth, but only by believing in the Lord Jesus Christ. It is God who makes the gift, it is Jesus who eaves you. His death upon the crose was the compensation paid for your life. The blood that flowed from his side is the only fountain of purification which cleanses you from your iniquities. God's Holy Spirit sanctifies, enlightens and changee you into his image, and renews your relation to him as he children. What a wonderful blessedness! Stop and conesider the endearment in which this relation brings you! God the father; God the King and you the children of a King. Glory, glory, glory. Yoong man, why returning? Why standing so far away? What leads you to make the fatal choice that you are making? Why loitering by the wayside, listening to the voice of a vain world, whose siren songe delight only to deceive and whose counsels are a lie? Why do you stop your ears against the sweet voice of Jesus, whose word is truth, whose look is love and whose touch is life? What will you do in the hour of death, when mother, father and friends stand powerless aronnd your bedside and the nurse for the last time emoothee down your pillow as the physician declares that he can do no more, and the ringing of the clock's ball upon the mantle tells the fatal hour has come? What satisfaction will you obtain by looking back over a misepent life, which, when reckoned up in the scale of justice, is tonnd wanting? How may worlds, with all their vain pleasnres, would you give to be enabled to live one-half of that life over again that you might correct the terrible mistake? But as time forbids fnither enlargement, may this be sufficient to enable me to prevail on you to forsake your wickedneee and come immediately to Jesus, by believing in him and accepting him for yon counsellor, your guide and your Saviour, that you may have everlasting life in heaven

And now, my youthful friende, my heart's desire and prayer to God is that this subject may prove a blessing to your soul. Will you not heed its suggestions? Behold the little butterfly, beautiful and gay as it wings itself sportingly upon the breeze, after being tranеformed from the grub. But far more etrangely beautiful will he your appearance when transformed from mortal dust into the pure image of God. O, blessed immortality awakening into eternal joys. How it enlivene our emotions. For a moment listen to the poet's inspiration:

"Hasten sinner to be wiss,
Stay not for to-morrow's sun."

Yee, hasten, hasten; endeavor at once to live life well; to live it for a purpose and let that purpose be obedience to God The Bible eaye eeek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness and all things else shall be added unto you. And you know that the Bible is both truth and wisdom, therefore stndy it that its truth may teach you that which is pnre and holy and its wisdom guide you in the perfect way of liberty, that leads forward to God and the home of the blessed. The grace of our Lord Jeeus Christ be with yon. Amen.

A NEW FIELD OF LABOR.

BY M. H. VAUGHN, B. S.

It has been three years since I have written a line for the RECORDER. This has been no detriment, we hope, as the last article sent was not published for the reason, as the editor (Bev. Tanner) gave it, that it exposed corruption in the Church, and that it be tried by a private court. I was in Wyandotte, Kane., at the time, acting as principal of the Sixth street public school, where I remained only one year, during which time I was made acquainted with a deal of corrupt wire working in the Church work.

I was called from Wyandotte to take charge of the public school of color in Springfield, Ohio, where I remained for three years, till the mixed schools came about. And right here allow me to state that mixed schools, while they are right, theoretically speaking, yet they are not freighted with the results that the native teacher produces in colored schools.

This has been proven and demonstrated in places where comperative records have been kept of the workings of each system. Outside of the matter of distance to attend school, everything favors the separate school system. But, as this hindrance could not be well remedied in many places in Ohio, the teachers were obliged to seek other fields of labor. Thus I em here in Shelbyville, Ky., a servant in the eame capacity, that of teacher. A splendid field indeed Over nine hundred youth of school age in the district, an A. M. E. Church of over three hundred members, most of whom are property owners, a Sunday school fairly represented, with Bev. H. C. Aebly, a very energetic, persevering young man as pastor, as is evidenced by over two hundred additione made to the church during a pastorate of less than two years, and paid off the whole debt. The colored agricultural fair here was another evidence of the thrift and push of the colored people comparing favorably with the whites. I ehall have something to eay in my next article of the proposition for fourteen Bishops, as suggested by Bev. J. I will relieve your anxiety for the present by eeying I em hitherly opposed.

BISHOPS WELCOME.

BY REV. W H. BRYANT.

MR. EDITOR:—We are pleesed to eay that Bishop A W. Waymau called to eee ue here at Cheeter, Pa., last Tnesday night, September 20, 1887. And at 7:45 P. M, the Bishop preached out of his soul-reviving sermone to quite a large number of the members and friende of our church, and I think he has left a lasting impression upon the minde of many who heard him. After preaching the Bishop geve ue a short talk in regard to his travels through the Sonth, which was very intereeting. The members say that it has been eleven years since they have had a Bishop to pay them a friendly visit, although they live, as it were, next door to Philadelphia. It is the first visit I have had from a Bishop since I have been in the ministry, which has been about ten years, although I have invited them several timeе to visit my work, and, by the way, their work as well as mine But I do not think that our dear Bishops should wait for a special invitation to go into any part of our church work. For my part, I ehall be more than happy to have any of our Bishope to visit me at any time; and I hereby give a special and standing invitation to all the Bishope and the heads of all the departmeuts of our Church, and all other worthy ministers of the Gospel. My church, my house and heart shall ever be open to receive them. All I ask is to let me know in time, so that I may make ready to receive them.

THE BALTIMORE CONFERENCE ELECTORAL COLLEGE.

MR. EDITOR:—The Electoral College of the Baltimore Annual Conference met in St. John's A. M. E. Church, Baltimore, on the 14th day of September and organized by electing Meesrs. J. H. Murphy and Isaac Myers, president and secretary, respectively. Rev. B. F. Wayman conducted devotional exercisee. A committee on credentials and permanent organization was appointed. The committee reported the credentials as all being correct and recommended the temporary officers to be made permanent. Mr. Wm. H. Barnes, of St. John's A. M. E Church, Baltimore, and Mr. J. A. Simms, of Metropolitan A. M E. Church, Washington, D. C., were elected delegates to the next General Conference. Mr. T. H. Russell and Mr. Cooper were elected alternates. The following resolutions were adopted for the instruction of the delegates: 1st, That not more than five Bishops should be elected. 2nd, That each conference be allowed to decide for itself the practicability of the presiding eldership and that the office be made elective. 3rd, The location of all departments of the Church in one building in some city centrally located. 4th, That the Children's Day collection be turned over to the educational department and Endowment Day be done away with. 5th, That Easter Sunday be continued as Missionary Day, and that the entire collection on that day be used for missionary purposes. 6th, That all General Officers be paid out of the General Treasury. 7th, That the "Dollar Money" collection be done away with, and fifty cent money be inserted, and that amount be collected from each member and the whole amount be turned over to the General Treasury. 8th, That there be but one editor and one manager of the A. M. E. Review and CHRISTIAN RECORDER.

AFRICAN METHODISM IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

BY M. V. C.

MR. EDITOR:—The pastors have all returned from their summer vacations, camp-meetings, etc., and last Sabbath in the various churches showed that the memberships have also returned and entered with renewed zeal upon the work of building up Christ's kingdom. Excellent sermons were preached in all the churches. The ministers' meeting assembled on Monday and the following report will show the work accomplished. At Metropolitan Church, Rev. Dr. Steward, the pastor, preached an able sermon. This was the day for collecting the church debt fund More than $200 was realized from the excursion to Harper's Ferry, given by the Sabbath school of that church.

Rev. J. W. Bowser, in reporting for Ebenezer, West Washington, represented the church as being in a properous condition. This pastor reports that he has his flock interested in making arrangements for extensive repairs on the church.

St Paul's, under the pastorage of Rev. C. W. Fitzhugh, is in a very prosperous conditiou. The membership is increasing and the members are working zealously to raise means to rebuild their church. September 18th was the day set apart for their first effort in this direction.

This is the first year of Rev. J. P. Cox at Hagah, and the spiritual interest has increased wonderfully under his pastorate. A revivel is in progress at that charge.

The Bladensburg charge, which in cludes only two points in the city of Washington, reports as it has been for the last two or three years under the pastorate of Rev. C. Jones. Like his cousin, Levi J Coppin, of the Philadelphia Conference, he rests neither day or night that his charge might improve. He is a faithful and devoted A. M. E. minister.

Revs O D Robineou and Arthur Jones are progressing in their cherges. They are serving Garfield and Hillsdale Stations.

Rev. Dr. Jas. H. A. Johneon has charge of the work made vacant by the late Rev W. H. Waters. Dr. Johnson has a peculiar field of labor, assuming two extremes. One part of his work bringe him in contact with profeesore and etudents of Howard Univereity and the other part with some of the lower strata of the District of Columbia. This faithful man can successfully meet the demands of either of these extremes.

ENDOWMENT DAY IN CHATHAM.

BY REV. HENDERSON DAVIS, JR.

Endowment Day was observed in the A. M. E. Church of Chatham, Sunday, Septemhr 18th. Under existing circumstances the people responded well to the call. Not having the benefit of the programme in time, we could only carry it out in part. Bishop J. P. Campbell, D. D., LL.D, was with us, and added much to the interest of the occasion. He made for himself many warm friends. He preached two eloquent sermons, and notwithstandiug his advanced age, epoke with the vigor of a man of forty.

Prof. H. M. Joseph of Wilberforce Institute, preached the educational sermon in the evening, which was a masterly effort, and was listened to with marked attention. After the sermon, Bishop Campbell gave a graphic discription of the A. M. E. Church from 1787 to the present time. It was very interesting and as we sat and listened to the recital of its illustrious history, we were constrained to take up the language of David and say: "This work of the Lord is great, sought out of all them that have pleasure in them. He hath shewed his people the power of his works, that he may give them the heritage of the heathen."

BE THOUGHTFUL FOR OTHERS.

BY MRS. N F. MOSSELL.

An old lady come ninety years of age, when questioned as to why she did not attend church more regularly, replied, "Oh! the children run over me so, they have no respect for my age." The old lady, of course, might have waited until everyone had passed ont to leave her eeat in church, but still it was her privilege to leave promptly at the close of the service, and the children should have been trained so that they would have been more thoughtful of the rights of others. Few of ne think often enough of one fact: that the aged have but few to sympathize with them. All of us have had our infancy, childhood and yonth, and we eympathize in all these etates of existence; but only the aged know what it is to be old, and many of this clase realize the fact to their sorrow. How few are sufficiently thoughtful and careful in their treatment of thoee who have borne the burden and heat of the day.

How many little children, who have plenty and to spare of beautiful papers and books, think of the little ones in the far South deprived of such treasures. Mre Robeson, the wife of the pastor of Witherspoon Presbyterian Church, at Princeton, N. J., was privileged to spend some months in the Northeastern section of North Carolina near Williamston She gathered around her a day school, night school and Sabbath school, and it is touching to hear of the eagerness of these people to learn. They attended all the schools regularly and promptly, paid without a murmur their quota of expense and every paper or book given out was treasured and carried from house to house. The pictures were cut from the papers and pasted up along the chimney and the lessons they taught were daily pressed upon the minds of the little onee. Every new thing taught any one, white or black, in the neighborhood was willingly shared with others until the whole number in that vicinity had gained the accomplishment. How few of us are thoughtful as we should be of the needs of this clase of people.

RECEPTION TO FREDERICK DOUGLASS AT WASHINGON.

On Thnrsday evening, September 22d, the citizene of Washington, to the number of ahout two thousand, turned out to give Mr. Douglase a royal welcome home. The reception took place in the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church and the exercisee conaisted of tableaux, addresses and music, and also an original poem of decided merit by Rev. W H. Brooks. Mr. Douglass' response was quite elaborate and characterized by passages of eloqneuce and wit. He seemed quite affected by this hearty recognition by his fellow townsmen, and said, as he surveyed the scene, "I am a proud man this night, and I would take a much prouder man than I am to be the object of such an occasion as this." After the public reception, which closed shortly after ten o'clock, the committee of management, in company with Mr. Douglass, repaired to the lecture room of the church and partook of a fine banquet, served up in elegant style by Mr. W. H. Amos, of Philadelphia. The affair is chronicled in all the local papers as having been a complete success and was most creditable to the people of this city and complimentary to Mr. Douglass.

MANAGER'S COLUMN.

Our premium offer: In the RECORDER of last week we offered premiume in cash or its equivalent for subscribers to this paper. We propose to distribute $100 cash for every two hundred and fifty names that shall be sent in. We open our roll for the names of our workers who propose to compete for these prizes. Send in your names and get our commission as agent. Our traveling preachers do not need such commission; but all others must have one.

Premiume will be graded as follows: To the one procuring the highest number of the first 250 names, with the cash, a hunting case gold lever watch, worth $50, or $45 in gold. Lady or gentleman the eame.

2. To the one procuring the highest number we will give, if a gentleman, a "RECORDER premium" overcoat worth $25, or $20 gold. And, if a lady, we will give her a fine RECORDER premium" silk dress pattern, worth $25, or $20 gold.

3. To the next highest, or 3rd competitor, we will give $15. To the 4th competitor, $10, and to the last, $5. Total, $100. Note well: If two parties should succeed in getting precisely the same number, the award will be to the one first enrolled. Send on your names. Rev. Dr. Mitchell, of the Ohio Conference, will engage in the second effort for 250. He eays he'd like first-rate to begin now, but prior engagements prevent. He is intending, however, to have one premium ont of the first 500. I can see those fine $5 gold pieces in the palm of his hand now, for when he begine—well, wait.

OUR CENTENNIAL is a constantly growing movement. Never saw anything like it in our Church. The man who will take no part in celebrating this great occasion will get badly left. No use talking against it; it is one! Ohio Conference fairly boomed it; Cincinnati, Columbns, Springfield and Xenia, Chillicothe, Galipolis and Zanesville will be heard from. "And all the stars that round them beam." Hurrah!—No;—well, we're going to have a good time. God willing.

Pastors will please take notice that the new Revised Ritnal and Church Service is now ready for orders. Price, 45c., 4 inches wide), handy for the pocket. Soft elk finished linen cover. Bound in roan, flexible cover, 60c's. Finer ones in morocco, gilt, $1.00. Fifteen per cent off when ordering one dozen or more. Fifty or one hundred copies for church-ee, 20 per cent off. Send for a copy.

NORTH LOUISIANA ON THE TRANSFER SYSTEM.

BY REV. J. H. IFORD.

MR. EDITOR:—I desire space in your paper to express our sentiment on the above subject, as it is one of vital importance and seems to be a topic of general discussion. Some of the annual conferences in our connection have openly denounced the transfer system. If lawless ministers have been transferred from one conference to another in order to save them, the Bishop presiding over his conferences on examination of his moral, official and religious character, then and there obtaine a knowledge of the moral and religious standing of such ministers, and, hearing complaints against the three above named characters, and then transfers the accused to some other conference without investigating the charges brought against the accused, but simply transfers him, I hold that the Bishop is to be blamed more than the minister transferred. If a minister is transferred from a conference where charges are pending against him the Bishop that transfers him, to a great extent, makes himself party to the crime. Let, Because he throws the transfer cloak around him and thereby hides him from his charges and looses the reine of justice and says, he is in my hands and you can't touch him. 2. The law of the land says that he who conceals the thief is equally as bad as the thief. North Louisiana is not opposed to the transfer system nor to any of the established usages of the A. M. E. Church; but we are opposed to men coming to our conference September 20, 1887, recommendations from their conference. We believe that if a minister leaves his conference honorably that his conference should grant him a recommendation signed by the Bishop. We do not believe in the Bishop taking up men along the road and bringing them to North Louisiana without any proof of character. We need true and tried African Methodist preachers in North Louisiana, and, born of God and duely called to preach the gospel; men that can stand grubbing and that can forsake all for the cause of the Lord Jeene; men that are not afraid of poverty. North Louisiana is a hard mission field and none but the true and tried can stand to peck the rocks. There are but few soft places in our conference and we have enough faithful ones here to fill them. Some of the conference delegates are to be elected at the coming session of the annual conference. I would like to say that North Louisiana has never offered any one from its midst for general superintendency; therefore the question of electing an African Bishop has been frequently discnssed, and I believe one that should receive some attention. I have one man to offer from North Louisiana, a man as a whole would suit the office if elected and sent there by the Church. Some one might say, who is your man, and where did he come from? Well, his name is Rev. M. S. Monroe, one of long standing in the Louisiana Conference before it was divided; since the organization of the North Louisiana Conference has served as presiding elder, pastor and for many years a native of Alabama. Joined the Alabama Conference in '69, transferred to the Louisiana in '71 and has been a faithful worker ever since.

ADMINISTRATION VERSUS LEGISLATION.

BY REV. B. F. HURLEY.

DEAR EDITOR:—I desire, before offering a few thoughts on the subject illimated above, to extend to you my most hearty sympathy, for one cannot read the RECORDER without seeing, if there is a mortal on earth that needs the sympathy of anyone, that mortal is the editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. I had thonght the General Conference was to meet in 1888, but judging from the manner in which some of the leading (?) men of the A. M. E Church are monopolizing the columns of the RECORDER, it is now in session and most of her general agents are on trial for groes neglect of duty and dishonest conduct in general. I believe in free discnesion, but if this is to continue it will soon come to pass that instead of every man in the Church wanting to be Bishop, every man in it will want to get out in order to find honest associates. Money, money, money, is the cry. Too much money to this one and too much money to that one, and too much money to the other one. It is strange to me that a man never gets too much money in the A. M. E. Church till he gets to be a General Officer, a Bishop, a presiding elder, or gets a transfer, then the voice of weeping, lamentation and great mourning is heard; ministers weeping over the almighty dollar and refusing to be comforted because they can't get them all.

Legislate, legislate, legislate, is the cry. Now, I submit that if there was more respect paid to the legislation we now have in our local church work, the work of our Bishops and General Departments would be more successful and the whole Church would move on grandly; but there are so many that seem to think they were intended for something great in the Church, that they don't seem to have time to bother with these little things down here, where they are just waiting till their turn to go up, which, according to their opinion of themselves, should have come long since. I would say to this class of men, stoop low; they that humble themselves shall be exalted. There is a want of respect and confidence among the ministers for one another, and consequently a want of sympathy and accord; there is a want of connectional pride, and hence men don't hesitate to rush into print with their fault-finding and the character of the ministry is held up to public gaze. This is a violation of the general rules of our Church, and I now predict that it will be no better till we begin to administer the laws of the Church regulating the licensing of men to exhort, preach and the admission of men into the conferences. Here is the trouble. It begins in the quarterly conferences; we license the wrong men to exhort, and therefore the wrong man must be licensed to preach, and as a matter of course the wrong man get into the conference. We must come to the landmarks if we would have our Church work proper; begin in the quarterly conferences; start the right men there; men who love the Church of God in general and the A. M. E. Church in particular; men who work for Christ; men who are ready to suffer for Christ; men called of God to preach and save souls; men who will not regard a big collection the best proof of their success. Now, we need the Bishops, and the Church should engage in prayer for the Holy Spirit to fall upon her—the spirit of wisdom and understanding, and we will find ourselves fully able to do all that God would have us to do. Lord, what wouldet thou have us to do?" Let us come down on the "ground floor" and clean up, and when we get through go up into the general departments. The General Officers are doing grandly considering the circumstances. "Give us a reet."

FLORIDA NEWS.

BY J. T. MOORE.

We have just held our second quarter of this, the "Crescent City Mission," with the eighteen charges in the Jacksonville P. E. District, Rev. P. B. Braddock, presiding elder. We have three chnrches in this mission—Union Bethel, Crescent City; Mt. Moriah, Palatka; Pleasant Grove, Georgetown; and our efficient pastor, Rev. S. P. Pettis, will soon have another chnrch erected at Pomona, Fla. Our quarter conversed at Georgetown, August 6. The conference was called to order at seven o'clock. The call and service was conducted by the presiding elder. Rev. J. L. Moore was elected secretary. We have 129 full members, an increase of 6 since last quarter, and 13 more to be received into full membership. We have paid up all our assessements. We pay an assessment for local education for the Divinity school at Jacksonville quarterly; likewise our presiding elder assessment. We need to send our pastor to the ensuing annual conference with a report secoud to none. Almost every one in this mission regrets to see the close of this conference year, as it will take from our much beloved pastor, now in his fourth year. We feel that we cannot get along without him. With such a man as Rev. S. P. Pettie at the helm, African Methodism is compelled to be a success. Presiding elder P. B. Braddock is a Christian gentleman who merits all the honor of the position. We cannot do without the presiding elder system. I would like to know of the Rev. D. W. Gilliaice, of Lake City, Fla., if all the presiding elders he has met are such as he describes in his article to the Southern Recorder.

A memorial, signed by 200 members of the English House of Commone, is to be presented to the President and the Congress of the United States in person by a deputation of twelve members of the English Parliament. This document calls for a permanent system of arbitration for the settlement of all dispute between the two countries. The memorial is warmly approved by leading Enelish statesmen and by some of the financial papers. We are confident it will find a hearty response on this side of the Atlantic. Dr. R. H. Howard, of the American Peace Society, sends ont a circular calling attention to this very interesting Christian movement.

Church News.

Rev. G. G. W. Taylor speaks of building a new church at Jefferson Springs, Ark., which was dedicated lately by Rev. Edmond Brown.

Rev. M. A. Starks, Madison, Fla.: "Memorial services respecting Bishop Shorter were held Aug. 4th. Proper resolutions were passed. At the same place Presiding Elder Denham held quarterly meeting Aug. 4th. He preached a soul-stirring sermon. The stewards reported $170. The Sunday school reported $9.00. Our town is dry."

Rev. A. H. Bennett, Bucatunna, Miss., writes: "We have increased greatly since the last conference. After I have received eight more I will have my membership donbled. The Baptists and Methodiste have raised an independent school in my church, and I have been elected teacher. I desire the prayers of all, that success may attend us."

Mr. F. T. Bugge writes: "The Abeville, S. C., people have done well the present year. Rev. J. T. Baker is their pastor. He found them in very low condition. They have paid off all indebtedness but $1070. The revival brought in several good members. The Sunday school is in a healthy condition. The deughters of conference are rallying. Recently the people gave Elder Baker a good donation."

Rev. I. Buggs, Mioceenkie, Fla., writes: "I have just closed a protracted meeting, having had thirty-nine conversions. The outlook for Dollar Money is good. The Mouticello District is thriving. We have remodeled our church and completed the parsonage. Sister Pleasant C. Cook, a stewardess of Centenary Church, died recently, aged forty one years. She had been a faithful member nineteen years."

District Conferences.

August 24, 25, the Scuatobia Presiding Elder District Conference (Miss) sat, Presiding Elder, Rev. K. D. Brown. S. F. Bonaldson was made secretary. Rev. J. W. Walker presented for consideration the proposition for the buying a district high school. Brother Walker has built a nice church here, an edifice worth $1,000.

THE COLUMBIA DISTRICT AND SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION.

Presiding Elder S. H. Jefferson called this convention to order at Lexington, S. C. (no date given) All delegates answered to the roll call. Rev. W. D. Chappelle was elected secretary and Rev. J. H. Wade, assistant. Rev. E. Bowman was appointed reporter to the Columbia Register, Rev. D. S. Rice to the Lexington Dispatch, and Rev. J. N. Martin. The Lexington Church and people entertained the conference nicely. The reports showed great progress in the district. Among interesting papers were those by the following ladies from Columbia, Mrs. E. A. Pindle, Mrs. Effie Pickene and Miss H. L. Campbell. Brother J. H. Wade was elected district superintendent.

THE DISTRICT MEETING.

On the 29th, the presiding elder called the district conference to order. Rev. W. D. Chappelle was elected secretary and Brother J. H. Wade, assistant. Among other subjects that of edncat on was fully discussed. Good sermons were preached by Revs. D. S. Rice, R. E. Wal and A. J. Hunter. Presiding Elder Jefferson made a eulogistic address on the life of our late beloved Bishop. The brethren resolved to hold memorial meetings throughont the district. The next district conference and Sunday School Convention will sit at White Hall.

STNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTIONS.

The Macon (Ga.) District Sunday School Convention was a great succeee. It met in Louisville, Ga., July 28, and was presided over by Rev. Presiding Elder W. Newman.

The Sunday School Convention of the Second Presiding Elder District, New York Conference, eat in Jamaica, L. I., September 22d. The Bev. W. L. Hunter, presiding elder, presided; Dr. S. S. Kinney was elected secretary, Rev. H. Talbert, A. B., treasurer, and S. P. Shepard, reporter. A well arranged programme was carried ont with good effect.

The American Bible Society reports the whole circulation for the year ending Nov. 31 at 1,447 270 volumes, of which 521,356 were distributed in foreign lands.—Pnlpit Treasury.

CHINA'S PROGRESS.

It is impossible to estimate the importance—religious as well as commercial—of the final snrrender of Chinese conservatism to western soliciitation, in the matter of railroads and other internal improvements. For centuries the eighteen provinces of China, each under its viceroy, has acknowledged scarcely any coherinp tie—the very dialect spoken in the cities, even, being almost unintelligible beyond their limits. Over all the country has hung the black shadow of ancestral worehip; and the omnipresent coffin—not buried and arranged in cemeteries as with us, but dropped upon the soil wherever fung shui indicated—has efficinally protected against any invasion of the iron rail. But, all this isolation and superetition are to give way. During the late war between France and China, when Pekin was threatened, Li Hung Chang significantly reminded the authorities that, had they listened to his recommeudations and built railways, troops could he quickly transported from the southern provinces to defend the capital. The authorities are now converted to his view. China has a modern and very effective navy—mostly built in England. She has some splendidly equipped arsenals; she has the telegraph; she has ocean lines of steamshipe. All these, however, fall to affect the interior of the country. Nothing but the railroad can change that. But when the iron hands traverse the great empire, men the nation will awaken, as did India, and become coherent; the dialects will give place to a national form of epeech; fung shui will lose its terror, Christianity and civilization will have free conree, and the great nation will enter upon a line of development which will, sooner or later, lift her, as Gen. Gordon predicted, to supremacy in the East.—Zion's Herald.

A HOPE REALIZED.

To cnre the sick without the use of noxious drugs that often derange every portion of the human organism has been the problem for several generations of practitioners. This hope has found a realization in the use of Dre. Starkey and Palen's Compound Oxygen, which can be administered almost anywhere, and already has a place in more than thirty seven thousand families throughout this land. A valuable treatise on the subject, and the methods of home treatment, will be sent free to any one interested in the subject. Address Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

WE KNOW of one church that is trying to raise $1,000 for centennial offering.

IT IS HOPED that every conference sitting this fall is arranging to celebrate the centennial of local African Methodism in the charges represented.

DEMANDS for Centennial Envelops and Circulars are coming in quite fast. Evidently the people intend to enter into the celebration with an unusual vim.

PHILADELPHIA churches will aim to lead the connection in centennial results, but Boston, Providence, Cincinnati and Charleston will contest strongly for the mastery.

THE CHRISTIAN RECORDER would like to know why the Southern Recorder has not paid its respects here for the past four weeks. Our contemporary is always welcome; when not received, sadly missed.

AS MANY as five hundred envelopes have been sent to single churches. These churches mean that the centennial of local African Methodism shall impress children with thoughts not to be soon forgotten.

THERE ARE a good many former Ohio school teachers in Southern States —reason: Ohio can't allow colored teachers to instruct in a school attended in part by white children; in this she is even with Pennsylvania and South Carolina, older States.

ON FIFTH page we reprodnce the connectional hymn written by the Rev. B. T. Tanner, set to music by Rev. L. J. Coppin. Our churches and Sunday schools will find it a grand rallying song.

OBSERVE THAT IT IS COPYRIGHTED. The Manager is prepared to receive orders.

IN THE ambitious struggle for nomination for city commissioner in the democratic ranks of Philadelphia, one hero is said to have followed up another hero with a snapping revolver, the latter having used his influence against the former. No life was lost simply because no chamber of the revolver would respond to the click of the hammer. Are these noble citizens?

BETHEL CHURCH, Philadelphia, is well worthy the place of mother of churches in the African Methodist connection. She leads the whole connection in raising ednealsnal money, $310. Doubtless the members and pastor feel quite as well as those churches that raised nothing for Endowment Day or those who tossed off their little service in this direction in a merely perfunctory manner.

IF PROHIBITION were made absolutely effastive suddenly, the next great step for good men would be to prohibit the appetite for strong drink; for the eruption will reappsar somawhere, so long as the virus is shut up in the system. Frances Murphy's "God helping me" plan will really bring about prohibition much faster than the plans of our political prohibition friends, though properly pursued both will ultimately lead to success.

TANNER'S Outlines of the History of Afrisan Methodism is for sale at our Publishing House. This book gives in a nutshell prominent fasts in the history of the A. M. E. Chnrsh. Those who appreciate the marvslous, providential life that God has been pleased to give this branch of the great vine, will enrish their thoughts and refresh them for centennial addresses by reading this work. Price, $1; Life of Richard Allen and Tanner's Outlines together, $1.40.

GREAT MEN'S sons seem just now to attract the attention of politicians, not for their excellence so much as for their being sons of their great fathers. John A. Logan, Jr., has been made a member of the Grand Army; Rob't T. Lincoln has been threatened with uomination for President of the United States—Vice-President at least, though it may be remembered that he has refused uomination for the latter place—and Fred. D. Grant is the republican nominee for State Secretary of New York.

SOME New York ministers are complaining that foreign preachers are becoming popular in this country. Colored ministers cannot make this complaint, for foreign ministers do uot join them. Now and then one from the Americsn Islands, and more rarely one from Africa, who are so very few that continental Americsn preachers have not thought on the subject further than to give them a hearty welcome and a full communion; yet some among us proclaim the impossibility of harmonizing Americans connected with an African lineage.

HARMONY of general government is quite easy in our Church and should be required by the General Conference. There should be absolute harmony in construction of all laws by all Bishops of our Church. Another quadrenuium of counter-astion and counter-statements relative to the sducational law, the missionary law, the general financial law and the presiding elder law will depreciate the value of law in the A. M. E. Church almost beyond recovery. Certainly uothing is easier than such harmony. To have it is more important than the mush discussed subject of more Bishops.

THE OLD Anti-slavery Sociaty, still existing, still doing uoble deeds, last week, on motion of Mr. William Still, one of its time and service-honored members, voted $100 to Wilberforce University, $100 to Shorter College and different sums to other institutions. Mr. Still does not confine his charity to giving through such organizations, but makes personal donations to such causes. Wilberforce has received considerable recognition from him, as have other schools. The fact that in the midst of the business of the society he thought of Wilberforce merits the kindest consideration of our Church.

PROHIBITION is gaining grouud in the political field. Men have been trying many years to find a proper organizing ground for a third party in politics. They have tried the money basis—the Greenback Party—the Workingman's Party, the Mugwump and Independent annexes. A ysar ago it looked a little as if the workingman had found the plase for organizing the absorbing third party, but their cause seems to be waning and that of Prohibition rising. A large number of ministers have entered into the prohibition struggle with great devotion. Many think Dr. Leonard, of Ohio, may be nominated for President on the Prohibition tisket next year.

THE MONTGOMERY (Ala.) Dispatch indorses the Glenn bill with a sest worthy of the best of causes. Its argument is that of the slave powers fifty years ago. "The usgro is inferior; therefore he must remain inferior." "If he is not hampered he might get equal to us; therefore he must be hampered." "If God had designed that the two races should be one he would not have made two." Putting this with the actions of certain school distriots in Ohio, we may ask, "Whither are we drifting?" If the words and acts are to be construed intelligently they mean that the usgro may remain in this country if he will consent to asknowledge himself in every way inferior, promise to always remain inferior and keep the stamp of inferiority in some prominent position. We do not accept these terms; we shall, by Divine grace, resch the seme of Americans or miserably perish in the attempt to reach it.

THE LOSS of two churches in one conference, the New Jersey, one of whish is twenty-five or thirty years old, suggests the more carefnl soneideration of titles and a closer attention to mortgages, liens, etc. How the Newark church could have passed through all these years without its being known by its pastors, several of whom have been able men, that thousands of dollars were being paid on entailed property, seems strange to those who do not understand it. How these ministers could allow the people to waste their money, paying for property that could never be theirs, seeme even stranger. How the trustees, who are supposed to know all sbout the temporalities of the church, could overlook this fact which so seriously vitiated the people's claim, is strangest of all. If this had occurred in a conference without presiding elders it might be charged to that, but New Jersey had presiding elders for several years before it semmenced its present compromise supervision.

THE NEW YORK FREEMAN'S reference to the mixed school troubles is very suggestive. It is a natural question with us whether there is, after all, any distinction between Georgia and Ohio in respect to the white man's opinion of the rights, duties and standing of the black man. If States like Ohio, many of whose towns have educated colored and other children in the same buildings for years, have many other towns that prefer slosing to this co-education of the two classes; how these States must cease their abuse of the South. If the highest development of Christian civilization is going to halt right here and cease to be Christian, it is time these religions shams ceased the propagation of their hypocrisy in heathen lands. If the one stumbling-block—educating the masses in all involved in the term—is going to bring to an end all the gilded pretensions of American liberty, this civilization, with all its Christian modification, could well afford to give first place to the civilization of antiquity.

BECAUSE every denomination is educating colored ministers and some of those educated by nearly all denominations are finding their way to the African Methodist Church, we find some difficulty in settling beliefs and practises. While it is true that there is a certain ground necessary for liberty and transition essential to the very accomplishments attempted by shurch organizations, it is also trus that there must be given lines as rigid as the rocks.

In the African Methodist ministry are those whose early training has been Baptist, Presbytarian, Roman Catholic, Swedenborgian and Epissopalian. It is no wonder that we disagree on modes of worship, styles of sermon delivery and absolute dostrics greatly. It is no wonder that we are modifying our Church service almost continually. Taking all these facts into consideration, it is well that the General Conference ordered that certain farms should be sarried out when practisable. It will be well if we allow this liberty to remain. The rigid performance of the same services in all churches on all occasions of worship requires only a short time to sreate a reaction; men sek for relief, the failure to give which sauses church disruptions. We may stand long and question whether we are going to remain Methodists-Episcopal, or turn to Episcopal-Methodist.

LIFE OF RICHARD ALLEN.

More than fifty-five years ago this sketch was written by the Bishop himself. It is an interesting work, showing the grit and tendencies of one of the greatest men of the century. It shows the interest taken by Richard Allen in the suffering among others than his own people. It also shows, by personal letters addressed to him, what prominent contemporaneous men thought of Richard Allen. In these times of centennial preparations this book has suddenly sprung into demand. Send in your orders to the Manager. Price, 50 cents per copy, by mail.

TIME LIMITATION TO THE PASTORATE.

The fact that our legal limitation to the pastoral term has been disregarded three times in a single district in this quadrennium, and that the tendency in all large American Methodist bodies is great to ocessionally yield to the pressure of circumstances respecting this question, suggest that there should be definite sanctione affixed to this law, or it should be modified. It might be so modified as to grant a Bishop the privilege of meeting an emergency calling for time extensions on scouring the sanstion of a majority of his colleagues. It might be modified again to extend the city limitation to six years, for cities of four or more shurches.

OUR SCHOOLS DEPEND UPON US.

It is useless to undertake to keep up our schools without positive and regular aid by the Church. Our schools in Texas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida and Georgia cannot be supported by spasmodic and irregular action. It is nonsense to say at the same time that we are anxious for the success of these schools, that we are too poor to support them properly, and yet support personal domestic denominational extravagance. The African Methodist Episcopal Church is able to support all of its schools, but not, at the same time, to support unmerous indnlgences. It is only a question of time when, without more heart service, our schools will sink below the average colored schools. The speedy attachment of the great hoart of our connection to these schools would bring them up to the best standard, commend them to men of liberal minds and large purses and insure their success. We can very illy afford to have our Church schools and their teachers always dragging ont a beggarly life. The churches in the great territory in the midst of which these schools stand should protect them and expect others to assist; not expect others to protect while they assist. As we have said before, our wealthy men, i. e., men of ten thousand to fifty thousand dollars, must unbend to help bear the burdens of edneation by the Church.

—Rev. A. Wilson held quarterly meeting at Norristown last Sunday. He is making a successful year, as usual.

—A picture of the late Bishop Shorter will constitute the frontispiece of the forthcoming A. M. E. Quarterly Review.

—Rev. J. H. McCoy, of the Mt. Joy Circuit, Philadelphia Conference, has been at his home in Philadelphia several weeks sick.

—Mrs. Alice Dugged Cary, so we learn from a letter to Dr. Tanner, has lost a lovely sister by death. "One by one we cross the river."

—Prof. N. A. Banks, B. S., has resigned his position at Paul Quinn College and accepted a position on the teaching forces of Austin, Tex.

—The Xenia (O.) Gazette says Rev. O. P. Ross has sued the North Street A. M. E. Church, Springfield, O. That is a bad thing to do, Brother Ross.

—Rev. Dr. W. B. Derrick, of New York, will preach for Rev. L. J. Coppin, Sunday, 16th inst., the occasion of a general rally, to raise money to pay on the debt.

—The people of Norristown, Pa., remember very gratefully the visit from Bishop Ward in August. These out-of-the-way places are greatly blessed by visits from Bishops.

—Mrs. Fanny J. Coppin has been obliged to absent herself from her school-rooms several days recently, owing to ill health and sorrow from the loss of a highly beloved aunt.

—Mr. William Steward, of Bridgeton, N. J., formerly for several years connected with this office, has been in our city several days, acting in the interest of the Bridgetou Chrouicle.

—The Rev. P. A. Hubbard, of Omaha, runs conuter to the majority of those who give annual conference notices through the CHRISTIAN RECORDER; he says bring on your whole.

—The Rev. P. M. Lewis makes a good point on the Rev. Johnson's argument when he declares the preaching at 360 different places in twelve months rather a difficult feat for a Bishop.

—Miss Jessie Eva Clark, daughter of Mrs. Bishop Payne, was married October 5th, to Rev. J. H. Jones, B. D., a graduate of Wilberforce University and a resident of Orangeburg, S. C.

—The Rev. C. T. Shaffer read a remarkably thoughtful paper before the Philadelphia Preachers' Meeting, September 26th, on the subject of the relation of "Christianity and Physical Science."

—Bishop Turner opens the West Kentucky Conference in Owensboro this week; Bishop Campbell, the Pittsburgh Conference at Parkersburgh, W. Va., and Bishop Brown is holding the South Kansas Conference at Emporia.

—It will be observed that Bishop Disney has forwarded his conference calendar to the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The times of conferences of the Tenth Dsstrict now appear in regular order in the Church organ with dates for conferences of other districts.

Literature.

"Gathered Jewels" is a new Sunday day school song book, by W. W. Whitney, Toledo, Ohio. Its chief commendation is that it excludes all chaffy and secular songs. Added to this is a class of new songs and tunes destined to become popnlar. A number of our most popnlar standard hymns and tunes have been selected. The book contains 102 pages. Price, per hundred, $30; single copies, 35 cents. One sample post paid, 25 cents. W. W Whitney, 111 Summit, St., Toledo, Ohio.

The October Century, with a picture of Harriet Beecher Stowe as frontispiece, is commended to our readers as peculiarly interesting, containing Mr James Lorer's "Mrs. Stowe's Uncle Tom at Home in Kentucky," the "American Game of Foolball," by Professor Johnston, of Princeton; Mr. Stedham's criticism on "British Song;" excellent stories, beautiful poems, and striking illustrations. The Lincoln History, in this number, narrates the early movements towards secession as existing in Congress. The war series considers, in an entertaining way, "The March to the Sea."

The frontispiece of the September Cosmopolitan is a fine engraving of Summer and Longfellow. The life of Sumner is beautifully portrayed by the pen of Arnold Burgese Johnson. The story of Kasper Hauser is told in an interesting style by William Westall, under the title "New Light on an Old Mystery." Harriet Prescott Spofford contributes on aesthetic story, entitled "Uncle Mason's Money." "Shall Americans have Ambassadors?" by Moncure D. Conway is a timely apt question. The Cosmopolitan may be set down by our readers as well worth their attention and money. $2 00 per year, 20 cents a copy. Schlet & Field Co., 29 Park Row, New York.

There is scarcely a better magazine for young people than the St. Nicholas Our people must pay more attention to such magazines than they are doing. The instruction gained from St Nicholas in a year is of as much worth to a child of from twelve to eighteen years as his school lessons. The history, biography, natural science, civil science, social science learned are strongly and effectively illustrated. The best talent of our time is engaged to make the magazine successful. The October St. Nicholas ends the current volume. The present story is entitled "An Ivy Spray." Mr. George J. Munson writes an especially entertaining sketch of "John Greenleaf Whittier."

"A Man by the Name of John," the popular serial now running in Cassell's Family Magazine, opens the October nnmber and is followed by a curious paper on "Some Strange Antipathies." Prof. J. Stuart Blackie contributes the second of his thoughtful papers, "A Man's Thoughts About Women." A paper full of curious information is the one on "Locomotives on the Line." The timely subject of "Climate and Clothing," is discussed by the Family Doctor. One of the prise papers on "The Improvement of Domestic Service in America," is printed from the practical pen of Grace Weld Boyer. This is followed by "The Gatherers," which has a full record of the more important inventious and discoveries of the past month.—Cassell & Co., New York, 15 cents a nnmber, $1.50 a year in advance

The coming October Harper's will be enriched with a beautiful series of drawings from E. A. Abbey, C. S. Reinhart, A. B Frost, Harry Fenn, W. H. Gibson, Howard Pyle, and Dn Maurier; beside copies of paintings by John S. Sargent, in an article upon him. The authors represented form a brilliant group, including Henry James, Kate Field, E. C. Stedman Constance Fenimore Woolson, Blanche Willis Howard, Rebecca Harding Davis, Amelie Rives, W. D. Howells Kathleen O'Meara, George William Curtis, Charles Dudley Warner, Bishop Hurst, and others. The comical trials of pleasure-hunting are capitally told by Kate Field in an autobiographical story, called "Our Summer's Outing." The poetry consists of three small gems, namely, "Aaron Burr's Wooing," by Edmnud Clarence Stedman, illustrated by Howard Pyle; "A Mood," by Amelie Rives; "To a most Comely Lady," by Louise Imogen Guiney.

"The Children's Harvest Festival," a poem by Rev. Fred'k Langbridge, opens the Quiver for October, and is honored with the frontisplece by way of illustration. Following this we have a thoughtful paper on "The Growth of a Character," by Dean Chadwick, of Armagh. Other theological articles are "Peace, Through Sufferings and Conflict," by the Rev. A. Boyd Carpenter. Then there are articles of a religious nature, not altogether theological, but especially chosen for Sunday reading, such as "The Voice of Antumn in Christian Ears," "Reminiscences of Departed Members of the New Testament Revision Company," "John Goesner's Work for Christ," and "The Sages of All Ages." For every day read ng the section of the nnmber, both serial and short stories, will be found very entertaining. "By the Walls of Babylon" is continued and a new one "The Time of Harvest," by Mrs. Emma Hornitrook, author of "Marvelons in our Eyes" is begun. Then there is poetry, the usual Scripture reading and a bunch of very pointed "Short Arrows."—Cassell & Co., 15 cents a number, $1 50 a year in advance.

Scribner's Magazine for October has for its leading article a richly illustrated description of "The Paris School of Fine Arts," by Henry O. Avery, who is a graduate of that institution, and therefore writes from abnndant knowledge and with true appreciation. The article opens with a brief sketch of the fonnding and growth of the school, describes the architectural beauties of the buildings, and gives an interesting insight into the methods of instruction, and the system of prizes which creates such intense competition among the one thousand students. The illustrations were made from the handsome photographs of the buildings, which are exclusively made by the French Government. The very popular serial, "Seth's Brother's Wife," will be concluded in November. Prof. N. S. Shaler contributes another of the notable papers in his series relating to the surface of the earth and allied topics, this time on "Caverns and Cavern Life." The poetry in this number includes a delicate tribute to Thackery by H. C Bunner, entitled "On Reading Certain Published Letters of W. M. T.," a sonnet called "Freedom," by Elyot Weld; and poems by Graham R. Tomson and Charles Edwin Markham.

AN EXCEPTION TAKEN.

MR EDITOR:—While sojourning in Burlington, N. J., during the summer, we had occasion to visit the A. M. E Zion Wesley Church and listen to D. F. Bradley, of Camden Station, preach. On account of our late arrival at the church we failed to hear the text read by the reverend gentleman, but his theme was "Christian armor," chosen from the book of Psalms. We must acknowledge that his subject was well handled; hut, like many other of our pulpit orators, we fear he made one grand mistake, especially when he said that the local preachers were generally at the head of all great disturbances that are created in our churches at large. We are compelled to differ from the gentleman in this statement. Brother Bradley must have forgotten for the moment that he himself was once a local preacher, or he must have been one of the class of disturbers and was judging others by himself. If so, we are glad to know the beloved brother has repented of his sins and is now warning his brother locals to repent.

The statement being so generis, we could not refrain from answering. No exception was made. It is hoped that the next time Rev. Bradley has an opportunity to speak before his superior officer, Bishop J. B. Moore, he will be able to control his thoughts all through his discourse, and not become excited and say things that have no reason.

Written in behalf of the local preachers.

A PRESIDING ELDER'S REPORT.

BY REV. J. HEIGHT BEAN.

MR. EDITOR:—We have completed our second round as the presiding elder of the Seventh District of the New Jersey Annual Conference and we are pleased to report as follows:

Atlantic City has a fine church known by the name of "St. James," built by ex-Presiding Elder James. T. Rex, who did a grand work and doubtless underwent much self-abusgation. It now has for its pastor that excellent young man, Rev. P. F. Matthews, who is a great worker and a disciplinarian and scholar. St. James, at Atlantic City, is in a very healthy condition.

Millville Circuit, having for its pastor that accentric gentleman, Rev. W. A. Merrill, who with his dear people are busy preparing for the accommodation of the New Jersey Conference next spring. Merrill is a fine preacher, and by experience will develop into a strong man in the ministry of Christ.

Haleyville Circuit, under the pastorate of licentiate Alexander Wayman Pierce, is in a fair condition and constantly improving. He is a young man of promise; he is willing and obedient, hence a Christian.

J. Height Bean, the iron-clad, who is always selected for broken-down charges, is the pastor of the A. M. E. society at Cape May, who lost their property last year. Their pastor then was Rev. R. H. Coleman. Bean is driving away there, leased the Banaker, paid for it up to next spring, and has organized a building fund and opened a bank account. The state of the society is as good as can be in all the departments (Deo gratias).

FROM CINCINNATI, OHIO, TO WACO, TEXAS.

BY JOSEPH L. LEWIS.

Leaving Cincinnati via. the O & M. Railway at 8 o'clock P. M., and being tired from the day's excitement, you involuntarily comt sleep before you are really out of the limits of the "Queen City of the West." It requires about an hour and a half to get really asleep; your first night on the road, and just absent that time you are informed by the porter of the train, who, without donht, possesses a good, healthy pair of lungs, that you are at "North Vernon, change cars for Louisville." The door slams and out he goes, leaving you to answer a dozen questions of some old lady who digs you in the back and asks you with each pnnch what the porter said. You doze again, perhaps sleep, but you are kept continually acquainted with the location of the train. As it is night when the "Hoosier State" is crossed, you see none of it, though you can name the stations passed. When day dawns you are half way across Illinois, among the coal mines, which serve as subjects for conversation until East St. Louis is reached.

East St. Louis, situated on the east bank of the muddy Mississippi, seems alive with business. In a few moments you find yourself traveling over a bridge at least twice as long as our suspension bridge which spans the Mississippi, and St. Louis proper is entered by means of a long tunuel. We are now just ten hours from Cincinnati, having crossed Indiana, Illinois and the father of American waters. Having about two hours to remain in St. Louis, you have time to find a restaurant, where meals are served for fifteen and twenty-five cents, while at the depot they cost about seventy-five cents. After visiting the Court House and viewing the levee, I wandered to the depot, which is a large brick structure with every accommodation. A hall runs from the main entrance to the train department, where there is a large arch. On either side of this arch are several tracks, upon which trains make their entrance and exit: those going eastwardly leaving on the east side of the arch, those westwardly bound leaving on the west side About every five minutes there is a departing train, so it is an easy matter to get left.

We pulled out of St. Louis at 9 o'clock, and just as we got under way we pushed an object off the track very suddenly, which, judging from the splinters, straps of leather and horse flesh flying around, must have been a horse and buggy. The occupant of the vehicle was carried to a neighboring house and once again we rattled over prairie, then through ents of solid rock to Jefferson City, the capital of Missouri. It is dinner time; you have twenty minutes to indulge in the delicacies of the season, and seventy-five cents to pay for it. Fortunately I had a lunch with me, so directed my steps to a place favorable for viewing the penitentiary, which is certainly a fine building, much larger than that which Ohio contains. Time being up, I hurried to the train and was soon riding through corn-field after corn-field until Sedalia is reached. One hour at this place gave me time to see the A. M. E. Church; a small frame building, the post office, a very pretty edifice situated in the centre of a square and surrounded on either side by a beautiful lawn. I next passed by their national banks to the restaurant where I ordered my supper. I had no sooner sat down at one of the lunch tables when I was immediately informed that I must eat at the lunch counter. Having spent most of my time in looking for the colored school building, talking to an old gentleman about the other churches, visiting the post office, etc, I had no time to inquire why I could not eat in the dining room, but picked up my aggravating bundles and marched to the lunch counter. By the time I had finished my slim meal the train was ready for Waco without change. Slept rather soundly that night, being awakened only at Parsons, Kas., by the porter. About a quarter after four in the morning we had arrived at Vinita, Indian Territory, and from that time on I looked as far as the eye could reach at a level tract of country upon which numerous cows and horses grazed. No fences are allowed and the owners of stock designate their cattle or horses all over them, but generally on the off hind thigh of the horse. You see few Indians, but several men on spirited horses, their saddles having pockets on each side for pistols; a belt around their waists filled with cartridges and revolvers, each man wearing a large white felt hat. The above is the outfit of a cowboy. Breskinated at Eufaula, Indian Territory, where meals sell at seventy-five cents and the train stops long enough to eat a dime's worth. The ride through Indian Territory is delightful. The country is generally level along the line of the railroad, though we passed through and along side of a hill of solid rock about four hundred feet in height and fully three miles loug. This mass of rock should certainly be considered one of the seven wonders of the world.

We arrived at Denison, Texas, at 2 o'clock, but had so much trouble getting dinner that I could see none of the town. I ate in the kitchen of the bon ton restaurant, while my companious on the train ate in the dining-room. The floor of the kitchen was being scrubbed at the time, and I actually had to hold my feet from the floor to avoid being well sprinkled by the hose. By supper time we had reached Fort Worth, where I had the pleasure of eating at the table with other passengers. Knowing that the next city of importance was at the end of my eventful journey, though it was but half past eight and I had four hours' ride, I was afraid to go to sleep lest I be married and have your wife as assistant, and that you are a decided Baptist or Methodist. The climate is no warmer than that of Cincinnati, only the warm season lasts longer. As long as three months often elapse before a rain comes, and as there is little or no rain water, wells are sunk. The water from the Brazos river is not fit to drink, but is used in case of fire. The water, to those unacquainted, is all right. The street cars are of all shapes and sizes. One line of carpenter's saw, the mason's trowel and, in fact, all the implements of trade are constantly in motion. No stone can be found nearer than Austin, and as no frame structures are allowed within the fire limit, all the buildings in the business portion of the city are brick. The school houses of the whites seem palaces of the rich, making a much grander show than even Hughes. There are one thousand nine hundred and forty-one pupils attending school, of which six hundred and fifty-two are colored. The country schools pay much better than the city schools. If the teacher holds a first-class certificate he draws from $60 to $75 per month, whether male or female. There are three colored schools and Paul Quinn College. The imposing college edifice makes a grand appearance and is surrounded by acres of ground at present covered with cotton. A first grade certificate for country or city shows that the owner has made a general average of 75 per cent and has been examined in the following studies, falling below 50 in none: Physical geography, descriptive geography, written arithmetic, mental arithmetic, theory and practice, United States history, algebra, geometry, physics, grammar, spelling, reading, writing, Texas history and physiology. In physics, geometry, physiology and algebra the work is elementary. In reading and spelling many questions are asked and diacritical marks expected. Both are difficult. In writing the elements and principles must be known, the methods of teaching, etc. Land a mile from town sells for from $15 to $25 per acre. Eight years ago $50 would buy five acres of ground near Austin street, the principal street of Waco. For $500 you can buy at present a lot and put up a house which would double its cost in ten years. Board in the city amounts to about $14 a month, while in the country one can get board from $8 to $10 per month. Most of the colored people own their homes and also conveyances in which they ride. Riding horses sell from $15 to $50. Barber shops charge 15 cents for a shave and 25 cents for a hair cut every time. The Missouri Pacific and the Texas & Pacific Railroads keep business lively. Everything is in a hurry; hacks, express wagons, street cars and money are going fast all the time. If you wish to teach in the country schools of Texas it is almost absolute necessity that you be married and have your wife as assistant, and that you are a decided Baptist or Methodist. The climate is no warmer than that of Cincinnati, only the warm season lasts longer. As long as three months often elapse before a rain comes, and as there is little or no rain water, wells are sunk. The water from the Brazos river is not fit to drink, but is used in case of fire. The water, to those unacquainted, is all right. The street cars are of all shapes and sizes. One line of cars has very limited sitting room, having only three seats, and look much like hat boxes rolling up the street.

I guess by this time you are as tired of reading as I am of writing, so what remains to be told must be left until next time. I forgot, however, to say that the soil is sandy and pavements are laid without the spreading of sand as is customary in the North. There is not much dust and after a rain no mud. I drove a buggy across the Brazos river and when I drove up the bank on the opposite side not a spot of mud could be seen on horse or buggy, and by fording the river forty cents was saved.

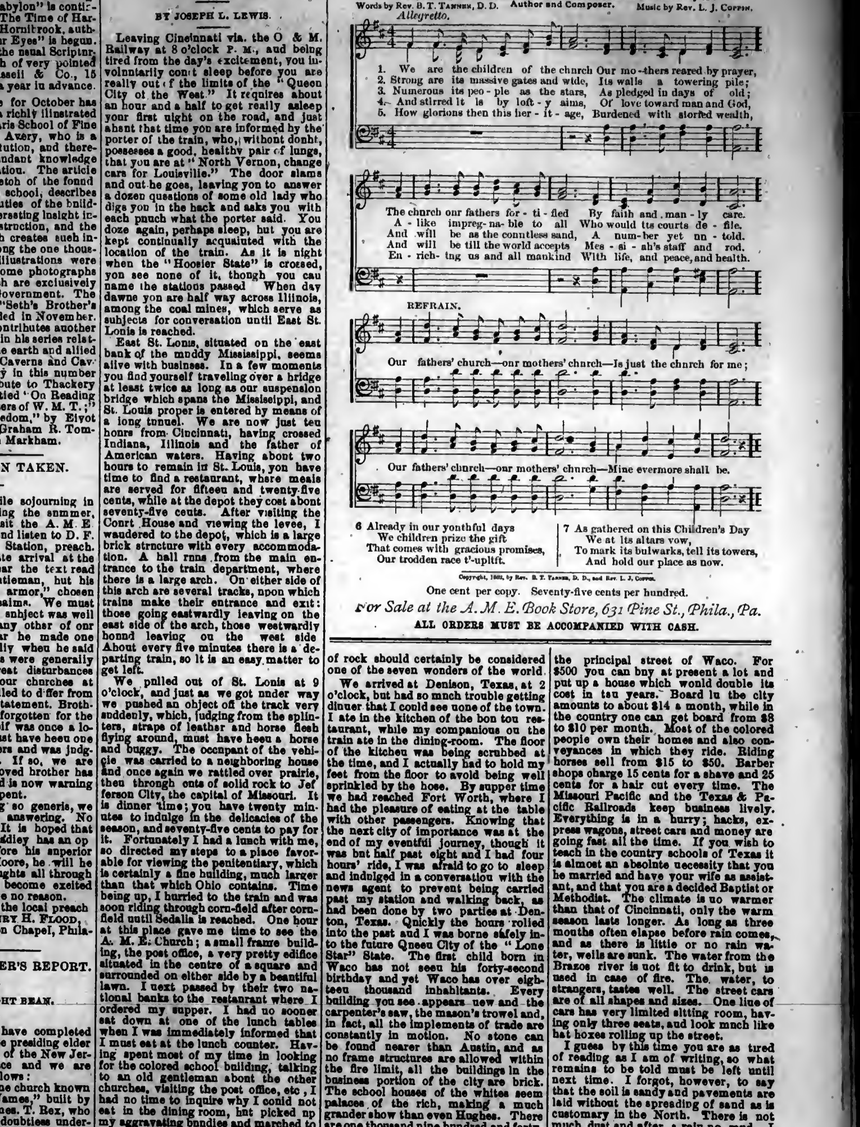
Allegretto.



6 Already in our youthful days
We children prize the gift
That comes with gracious promises,
Our trodden race t'uplift.

7 As gathered on this Children's Day
We stir its altars vow,
To mark its bulwarks, tell its towers,
And hold our place as now.

DR. E. I. H. BARRY, Jerseyville, Ill., says: "I used it in a case of sleeplessness, and it acted like a charm."

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHUCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the anhjectmatter of ourcular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the daye of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led hee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "ont of which grew the African M. E. Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absaiom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat."

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the abolitions of the Haitians, under Toulasaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toulasaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E. Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conference, and in Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, B. R. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that services be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all our churches, from which she is to be collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J. P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes.

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

SPECIAL
STRAWBRIDGE & CLOTHIER

THE EXTRAORDINARY ATTRACTIONS OF THE CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION, and the great public interest centered therein, have caused us, for a time, to postpone inviting conspicuous attention to the unparalleled attractions we have to offer the present season.

For the first time since the occupancy of our new buildings we are able to say that we are fully prepared for the transaction of the Dry Goods business in a manner satisfactory to ourselves. Opening our new store addition late in the Spring, we are, naturally, not able to perfect our arrangements the first season.

During the entire Summer we have been in a state of preparation, with an army of workmen busily engaged day and night in thoroughly renovating our old store premises, so that in convenience for customers and in facilities for the transaction of business they will fully correspond with the new additional buildings, which have also been perfected. This work of preparation and of finishing is at last accomplished, and we are able to open

THE AUTUMN OF 1887

Equipped for business in a way that we have never before. With more space devoted to the sale of Dry Goods than any other American house—more than double the number of square feet heretofore occupied by us with the same goods—we shall hope the crowding of former seasons will be avoided, and that our great army of patrons will be most comfortably served at all times.

With the large additional space and vast increase of facilities for the transaction of business we have extended our lines in every direction, and during many months back we have made preparations for this season far exceeding all that we have ever attempted in the past.

We now invite the public to view our arrangements, and, in particular, to inspect the great array of FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC STUFFS, which from this day forward will be displayed on our counters, confident as we are in the belief that no American house can hope to exceed them.

PHENOMENAL SUCCESS!!

Has attended the introduction of Dr. Scott's Genuine Electric Appliances in the United States. Year after year their popularity grew with unprecedented rapidity, until to-day their merit and reputation are known throughout the whole civilized world. These are simple and agreeable remedies, supremely efficacious, durable and convenient. They do not injure, blister or disfigure, and can be worn with good effect and intense satisfaction by the most feeble as by the robust.

THEY REMEDY AS WELL AS CURE. For this reason they should be worn by all.

The mind becomes active, the nerves and sluggish circulation are stimulated, and all the old-time health and good feeling restored. They are constructed on true scientific principles, imparting an exhilarating, healthgiving current to the whole system. Testimonials assert that there is hardly a disease which Electricity or Magnetism may not relieve or cure, and they daily practice the same, as your own physician will inform you.

Here are a few of the Testimonials which the Mail brings us every day:

Their gals cured me of rheumatism, liver and kidney troubles, and other minor troubles for twelve years. Dr. Scott's Electric belt entirely cured me after all other remedies had failed. Eli Electric Hair Brush has cured my neuralgia.

C. W. HONNEU,
Baltimore, Md.

Intense nervous debility has been my trouble for years. Physicians and their medicine did not help me. I finally derived great relief from Dr. Scott's Electric Belt. ELI MILLER,
East Berlin, Pa.

Your Belt has cured me of Insomnia and Nervousness, and has also had wonderful effect on Neuralgia affection of the chest.

J. BELL,
Brookin, Me.

DR. SCOTT: The corsets I have worn splendidly, and have given satisfaction every way. They are the best Corset I ever had. I am satisfied from their electric qualities, which are truly marvellous, I effectually removed pain in my back and limbs, but your Electric Corsets have entirely cured me. They are better than represented.

MRS. J. B. BABSON,
Streator, Ill.

Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets are beautiful in form appearance, wonderful in effect, and elegant in fit and finish.

Mrs. M. J. BRIGGS,
Chambersburg, Pa.

I found Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets possessed miraculous power in stimulating and invigorating my enfeebled body, and the Electric Belt had a magic effect on my scalp.

MRS. J. A. SNYDER,
Fancy Goods Dealer,
Newark, N. Y.

Dr. Scott's Electric Corset gave entire relief in case of Muscular Rheumatism. It has also cured a severe case of Headache and female troubles of delicate and sensitive nature.

MRS. L. C. SPENCER,

The following words, in praise of DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION as a remedy for those delicate diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, must be of interest to every sufferer from such maladies. They are fair samples of the spontaneous expressions with which thousands give utterance to their sense of gratitude for the inestimable boon of health which has been restored to them by the use of this world-famed medicine.

$100 THROWN AWAY.

JOHN E. SHAAR, of Millenbeck, Va., writes: "My wife had been suffering for two or three years with female weakness, and after using out one hundred dollars by physicians without relief. She took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did her more good than all the medicine given to her by the physicians during the three years they had been practicing upon her."

THREW AWAY HER SUPPORTER.

SOPHIA F. BOSWELL, White's Cottage, O., writes: "I took eleven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of your 'Pellets.' I am doing my work, and have been for some time. I have had to employ help for about sixteen years, and have not consumed taking your medicine. I have had to wear a supporter most of the time; this I have laid aside, and feel as well as I ever did."

THE GREATEST EARTHLY BOON.

GEORGE HENGES, of Westfield, N. Y., writes: "I was a great sufferer from leucorrhœa, bearing-down pains, and pain over the kidneys. Doctored with almost every remedy. Three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' restored me to perfect health. I treated with Dr. ——— for nine months, without receiving any benefit. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

IT WORKS WONDERS.

MRS. MAY GLEASON, of Nunica, Ottawa Co., Mich., writes: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' has worked wonders in my case."

Again she writes: "Having taken several bottles of Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' I have regained my health wonderfully, to the astonishment of myself and friends. I am now to us my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household.

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion, or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or over-busy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, remaining in the dark to such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some pained condition, not better, but producing the suffering like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause of these distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

3 PHYSICIANS FAILED.

MRS. E. F. MORGAN, of No. 7 Lexington St., East Boston, Mass., says: "Five years ago I was a dreadful sufferer from uterine troubles. Having exhausted the skill of three physicians, I was completely discouraged, and so grew weak I could walk with difficulty across the room. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and using the local treatment recommended in his 'Common Sense Medical Adviser.' I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured, and have had no trouble since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them, and endorsing a large number of testimonials for reply. I have received over four hundred letters in reply. I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to 'do likewise.' From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, had sent for the $1.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment as fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

JEALOUS DOCTORS.

A MARYLAND LADY.—MRS. G. F. SPRAGUE, of Crystal, Md., writes: "I was troubled with female weakness, leucorrhœa and falling of the womb for seven years, so I had to keep my bed most of the time. I was weak and could not walk across the room. I doctored with an army of different physicians, and spent large sums of money, but received no benefit. At last my husband persuaded me to try your medicines, which I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I finally told my husband that if he would get me some of your medicines, I would try them against the advice of my physician. He got me six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of the 'Discovery,' for ten dollars, took them home. I used the 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been a sound woman for four years. It has given me the balance of the medicine to my sister, who was troubled in the same way, and received benefit in a short time. I have not had to take any medicine now for almost four years."

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in adapting and thoroughly testing remedial agents for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies. No other specific for "woman's ills" is the outgrowth, or result, of so large and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful remedy ever devised for the relief and cure of suffering women, and is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the uterus, or womb and its appendages, in particular. For overworked, worried, hard-working, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequalled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. It promotes digestion and assimilation of food, cures nausea, weakness of stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, and kindred conditions.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous prostration, hysteria, spasms, and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. For a book of 168 pages, profusely illustrated, on the above subject, and fatherly counsel to suffering women, send 10 cents in st

OUR NEW DEED.

We again call the attention of the pastors and presiding elders to the form of Warranty Deed we have prepared and published for general use in the purchase of church properties. The form is simple, and plain as plain can be, yet it is believed to cover every point in the law. It was drawn by an old experienced attorney, with our Discipline before him. Price, 25 cents per copy, or 5 for $1.00.

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E. Church and African M. E. Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15-17, 1885.

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in May, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date Well Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

NOTICE.

I should be informed at once how many candidates presiding elders will bring to the North Louisiana Conference and how many General Officers and visiting ministers will attend. Preachers will provide for their wives as well as for their horses.

Be Sure

To ask for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, if you are in need of a Blood-purifier — the only certain and reliable remedy for pimples, blotches, and all other eruptions of the skin. As an alterative,

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

after a trial of nearly half a century, is universally conceded to be the best ever discovered. It is agreeable to the taste, and, being highly concentrated, only small doses are needed.

An old lady of eighty, Mrs. Mary C. Ames, of Rockport, Me., after forty years of suffering from a humor in the blood, manifesting itself in Erysipelas and other distressing eruptions on the skin, at last began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking ten bottles, she is now, she says, "as smooth and fair as ever."

Frank Jones, 952 Eighth ave., New York, writes: "I suffered from impurity of the blood, which showed itself in troublesome eruptions and mattery pimples on my face, neck, etc. Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. I had previously tried many reputed blood-purifiers without benefit."

MORE BISHOPS.

BY REV. JAMES H. A. JOHNSON, D.D.

XIII.

THE NECESSITY OF HAVING BISHOPS ON EXTRA OCCASIONS.

Every preacher knows the merit of the subject now under consideration. It is one of the most important links forming the argument that the welfare and accelerated progress of the A. M. E. Church, in the future, depend upon the wisdom to be displayed in the next General Conference in establishing an episcopal board that shall embrace, in all respects, an adequate amount of numerical strength. He who will bend his own stubborn notions to the Divine Power guiding the writer's hand and thoughts, will be able to see and will concede the force of this to the full extent. The bearing of this subject upon the case can not be gainsaid by any one who is disposed to bow to reason.

The success of extra religious projects often depend upon the presence of a Bishop, and even often needed on such occasions. Whenever a corner-stone is to be laid, although elders can do it as well as a Bishop, it is far better and far more profitable to have the presence of a Bishop, that he may carry on services and more impressively represent the character of the connection. The Catholics make a great display on such occasions and have their big men because they know that it is an auspicious time for the future good of the denomination. They know that by flourishing trumpets and commanding episcopal aid, they can advance the interests of the Church. One Bishop at the laying of a separate corner stone can make a greater impression than any other official in the order of the clergy. Hence, it would be well in the A. M. E. Church to have it so that whenever a corner-stone was to be laid for an edifice, great or small, a Bishop could be present to perform the ceremonies and say: "In the name of the Triune God, the Father, and Son and Holy Spirit, we lay this stone for a foundation of a house of worship to be consecrated to his service." Everything of this kind would make the connection more popular, and in every place in which such ceremony and it will, in the course of years, be seen that the benefits derived from this little source alone greatly outweigh the objections interposed by this limits who wrap up their talents in a napkin, tie up their pockets and obstruct the word of grace.

It does frequently happen that ministers are perplexed in making their arrangements for church dedications, because the number of Bishops is so very small that they can hardly catch one as he comes out of the woods. Sometimes the services have to be carried on without such a dignitary; and however able it is done, it is done necessarily to the detriment of the connection; for many will be disappointed by the absence of a Bishop. This is an occasion so memorable also to reflect should be the arrangement made for it. There should be no postponement or substitution because of the impossibility of securing the attendance of a Bishop.

The dedication of a church is a great event and whatever can be done to make it memorable ought to be done without any reservation. There should at all times be a sufficient number of Bishops to meet this demand, so that some one might go to any place and dedicate an edifice, no matter how humble might be its dimensions. In every instance the trustees, stewards and leaders should meet, receive and welcome a Bishop (O, for some ballad of the door to give Africa in God's name, the keys of the church as a token that they will forever "submit to the Discipline, doctrine and government of the African Methodist Episcopal Church and will forever after ward permit the ministers and preachers of said church to preach God's Holy Word in said edifice.

The effects of such a substantial, unfaltering arrangement would be observed in a growth of finances, an increase of members, an attraction of friends, a promotion of good government; an intensification of respect for the episcopal order and a higher conception of African Methodism. The most important period in the history of a church edifice is the time of its dedication. People of all classes look to it as a time to be remembered. They anticipate a grand programme and the attendance of shining lights in the clerical circle. At no time, then, should they experience disappointment. Every provision that can be made should be made to meet their anticipation on such an occasion. Being induced once more to allude to the Catholics, we find that Sunday, Sept. 11 of this year, they dedicated St. Ambrose Church at Cresaptown, Md. This edifice, although situated in a small town, became the subject for the attention not only of a Bishop, but of the Cardinal himself. He went there and preached the dedicatory sermon himself. In doing this, policy was manifest and profit the consequence. Similar causes produce like results. Evidently, then, when Protestantism is straining every nerve to check the dangerous progress of Catholicism, the A. M. E. Church should have a full force of its highest order of ministers to meet every demand on dedicatory occasions and to wield their counteracting influence. Whenever a call is made there should be a Bishop to go promptly, whether it should be to dedicate a grand temple in a metropolis or a little frame building down at T. B or near Hole-in-the-Wall. He should go and proclaim the power of his connection. His presence is needed.

And this is founded in the true concerning extraordinary appointments and arrangements for the purpose of liquidating church debts. People sometimes become very indifferent because of their heavy obligations and frequent efforts for extrication. The pastor then in his perplexity is compelled to make an uncommon exertion to arouse them to a sense of duty. He must go to work on a subscription list and plans for a big meeting; and then at the stated time he must have those who will be the most potential to assist him. Prominent men of his own class will be of great service to him; but none of such great service as one whom he could call a Prelate. Hence, he makes all his arrangements with the intent of having such an eminent official at his hand. And then when everything is completed he looks for one. Just as lustily as Richard cried out, "A horse! a horse! My kingdom for a horse!" so does he feel like crying out, "A Bishop! a Bishop! My pastorate for a Bishop!" He knows the advantage to be gained by such a prominent acquisition and how much is to be lost by attending failure. He is therefore worked up to the highest degree of anxiety and does his best to get a Bishop to assist him. The church needs such assistance. If, then, the connection would make ample provision to meet the wants of embarrassed charges, it should give a sufficient number of Bishops, settled in well established districts, to go in such emergencies and give their travelling expenses, if need be, and across the pockets make a gigantic effort for their own deliverance. By this means the whole connection would be made more prosperous. It would gain at least ten per cent of advance than it has experienced by "drones" made, circumscribed as it has been pursuing for lo! a great number of years. Many people disinclined to give would be incited to give by the mere appearance of a Bishop. "Somebody would arise and respond to the call of a pastor when otherwise they would remain indifferent. Is it not clear, then, that the "necessity of having Bishops on extra occasions" should lay serious stress, to dedicate churches, to add at special services for the liquidation of heavy debts—is a subject grave in its bearing upon the reason for a full election and well prescribed districts? If it can be truthfully said that a Bishop is of no more service than any other preacher on such occasions, then the argument comes to naught. But the contrary being true, unreservedly is it to be asserted that the majesty of his office now stands forth more efficacious on all such occasions than that of any ordinary son of thunder. Delegates, the voice of God regard.

CENTENNIAL REFLECTIONS.

No I.

BY REV. C. S SMITH.

THE MAN.

Not only is it the inalienable right of man to claim equality of creation and to be free, but to strive to possess the fullest opportunity for his perfect development. The history of mankind presents innumerable events of strange and surprising interest. The birth struggles of revolutions and reformations are in every instance invested with peculiar interest. In modern times, Washington, Tell, Kosenth, Garibaldi, Toussaint L'Ouverture, Lubber, Wesley and Allen are names that awaken memories of events which have almost become universal in their sweep, and which stand out in history like mile-stones in the path of freedom and progress.

According to the law of special calling, every successful leader is born with all the essential qualities of such. Behind every great movement there stands a single brain, a single heart and a single hand. Every important event that springs from the bosom of united forces finds its conception in the individual. The study of the individual, therefore, is as much a matter of interest as the influences he creates.

THE MAN.—Words of wonderful import in the history of religious independence among the colored people in the United States. His name, Richard Allen. What do we know of him? History tells us that he was born a slave in the State of Delaware, that while a young man his master allowed him to hire his time, and eventually to purchase his freedom. It is also well informed that from a child he evidenced the possession of strong religious convictions, which developed as he advanced in years. His first work in a public way was that of a leader of prayer-meetings, which he conducted while a slave on his master'e plantation. He next appears as a religious exhorter, pointing his fellow-slaves to that perfect liberty which is the heritage of the saints. The problem of human compulses is most difficult to interpret and some phases of it seem to be incomprehensible. Here is a man—a slave—discoursing to his fellow-slaves about spiritual liberty. Why not talk to them about bodily freedom? Why not seek to incite them to an attempt to throw off the tyrant's yoke? Why not heroically exclaim, "Give me liberty or give me death!" Instead of lyrically singing "You may have all the world, give me Jesus?" Why not the blind Kinsman to rise, and with knife and torch make havoc among their oppressors rather than echoing the theme (?) warrant of slavery, "Servants, obey your masters?" Why? The

"Divinity that shapes our ends,
Rough hew them as we may,"

had the destiny of this man in control. It was not for him to lead a "forlorn hope," and die unknown; but to pave the way for a glorious success, and cause his name to live forever.

In his position as the conductor of prayer-meetings and as an exhorter, he early manifested his inbred qualities of leadership. In his request of his master to allow him to hire his time, and in his subsequent request to permit him to purchase his freedom, he exhibited a spirit of independence that afterwards flowered out in a higher and wider sphere. Two strong and essential qualities he possessed—leadership and independence; inborn qualities that can be cultivated, but not acquired. They are nature's special gift to special persons for special purposes.

THE MAN in his physical aspects was naturally qualified for his mission He was a fair representative of the unmixed African type. Hence his qualities of leadership and independence cannot be credited to the predominance of "white blood" in his veins. He was in every respect one of the people whom he was destined to bless. There was no alien blood in him to prompt hesitancy and doubt, or to incline him to seek favor with his kind. Wherever and whenever he met a black form he recognized a kinsman to whom he was bound as with hooks of steel. There were mixed-bloods in the land in his day, and doubtless the same foolish and unreasonable prejudice that exists between some of both classes now, existed then.

THE MAN, however, was too sensible and farsighted to allow himself to be influenced by such a feeling. When the time was opportune for organizing his plans for the religious independence of his people, he chose a bright mulatto as his most trusted adviser. Allen and Cooker are historic names with us. Here is another fact that indicates providential design. The stream of religious independence that was to be started was to be sufficiently broad and deep to bear on its bosom Africa's exiled children of every shade and hue. Glorious Africa—the land that is yet to be the pride of all nations—may thy alien progeny never forget thee! Designing persons have attempted to breed and foster the colorline among us; but, following the example of the illustrious Allen, we have steadfastly refused to be thus deceived. I have briefly and imperfectly outlined the character of THE MAN whose name is our shibboleth, and around whose memory clusters our highest affections. He is our man in a special sense—the one brain, the one heart, the one hand that stands behind the historic movement for the religious independence of the colored people in the United States. Great in the possession of imbred qualities, great in activity, great in his devotion to a heaven-born cause—when the world's benefactors are summoned to universal view the name of Richard Allen will be called.

DISTRICT EPISCOPACY OR GENERAL SUPERINTENDENCY—WHICH?

BY T. G. STEWARD, D.D.

In showing the necessity for the election of eight more Bishops a laborious and painstaking writer has assumed the district system to be the best and that fourteen episcopal districts are necessary.

Without canvassing now the question of expediency, I would invite your readers to consider, first, the question of consistency. It is generally well known that certain restrictions placed in our book of Discipline represent a kind of compact between the Church and its members. It is distinctly understood that the rules and regulations may be amended from time to time by the General Conference and the member joining agrees to submit to these changes. But it is just as distinctly understood that inherent general principles shall not be done away with. This is the basis of the contract. Now, if the Church should do away with the itinerant general superintendency it would by that act vitiate the contract and consequently destroy it. Instead of loyally singing "You may have all the world, give me Jesus?" Why not bid the kindred in bonds to rise, and with knife and torch make havoc among their oppressors rather than echoing the theme (?) warrant of slavery, "Servants, obey your masters?" Why? The "Divinity that shapes our ends,

Rough hew them as we may,"

had the destiny of this man in control. It was not for him to lead a "forlorn hope," and die unknown; but to pave the way for a glorious success, and cause his name to live forever.

They are nature's special gift to special persons for special purposes.

THE MAN in his physical aspects was naturally qualified for his mission He was a fair representative of the unmixed African type. Hence his qualities of leadership and independence cannot be credited to the predominance of "white blood" in his veins. He was in every respect one of the people whom he was destined to bless. There was no alien blood in him to prompt hesitancy and doubt, or to incline him to seek favor with his kind. Wherever and whenever he met a black form he recognized a kinsman to whom he was bound as with hooks of steel. There were mixed-bloods in the land in his day, and doubtless the same foolish and unreasonable prejudice that exists between some of both classes now, existed then.

THE MAN, however, was too sensible and farsighted to allow himself to be influenced by such a feeling. When the time was opportune for organizing his plans for the religious independence of his people, he chose a bright mulatto as his most trusted adviser. Allen and Cooker are historic names with us. Here is another fact that indicates providential design. The stream of religious independence that was to be started was to be sufficiently broad and deep to bear on its bosom Africa's exiled children of every shade and hue. Glorious Africa—the land that is yet to be the pride of all nations—may thy alien progeny never forget thee! Designing persons have attempted to breed and foster the colorline among us; but, following the example of the illustrious Allen, we have steadfastly refused to be thus deceived. I have briefly and imperfectly outlined the character of THE MAN whose name is our shibboleth, and around whose memory clusters our highest affections. He is our man in a special sense—the one brain, the one heart, the one hand that stands behind the historic movement for the religious independence of the colored people in the United States. Great in the possession of imbred qualities, great in activity, great in his devotion to a heaven-born cause—when the world's benefactors are summoned to universal view the name of Richard Allen will be called.

DISTRICT EPISCOPACY OR GENERAL SUPERINTENDENCY—WHICH?

BY T. G. STEWARD, D.D.

In showing the necessity for the election of eight more Bishops a laborious and painstaking writer has assumed the district system to be the best and that fourteen episcopal districts are necessary.

Without canvassing now the question of expediency, I would invite your readers to consider, first, the question of consistency. It is generally well known that certain restrictions placed in our book of Discipline represent a kind of compact between the Church and its members. It is distinctly understood that the rules and regulations may be amended from time to time by the General Conference and the member joining agrees to submit to these changes. But it is just as distinctly understood that inherent general principles shall not be done away with. This is the basis of the contract. Now, if the Church should do away with the itinerant general superintendency it would by that act vitiate the contract and consequently destroy it. Instead of loyally singing

1. General Conference may make districts, but cannot make episcopal districts without encroaching upon the rights of the general superintendents whom it elects. If they are general superintendents, their right and duty is to superintend, not to be superintended.

2. Bishops may lay out their work as they please, in districts or otherwise, but their division of the work affects nobody else but themselves. The district lines made by them ought to have no weight in the General Conference.

"WHAT CAN I DO FOR JESUS?"

What can I do for Him who has shown such love to me?
How can I show that I feel His mercy full and free?
Fain would I give Him all my soul and its ransomed powers,
Life and its joyous hopes, Time and its fleeting hours.

I will give Him a loyal heart, beating only true to Him;
I will ask Him to make it white, and to keep it forever clean,
I know He will fill it with love—a deepening, widening sea,
Which shall utterly burst its bounds at His feet in eternity!

I will give the years of my life, if they many be or few,
And will seek each day of those years His face to know and do.
Like the flower that turns her face each morn to the rising sun,
So will I look to my Lord, to see what He would have done.

I will give Him my good right hand to be foremost in the fight,
To hold His colors aloft on the side of truth and right;
And, should He call me to prove my loyalty with my life,
He shall surely find me fallen in the thickest of the strife.

So will I cleave to Him—His only in life or death,
Blessing His glorious name with my last, long, earth-drawn breath:
Wing my way to Him when my soul has taken flight,
Loving Him, praising Him there without weariness day or night.

Miss Winifred Edgerton, of Bipon, Wis., was married in Old Trinity Church, New York, on Thursday, to Professor F. J. H. Merrill, of Columbia College. Miss Edgerton was the first woman graduate at Columbia College. While she was a student in Columbia, Professor Merrill was an instructor.

The Democratic papers in Virginia are urging the party managers to make a careful, extensive, and, if need be, exclusive effort to break the solid Republican colored vote in the State.

RICHARD ALLEN'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY AND THE OUTLINES OF AFRICAN METHODIST HISTORY TO ONE ORDER FOR $1.25.

THE EARLY FATHERS.

BY MRS. ALICE S FELTS.

Our fathers! Where are they? Echo answers, where are they? Now that we are thinking and speaking of the coming centennial of independent religious thought by the persons who composed the A. M. E. Church, we naturally call to mind the early fathers and would not hesitate to pay a tribute of respect to them; those of the Philadelphia and Baltimore Conferences being among the first and the herculean work they did, call for our highest admiration. A slight survey of the past will make one wonder at the amount of travel and the hardships they endured to visit promptly their class or prayer-meetings and to preach in school-house or barn if the nearest dwelling-house was too small for tha convenience of the neighbors who came together, for they had "meetings" in those days, and the men who directed them we of to-day call unlearned, yet the work organized and the force inspired was strong enough to bind and hold together the reading, cultured and Christian Church of the present time. The work of the early fathers seems to have been to gather up the outcast of our people and teach them the truth of the gospel, the fervency of the spirit, and to imbue them with freedom of religious thought and expression, so much so that we often call it a "fist and heel" religion, but the strength of the religion was as forcible in truth as in words. Those who spoke of being moved by the Holy Ghost did not walk or talk like a man who was called of God and sent by the Holy Ghost did not wait for parlor cars and cushioned carriages to cary him to his appointment, but with the spirit of Bishop Quinn, mounted "Dobbins" and was off, and meeting his congregation was not expected to give the grand hailing sign of distress to be admitted to his people's hearths and homes, for the people were often as glad to hear as he was to preach, and a dish of mush and milk was often eaten with a thankful heart. Their salary, too, was only what they could get, and often very small as Fathers Bailey, Richard Robinson, Shepard, Holcomb, and a good many others could have told and as many now living can tell.

And yet in their hardships what joyful reasons they must have had; what love-feast and shoutings with glad hallelujahs! I am reminded of Uncle Natty Murray's (of Springtown, the first church south of Camden, N. J.) expressions in love-feast need to, be "Talk, ye champions; it you don't talk I'll sing," and sing he would such anthems as "Let us sing unto the Lord; to the Lord God of Host; let us sing Jehovah's trimmphs, for his people are free," and in their meetings with the John Wesley idea of feeling of witness was the foundation of the Church laid. The prayers of those strong, hardy men are its pillars. Sanctification was early preached and practiced among them, most notably by Rev. Peter Gardner, who was as eccentric in his ideas and habits as Rev. Peter Cartright, of the M. E. Church. Education came also hand in hand with their religion, as many of them gathered the children together, both in day and Sunday school, teaching them the catechism and Scriptures. Rev. Joshua Woodlin in his day doing much work in teaching day school as well as preaching; even before him, I think, the Ohio Conference had purchased property for church and school, and in almost every locality was a school until a marked speech was made, when Bishop Quinn and Bishop Payne gave us our own Wilberforce, our first university. About this time, we may say, the flooring of our great church was laid on the pillars early formed, for then men began to read and write letters and they have reached the festooning and decorative department of the Church, in that of rearing fine and costly edifices or places of worship and many high schools and universities, wanting a large and commodious Publishing House, Official Rooms and furniture to match, with all old debts cleared away, and, as David in building the tabernacle, collected gold and silver with which to adorn our church buildings, making them fit for the Lord to dwell in. We would like to stop and look back again and say, all honor to these brave men who dared to do and stand for the right. Through all this great nation there has been none more heroic, more worthy of distinctive honors than those who have contributed to the growth and prosperity of the early A. M. E. Church.

EXTRACTS FROM MR. DOUGLASS' SPEECH.

Fifty years ago the great scientist, Dyonisius Lardner, proved by facts and figures to his own satisfaction, that no vessel could carry enough coal to propel her across the Atlantic, but the enormous amount to nothing against facts accomplished. The City of Rome consumes a ton of coal every five minutes during her voyages. She has 60 furnaces and a crew, including all hands, of 250 persons. To walk her decks is like walking a populous street; she is a small town, not on wheels, but on the waves. Our voyage to Liverpool was marked by two incidents in which you will be interested, since they illustrate the gradual wearing away of race prejudice There was on board the Rev. Henry Wayland, son of the great Dr Wayland, late president of Brown's University. Mr. Wayland had known me years ago and had been my friend in Rochester. He is one of God's freemen. Through him I was made known to many of the passengers, and this resulted in a strong invitation to address the passengers in the saloon, with which I complied. After this I was called upon by Capt. Monroe to move a vote of thanks in a brief speech to Lord Rochester, who had presided at a concert given in the grand saloon by some talented musicians. Thus my privacy was at an end, and I had much talking to do which I could not avoid. A striking contrast between the treatment I received during this voyage and that of 40 years ago, was as striking as it was gratifying. Then I could not obtain a first-class passage—even on a British steamship, and was compelled to go in the forward cabin. Now I found myself not only welcome in the first cabin, but treated by every body with special marks of interest and esteem. It is true that, although I belonged in the forward cabin 40 years ago, I made many friends during that voyage as I was then, as on the late voyage, invited to deliver an address on the saloon deck of the Cambria, but I did not comply till invited to do so by the captain. There were several white-holders on board and a number of dough faces from the North. I had hardly been speaking ten minutes when one of the wildest, bitterest and most devilish rows occurred that I ever saw. It was only put down by the captain calling upon the boatswain to bring up the irons and threatening to put any one in irons who dared disturb me. A most unfair account of this outbreak of pro-slavery violence has gone into the history of the Cunard line, denouncing me as the cause of the disturbance on the same principle that the slaves used to be denounced as the cause of the war. The fact is, slaveholders at that time were dictators on sea and land, and the Cunard line, although flying the British flag, found it for their interest to yield to slave holding dictation, but I believe that I am the last man of color proscribed by any of the Cunard line. I made such a noise in England about it at the time that Samuel Canard himself publicly declared that there should be no more prescription on his ships on account of race or color. Contemplation of the force of nature is enlarging Stabding on the deck of the City of Rome and moving among its company of passengers so unlike the appearance and character, and then looking ont upon the broad, dashing billows of the Atlantic suggested to my mind the formula that the types of mankind are various. They differ like the waves. Human nature is like the sea.

ON GLADSTONE.

Though often charged with seeking the dismemberment of the British Empire, I believe Mr. Gladstone is as firm a friend to tha union between England and Ireland as any man in the United Kingdom, but he is for the rule of justice instead of the rule of the bayonet, the rule of love instead of the rule of hate, the rule of trust and confidence in stead of the rule of doubt and suspicion.

I wanted to see this famous statesman and orator while in London. It has been my good fortune to hear many of the best speakers in this country and in England. I have heard Webster, Everett, Sumner, Phillips and other great American orators, living and dead; I have also heard Sir Robert Peel, Richard Cobden, George Thompson, John Bright, Lord Brougham, O'Connell and other great speakers in England, and I felt it would be something to hear the peer of any of the greatest of them. Well, the opportunity was afforded me. I heard Mr. Gladstone under the most favorable conditions. It was on the occasion of his motion in Parliament to reject the infamous Coercion Bill. For weeks the bill had been debated and Mr. Gladstone had borne his full share in that debate, and I was anxious to know what he would say further, the tide of public opinion set strongly against him, and the passage of the bill was already assured. The press of the country, for the most part, had kept up a steady fire upon him, loaded the bill with the most bitterest kind. The House was crowded, and all eyes were turned upon him when he rose to make his last great effort to defeat this force bill for Ireland, which he knew could not be defeated, but Mr. Gladstone had a duty to perform and he performed it admirably. The first glance at his face impressed me. There was a singular blending of qualities in it, the lamb and the lion were there; dauntless as a veteran soldier and, yet, meek as a saint. His speech was one of the grandest I ever heard, and was listened to with profoundest silence by the whole House. My expectations were high, very high, but in some respects they were far exceeded. For one hour and a half, without pause, and without once hesitating for a word, he poured out one stream of eloquence, learning and argument which seemed to be irresistible. When he sat down the government benches, as well as the opposition benches, were immediately emptied, and poor Mr. Balfour, the secretary for Ireland, was left almost without an audience.

My visit to England was in some respects sentimental. I wanted to see the faces and press the hands of some of the dear friends and acquaintances I met there over forty years ago In our meeting there was something pathetic. Neither they nor I were as young and strong as when we met so long ago. I saw the two ladies who were mainly instrumental in giving me the chance of devoting my life to the cause of freedom. These were Ellen and Anna Richardson, of Newcastle-on-Tyne. They are both living, one aged 79 and the other over 80. Without any suggestion from me they opened a correspondence with Hon. Walter Foward, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Meredith, of Philadelphia, and through them bought me ont of slavery, secured a bill of sale of my body, made a present of myself to myself, and thus enabled me to return to the United States and resume my work for the emancipation of the slaves. It was a great privilege to see these two good women, and to see others who assisted them in raising the money to ransom me. If I had no other compensation for my services in the cause, this would have been ample payment Of course many of the precious friends who met me in England, Ireland and Scotland forty years ago have passed away, but some of them through their children and in them recognized their noble qualities.

One of the most interesting places for American tourists is the city of Edinburgh, and it was especially so to me, not only on account of the historical associations that cluster about it, and its many beautiful features, but for the memorable controversy I took part in with the Free Church during my first visit to Scotland. The facts are these: That church had sent a deputation to the United States immediately after separating itself from the established Church of Scotland, to collect money to build churches and support its ministry. That deputation went Sonth and collected several thousand pounds for this purpose in the slave States and preemnably from slave-holders. George Thompson, Henry C. Wright and Jane N. Bufton, lately deceased, made an issue with the church. We felt that it would be good testimony against slavery if we could induce the Free Church to follow the example of Daniel O'Connell in the matter of to send back the money. The debate was sharp and long—the excitement was great. Nearly everybody in Scotland, outside the Free Church, was on the side of freedom, and were for sending back the money. This sentiment was written on the pavements and walls and sung in the streets by minstrels. The very air was full of send back the money. Forgetting that I was in a monarchy and not in this republic I got myself into trouble by cutting, send back the money in the back of a seat. I was soon thereafter arrested for trespassing on pub Queen's forests, and only got off by a written apology.

I visited the same spot when over there a few weeks ago, but the friendly grass of forty years ago had obliterated all trace of the famous formula and any humiliation, as it has also happily blotted-ont all further need of sentiment itself. The money, however, was never sent back, for Scotchmen do not part with money without knowing wherefore —a lesson which could be learned well to learn, if they ever favorably change their relations to the people and civilization of our age.

I have traveled since I left, not only in England, Ireland and Scotland, but in France, Switzerland, Italy, Athens and Egypt. The most civilized, the most cultivated, and apparently the most prosperous of these countries is England. Nothing here goes to waste, every inch of fertile soil is cultivated and made to yield abundant harvests. The average crop of wheat is forty-six bushels to the acre, exceeding that of our best Western lands. Its fields are pic tures in frames of rich hedges, adorned with leaves and flowers; its people are well behaved, orderly and strong; its cattle large, smooth and round; its public buildings substantial and imposing; its houses neat, ample and comfortable; everything here exhibits the mark of thoughtful care. The management of its railroads for the comfort of travelers is somewhat clumsy; they lack over there our excellent system of checks, but the protection of life is more complete, and a higher rate of speed is attained. The railroad crossings for teams are spanned by bridges—no teams cross on the rails, and hence no one is run over as in free America.

I stopped but a little while in London, the greatest city, with the greatest population in the world, a population which is just double what it was 42 years ago. It was two and a half millions then; it has five millions now. I was there long enough to re-visit St. Paul's, the National Gallery, the British Museum, Westminster Abbey, the Tower, Madam Sands and to visit Buffalo Bill's Show—for this is the latest addition to London life—and you would be astonished to see the hundreds of thousands that flock day after day to see this wonder of the Wild West

THE "NEW SOUTH."

Chas A. C. Lear thus writes to the Norristown Herald under the above caption: Not many months since there appeared in both Republican and Democratic papers a sensational Associated Press dispatch from South Carolina purporting to be a discovery among the negroes of a plot to murder all the white men, take the women for their wives and the children for their servants, etc. And now comes another dispatch from Honston, Texas, dated Sept. 26, which says a "black insurrection is imminent in Matagorda county." The first dispatch is too absurd even to have found space for printer's ink. And the second one is none the less of a ridiculous character, as the sequel in the dispatch clearly shows. Matagorda county is composed mostly of colored people; they have a colored constable who attempted to arrest a white man, and the latter killed the former and fled; the blacks turned out en masse to hunt the white border ruffians gather to defend the murderer—hence this great insurrection.

All this news is very well understood by every fair-minded citizen. The Republicans take in the situation at a glance. There is no account from this "negro insurrection" in Texas where a single white man has been killed, "but was you ever!" some of them thought, "were killed." Poor devils, they start a fuss and all get butchered. This is the same old story that has been going the rounds of the newspaper press for 18 years; it is stale now.

But suppose there is really a "black insurrection" going on in Texas? Is it to be wondered at? Does not like begat like? Has not the colored Republican in the South been hunted like the partridge upon the mountain ever since he has been made a citizen? And how many of his white brethren have been made to "bite the dust" for standing up manfully for him? White men who do not seem to tolerate this Southern intolerance will never readily "forgive" them, but what say the colored men and their few white friends who live in the section of the country where these enormous crimes against human rights and civilization take place? They won't say "forgive" for the reason that there are too many homeless orphans and widows whose pitiable condition calls for redress, while the blood of the slain cries unto God for vengeance.

Somebody will say that I breathe nothing but wrath against the South, but I will not be put down by such sayings. Truth is mightier than the sword and when these annual and biennial feasts of blood cease to be visited upon my people and their friends, I will breathe easier and will try to write eulogiums on the section that I now have no pride in nor commendation for.

Election time is drawing near, and it is remarkable that some aggressive act of the negro is always put forward as a protest for setting in motion this feast of blood. If he has secret meetings it is for the purpose of killing the men and marrying the white women, and therefore the red shirters and white liliers are called out. If he insists upon being cheated out of his ballot, the governor calls out the militia to put down the insurrection, &c.

Ireland has been contending for her rights for ages by agitation which has cost many of her leading sons their lives, but has Ireland half the cause for complaint that the negro of the South has? Compare the condition of the two and then give an impartial the verdict. There is not another race of people known to civilization that would have borne what the negro of the South has borne without rising as one in open rebellion, not against the national government, but against the State governments that oppress, cheat and murder them Ireland is to-day ready for rebellion if she had the means of sustaining herself. The negro had the means but would no more tolerate the powers that oppress him than Ireland would.

If the negroes would go to every election in a body and vote the square Democratic ticket one would never hear of political murders. God made the Republicans the means by which he proposed to liberate the colored race from bondage, in which the race itself was to and did take a leading part, for, says he in His holy word, "I will visit the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generation of them that hate me." The fathers introduced and kept slavery the burning question upon the altar of American liberty, and we all know that their sons had to wade in blood and over the heape of the slain in order to wipe ont the "iniquity," inaugurated by their fathers. A more polnted and plain cause of divine procedure in punishing national crime is not to be found in any history. And shall the crimes which began with the Ku Klux-Klan organization and have been kept up ever since in a greater or less degree, go unpunished? Nay, nay.

Mr. Editor, in all my letters I have contented against crime, the crime that the church stronger perpetrated upon the weaker for opinion sake, and you know, sir, that I have not misstated the truth in any instance upon this point. Now, what to be done about this matter of crime? Practically man will do nothing. The Almighty will solve the problem, and may he by "insurrection," as the whites insurrected for causes far less justifiable than the blacks have. The negro has his faults as all races of men have and will ever have. He is to a degree not his fault very ignorant and the majority of those among whom his lot is cast, are as ignorant as himself, and in this instance I may say, "If the blind lead the blind all will fall in the ditch together. This cowiet lease system is the growth of ignorance; it condemns men to a life equal to if not worse than the "Galley Slave" of historical notoriety. And whenever a true Southern man rises up to denonnce this system (as instance G. W. Cable) he has to remove to some Northern State to find a home. Another instance of ignorance among the whites is the offspring of a mortgage on his imaginary slave, for certain goods, by a North Carolina man who, it would seem, never heard of the immortal Lincoln's proclamation.

All this news is very well understood by every fair-minded citizen. The Republicans take in the situation at a glance. There is no account from this "negro insurrection" in Texas where a single white man has been killed, "but was you ever!" some of them thought, "were killed." BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA, DISTRICT.

BY REV. W. H. MIXON.

From the very depth of my heart, I thank the Great Architect of the human buildings for his arrangement way back in the councils of eternity for this humble writer to have a sound body. Since I wrote up my last quarterly report, I have traveled hundreds of miles on horseback, foot, mule wagons, ox wagons, in "dog outs" on the big Tennessee River; I have slept in brick houses, frame and plank houses, log houses and out of doors, working for mankind; I have entertained all sorts of people, and all sorts have entertained me. Many places the old fathers tell how they used to catch snakes, how they used to "conjure tha dogs" to keep them off of them when they would go to see the girls; they dated hundreds of things when the stars tell, etc. I don't know a man who is ever more ready than I am to respect the aged and unfortunate colored people. I know they had only the practical side of life and not the business side, their opportunities for learning were all lim ited, yet it does seem like with intelligent children, with pleasant surroundings, they ought to know when a minister is trying to read and prepare for the Lord's work. I very, very often feel like I'm in good company when all alone.

Notwithstanding our many shortcomings, our district is doing grandly. The pastors and members are meditating their prayers; arranging to give and hear intelligent sermons and have them made "spiritually deep." A revival rain is falling in conference circles are being looked after, etc., churches being built and old ones beautified.

St. John has a membership of 800. Rev. W. L. Billups is doing a grand work at Station No. 2. Rev. C. M. Jackson is at Pratt Mines. The people like him; he has been very sick indeed. Florence Station has been reseated, painted up beautiful through the leadership of her much loved pastor, Rev. E. B. Fain. Tuscumbia Station has in course of erection the finest colored church in North Alabama Bailey's Chapel is once more alive. Oak Grove is moving grandly.

Hopewell has been supplied with a local preacher, Brother B. H. Brewer, and is doing nicely. Whitesburgh had a glorious revival. Guntersville is spreading herself. Wards, moving up every way. Huntsville Station needs some improvements. The people need a working spirit and unity. Stevenson Circuit is doing well. Rev. H. T. Crenshaw is loved by the Hawkins Creek people. Decatur Station is doing well.

All of the missions seem to be doing well.

I have administered Sacrament this quarter to 912, held 18 love-feasts, visited 8 class-s, attended 2 funerals, 1 marriage, baptized 3, baptized children 20, took in church 14, visited 8 sick ones, organized 2 missions, gave 66 sermons and lectures, granted 1 local preacher's license, granted 2 local preachers rest until they can find time to study. This is my report.

Prof. W. H. Councill, ex-principal of the State Normal School, Huntsville, Ala., is in my district. He is completing a work especially adapted to colored institutions of learning. It is a supplementary reader containing selections from the leading colored authors Grimes has prepared with it brief biographical sketches of eminent colored men. This will he a powerful stimulant in the hands of the negro youth. Councill is a great man.

Now, Bro. Lee and readers, I presume you have satisfied yourselves in read ng this letter, I therefore deem it wisdom to stop; but allow me to say before I do stop, that Alabama is the wonder of the world. I want your readers to come and see Alabama—visit the cities in my district, viz., Birmingham, Decatur, Tuscumbia, Sheffield, Florence and Huntsville. Alabama is in the morning of her day. Where is your State? In the afternoon, I guess. I will now close with an invitation to the General Offers and friends to meet us in Selma, 23rd of November, '87, annual conference.

GAINESVILLE DISTRICT, EAST FLORIDA CONFERENCE.

BY REV. M. M. MOORE.

At the seat of the last annual conference our beloved Bishop D. A. Payne appointed your writer presiding elder of the above named district, the largest in the State, having ninety-three appointments. I was received gladly by all the ministers on the district. We held our first quarterly conference on the Ocala Mission. Rev. Henry young is the pastor. We had a good meeting. Brother Young has added twenty-five members to his charge.

At Mt. Tabor Circuit Rev. B. W. Wiley, B.D., is holding this charge with a steady hand and is preparing to build a new church. One the Anthony Circuit Rev. B. D. Roberson has his work in a good condition. We preached on Sunday; the Lord was with us. Twelve persons joined the church and a host of others came to the altar and asked forgiveness for their sins.

Rev. J. W. Dukes, the great camp-meeting man of Florida, is pastor at Citra. He has added one hundred and fifty members to his church and is hard at work preparing to build another church because the present one cannot hold his congregation. May God bless this young brother in his effort to save souls.

Rev. P. G. Gowens, the ex-presiding elder, is stationed at Whitesville. He has built one chapel this year and is preparing to build another. We preached to a fine congregation at Lockhill Mission. Rev. S. M. Holmes is the pastor. This is the first year we have sent a minister to this beautiful little village and the white people, as well as the colored, are overjoyed. They are building for us one of the finest little chapels in the State.

Rev. Anthony Bellamy has had several conversions and added a great many to his churchee on the Micanopy Circuit. Ocala. Rev. Jas. L. Gray, pastor. We found Brother Gray hard at work preparing for the quarterly conference. Every department of his church was represented by intelligent reports. Rev. Gray is finishing one of the finest parsonages in the State. We preached on Sunday. Forty persons were forward and joined. The collection during our stay was $16 00 for the presiding elder and $77 00 for church purposes.

When we arrived at Archer, Rev. Allen Jones, pastor, all the officers were at the church waiting. Brother Jones, the excellent pastor, had been called home to see the last of his dying wife. Things seemed a little awkward on account of his absence. Rev. J. J. Singleton is the pastor of Brouson Circuit. The Lord has blessed him and he has added many souls to his charge.

Cedar Keys is a fine little island city on the Gulf of Mexico. Rev. Lewis Johnson has a nice little chapel and quite an intelligent congregation. The good people are working hard to have their chapel repainted and carpeted. Gainesville is our next point.

Rev. Samuel E. Coleman, A. M., chairman of the East Florida Conference delegation to the next General Conference, is the pastor of the church in Gainsville. Rev. Coleman is especially loved by his congregation and is revered by all who know him. His congregation is orderly and intelligent. Prof. J. N. Clinton, son of the late Bishop Clinton, is tha superintendent of the Sunday school and leader of the choir, which he has made the equal of Allen Chapel choir, Pensacola.

We move on from here to Fair Banks Circuit. Rev. Thomas W. Walker was appointed here, but he has resigned and Rev. Joseph Stafford is in charge and is doing a good work. He will no doubt bring this work up again.

Bethune Institute is our next place. Rev. Amos Thompson is here holding the work with a steady hand. We preached for his people on Sunday. One person was converied and ten joined the church.

We went from here to Starke. Rev. J. G. Grimes is the pastor of this circuit. When wh got there Brother Grimes had a fine carriage waiting onr arrival. We were taken to the parsonage, where Rev. Grimes had prepared a fine dinner for us. We spent three days with this good brother. The people, both white and colored, say Brother Grimes has done and is doing the best work of any minister that has been here. He has added one hundred and fifteen converts and members from other denominations to the A. M. E. Church. God bless this noble man.

Newnanville Mission, Rev. P. Johnson is the pastor. He is acceptable with his people and is doing a good work for the master.

Hopeville Circuit; Rev. James Robberts is the pastor. He has had several conversions and has added them all to his church. The people all admire him and are doing all that they can to make it comfortable for him and his family.

There are six other points that we have visited. The pastors all are acceptable with the people and they are doing all they can to build up the Redemer's kingdom and to bless humanity. This district is composed of young men. Your humble writer is just in his 32d year, but we intend, God being our helper, to make a better report at the next annual conference for this district than ever was made. We will report one thousand as an increase in the district for this year. We have up to this date seven hundred and five of one one thousand. May God bless these young heroes of the Gainsville District, in their respective fields of labor.

WHAT TO READ.

The printing press has no scruples of conscience. It will print blasphemy as readily as prayer. Thoughts thus preserved may reach the mind only through the eye; and the act may take place secretly. No parent nor companion may know what has thus been allowed to enter and influence. The act is real. The influence may be very great. There are those who would withdraw from foul conversation in shame, who yet make little of permitting their minds secretly and silently to gloat over the page of pollution. Many more do not sufficiently select their reading. An English writer has given us a lecture on the "Companionship of Books." Books are companions. Our companion books must be wisely selected.

Our choice of reading should depend upon the object which we set before ourselves. What do we wish to be or to do? Some sort of answer to that question should he made quite early in life. Let us name some of the objects of reading.

1. We read for pleasure We do this just as we engage in sport or games or travel, for amusement. In all this there is no wrong, no injury, provided the means and the evil are absent, and provided that the life is not absorbed in this pursuit. A social game may be very pleasant for a recreation, but his would be a sorry kind of life who was always absorbed in play. It is the same with merely pleasure reading. A bear story may do very well once in awhile, but possibly some of our "youth's" papers should give the bears and lions a vacation. So novels, or stories of love and making love. Too much of this is as unhealthy as a constant picnic would be. Life is too real, and its demands too pressing to permit the exclusive pursuit of moonshine, or the trifling with what should be held too sacred for publicity. So of humorous reading. It is right to laugh at proper things, but to always laugh or try to laugh is as shocking as the condition of the man whose face was suddenly paralyzed, and a laugh, as it were, frozen upon his features.

2. We read for instruction. Books and papers are not the only sources of knowledge; but they do give instruction. The labor of whole lives, of whole generations is treasured in a single book. We escape the uncertainty of experiments by the experience of others. By their guidance we go away out into the fields of knowledge. We could not do this alone. We could not do this without books. Distant countries and distant ages are spread before us. A few hours' reading every day would make any one of us a little time familiar with the great deeds, the great men, and the great thoughts of the world. But we need particular instruction in reference to the questions which we have to answer, and the deeds we have to do. We are or are to be farmers, mechanics, professional men, citizens; we have personal duties to our friends, our kindred, to ourselves and to the world; on these things we need and should seek instruction. This will suggest enough reading to well occupy our time. This is reading for a purpose. Other reading is not likely to be very helpful. Our purpose will give an interest to our reading, and as other and wider aims open to our pursuit our reading will be extended.

3. We read for culture. We have here sets of faculties, mental, moral and physical. The physical faculties, such as seeing, hearing, are not cultivated by reading except as we are taught to preserve them and see to their health. The moral and mental faculties may be cultivated by reading. By our mental faculties we are able to think, that is, to receive knowledge. to make decisions, to remember. Our knowledge is of right and truth and beauty, and of their opposites. If we make ourselves familiar with the right, the true and beautiful in reading, they will have their influence upon us. We shall be more able to think rightly, and with beauty and strength.

What is true of our mental is also true of our moral faculties. By these we are able to love and worship God. Men and women have lived who through many, and sometimes sore experiences, have learned this moral cultivation. They are our most instructive teachers. We are false to what is of first importance if we disregard their teachings. Let each one, then, set before himself an aim. Let him have a purpose which shall direct his reading. Desultory reading is the occupation of lasiness, and the wasting of opportunities. What we really need and what we may obtain by our reading is mental and moral culture, knowledge and occasional recreation.—Christian at Work.

Says Frank Siddall, "I inhale Compound Oxygen every day of my life, it invigorates the nerve centres. My capacity for work increases, and also my enjoyment of life. I go up to Drs. Starkey and Palen's office. I prefer the morning, for its beneficial influence endures throughout the day. Then I come straight back and buckle to work again. I am a well man now, and continue its use only as an invigorator; but both my wife and son have tried it (the former for serious complaints) with the most satisfactory results."

Dr. Starkey left a lucrative practice to apply the fruits of long researches; and if he had advertised as I have done, he would now he a millionaire. But he and his partner, Dr. Palen, are well known. Here is judge William L. Kelley, 'the father of the House of Representatives,' as he is called. Ask him."

"Yes," said Judge Kelley, "I can indorse all that Mr. Siddall has said about the benefits of Compound Oxygen, for it was the means of restoring me to health after everything else had failed, and I thought I must die. I had frequent hemorrhages. But Compound Oxygen came to my notice; I tried it and was saved."

"I have known Dr. Starkey for thirty years," resumed Mr. Siddall. "He is worthy of my most sincere endorsement. But I wish he would advertise his great remedy."

Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., will send their pamphlet of cures and testimonials to anybody who will write for it.

A FINE PIANO FOR SENATOR MAHONE.

[From the Baltimore American.]

A number of prominent musical people gathered in the warerooms of Wm. Knabe & Co. yesterday to examine a piano made by the firm for Senator "Billy" Mahone, of Virginia, for his Washington residence. The instrument was specially designed and built for that gentleman, and is truly a magnificent specimen of the highest musical as well as decorative art. It is a full Concert Grand, the same size and general outline as the famous grand Messrs. Knabe & Co. furnished for the White House. The case is of rich and beautiful figured rosewood, decorated with inlaid work of white holly, of unique and intricate design, carried out in the most artistic manner. Each panel has a group of different musical instruments, the whole surrounded by bo der of fine marquetry work, leaves and flowers, etc. The legs and lyre are richly carved and decorated to match the body of the case, the whole producing a striking, and at the same time most refined esthetic effect. The tone is superb, striking the listener by its wonderful volume, depth and richness, combining with greatest power a most refined and mellow character and charming singing quality, the action and touch perfectly delightful to the performer by its ease and responsiveness.

A shower of stones rattled against a house in Sumpter Co., Ga., one night last May, it is stated, as though at regular intervals. The mysterious fusillade has been repeated, even in the presence of neighbors. No explanation has yet been found.

TO ENCOURAGE SAVINGS.

Doubtless some readers of this paper are stopped from investing their savings by a difficulty of getting together a sufficient sum to make the investment worth while. Others who have sufficient to invest are hindered by the uncertainty of finding safe securities. The advertisement in another column of the J. B. Watkins Land Mortgage Company, Lawrence, Kansas, provides for both classes of investors. The company issues obligations in amounts of five dollars upwards, bearing interest at five per cent. These obligations can be exchanged for six per cent debenture bonds in amounts of three hundred dollars and upwards. There should be no hesitancy among small investors in taking up with this liberal plan. The security offered to both large and small investors seems ample. The Company has a capital of $750,000, with surplus of $340,307, and has back of it the business experience of 17 years, during which time millions have been invested and not a dollar lost. A pamphlet with full information will be mailed on application.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE IN EPILEPSY.

Dr. A. L. Turner, Head Physician, Bloomsburg Sanitarium, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "Have Prescribed it in several hundred cases of epilepsy, and always with good results. As an adjunct to the recuperative powers of the nervous system I know of nothing to equal it."

A new law that went into force September 15 throughout Prussia requires all keepers of restaurants at railway stations of the third and fourth class to provide a cup of good hot coffee, without milk or sugar, for five pfennigs (about 1¼ cents in our money), and the same with milk and sugar for double the price.

Moire Antique from $2 to $5 a yard.
Bengalines from $1.50 to $2 50 a yard.

We have before us two sample Blakets. A large quantity of each was offered us:

one 11-4 weighs 5 lbs.
one 11-4 weighs 6 lbs.

To the careless eyes these two Blankets look alike. They are the same size, and each is equally well made, but one contains one pound more of pure wool than the other.

A question came up: "Shall we follow in the common track of the trade and make all we can out of our customers by charging $1 too much for the 5 lb. Blankets, or shall we throw away $1 and charge $5 for the 6 lb. Blankets?"

52 cases of 6 lb. Blankets, the best all-wool Blankets ever offered by us at $5 a pair. We give you the $1. You get 6 lbs. instead of 5 lbs. of wool. What wonder that you have taken more than half of the 52 cases in the little time they have been here!

About 25 cases left. May take a week for them to go; at most two weeks.

This is a fair sample of our Blanket prices. All grades and qualities for little beds or big ones. $1 to $38 a pair.

THE EARLY FATHERS.

BY MRS. ALICE S FELTS.

Our fathers! Where are they? Echo answers, where are they? Now that we are thinking and speaking of the coming centennial of independent religious thought by the persons who composed the A. M. E. Church, we naturally call to mind the early fathers and would not hesitate to pay a tribute of respect to them; those of the Philadelphia and Baltimore Conferences being among the first and the herculean work they did, call for our highest admiration. A slight survey of the past will make one wonder at the amount of travel and the hardships they endured to visit promptly their class or prayer-meetings and to preach in school-house or barn if the nearest dwalling-house was too small for the convenience of the neighbors who came together, for they had "meetings" in those days, and the men who directed and led them, they call unlearned, yet the work organized and the force inspired was strong enough to bind and hold together the reading, cultured and Christian Church of the present time. The work of the early fathers seems to have been to gather up the outcast of our people and teach them the truth of the gospel, the fervency of the spirit, and to imbue them with freedom of religious thought and expression, so much so that we often call it a "flat and heel" religion, but the strength of the religion was as forcible in truth as in words. Those who spoke of being moved by the Holy Ghost acted as they spoke. The man who was called of God had sent by the Holy Ghost did not walk for payment cars and cushioned carriages to cary him to his appointment, hut with the spirit of Bishop Quinn, mounted "Dobbins" and was off, and meeting his congregation not expecting to give the great hailing sign of distress to be admitted to his people's hearths and homes, for the people were often as glad to hear as he was to preach, and a dish of mush and milk often eaten with a thankful heart. Their salary, too, was only what they could get, and often very small as Fathers Bailey, Richard Robinson, Sheppard, Holcomb and a good many others could have told and as many now living can tell.

And yet in their hardships what joyful reasons they must have had; what love-feast and shoutings with glad hallelujahs they sang. One of Uncle Natty Murray's (of Springtown, the first church south of Camden, N. J.) expressions in love-feast used to, be "Talk, ye champions; if you don't talk I'll sing," and sing he would such anthems as "Let us sing unto the Lord: to the Lord God of Host; let us sing Jehovah's trimphs, for his people are free," and in their meetings with the John Wesley idea of fleeing the wrath to come was the foundation of the Church laid. The prayers ing a populous street; she is a small town, not on wheels, but on the waves. Our voyage to Liverpool was marked by two incidents in which you will be interested, since they illustrate the gradual wearing away of race prejudice There was on board the Rev. Henry Wayland, son of the great Dr. Wayland, late president of Brown's University. Mr. Wayland had known me years ago and had been my friend in Rochester. He is one of God's freemen. Through him I was made known to many of the passengers, and this resulted in a strong invitation to address the passengers in the saloon, with which I complied. After this I was called upon by Capt. Monroe to move a vote of thanks in a brief speech to Lord Rochester, who had presided at a concert given in the grand soloon by some tal ented musicians. Thus my privacy was at an end, and I had much talking to do which I could not avoid. A striking contrast between the treatment I received during this voyage and that of 40 years ago, was as striking as it was gratifiying. Then I could not obtain a first-class passage—even on a British steamship, and was compelled to go in the forward cabin. Now I found myself not only welcome in the first cabin, hut treated by every body with special marks of interest and esteem. It is true that, although I belonged in the forward cabin 40 years ago, I made many friends during that voyage and was then, as on the late voyage, invited to deliver an address on the saloon deck of the Cambria, but I did not comply till invited to do so by the captain. There were several slave-holders on hoard and a number of dongh faces from the North. I had hardly been speaking ten minutes when one of the wildest, bitterest and most devilish rows occurred that I ever saw. It was only put down by the captain calling upon the boatswain to bring up the irons and threatening to put any one in irons who dared disturb me. A most unfair account of this onthreak of pro-slavery violence has gone into the history of the Cunard line, denouncing me as the cause of the disturbance on the same principle that the slaves used to be denounced as the cause of the war. The fact is, slaveholders at that time were dictators on sea and land, and the Cunard line, although flying the British flag, found it for their interest to yield to slave holding dictation, but I believe that I am the last man of color proscribed on even the Cunard line. I made such a noise in England about it and in this the Samuel Cunard himself publicly declared that there should be no more prescription on his ships on account of race or color. Contemplation of the forces of nature in the magnificent heaving of the deck of the City of Rome and moving among its company of passengers so unlike in appearance and character, and then looking out upon the broad, dashing and long—the excitement was great. Nearly everybody in Scotland, outside the Free Church, were on the side of freedom, and were for sending back the money. This sentiment was written in my mind the formula that the types of mankind are various. They differ like the waves, hnt are not like the sea.

ON GLADSTONE.

Though often charged with seeking the dismemberment of the British Empire, I believe Mr. Gladstone is as firm a friend to the union between England and Ireland as any man in the United Kingdom, hnt he is for the rule of justice instead of the rule of the bayonet, the rule of love instead of the rule of hate, the rule of trust and confidence in stead of the rule of doubt and suspicion. I wanted to see this famous statesman and orator while in London. It has been my good fortune to hear many of the best speakers in this country and England. I have heard Webster, Everett, Sumner, Phillips and other great American orators, living and dead; I have also heard Sir Robert Peel, Richard Cobden, George Thompson, John Bright, Lord Brougham, O'Connell and other great speakers in England, and I felt it would be something to hear the peer of any of the greatest of them. Well, the opportunity was afforded me. I heard Mr. Gladstone under the most favorable conditions. It was on the occasion of his motion in Parliament to reject the infamous Coercion Bill. For weeks the bill had been debated and Mr. Gladstone had borne his full share in that debate, and I was anxious to know what he would say further, the tide of public opinion set strongly against him, and the passage of the bill was already assured. The press of the country, for the most part, had kept up a steady fire upon him, loaded him with reproaches of the bitterest kind. The House was crowded, all eyes were turned upon him when he rose to make his last great effort to defeat this force bill for Ireland, which he knew could not he defeated, but Mr. Gladstone had a duty to perform and he performed it admirably. The first glance at his face impressed me. There was a singular blending of qualities in it, the lamb and the lion were there; dauntless as a veteran soldier and, yet, meek as a saint. His speech was one of the grandest I ever heard, and was listened to with profoundest silence by the whole House. My expectations were high, very high, but in some respects they were far exceeded. For one hour and a half, without pause, and without once hesitating for a word, he poured out one stream of eloquence, learning and argument which seemed to be irresistible When he set down the government benches, as well as the opposite benches, were immediately emptied, and poor Mr. Balfour, the secretary for Ireland, was left almost without an audience.

My visit to England was in some respects sentimental. I wanted to see the faces and press the hands of some of the dear friends and acquaintances I met there over forty years ago. In one meeting there was something pathetic. Neither they nor I were as young and strong as when we met so long ago. I saw the two ladies who were mainly instrumental in giving me the chance of devoting my life to the cause of freedom. These were Ellen and Anna Richardson, of Newcastle-on-Tyne. They are both living, one aged 79 and the other over 80. Without any suggestion from me they opened a correspondence with Hon. Walter Foward, of Pittsburgh, and Mr. Meredith, of Philadelphia, and through them bought me out of slavery, secured a bill of sale of my body, made a present of myself to myself, and thus enabled me to return to the United States and reanme my work for the emancipation of the slaves. It was a great privilege to see these two good women, and to see ears who assisted them in raising the money to ransom me. If I had no other compensation for my voyage across the sea, this would have been ample payment. Of course many of the devoted friends who met me in England, Ireland and Scotland forty years ago have passed away, hnt I saw some of them through their children and in them recognized their own features.

One of the most interesting places for American tourists is the city of Edinburgh, and it was especially so to me, not only on account of the historical associations that clung about it, and its many beautiful features, but for the memorable controversy I took part in with the Free Church during my first line, denouncing me as the cause of the disturbance on the same principle that the slaves used to be denounced as the cause of the war. The fact is, slaveholders at that time were dictators on sea and land, and the Cunard line, although flying the British flag, found it for their interest to yield to slave holding dictation, but I believe that I am the last man of color proscribed on even the Cunard line. I made such a noise in England about it and in this the Samuel Cunard himself publicly declared that there should be no more prescription on his ships on account of race or color. Fifty years ago the great scientist, Dyonisius Lardner, proved by facts and figures to his own satisfaction, that no vessel could carry enough coal to propel her across the Atlantic, hnt theories amount to nothing against facts accomplished. The City of Rome consumes a ton of coal every five minutes during her voyages. She has 60 furnaces and a crew, including all hands, of 250 persons. To walk her decks is like walk-

THE "NEW SOUTH."

Chas A. C. Lear thus writes to the Norristown Herald nnder the above caption: Not many months since there appeared in both Republican and Democratic papers a sensational Associated Press dispatch from South Carolina purporting to be a discovery among the negroes of a plot to murder all the white men, take the women for their wives and the children for their servants, etc. And now comes another dispatch from Houston, Texas, dated Sept. 26, which says a "black insurrection is imminent in Matagorda county." The first dispatch is too absurd even to have found space for printer's ink And the second one is none the less of a ridiculous character, as the sequel in the dispatch clearly shows. Matagorda county is composed mostly of colored people; they have a colored constable who attempted to arrest a white man, and the latter killed the former and fled; the blacks turned out to hunt him, and the white border ruffians gather to defend the murderer—hence this great insurrection.

All this news is very well understood by every fair-minded citizen. The Republicans take in the situation at a glance. There is no account from this "negro insurrection" in Texas where a single white man has been killed, "but it was reported that several negroes were killed." Poor devils, they start a fuss and all get butchered. This is the same old story that has been going the ronnds of the newspaper press for 18 years; it is stale now.

But suppose there is really a "black insurrection" going on in Texas? Is it to be wondered at? Does not like begat like? Has not the colored Republican in the South been hunted like the partridge upon the mountain ever since he has been made a citizen? And how many of his white brethren have been made to "bite the dust" for standing up manfnlly for him? White men who do not have to tolerate this Southern intolerance will never readily "forgive" them, when they see colored men and their few white friends who live in the section of the country where these infamous crimes against human rights and civilization take place? They won't say "forgive" for the reason that there are too many homeless orphans and widows whose pitiable condition cries for redress, while the blood of the slain cries unto God for vengeance.

Somebody will say that I breathe nothing but wrath against the South, hnt I will not be put down by such sayings. Truth is mightier than the sword and when these annual and biennial feasts of blood cease to be visited upon my people and their friends, I will breathe easier and will try to write eulogiums on the section that I now have no pride in nor commendation for.

Election time is drawing near, and it is remarkable that some aggressive act of the negro is always put forward as a protest for setting in motion this feast of blood. If he has secret meetings it is for the purpose of killing the men and marrying the white women, and therefore the red shirters and white liners are called out. It he resists being cheated ont of his ballot, the governor calls out the militia to put down the insurrection, etc., etc.

Ireland has been contending for her rights for ages by agitation which has cost many of her leading sons their lives, hut has Ireland half the cause for complaint that the negro of the South has? Compare the condition of the two and then give an impartial answer. There is not another race of people known to civilization that would have borne what the negro of the South has borne without rising as one man in open rebellion, not against the national government, hnt against the State government that oppress, cheat and murder them. Ireland is to-day ready for rebellion if she had the means of sustaining herself. The negro had he the means would no more tolerate the powers that oppress him than Ireland would.

If the negroes would go to every election in a body in the square Democratic ticket one would never hear of political murders. God made the Republicans the means by which he proposed to liberate the colored race from bondage, in which the race itself was to and did take a leading part, for, says he in His holy word, "I will visit the iniquity of the fathers upon the children to the third and fourth generation of them that hate me." The fathers introduced and kept slavery the burning question upon the altar of American liberty, and we all know that their sons had to wade in blood and over the heaps of the slain in order to wipe out the "iniquity." Inaugurated by their fathers. A more pointed and plain cause of divine procedure in punishing national crime is not to be found in any history. And shall the crimes which began with the Ku Klux-Klan organization and have been kept up ever since in a greater or less degree, go unpunished? Nay, nay. Mr. Editor, in all my letters I have contended against crime, the crime that the stronger perpetrated upon the weaker for opinion sake, and you know, sir, that I have not misstated the truth in any instance upon this point. Now, what is to be done about this matter of crime? Practically man will do nothing. The Almighty will solve the problem, and may he by "insurrection," as the whites insurrected for causes far less justifiable than the blacks have. The negro has his faults as all races of men have and will ever have. He is to a degree not his fault very ignorant and the majority of those among whom his lot is cast, are as ignorant as himself, and in this instance I may say, "If the blind lead the blind all will fall in the ditch together. This convict lease system is the growth of ignorance; it condemns men to a life equal to if not worse than the "Galley Slave" of historical notoriety. And whenever a true Southern man rises up to denounce this system (as instance G. W. Cable) he has to remove to some Northern State to find a home. Another instance of ignorance among the whites is the offering of a mortgage on his imaginary slave, for certain goods, by a North Carolina man who, it would seem, never heard of the immortal Lincoln's proclamation.

A few years ago there was a farmer's convention in the city of Richmond, Va., composed of the farmers of that State, and while debating a resolution upon taxation, one of the speakers said, "The Constitution never contemplated negro education and for one I will resist it by every means in my power." This cnt and dried expression was applauded to the echo. I suppose he referred to the Confederate constitution.

I was born in the Old South, hnt reared to manhood in this mysterious new. But I can find no praise for the powers that rule there until justice and judgment shall be the scepter that governs.

MANAGER'S COLUMN.

Our premium offer: In the RECORDER of last week we offered premiums in cash or its equivalent for subscribers to this paper. We propose to distribute $100 cash for every two hundred and fifty names that shall be sent in. We open our roll for the names of our workers who propose to compete for these prizes. Send in your names and get our commission as agent. Our traveling preachers do not need such commission; but all others must have one.

Premiums will be graded as follows: To the one procuring the highest number of the first 250 names, with the cash, a hunting case gold lever watch, worth $50, or $45 in gold. Lady or gentlemen the same.

2. To the one procuring the highest number we will give, if a gentleman, a "RECORDER premium" overcoat worth $25, or $20 gold. Or, if a lady, we will give her a "RECORDER premium" silk dress pattern, worth $25, or $20 gold.

3. To the next highest, or 3rd competitor, we will give $15. To the 4th competitor, $10, and to the last, $5. Total, $100. Note well: If two parties should succeed in getting precisely the same number, the award will has to the one first enrolled. Send on your names. Rev. Dr. Mitchell, of the Ohio Conference, will engage in the second effort to-day. He says he will take first-rate to begin now, hnt prior engagements prevent. He is intending, however, to have one premium ont of the first 500. I can see those nine $5 gold pieces in the palm of his hand now, for when he begins—well, wait.

OUR CENTENNIAL is a constantly growing movement. Never saw anything like it in our Church. The man who will take no part in celebrating this grand occasion will get badly left. No use talking against it; its gone! Ohio Conference fairly boomed it; Cincinnati, Columbus, Springfield and Xenia, Chillicothe, Gallipolis and Zanesville will all be heard from, "And all the stars that round them beam." Hurrah!—No;—well, we're going to have a good time, God willing.

Pastors will please take notice that the new Revised Ritual and Church Service is now ready for orders. Price, 45c., 202 pages, 16mo. (just 6 inches long by 4 inches wide), handy for the pocket. Soft silk finished linen cover. Bound in roan, flexible cover, 60cts. Finer ones in morroco, gilt, $1.00. Fifteen per cent off when ordering one dozen or more. Fifty or one hnndred copies for churches, 20 per cent off. Send for a copy.

Mrs. Lucas, of London, Miss Willard, of Chicago, and Mrs. Hannah Whitall Smith, of Philadelphia, have issued a circular in which they ask Christian women everywhere to observe November 12th and 13th as days of prayer for a divine blessing upon every form of temperance work in the world.

BIRMINGHAM, ALABAMA, DISTRICT.

BY REV. W. H. MIXON.

From the very depth of my heart, I thank the Great Architect of the human buildings for his arrangement way back in the councils of eternity for this humble writer to have a sound body. Since I wrote up my last quarterly report, I have traveled hundreds of miles on horseback, foot, mnle wagons, ox wagons, in "dog outs" on the big Tennessee River; I have slept in brick houses, frame and plank houses, log houses and out of doors, working for manking; I have entertained all sorts of people, and all sorts have entertained me. Many places the old fathers tell how they used to catch snakes, how they used to "conjure tha dogs." To keep them off of them when they would go to see the girls they dated hundreds of things when the stars fell, etc. I don't know a man who is ever more ready than I am to respect the aged and unfortunate colored people. I know they had only the practical side of life and not the business side, their opportunities for learning were all him led, yet it does seem like with intelligent children, with pleasnnt surroundings, to ought to know when a minister is trying to read and prepare for the Lord's work. I very, very often feel like I'm in good company when all alone.

Not withstanding our many shortcomings, our district is doing grandly. The pastors and members are meditating their prayers; arranging to give and hear intelligent sermons and have them made "palatable." Our A. M. E. revel rain is falling, conference claims are being looked after, etc., churches being built and old ones beautified.

St. John has a membership of 500. Rev. W. C. Billups is doing a grand work at Station No. 2. Rev. C. M. Jackson is at Pratt Mines. The people like him; he has been very sick indeed. Florence Station has been reseated, painted and generally thrnsh through the leadership of her much loved pastor, Rev. B. R. Fain. Tnscumbia Station has in course of erection the finest colored church in North Alabama Bailey's Chapel is once more alive. Oak Grove is moving grandly.

Hopewell has been supplied with a local preacher, Brother B. H. Brewer, and is doing nicely. Whitesburgh had a glorious revival. Guntersville is spreading herself. Wells, moving up every way. Bunisville Station needs some improvements. The people need a working spirit and unity. Stevenson Circuit is doing well. Rev. H. T. Crenshaw is loved by the Hawkins Creek people. Decatur Station is doing well. All of the missions seem to be doing well.

I have administered Sacrament this quarter to 912, held 18 love-feasts, visited 8 class's, attended 2 funerals, 1 marriage, baptized 3, baptized children 20, took in church 14, visited 8 sick ones, organized 2 missions, gave 66 sermons and lectures, renewed 1 local preacher's license, granted 2 local preachers' rights until they can find time to study. This is my report.

Prof. W. H. Councill, ex-principal of the State Normal School, Huntsville, Ala., is in my district. He is completing a work especially adapted to colored institutions of learning. It is a supplementary reader containing selections from the leading colored authors —speeches and writings, giving biographical sketches of eminent colored men. This will be a powerful stimulant in the hands of the negro youth. Councill is a great man.

Now, Bro. Lear and readers, I presume you have satisfied yourselves in reading this letter, I therefore deem it wisdom to stop; hnt allow me to say before I do stop, that Alabama is the wonder of the world. I want your readers to come and see Alabama—visit the cities in my district, viz., Birmingham, Decatur, Tnscumbia, Sheffield, Florence and Hnntsville. Alabama is in the morning of her youth. Ohio Conference fairly boomed it; Cincinnati, Columbus, Springfield and Xenia, Chillicothe, Gallipolis and Zanesville will all be heard from, "And all the stars that round them beam." Hurrah!—No;—well, we're going to have a good time, God willing.

GAINESVILLE DISTRICT, EAST FLORIDA CONFERENCE.

BY REV. M. M. MOORE.

At the seat of the last annual conference our beloved Bishop D. A. Payne appointed your writer presiding elder of the above named district, the largest in the State, having ninety-three appointments. I was received glaoly by all the ministers on the district. We held our first quarterly conference on the Ocala Mission. Rev. Henry young is the pastor. We had a good meeting. Brother Young has added twenty-five members to his charge.

At Mt. Tabor Circuit Rev. B. W Wiley, B.D., is holding this charge with a steady hand and is preparing to build a new church. One the Anthony Circuit Rev. B. D. Roberson has his work in a good condition. We preached on Sunday; the Lord was with us. Twelve persons joined the church and a host of others came to the altar and asked forgiveness for their sins.

Rev. J. W. Dukes, the great campmeeting man of Florida, is pastor at Citra. He has added one hnndred and fifty members to his church and is hard at work preparing to build another church because the present one cannot hold his congregation. May God bless this young brother in his effort to sava souls.

Rev. P. G. Gowens, the ex-presiding elder, is stationed at Whiteside. He has built one chapel this year and is preparing to build another. We preached to a fine congregation at Lockhill Mission. Rev. S. M. Holmes is the pastor. This is the first year we have sent a minister to this beautiful little village and the white people, as well as the colored, are overjoyed. They are building for us one of the finest little chapels in the State.

Rev. Asbury Bellamy has had several conversions and added a great many to his churches on the Micanopy Circuit. Ocala, Rev. Jas. L. Gray, pastor. We found Brother Gray hard at work preparing for the coming conference. Every department of his church was represented by intelligent reports. Rev. Gray is fioishing one of the finest parsonages in the State. We preached on Sunday. Forty persons came forward and joined. The collection during our stay was $16 00 for the presiding elder and $77 00 for church purposes.

When we arrived at Archer, Rev. Allen Jones, pastor, all the officers were at the church waiting. Brother Jones, the excellent pastor, had been called home to see the last of his dying wife. Things seemed a little awkward on account of absence. Rev. J. A. Singleton is the pastor of Bronson Circuit. The Lord has blessed him and he has added many souls to his charge.

Cedar Keys is a fine little island city on the Gulf of Mexico. Rev. Lewis Johnson has a nice little chapel and quite an intelligent congregation. The good people are working hard to have their chapel repainted and carpeted. Gainesville is our next point.

Rev. Samuel H. Coleman, A. M., chairman of the East Florida Conference delegation to the next General Conference, is the pastor of the church in Gainsville. Rev. Coleman is accepted while with his congregation and is revered by all who know him. His congregation is orderly and intelligent. Prof. J. N. Clinton, son of the late Bishop Clinton, is the superintendent of the Sunday school and leader of the choir, which he has made the equal of Allen Chapel choir, Pensacola.

We move on from here to Fair Banks Circuit. Rev. Thomas W. Walker was appointed to this work but he has resigned and Rev. Joseph Stafford is in charge and is doing a good work. He will no doubt bring this work up again.

Hawthone Circuit is our next place. Rev. Amos Thompson is here holding the work with a steady hand. We preached for his people on Sunday. One person was converted and ten joined the church.

We went from here to Starke. Rev. J. G. Grimes is the pastor of this circuit. When we got there Brother Grimes had a fine carriage waiting our arrival. We were taken to the parsonage, where Rev. Grimes had prepared a fi e dinner for five spacious days which did good brother. The people, both white and colored, say Brother Grimes has done and is doing the best work of any minister that has ever been there. He has added one hundred and fifteen converts and members from other denominations to the A. M. E. Church. God bless this noble man.

Newnanville Mission, Rev. P. Johnson is the pastor. He is acceptable with his people and is doing a good work for the master.

Hopeville Circuit, Rev. James Roberts is the pastor. He has had several conversions and has added them all to his churches. The people all admire him and are doing all that they can to make it comfortable for him and his family.

There are six other points that we have visited. The pastors all are acceptable with the people and they are doing all they can to build up the Redeemer's kingdom and to bless humanity. This district is composed of young men. Your humble writer is just in his 33d year, hnt we intend, God being our helper, to make a better report at the next annual conference for this district than ever was made. We will report one thousand as an increase in the district for this year. We have up to this date seven hundred and five of our one thousand. May God bless these young heroes of the Gainsville District, in their respective fields of labor.

WHAT TO READ.

The printing press has no scruples of conscience. It will print blasphemy as readily as prayer. Thoughts thus preserved may reach the mind only through the eye; and the act may take place secretly. No parent nor companion may know what has thus been allowed to enter and influence. The act is real. The influence may be very great. There are those who would withdraw from familiar conversation in shame, who yet make little of permitting their minds secretly and silently to gloat over the page of pollution. Many more do not sufficiently select their reading. An English writer has given us a lecture on the "Companionship of Books." Books are companions. Our companion books must be wisely selected.

Our choice of reading should depend upon the object which we set before ourselves. What do we wish to be or to do? Some sort of answer to that question should he made qnite early in life. Let us name some of the objects of reading.

1. We read for pleasurp We do this just as we engage in sport or games or travel, for amusement. In all this there is no wrong, no injury, provided the impure and the evil are absent, and provided that the life is not absorbed in this pursuit. A social game may be very pleasant for a recreation, hnt his world be a sorry kind of life who was always absorbed in play. It is the same with merely pleasure reading. A bear story may do very well once in awhile, hut possibly some of our "youth's" papers should give the bears and Indians a vacation. So of novels, the stories of love and making love. Too much of this is as unhealthy as a constant picnic would be. Life is too real, and its demands too pressing to permit the excessive pursuit of moonshine, or the filling with what should be held too sacred for publicity. So of humorous reading. It is right to laugh at proper things, hnt to always laugh or try to laugh is as shocking as the condition of the man whose face was suddenly paralyzed, and a langh, as it were, frosan upon his features.

2. We read for instruction. Books and papers are not the only sources of knowledge; hnt they do give instruction. The labor of whole lives, of whole generations is treasured in a single book. We escape the uncertainty of experiment's by the experience of others. By their guidance we go away ont into the fields of knowledge. We could not do this alone. We could not do this without books. Distant countries and distant ages are spread before us. A few hours' reading every day would make any one of us a little more familiar with the great in deeds, the great men, and the great thoughts of the world. But we need particular instruction in reference to the questions which we have to answer, and the deeds we have to do. We are or are to be farmers, mechanics, professional men, citizens; we have personal duties to our friends, our kindred, to ourselves and to the world; on these things we need and should seek instruction. This will suggest enough reading to well occupy our time. This is reading for a purpose. Other reading is not likely to be very helpful. Our purpose will give an interest to our reading, and as other and wider aims open to our pursuit our reading will be extended.

3. We read for culture. We have three sets of faculties, menial, moral and physical. The physical faculties, such as seeing, hearing, are not cultivated by reading except as we are taught to preserve them and see to their health. The moral and mental faculties may be cultivated by reading. By our mental faculties we are able to think, that is, to receive knowledge to make decisions, to remember. Our knowledge is of right and truth and beauty, and of their opposites. If we make ourselves familiar with the right, the true and beautiful in reading, they will have their influence upon us. We shall be more able to think rightly, and with beauty and strength.

What is true of our mental is also true of our moral faculties. By these we are able to love and worship God. Men and women have lived who through many, and sometimes sore experiences, have learned this moral cultivation. They are our most instructive teachers. We are false to what is of first importance if we disregard their teachings. Let each one, then, set before himself an aim. Let him have a purpose which shall direct his reading. Desultory reading is the occupation of lazy men, and the wasting of opportunities. What we really need and what we may obtain by our reading is mental and moral culture, knowledge and consecional recreation.—Christian at Work.

Says Frank Siddall, "I inhale Compound Oxygen every day of my life, it invigorates the nerve centres. My capacity for work increases, and also my enjoyment of life. I go up to Drs. Starkey and Palen's office. I greet the morning, for its beneficial influences endures throughout the day. Then I come straight back and buckle to work again. I am a well man now, and continue its use only as an invigorator; hut both my wife and son have tried it (the former for serious complaints) with the most satisfactory results."

Dr. Starkay left a lucrative practice to apply the fruits of long researches; and he had advertised as he have done, he would now be a millionaire. But he and his partner, Dr. Palen, are well known. Here is judge William D. Kelley, "the father of the House of Representatives," as he is called. Ask him."

"Yes," said Judge Kelley, "I can indorse all that Mr. Siddall has said about the benefits of Compound Oxygen, for it was the means of restoring me to health after everything else had failed, and I thought I must die. I had frequent hemorrhages. But Compound Oxygen came to my notice; I tried it and was saved."

"I have known Dr. Starkey for thirty years," resumed Mr. Siddall. "He is worthy of my most sincere endorsement. But I wish he would advertise his great remedy."

Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., will send their pamphlet of cures and testimonials to anybody who will write for it.

A FINE PIANO FOR SENATOR MAHONE.

[From the Baltimore American.]

A number of prominent musical people gathered in the wareroome of Wm. Knabe & Co. yesterday to examine a piano made by the firm for Senator Billy" Mahone, of Virginia, for his Washington residence. The instrument was specially designed and built for that gentleman, and is truly a magnificent specimen of the highest musical as well as decorative art. It is a full Concert Grand, the case size and general outline as the famous grand Messrs. Knabe & Co. furnished for the White House. The case is of rich and beautiful figured rosewood, decorated with inlaid work of white holly, of unique and intricate design, carried out in the most artistic manner. Each panel has a group of different musical instruments, the whole surrounded by bands of fine marquetry work, leaves and flowers, etc. The legs and lyre are richly carved and decorated to match the body of the case, the whole producing a striking, and at the same time most refined esthetic effect. The tone is superb, striking the listener by its wonderful volume, depth and richness, combining with the greatest power a most refined and mellow character and charming singing quality. the action and touch perfectly delightful to the performer by its ease and responsiveness.

A shower of stones rattled against a house in Sumpter Co., Ga., one night last May, it is stated, as though at regular intervals. The mysterious fusilade has been repeated, even in the presence of neighbors. No explanation has yet been found.

TO ENCOURAGE SAVINGS.

Doubtless some readers of this paper are stopped from investing their savings by the difficulty of getting together a sufficient sum to make the investment worth while. Others who have sufficient to invest are hindered by the uncertainty of finding safe securities. The advertisement in another column of the J. B. Watkins Land Mortgage Company, Lawrence, Kansas, provides for both classes of investors. The company issues obligations in amounts of five dollars and upwards, bearing interest at five per cent. These obligations can be exchanged for six per cent debenture bonds in amounts of three hundred dollars and upwards. There should be no hesitancy among small investors in taking up with this liberal plan. The security offered to both large and small investors seems ample. The Company has a capital of $750 000, with surplus of $349,307, and has back of it the business experience of 17 years, during which time millions have been invested and not a dollar lost. A pamphlet with full information will be mailed on application.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE IN EPILEPSY.

Dr. A. L. TURNER, Head Physician, Bloomsburg Sanitarium, Philadelphia, Pa., says: "Have Prescribed it in several hundred cases of epilepsy, and always with good results. As an adjunct to the recuperative powers of the nervous system I know of nothing to equal it."

A new law that went into force September 15 throughout Prussia requires all keepers of restaurants at railway stations of the third and fourth class to provide a cup of good hot coffee, with cut milk or sugar, for five pfennigs (a cut is cents in our money), and the same with milk and sugar for double the price.

Pheasants have overrun Williamette Valley, Cal., and are destroying the grain crop.

Moire Francaise from $1.5 to $3 a yard.
Moire Antique from $1 to $5 a yard.
Bengalines from $1.50 to $2.50 a yard.

We have before us two sample Blakets. A large quantity of each was offered us:

one 11-4 weighs 5 lbs.
one 11-4 weighs 6 lbs.

To the careless eyes these two Blankets look alike. They are the same size, and each is equally well made, but one contains one pound more of pure wool than the other.

A question came up: "Shall we follow in the common track of the trade and make all we can out of our customers by charging $1 too much for the 5 lb. Blankets, or shall we throw away $1 and charge $5 for the 6 lb. Blankets?"

52 cases of 6 lb. Blankets, the best all-wool Blankets ever offered by us at $5 a pair. We give you the $1. You get 6 lbs. instead of 5 lbs. of wool. What wonder that you have taken more than half of the 52 cases in the little time they have been here!

About 25 cases left. May take a week for them to go; at most two weeks.

This is a fair sample of our Blanket prices. All grades and qualities for little beds or big ones. $1 to $38 a pair.

THE PAST two or three months have developed a number of revolting crimes, three of men murdering their parents, all members of the good race.

IT WAS Storer College, not Shorter, as misprinted last week, that the old Anti-slavery Society aided in conjunction with Wilberforce University.

THE IGNORANCE of Scripture terms and terms used generally in prayer, exhibited by some men is almost intolerable. As to biblical geography there is oriminal shortcoming.

THE STAR OF ZION is quite right in its inference that the CHRISTIAN RECORDER meant to speak of Hayes and Cleveland as the only living representatives of United States Presidents.

THE MANAGER has published a form of class-book that will supercede the old one in nearly every case with a class-leader who sees it. The Manager is expecting numerous and large orders.

HOSANNA CHURCH, East Camden, Rev. F. F. Smith, pastor, has been closed for repairs. The second quarterly meeting for the year was held there 9th inst. The church is said to be in very fair condition.

MINISTERS are ordering "The Life of Richard Allen," written by himself, and "Tanner's Outlines of the History of the A. M. E. Church." Both furnish as good data as can be found for arrangiog to celebrate the centennial of African Methodism.

IT IS stated that the Revs. T. T. B. Reed and W. B. Derrick, D.D., of the New York Conference, are about to launch out in a newspaper venture, the "Churchman." Dr. Derrick has had some journalistic experience.

IN SPEAKING of the matter of mechanical trades, people in the North often forget that colored men in the South are engaged in almost all trades, and that railroad and telegraph constructions there are not nearly all done by white men.

"O, FOR ITALICS!" This is Dr. Johnson's plea. We manage to give him a few, but really pity the reader who would not give all the emphasis required without the italics. Snob a one would certainly be top dull to know the design of the italics.

THE CHURCH is reaching an enthusiasm in respect to centennial month, November, that assures us that there will be a general participation in the celebration of this instance of our race variety organizing strongly and prosecuting a plan wisely and patiently.

THE PHILADELPHIA PREACHERS' Meeting has made a splendid beginning of the year's work. Monday, 3rd inst., the Rev. L. J. Coppin read an attractive, strong paper before the meeting, touching the subject of the African-American's relation to national jubilees and celebrations in the United States.

THE INTRODUCTION of the order of service and alternate reading of Scriptures in public worship tests our knowledge of Scripture and of the art of reading. It is not always refreshing to turn to one's neighbor to see where he is looking for the sixth chapeter of Romans, to read in turn with the pastor.

MR. GEORGE E. WOODSON, a young preacher of Bethel Church, Philadelphia, and also superintendent of the Bethel Sunday school, left Philadelphia for Wilberforce this week. Bethel Church, as usual, showed a noble spirit; the Sunday school presented their superintendent with a purse of $50 and the church with a like sum.

COULD NOT our good brethren, the presiding elders, collect saliant points from the general work in their districts, as church building, revivals, Sunday school changes, numbers added to these churches, state of progress and the general prosperity of the colored people without publishing the name of every place in their districts and every preacher and his excellencies?

BAD MANNERS, it is sometimes called, for younger ministers to speak critically of older ones, or for ministers who are chief pastors. This should not be so regarded; provided they speak in the Christian spirit. For any man to imagine that he can escape criticism or that he ought to do so is a delusion. It is well for us that we are critioised. A man of good sense and good morals is his own severest critic.

REV. L. C. CHAMBERS held quarterly meeting last Sunday with great satisfaction to all concerned. Elder Chambers appears to be doing a good work in his present pastorate, as he has been wont to do elsewhere. A short time ago he made an especial effort to raise between two and three hundred dollars with which to relieve the church of old debts that had amounted to that sum. The effort was successful and Zion Mission is free from indebtedness.

THE NEW YORK FREEMAN gives its name up to "The Age," and its brilliant and strong editor, Mr. T. T. Fortune, gives his chair up to Mr. E. Fortune, Jr., though, we are well pleased to say, he will write editorials and communications to the "Age." But the Age is Republican straight; the Freeman was not so. Mr. T. T. Fortune has done much to elevate colored newspaper life. We wish Mr. E. Fortune and the Age all the success that Mr. T. T. Fortune and the Freeman have enjoyed.

TANNER'S Outlines of the History of African Methodism is for sale at our Publishing House. This book gives in a nutshell prominent facts in the history of the A. M. E. Church. Those who appreciate the marvelous, providential life that God has been pleased to give this branch of the great vine, will enrich their thoughts and refresh them for centennial addresses by reading this work. Price, $1; Life of Richard Allen and Tanner's Outlines together, $1.25.

MINISTERS IN the M. E. Church have on foot a movement to raise moneys by voluntary contributions to purchase the library of about six hundred volumes, left by the late Dr. Marshall W. Taylor, and place them in their University at New Orleans, in order that the results of such sale shall go toward discharging the balance of $1,500 owing on Dr. Taylor's property in Indianapolis, Ind. This is a generous and easy undertaking that will doubtless succeed.

RECENTLY there has begun to be considerable excitement in financial circles concerning the condition of business and money. A considerable panic has been feared. The United States Secretary of the Treasury is said to have relieved this uneasiness, to some extent, by calling in government bonds before maturity. This relief, however, cannot be depended up. By the history of financial life we must stand warned of the liability of the wild and rash movements of capital and the stubborn standing of labor under league orders, to culminate in a panic sooner or later.

LAMENTING, as everyone must do, the early death of Dr. M. W. Taylor, of the Southwestern Advocate we rejoice at the temporary succession of Dr. A. E. P. Albert to the chair thus made vacant. Brother Albert is a scholarly, brainy, Christian gentleman. The Advocate will grow no weaker. He was made a competitor for the position at their late General Conference. He is a member of the Book Committee, which will at its next meeting fill the editorial chair permanently for the remainder of the quadrennium; in which event Dr. Albert is likely to be the man.

THE SOUTHERN LEADER intimates that there is some doubt about the East Florida Conference re-electing the delegates to General Conference that it elected last. The Leader does not see the term re-elect, but this is what in fact it must be; for the law demands that all ministerial delegates to General Conference shall be elected, not confirmed, by the last conference sitting before the General Conference. There is probably more barm than good done by this advance movement. Had this year, according to law, been given those conferences that elected last fall, there would have probably been more thought exercised relative to the General Conference than there has been. Eight or more men, instead of four, would have been exercised about it. These four themselves would have been likely to be more engaged than they have been in General Conference considerations.

SUNDAY FUNERALS are strongly condemned by many, but, so strong is the tendency to make great parade and display on these occasions, and so much greater is the leisure of the masses to observe that display on Sunday than on other days, that nearly everyone has to yield to the pressure and countenance funerals deferred to Sunday. It is pleasant to reflect on the fact that some progress is being made in lessening the number of Sunday funerals, but it comes from the undertaker's movement, they demanding Sunday for rest.

The connection of many church members with societies that bring the bodies of their friends to church buildings for burial does not aid this needed reform. For the dazzling tinsel and mysterious movements of these fraternities excite an interest that can be more largely enjoyed on Sunday than on other days. One of the results of this is to deprive the Christian Sunday of much of its sanctity and the Christian Church of much of its power.

THE CONSERVATOR is mistaken; the A. M. E. General Conference meets in Indianapolis. Well, we are for prohibition all the time and have voted in that direction, but have little hope of the present political movement in that direction accomplishing that which it claims to have for its object. It will do something, of course. In speaking thus we are not actuated by a superstitious reverence for any other political party. Here is what we also believe, Brother Hall, that the A. M. E. General Conference can accomplish very much in building up a manly hatred for intoxicants and a list of evils connected with them. The laws in our Church could be somewhat stronger and our example as churchmen could be greatly improved respecting this subject; yet, comparatively, our Church is temperate. If any power can prevent anyone from making or selling strong drink it should be encouraged; for this ends the drinking of strong drink. But if we could find a power able to bind the raging passion for drink we should rather patronize it; as then the subject would be master of his ease and not a slave to civil law. Laws once enacted may be reversed soon. It is well, though, to keep the sharp edged tools out of children's way.

OUR READERS will observe in Elder Mixon's article the statement that Prof. Connell is preparing a school reader. This is a good step if the book should be well chosen and well written so far as theory is concerned and may accomplish considerable in practice, though it is probable that the arrogance, avarice and habit of those who are controlling free schools will prevent such a book from having its proper place. Where "mixed" schools pertain it could not have any chance.

To those reading our popular school readers it is plain that the proper education of our children demands a great modification in school literature. The most that can be found in any readers that have come under our notice in favor of our variety is that it is characterized by docility, humor and some susceptibility to learning, while a large majority of these books speak of the negro as a subject of amusement for children, or merely mention him anthropologically. His good deeds, his heroic deeds, his best face, his best picture, his religious trust and righteous living are so rarely, that we may say are never, mentioned.

The heroic L'Ouverture, the Christian Allen, the philosophic Banneker, the skillful Aldridge, the eloquent Douglass, the devoted Mrs. Harper, the heroic Ellen Craft, the learned and faithful Mrs. Coppin, have all lived and will die without being presented to the growing generations as inspiring examples of what degree of greatness men and women of their own rare class have attained. This phase of popular education must be modified or the class thus misrepresented and ignored must forever remain where they are. Let school books ridicule the Irishman, how quickly the resentment is felt and how quickly the facts of history are brought up in contradiction, but school books no longer attempt this. Let school books that have nothing to say in favor or at least in palliation of the "lost cause" attempt circulation in Southern States. They could not live. One of the most popular reading books of our times has severe insults for the negro. One of the most popular geographies, studied daily by thousands of black children by the side of white children, speaking of the races, says some of the little negroes have shown competency to learn; as if a majority had not done so.

If Prof. Council makes us a good book, how shall we have it brought into use?

BARRELS FOR MONEY.

What is nicer for collecting money on account of churches than the use of small wooden barrels, costing from three to five cents each? Many churches are gathering moneys that way fast. Those barrels are for sale at the A. M. E. Book Rooms, from 2 cents to 8 cents each by express, rates paid by the receiver. Send in your orders. Try them.

BISHOP ALLEN'S SUGGESTIVE WORDS.

In his autobiography, page 11, Richard Allen says, "Many of the ministers were set apart in holy orders at this conference (the M. E. Conference of 1784) and were said to be entitled to the GOWN. I have thought religion has been declining in the Church ever since."

LIFE OF RICHARD ALLEN.

More than fifty-five years ago this sketch was written by the Bishop himself. It is an interesting work, showing the grit and tendencies of one of the greatest men of the century. It shows the interest taken by Richard Allen in the suffering among others than his own people. It also shows, by personal letters addressed to him, what prominent contemporaneous men thought of Richard Allen. In these times of centennial preparations this book has suddenly sprung into demand. Send in your orders to the Manager. Price, 50 cents per copy, by mail.

ANOTHER GIFT TO BETHEL, PHILADELPHIA.

Two weeks ago the gift of $50 each by two Englishmen at Bethel was mentioned in these columns. Last Sunday night the pastor, speaking about it, wishing they might drop in again while the church was making up a $50 purse for its young Wilberforce student, referred to elsewhere, when a minister of the A. M. E. Church, sitting in the congregation, arose and said we need not wait for men to come all the way from England to give $50: if Mr. Woodson would come to his office Monday morning, he would give him $50. Thus our good Sunday School Secretary, Rev. C. S. Smith, did what any one of a thousand African Methodists could do—gave to the sacred cause of education outright, $50.

AMERICAN SLAVERY IN NO SENSE BEFRIENDED THE NEGRO.

It requires a quite refined reasoning by right thinking and broad minded Africo-Americans, in speaking of the advantages of our present condition over that of Africans, to avoid paying a tribute to slavery and slave-holders, thus dishonoring God, whose resources and methods are infinite, by saying "even slavery has been a benefit to us." This sort of calvinism or fatalism denies the crime of slavery, disposes of moral human responsibility and nullifies moral distinction. It forgets that we were enslaved by a moral code that sanctioned our remaining enslaved hopelessly forever; that the Bible, the guiding star to universal liberty and universal purity, was made the basis of this moral system; and God, the giver of the Bible, the author of slavery, having planted the seeds that naturally produced it in the very system and relations of the children of men.

They enable the people who so cruelly held us in servitude two hundred and forty-four years to chuckle over their work of delusion, having deluded both themselves and us. They, these fatalists, assist in stamping us with the marks of natural inferiority and justify the inoculation of the old demon to sneak back upon us. They virtually proclaim slavery as the proper method to use in the elevation and correction of the degraded race varieties.

Our present condition may be better than that of our African brethren, but, were it not for the interposition of that "law that is above all the enactments of human codes," we ought to hate the men and their memory who brought us into the conditions immediately underlying this. Thanks to God for this higher law and that other still higher law "that ye love your enemies." Forgiveness may find a place in our hearts, but we still regard them as our enemies and their methods, instead of the best, as the vilest that they could have chosen. If those nearest related to them attempt to mitigate their crime against us, let us not kiss the hand that smites us, but resent it. If they whine about the awful and mysterious providence that God brought us through let us discard it and glorify his name by setting forth a more excellent way. Let us remind them that their fathers were unwilling at any time to acknowledge their wonderful work under a wonderful providence completed, excepting a few noble cases, for which God be praised; that even now they, these heirs of their fathers, do not consider us worthy of absolute freedom; that they swear we shall never see the promised land whither we are journeying; that they impede our progress to it, in accordance with their oath, then ask them, is this, too, a part of the ways of providence? There are many instances of those men, after glorifying our progress, stopping with "but, but, but," "of course, of course, they, the Africo-American, cannot become our equals. God has drawn the inexcusable line of demarkation in their color." Such men would see their logic rebuked every time they looked upon a flock of sheep or a herd of hogs, cattle, or horses, were it not for the very fact of their unreasonableness. But this is in keeping with the argument that slavery was our friend.

Away with the horrible nonsense that our slavery was divinely inspired; that it was God's method or a proper method at all. We invite these philosophers to produce a single fact warranting hopeless and interminable slavery as one of the means of disciplining all nations, and we must admit that American slavery meant to be interminable. The miscarrying of this meaning is just where Divine providence connects itself with the inexcusable scheme. Then "let my people go," rang out upon the slave-holding conscience more than two hundred years; that was providence. It melted some hearts; that was providence. It sent desolation and destruction upon the enslavers; that was providence. It brought us out with a high hand and an outstretched arm and that was deliverance. It is energising us and rendering us hardy citizens; that means go forward to the greatest heights attainable in all the spheres and facts of American citizenship.

THE A. M. E. REVIEW.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

Owing to the tardiness of the printers the A. M. E. Church Review will be delayed in reaching its subscribers. No one regrets this more than the editor, but the friends may rest assured that the excellence of the number will, in a sense, atone for the delay.

The Rev. B. W. Hammonds is pastor of the A. M. E. Church at Paris, Ill.

Personal.

—Rev. R. G. Mortimer, M.D., is pastor at Xenia, O.

—We had a call from Rev. J. H. Whitaker, of Mt. Holly, N. J.

—Rev. S. B. Williams has been spending several weeks in New Jersey.

—Rev. J. Wesley Hoffman commences the study of theology at Harvard this fall.

—The only colored chief justice in the world is Sir Conrad Reeves, of Windward Island, W. I.

—Rev. J. B. Stansberry holds quarterly meeting at Mt. Pisgah, West Philadelphia, Sunday, 16th inst.

—Mr. W. R. Arthur, formerly student of Wilberforce University, is studying medicine at Howard University.

—Dr. Tanner has returned from an extensive Western tour among the conferences in the interest of the A. M. E. Review.

—Rev. T. A. Moore, of Columbia, assisted Rev. W. H. Davis in a glorious quarterly meeting at Darby, Pa., October 9th.

—Miss Flora Batson, the popular singer of Providence, will sing at Mt. Pisgah Church, West Philadelphia, next Sunday night.

—Miss Louisa A. Smith, a young colored lady of ability, of Washington, D. C., is said to be writing a new drama.

—Huntsville Gazette.

—Revs. W. H. Bryant and I. S. A. Murphy have entered the Episcopal Divinity School at Philadelphia. That is a good step, brethren.

—Dr. Embry is attending the Kansas Conference at Omaha, Neb. The doctor has had poor health while out, but is making a good record —The ministerial delegates of the Kentucky Conference to the General Conference are Revs. W. Buckner, J. M. Turner and J. M. Frazer.

—The ministerial delegates to General Conference from the Pittsburgh Conference are Revs. C. Asbury, D.D., W. H. Brown and W. S. Lowry.

—The North Ohio Conference elected Revs. T. H. Jackson, D.D., R. A. Johnson and John Dickerson ministerial delegates to General Conference.

—Rev. J. W. Cooper, of Burlington, N. J., will preach for Rev. J. B. Stansherry at 3 P. M., Sunday, 16th inst., and Rev. J. W. Beckett at night, the same day.

—Rev. Bird Wilkins, of Bethesda church, Chicago, Ill., has been offered $100 per night to deliver a series of ten lectures for the Rockport Lecture Association.

—Revs. R. Harper, B.D., B. F. Porter, M.D., and I. H. Welch, D.D., are the ministerial delegates to represent the West Kentucky Conference in General Conference.

—Wm. H. Barnes, of St. John's, Baltimore, and J. A. Simmes, of Metropolitan, Washington, D. C., were elected delegates to the General Conference, which meets in Indianapolis next May.

—A colored convict employed in a brick yard at Columbia, S. C., the 23d, had his companions build him into the kiln, close to the top, where he remained until night, when he made his escape.

—Bishop Miles, of the C. M. E. Church, at one of his conferences recently lectured his ministers against neglecting to pay their debts. The press has passed it around as an act of a Bishop of the A. M. E. Church.

—Rev. J. H. Bean, National Grand Pelate of the National Grand Tabernacle of North America, returned last Saturday from a trip to Portsmouth, Va., where he had been to assist in completing the organization of said order.

—Prof. John T. Roberts is an earnest worker in the Charles Street Church, Boston. Having had charge of the musical department, he has raised the standard of music in the choir so that it is considered equal to that of almost any of the white sister churches.

—Mr. Fred. P. White, the organist of Charles Street Church, Boston, is a musician whose ability is recognised in the highest musical circles of Boston. Although a young man, he composes and arranges the music for an orchestra and band of twenty-five pieces.

—The chorister of Mt. Pisgah Church, Philadelphia, may sometimes be found pumping the organ when the regular operator at that work is absent; when the organist is late he is seated at the instrument, and when all are at their posts he is vigorously leading them in song.

—Mr. Henry O. Tanner has photographed the log cabin in which our Bishop Wayman was born. The Bishop and an elder brother stand in front of the building. Mr. Tanner also photographed in a group the six Bishops who met at Atlantic City last summer. The work is well executed.

Notes on Education.

Some of our good Wilberforce friends say the CHRISTIAN RECORDER was mistaken about the new school district being based on the color line. All right.

Dr. J. H. Magee, who has lately started a night school in this city, is the possessor of a first-class certificate as a teacher, from the county superintendent of Massac County, Illinois.—Conservator.

It is but a sub-district. If its establishment had no reference to the color of a large majority of the people who are considered, an article from President Mitchell or one of the professors setting forth the ground of its formation would make interesting matter for many of our readers.

The school year which opens next Monday in our State should be a year of marked progress in our common schools. Now that we have a State Normal School, parents should make every effort to allow their children to complete the lower course in order that those who intend to teach may receive the higher training. Only a thorough workman can do thorough work.—Southern (Fla.) Leader.

Some experienced educators think that a good many teachers in the public schools make a mistake in not urging the scholars to talk more—the laconic reply of "yes" or "no" on the part of a scholar not being conducive to the process of thinking. Questions should be put in such a manner by the teacher that the pupil will be bound to use one or more sentences, thus exercising the mind more and acquiring a better knowledge of the construction of the English language.—New York Epoch.

Literature.

"Paney" for October is a beauty. The frontispiece illustration, "Nellie Ayers and Her Gray-eyed Cat," is followed by a very attractive set of pictures to amuse and instruct children. Paney is always pure in all respects. This number is no exception to the rule. We have never observed any trashy or light literature in Paney. Your children would not only enjoy it, but profit by it.

Porter & Coates, Philadelphia, have issued "The Children of Silence; or the Story of the Deaf," by Joseph A. Seiss, D.D., LL.D. Price, $1 00. The book is devoted to a popular account of Deaf Mutes—their numbers, the causes most prolific in their production, the nature and effects of their peculiar disability, how they were regarded in former ages, what can be done for them, together with sketches of the efforts in various periods and nations to instruct and educate them, the methods employed to teach them, and what the present century has developed for their relief. Discussions and ample statistics respecting the mischiefs resulting from the intermarriage of blood-relatives, the intermarriage of deaf-mutes, the operation of the laws of heredity and gestation, and kindred questions of living interest and importance to all, are likewise embraced.

From the same house comes "The Heart of Merrie England," by the Rev. James S. Stone, D.D., 12mo, cloth, extra, $1 75. A better and more thoughtful book of travels in the Mother country has not appeared for a long time. Though to "the manor born," and consequently well acquainted with the manners and customs of her people, the greater portion of his life has been passed in the new world, and the author in a recent trip to the old country walked through the green lanes and bye-paths of "Merrie England," with all his love for the old world quickened by his life in the new, and the result has been a work of the greatest interest and value. Sketches of persons and places in the remote midland districts of England, which can scarcely fail to interest those who love the history, antiquities and literature of the old land, as well as to foster tender memories and to strengthen loving ties. With a few exceptions, the ground gone over is entirely new. The folk lorist and the antiquary will find much that is fresh and entertaining; the student of human nature will delight in descriptions of persons, customs, traditions and superstitions. A glance at the contents will show the value of the book. There are extracts from ancient parish registers, quaint and curious, bits of local and family history, word-pictures of rare or interesting scenery, stories of old, out-of-the-way churches, glimpses at political and social customs, reminiscences of country life and of ancient times, legends, manners and strange things—told by one who is in every way familiar with that of which he writes. Alike in the drawing-room and in the study, the book will be found both from the attractiveness of its subject and the originality of its matter, to have a worth more than ordinary.

Our Exchanges.

Camp-meetings are over for this year. Good, very good! Hope they will stay over.—S. S. Helper.

We have what is technically termed presiding elders, appointed by the Bishop, but they are presiding elders which do not preside.—Star of Zion.

To profess to be, is one thing, and to be is another. There are many who profess, but a large proportion of them do not live up to their profession, and thus play the hypocrite.—Star of Zion.

While the Northern press is engaged eagerly grasping all the news in detail about the Texas insurrection, they should remember the sufferings colored people have endured in the South, and candidly and impartially consider the query: What would any race have done under the 18 years' fire of similar ostracism and injustice.—Phila. Tribune.

It is thought by some of the ministers that the delegates elected to the General Conference at Lake City, last winter, will not all be confirmed by the Pataka Conference next winter. Some lively times are expected. It would be a great injury to the Church to allow unworthy preachers to go as delegates who are to vote for new Bishops.—Southern Leader.

Worse and worse. We are informed that a party given by some respectable citizens on Wednesday evening last was ordered to break up at 10 o'clock. If the police authorities intend to provoke a row let them attempt to disturb our people in their own premises for which they pay taxes to support such. We won't submit to this, mark you!—Charleston Recorder.

How noble would be the sentiment, how elevating the influence and how grand would be the results if the General Conference of the A. M. E. Church which meets next year at St. Louis should not only declare in favor of prohibition but should decree and inaugurate an aggressive warfare against whiskey. Here is an opportunity for the largest and most influential organization among colored people to be the first of any church to declare as a body in favor of the second emancipation, as the M. E. Church was the first (1844) to declare as a body in favor of the abolition of slavery. Nearly all the delegates to the A. M. E. Conference have been elected, now let the press who favor prohibition canvass the matter and let an influence in favor of such a declaration. What say you, Freeman, Free Lance, Justice, Living Way, CHRISTIAN RECORDER, Blade, Southern Recorder, et al?—The Conservator.

OUR WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Ida Lewis, the heroine of Lime Rock, lives alone in the light-house, her parents being dead and her brother gone to follow the sea. Miss Lewis saved thirteen lives between 1869 and 1881. She does all her own housework, keeps the light trimmed and burning, and finds time to raise a few flowers in the crevices of the rocks.

The Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company deserves the thanks of women for having set aside the rule of exclusion heretofore adopted by life insurance companies. Also for having employed two thoroughly competent women physicians to make the needed examinations. Women are on an equality in this company in the terms and conditions of life insurance.

Miss Elaine Goodale, who is spending the first vacation she has allowed herself since she began work among the Indians in lecturing on the Indian question in the East, is doing her best to elevate the tone of the day schools maintained on reservations. At Lower Brule, Dak., where some 1,800 Indians are settled, she has had full classes and unusual success. She is there but sixty miles or so from Miss Grace Howard, daughter of Joe Howard, the journalist, who, at Crow Creek, has undertaken a kindred work, the introduction of simple remunerative industries among Indian girls.

Miss Lucy Salmon, the new Professor of History at Vassar College, is a woman with a future. Her book, "The Appointing Power of the President," is the clearest monograph that has appeared on that difficult subject, and is a noteworthy production for one of the non-political sex. Miss Salmon is a graduate of Michigan University and a fellow of Bryn Mawr College. It is curious, by the way, that seven of the ten fellowships open to competition in that woman's college are held by graduates of co-educational schools. Miss Salmon is fine-looking, with a clear, open face, physically and mentally healthy, and steadfast looking.

Married.

At the Macedonia parsonage, Camden, N. J., Oct. 6th, the Rev. G. M. Witten united in holy wedlock Mr. Alfred Price and Miss Eliza A. Vance. On the same evening by the same minister were united Mr. John Lombard, of Newport, Del., and Miss Elizabeth Harris; also, the same place and date Elder Witten married Mr. Addison Rowland and Miss Fannie Pollard.

ON THE WING.

BY REV. W. H. HEARD.

MR. EDITOR:—September 21st found me up early on my way to Columbia, S. C., to attend a meeting of the Board of Trustees. At 10:45 A. M. we are in the city. "All out for Columbia," is the cry. Rev S. H. Jefferson, the active Vice-president of the Board, is at the depot; greets us and says, "Remain, perhaps P. W. and N. B are on that train coming on the Northwestern Railroad." I informed him P. W. Jefferson was in Charleston sick with the fever. The train arrives, not a trustee aboard, but Rev. M. B. Salter had arrived. Rev. B. H. Williams was in the city on a furlough. We counted noses, found a quorum present, roll called, secretary pro tem elected in the person of Rev. R. E. Wall. The business looking to the opening session transacted carefully and prayerfully, arrangements for opening the theological department effected. Rev. J. H. Jones, A.B., B.D., of Lynn, Mass., elected Dean and Professor of logic. Hebrew and intellectual philosophy; Rev. R. E. Wall to the lectureship on ethics and moral science; Rev. W. H. Heard to that of systematic theology; Rev. M. B. Salter for practical theology and homiletics; Rev. S. H. Jefferson fills the chair of "Church History and Church Polity;" Rev. B. H. Williams on sacred geography and rhetoric. We mean to go to work and have each of these brethren to deliver lectures, save Prof. Jones, who is expected to conduct the department, assisted by Revs. S. H. Jefferson and R. E. Wall daily in his work. Bethel looked as natural as ever. The pastor was trying hard to pay off the little debt and get ready for conference.

Rev S. H. Jefferson spoke very encouragingly of the work in the upper conference, as we of the South Carolina call it.

We were disappointed at not having the presence of Revs. I. S. Lee and C. M. Crosby because they were so near and could have gotten there at a small cost and in a short time. After spending four hours in session we adjourned to the residence of Rev. S. H. Jefferson and spent a short, but a very pleasant, session around his dining table to our profit and comfort. Mrs. Jefferson knows the needs of a hungry Methodist preacher. After dinner we discussed the Educational law and it was agreed it must be changed in 1888. As South Carolina and Georgia were each important States and having men who have done so much to advance African Methodism, it was agreed that Dr. Johnson left out one of the strongest men for the Bishopric from his catalogue of eight. This man lives in Georgia. In Columbia and Darling, and finding time to raise a few flowers in the crevices of the rocks.

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "Church union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E. Church and African M. E. Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15–17, 1885 In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in May, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, so to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date fixed. Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

We again call the attention of the pastors and presiding elders to the form of Warranty Deed we have prepared and published for general use in the purchase of church properties. The form is simple, and plain as plain can be, yet it is believed to cover every point in the law. It was drawn by an old experienced attorney, with our Discipline before him. Price, 25 cents per copy, or 5 for $1.00.

Address, J. C. EMBRY,
Box 900, Philadelphia, Pa.

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION NOTICE.

The Quarterlies and the Lesson Papers for the fourth quarter are now ready for distribution. Parties will please send their orders without delay. All Sunday school supplies must be paid for in advance. Address

Rev. C. S. SMITH,
Nashville, Tenn.

NOTICE.

To Missouri Conference and General Officers:

Those pastors who have candidates for admission or expect to be accompanied by their wives; or General Officers who intend being present at our annual conference, October 26, 1887, will please inform me at once, and oblige yours,

G. H. SHAFFER,
St. Paul's Chapel, St. Louis, Mo.

NOTICE.

To the brethren of the New Jersey Conference: The History of the New Jersey Conference is being pushed through the press. The brethren who have failed to send their pictures and money for cuts for the same will please do so immediately, if you fail, please do not accuse me of partiality; also please send on your amount of subscription.

J. H. MORGAN.

NOTICE.

All candidates for admission into the Alabama Conference must put in their appearance at Enfaula, Ala., Tuesday morning, November 29, 1887, for examination; and, also, all those on the first year's study, must be present at the same time. Positively the committee will not examine any candidates after Tuesday morning. The conference will meet on Wednesday morning, 30th, and our reports must be ready.

E. H. DIXON, Chairman,

A. W. WATMAN,
Presiding Bishop.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

The brethren of the Kansas Conference, together with all the General Officers, and all other ministers who anticipate attending the Kansas Conference at Omaha, Neb., October 12, are cordially invited to bring their wives with them. You will find the people of Omaha "given to hospitality." Ample provision will be made for the entertainment of the conference, and all who favor us with their visits will find abundant accommodation. Please notify us at once by postal card or letter so that we can prepare for you. Address,

Yours faithfully,
P. A. HUBBARD.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular, the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E. Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat;"

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitians, under Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and Santo Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E. Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishop J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, R. B. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

1. The History of Bethel A. M. E Church, of Philadelphia, Pa., by Rev. J. W. Beckett, B. D.

2. The Pioneer Preacher and Layman of the East.—Bishop J. P. Campbell.

3. The Pioneers of the South and West in 1848 and Beyond.—J. M. Brown.

4. The Pioneers of the Southeast.—Bishop H. M. Turner.

5. The Father of the Alabama Conference and his work.—Rev. M. E. Bryant.

6 The Pioneers to Gold Coast.—T. M. D Ward and J. B. Hubbard.

7. The A. M. E. Church from Allegheny Mountains to the Mississippi.—T. H. Jackson.

8 A M E. Church beyond the Mississippi.—J. M. Wilkerson, John Turner.

9. The Organizing and Developing Power of the A. M. E. Church.—B. T. Tanner.

10. The Advancement of the Intellectual Standing of the Ministry of the A M E. Church.—Bishop D. A. Payne.

11. The A. M. E. Church and its Relation to the Elevation of the Race.—T. G. Steward.

12. The Mission of the A. M. E Church to the Darker Races of the Earth.—J. M. Townsend.

13. The A. M. E. Church in Texas.—Richard Haywood, Emanuel Hammit, A. Grant, Frank Green, Henry Wilnite, W. B. Carson.

BENJAMIN W. ARNETT, Secretary.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that services be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J P. Campbell, 1923 North Seventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes.

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The secretaries of the Conferences that have elected ministerial and lay delegates to the General conference to convene at Indianapolis, Ind., May, 1888, are hereby urgently requested to forward, at once, names of said delegates, and name of conference. The conferences that have not yet elected said delegates, secretaries are requested to forward names of delegates and name of conference at their earliest opportunity. We are anxious to push the work of preparation as fast as possible. Please write names plainly that there be no mistakes.

Delegates bringing their wives, and all visiting brethren not directly connected with the Conference, must come prepared to pay for board and lodging. We shall provide for members of the General Conference only.

Direct all communications to John W. Gazaway, 214 West Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind.

OFFICE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL WHO HAVE BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS WITH THIS DEPARTMENT.

READ, RE-READ AND REMEMBER.

1st. We do not take postage stamps. If you cannot obtain Post Office Money Order, which is the safest method to send money, you can send by registered letter. These are issued by every post office in the United States. If your postmaster insists on selling you stamps you insist the more on having him register your letter.

2nd. Send the exact amount of money required to pay for the goods you order. When this is not done our rule is to send that amount of supplies which the money sent will pay for.

3rd. When you order from us, always write plainly at the bottom of your letter the place where you wish your supplies sent. Very often persons write us an order from one place on a circuit desiring it sent to some other place, and do not mention this very important fact.

4th. For all money sent to us for Sunday school literature we send a postal card receipt, numbered. If your order is delayed, or if there is any irregularity concerning it, write to us about it, but be sure to give the number of your receipt card and the name of the person who sent the order or signed his name to it. When a pastor writes to us that his superintendent sent us money, etc., we do not know who is his superintendent unless he writes us his name. Always send the names of persons and not names of churches, schools, circuits, stations, etc.

5th. Sign your name to your communication. We cannot tell who sent a letter to us when there is no name signed to it.

6th. Write your name in large, plain letters. Avoid flourishing It is useless and often renders obscure what would otherwise be plain writing.

7th. Never send a postal note, money order or express package without any instruction accompanying it. How do we know what to do with money sent thus?

8th. We have lost a great deal of money by sending supplies C. O. D. because the parties whom we thus favored failed to take them from the express office. In consequence of this neglect and absolute loss which we have borne because of it, we have decided to positively refuse to grant any more C. O. D. favors to anyone. Please do not request them.

9th. Our business is conducted on a strictly cash basis. If you are not familiar with our prices write to us when you will be pleased to, and we will freely quote them or send you a catalogue, price list, blank and return envelope.

10th. Always collect your money for supplies and have it appropriated for them in best condition possible before the beginning of each quarter this will prevent much delay. Very often orders do not arrive until one-half or two-thirds of the quarter is past; in which case we have to print an extra amount of literature for the benefit of two or three persons or else lay ourselves liable to a "raking over" by them.

11th. When the Teachers' and Scholars' quarterly, the Juvenile and Gem Lesson Papers are ordered, they are rolled in one package together. The catechisms, song books, primary lessons, reward cards and other such matter are never in one wrapper. When you order both inquire for two packages at the post office.

12th If your city has the free delivery system have your mail directed to the street and number. Unless you do this it will be returned to us while you are abusing us for neglect.

13th. Every pastor is hereby earnestly requested to have some one, who is permanently located in his work, elected Sunday school supply clerk, whose duty it shall be to send for all orders for his Sunday school supplies.

We hope this will be done at once by each pastor and that he will send us the name of the one elected to this office. This method of communicating with us through a person who has permanent location in a place will lessen difficulty and greatly facilitate intercourse between us and our patrons. It is hoped that this request will receive immediate attention. We have purchased new books in which to record the names of Sunday school supply clerks and we anxiously await their names. A postal card will serve for this purpose. Hoping that the above instructions will be received with the kindly spirit with which they are given, and praying the blessing of Almighty God upon all those who are, with us, intrusted with the children's welfare. Fraternally,

C. S. SMITH.

National Colored Teachers' Bureau
ESTABLISHED IN 1886.
WILBERFORCE, OHIO.

This Bureau has been organized to meet the wants of the Colored Teachers of the country, by securing positions for all applicants, and to supply any demand for competent instructors. Our fold is the country, and our sheep the entire educational work. For particulars address

NAT. COL. TEACHERS' BUREAU,
Wilberforce Green Co., O

WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY.

Our school will open Wednesday, September 7th, 1887. The university is situated three and a half miles from Xenia, on the Columbus Pike, and three-fourths of a mile from Fairfield Station. The locality is remarkably healthy and pleasant. The buildings are in good repair, heating and not a few have received benefit from them. Our capacity for training the young is not surpassed by any like institution in the land. Now, if you want a thorough education, and one that will enable you to walk quite a little "way," and do some light work, you will never regret it. For any further information address the President, S. T. Mitchell, or

LESSON HELPS IN FOUR GRADES.

THE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY. A thirty-six page pamphlet devoted to lesson helps for teachers and older scholars. The value is enhanced by the introduction of appropriate forms for opening and closing exercises, hymns and tunes, maps, dictionary of proper names, etc. 20c

THE SCHOLAR'S QUARTERLY. Similar to the above, but with fewer helps and shapes to adapt it to the wants of scholars in the main school. It is marvelously cheap. Five or more copies to one address, per year, 5 cents each. 20c

THE JUVENILE LESSON PAPER is a four page weekly, designed for younger scholars who have outgrown the infant class, but who retain their fondness for pictures and simple stories. 20c per year.

THE GEM LESSON PAPER is a beautiful lesson sheet, four pages handsomely illustrated and printed. Each number contains besides the lesson, a page or more of "baby-land" tale. All for 3 cents a year, where five or more copies are sent to one address. 15c

THE CHILD'S RECORDER, now beginning its eighth volume with a larger issue than ever before, offers superior attractions for the coming year. With additional editorial force, and a list of regular contributors skilled in the style of writing required by the young, no pains will be spared to put this publication abreast with the foremost of its class.

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE.

MRS. MARY A. MCCLURE, Columbus, Kansas, writes: "I addressed you in November, 1884, in regard to my health, being afflicted with liver disease, and heart trouble, and was then advised to use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription and Pellets. I used one bottle of the 'Prescription,' five of the 'Discovery,' and four of the 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' My health began to improve under the use of your medicine, and my strength came back. My difficulties have all disappeared. I can work hard all day, or walk four or five miles a day, and stand it well; and when I began using the medicine I could scarcely walk across the room, most of the time, and I did not think I could ever feel well again. I give your remedies all the credit for curing me, as I took no other treatment after beginning their use. I am very grateful for your kindness, and thank God and thank you that I am as well as I am, after years of suffering."

LIVER DISEASE.

MRS. L. V. WEBBER, of Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes: "I wish to say a few words in praise of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' For five years I was a sufferer as to taking them I was a great sufferer: I had a severe pain in my right side continually; was unable to do my own work. I am happy to say I am now well and strong, thanks to your medicines."

Chronic Diarrhœa Cured!—D. LAZARUS, Esq., 918 and 920 Decatur Street, New Orleans, La., writes: "I used three bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it has cured me of chronic diarrhœa."

"THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using DR. PIERCE'S GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, and bodily health and vigor will be established.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores, and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Baling Ulcers.

INDIGESTION, BOILS, BLOTCHES.

REV. F. ASBURY HOWELL, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silverton, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with catarrh and indigestion, Boils and blotches began to arise on the surface of the skin, and I experienced a tired feeling all the time. I began the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as directed by him for such complaints and in one week's time I began to feel like a new man, and am now sound and well. The 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best remedy for headache, or tightness about the chest, and bad taste in the mouth, that I have ever used. My wife could not walk across the floor when she began to take your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' Now she can walk quite a little 'way,' and do some light work."

HIP-JOINT DISEASE.

MRS. IDA M. STRONG, of Ainsworth, Ind., writes: "My little boy has been troubled with Hip-joint disease for two years. When he commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' he was confined to his bed, and could not be moved without suffering great pain. But now, thanks to your 'Discovery,' he is able to be up all the time, and can walk with the help of crutches. He does not suffer any pain, and can eat and sleep as well as any one. It is only been about three months since he commenced using your medicines. I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude for the benefit he has received through you."

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION.

Skin Disease.—The "Democrat and News," of Cambridge, Maryland, says: "MRS. ELIZA ANN POOLE, wife of Leonard Poole, of Wingate's Store, Dorchester Co., Md., has been cured of a bad case of Eczema by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The disease appeared first in her feet, extended to the knees, covering the whole of the lower limbs from feet to knees, then attacked the shoulders and breast to several inches. After being treated by several physicians for a year or two she commenced the use of the medicine named above. She soon got relief and is now well and hearty. Mrs. Poole thinks the medicine has saved her life and prolonged her days. Mr. T. A. Yates, of East New Market, Dorchester County, Md., vouches for the above facts.

CONSUMPTION, WEAK LUNGS, SPITTING OF BLOOD.

GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Nasal Catarrh, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. While it promptly cures the severest Coughs it strengthens the system and purifies the blood.

It rapidly builds up the system, and increases the flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by "wasting diseases."

GIVEN UP TO DIE.

Consumption.—MRS. EDWARD NEWTON, of Harrowsmith, Ont., writes: "You will ever be praised by me for the remarkable cure in my case. I was so reduced that my friends had all given up, and I had also been given up by two doctors. I then went to the best doctor in these parts. He told me my medicines were a punishment in my case, and would no, under-take to treat me. He said I might try cod liver oil if I liked, as that was the only thing that could possibly have any curative power over consumption so far advanced. I tried the cod liver oil as a last treatment, but I was so weak I could not keep it on my stomach. My husband, not feeling satisfied to give me up yet, though he had bought for me everything he saw advertised for my complaint, procured a quantity of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only four bottles, and, to the surprise of everybody, am to-day doing my own work, and am entirely free from that terrible cough which harrassed me night and day. I have been afflicted with rheumatism for a number of years, and now feel so much better that I believe, with a continuance of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I will be restored to perfect health. I would say to those who are failing a prey to that terrible disease consumption, do not do as I did, take everything else first; but take the 'Golden Medical Discovery' in the early stages of the disease, and thereby save a great deal of suffering and be restored to health at once. Any person who is still in doubt, need but write me, enclosing a stamped and addressed envelope for reply, when the foregoing statement will be fully substantiated by me."

WASTED TO A SKELETON.

Ulcer Cured.—ISAAC E. DOWNS, Esq., of Spring Valley, Rockland Co., N. Y., (P. O. Box 39), writes: "I was troubled with Ulcer of the Stomach, and Medical Adviser, for which I paid $3.00, but it did me no good. I was induced to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and before I had taken one bottle I found relief. I have taken five bottles, and am entirely cured. I have gained in flesh from 130 to 160 pounds, and can do more work than I have done for years. I cannot say too much in favor of your 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

GENERAL DEBILITY.

Mrs. PARMELIA BRUNDAGE, of 161 Lock Street, Lockport, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with chills, nervous and general debility, with frequent sore throat, and my mouth was badly cankered. My liver was inactive, and I suffered much from dyspepsia. I am pleased to say that your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets' have cured me of all those ailments and I cannot say enough in their praise. I must also say a word in reference to your 'Favorite Prescription,' as it has proven itself a most excellent medicine. It has been used in my family with excellent results."

Dyspepsia.—JAMES L. COLBY, Esq., of Tuscalan, Houston Co., Miss., writes: "I was troubled with indigestion,

CATARRH CURED,

A clergyman, after years of suffering from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, and vainly trying every known remedy, at last found a prescription which completely cured and saved him from death. Any sufferer from this dreadful disease sending a self addressed envelope to Rev. W. Pierce, 2121 Race street, Philadelphia, will receive the recipe free of charge.

"Perfect Satisfaction,"

is the verdict of every one using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and all Lung troubles. Unlike cod-liver oil, and many other specifics, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is agreeable to the taste and leaves no ill effects.

"I cannot say too much in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes Mr. Robert F. McKeen, of New Gretna, N. J. "I have used it in my family, many years, and always with perfect satisfaction."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is truly the

Most Popular Remedy

of the age, rendering full satisfaction in every instance."—Thornton Edwards, Lonely Dale, Ind.

P. L. Morris, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "Your medicines have been satisfactory to me throughout my practice; especially Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has been used in great quantities by my patients, one of whom says he knows it saved his life."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

"YE ARE MY WITNESSES."

Tell me, pilgrim, faint and weary,
Traveling o'er this pathway dim,
Are you shedding light around you,
Are you witnessing for Him?

Do you try to tell the story
Of the precious Saviour's love?
Are you hungering and thirsting
Evermore your love to prove?

Are you seeking out the lost ones
Whom the Master died to win?
Are you showing them the fountain
That can wash away their sin?

Are you looking by the wayside
For the weary ones who fall?
Do you take them to the Saviour,
Who has promised rest for all?

Do you love to read the Bible—
Is it precious to your soul?
Are its treasures growing richer
As you travel toward the goal?

Do you love to talk of Jesus
More than all the world beside?
Does it bring a holy comfort
With his people to abide?

Have you made a consecration
Of your time and earthly store?
If your all is on the altar,
Then the Master asks no more.

Thus, O pilgrim, should we journey,
Showing forth the Master's praise,
With our lamps all trimmed and burning,
That the world may catch their rays.

CENTENNIAL REFLECTIONS.

No. 2.

BY REV. C. S. SMITH.

THE PROTEST.

Richard Allen was born in one of the smallest and meanest of States, but spent the major part of his life in one of the largest and greatest of cities Philadelphia, which was the scene of his labors for a long number of years, and in which repose his ashes, is justly styled the cradle of American liberty It is noted for its protests both as to word and action, and has nurtured the forces which have given rise to many of the more prominent events in the Nation's history. It was fortunate, if not providential, that Richard Allen settled in the city of "Brotherly Love," in view of the fact that the surroundings were highly favorable to the development of manly and independent feeling. The very heavens above it were pregnant with the spirit of freedom, while the presiding genius of universal liberty had especially bestowed its benedictions upon the infant republic for its glorious act of 1776. Richard Allen was cognizant of the stirring events which at the time of his settlement in Philadelphia were uppermost in the mind of the world. He had been a silent witness of many things and a silent hearer of many sayings. Independence, freedom and constitutional government were the topics that he heard discussed as he crossed the pathway of notable men, that he might grasp the crumbs of intelligence that fell from the table of public debate. He was unknowingly being prepared for greatness and prominence himself. He could take no part in the affairs of State. He was an alien in the land of his birth without the privileges and immunities of citizenship; yet no law had he violated nor crime committed. The open door to fame came through the Church. Alas that it should have been so! Fame, not of his own seeking, but as the result of circumstances pressed upon him. He was being borne by a tide whose incomings and outgoings he could not stay.

When the "fulness of time" had come he suddenly sprang into prominence at an unexpected period, in an unexpected place and for an unexpected purpose. At the time when the protest was made there was but little in the condition of the colored people to warrant even the thought that they would do other than "obey their masters." To assume that they would offer resistance to any species of injustice was regarded as a vague dream. All things, however, are not what they seem to be. Embers may smoulder long before they break forth into flame. The officiary of St. George's Church had been so long accustomed to mistreating the colored members that they subjected them to whatever indignities they pleased as a mere matter of fact, to be borne without murmuring by the offended ones. There came a time, though, when the "last straw" was laid on the camel's back. This was in November, 1787.

The place was St. George's Church, a society belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the city of Philadelphia, Pa. Connected with this society were a number of colored people, who had been received according to the rules governing the admission of persons into membership. The rules recognized no distinction on account of race or color, and were formulated by the founder of Methodism, who said that "the world is my parish." It is peculiarly surprising that the first loud murmurings of discontent within the bounds of American Methodism should arise from the practice of caste distinction. Methodism was a new fulcrum designed to lift up the masses and to weld them together in the worship of one Lord, in the adoption of one faith and to invest them with equal privileges as heirs of the same inheritance. Methodists from the very beginning had learned to joyfully sing:—

"Together let us sweetly live,
Together let us die,
And each a starry crown receive
And reign above the sky."

Had the ancient landmarks been observed, Methodism would have outstripped Catholicism in the work of establishing the brotherhood of man. It is to the shame of Methodism in 1787, that it furnished an arena of conflict for equal rights within its communion, and it is to the reproach of Christianity that the battle should have begun in a house dedicated to the worship of the most high God. It is nothing strange to see persons kicked and cuffed about the streets, in bawdy houses and in places of low repute, but to see them dragged of their knees in holy places, while devils might pray, is a scene over which angels might weep, and at which devils might blush.

The purpose of the protest was as unexpected as the period and the place It was a protest of right and justice against wrong and violated faith. The design of the protest was unexpected because those who made it were not the recognized equals of those against whom it was directed, and the opening of the months of the former in such a way was a new and strange proceeding. When Richard Allen and his associates defied the anathema maranatha of the tyrannical pastor and officiary of St. George's society, they challenged the Methodist Episcopal Church to uphold and defend its pledge of equality of rights for those who entered its communion. The protest was more far-reaching than its framers really knew. In a relative sense, their grievances were the grievances of every member in the Methodist Episcopal Church of the time to assert that what affects a part affects the whole. The discontent of the colored members of St. George's society was doubtless known outside of Philadelphia, as it eventually became a matter of somewhat general interest. No account, though, is given that any official notice was taken of the affair by the then leaders of the M. E. Church. The offended parties being negroes it was evidently deemed of inanificient importance to invite official attention. It was but the wailing of a people "only fit to be the servant of servants." The very fact, however, that they dared to protest indicates their innate recognition that their servile condition was not natural, but one to the temporary triumph of might over right; and that the investiture of this might with the glow of religious influences no more made it right than had it been covered with an Apollyonian mantle. The first foul blot on the escutcheon of American Methodism was produced by its flagrant violation of the rights and privileges of its colored members, and colored Methodists, under whatever name they may be known, are indebted to Richard Allen and his associates for their manly, courageous protest of 1787.

According to the English Women's Journal, there are now about one hundred women serving on school boards in England and Wales. Four county districts have women as clerks. There are also women overseers, assistant overseers and overseers of highways.

REV. J. H. MORGAN,
OF THE NEW JERSEY CONFERENCE.

J. H. Morgan was born in Philadelphia, Pa., November 16, 1843. His mother's maiden name was Mary Ann Harmon. After her death he was adopted in the family of James T. Robineon, of Philadelphia. Becoming dissatisfied at some fancied slight, he left without authority, and settled in Bristol, Pa. There he embraced religion in 1866, under Rev. Samuel David (a supply), Rev Henry Davis, elder. On February 14, 1867, he married Miss Anna Elizabeth Fry, and was licensed to exhort October 12, 1867, by Rev. Edward Lewis, then pastor, Rev. D. P. Seaton having the oversight. He received local preacher's license July 11, 1868, from Thomas T. Pierce, then pastor, and was ordained local deacon at the Philadelphia Conference in Harrisburg, in 1875, by Bishop J. A. Shorter. He attended the General Conference at Atlanta, Ga., as lay delegate from the Philadelphia Conference. He joined the itinerate work in the Philadelphia Conference at Chester, in 1876 was transferred to the New York Conference by Bishop Shorter and appointed to Cozzackie Circuit, N. Y., in conjunction with Rev. J. H. Nichols, by Bishop A. W. Wayman. He was returned the following year by Bishop D. A. Payne. He organized a church that year in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was ordained elder in Sullivan Street Church, New York City, May 12, 1878, by Bishop D. A. Payne, and sent to Poughkeepsie, N. Y. There he had some misunderstanding with the people, which caused them to promise to cut his bread and butter short, which promise they faithfully carried out. But being a child of our raising, he remained firm to the Methodist Episcopal connection. According to his own account, one day, or part of it, they fed him and his family on wind pudding, air sauce and balloon trimmings. His time there was short. A few days after, he received an appointment from Bishop Payne to Albany, N. Y., and was re-appointed the following year. In 1880 he was transferred to the New Jersey Conference, and stationed at Princeton, N. J. There he served two years. He has married to date twenty couples; baptized, children and adults, fifty; received in church membership, including probationers, two hundred and fifty, and attended the General Conference of 1880 as a delegate from the New Jersey Conference.

The above is reprinted from proof sheets of a book by Elder Morgan, now in press, on the history of the New Jersey Conference of the A. M. E. Church. This work alone will preserve the name of Joseph H. Morgan.

GENERAL SUPERINTENDENCY NECESSARY TO A PRESIDING ELDERSHIP.

BY REV. T. G. STEWARD, D.D.

Methodist episcopacy is not the episcopacy defined in dictionaries and encyclopedias; not the episcopacy of which the "learned and judicious" Hooker wrote, but a modified and special episcopacy created by the Methodist people themselves and standing or falling by their judgment or preference.

It hardly seems necessary to say that all Methodist Episcopalism takes its rise from the Methodist Episcopal Church which originated it. This Church, the proud mother of this form of government and from whom all other Methodist Episcopal bodies are derived, having originated Methodist Episcopacy, has the right to define it. This she does by declaring it to be more an office than an order and to be general superintendency. This general superintendence characteristic is its especial mark distinguishing it from historic episcopacy This is the progress made by Methodism in the form of episcopacy, and so it regards any departure from this as a degradation of the office. A Bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church with limited jurisdiction is not, according to their ideas, a "full" Bishop. District episcopacy in the light of church history is not progressive, but plain retrogression, or, rather, speaking in a tongue readily understood, it is that movement often described as "crawfishing," the movement of a people timidly abandoning a grand position and sidling under shelter, movement indicative of the return of a sober second thought.

General superintendency is naturally supplemented by the particular superintendency of presiding elders. Here there is consistency and, consequently, order, harmony and efficiency as the one hundred years' history of the Methodist Episcopal Church triumphantly demonstrates. In point of success church history is challenged in vain to produce a parallel to the Methodist Episcopal Church—such peace, such harmony, such development, such progress, such intelligence, loyalty and love. Episcopal Methodism is established and stands above aspersion. Our Church has decided in favor of presiding elders, which means particular supervision; and yet there are those who would narrow the Bishops down to but little more than a presiding elder. Two particular superintendents covering the same territory and no general superintendence over both, or either, will bring the poor pastorate, with as many fewer new ones as the upper and nether mill-stone. The Bishop of one of the fourteen districts will be the upper mill-stone, the presiding elder of fourteen charges will be the nether and the pastorate will be ground to powder. Does any man suppose that people growing up in the free atmosphere of America will submit to such an unreasonable and indefensible method of supervision? If there is such a man with in the reach of this article all I have to say is, "Him have I offended." A diocesan episcopacy once fairly established necessarily fills up all the space between the pastor and the general superintendency, if any man can find that space, and while men. Doctor, you will find at the General Conference that a few men will be the powers around which all the rest will cluster and from whom will emanate all the various movements that will be consummated. The same principles which determine the actions of other legislative bodies will obtain there. About the best place to say what you want to say to the General Conference is in the ballot-box; if you can't get to it, then do like we all have to do, just quietly wait and see what you will see.

Our church at St. Paul is alive and doing well. Since September 5th we have raised in class cash $1,375 64 and expect to make it $2,500 by November 1st. This may be one of the conferences "whose members are fifteen years old;" whether it is or not it is a royal conference, composed of law-living and law-abiding men, who love their full duty. Rev. W. J. Laws will represent us and do the right thing. Rev. Knight is solid as a stone wall and Rev. Burton can pull wires and caucus as good as any man who will be on hand. My humble opinion is that if the General Conference adjourns without electing Drs. Lee, Arnett and Tanner, they will have cause for regret. These men are men of destiny and bear in their every movement and attest by their efficient record that they are the men for the hour. They should be the first chosen, no matter who else may be named.

Miss Ada Lee, an attorney at Port Huron, Mich., has held the office of Circuit Court Commissioner for three years.

DOCTOR, DON'T TALK THAT WAY.

BY REV. JOHN M. HENDERSON.

In a late issue of the RECORDER I read a letter written under the signature of one of our able doctors. After having read the first few sentences I began to feel that a sound, solid, broad-gauge article would follow; but after a few flourishes of the pen, a few glittering generalities and much sweet talk about the reverence due our venerable prelates, the doctor proceeded to map out a course for General Conference. The sum and substance of the thoughts crowded into the little end of the horn was, take the efficient and experienced men out of the field, practically retire them and turn the Church over to a number of impetuous youths or aspiring men of middle age.

The doctor referred to some of the Bishops as though they were already past the line of usefulness. It is a great mistake. Bishop Brown, for one instance, has traveled further and done more real hard and effective work in the last six months than any man in our Church not now a Bishop could do in two years. Main strength is not needed so much as well trained and thoroughly schooled powers. Our venerable Bishops during all their years of labor have been learning how to save labor and how to do a great deal in short, quick ways. An old woodman with an ax is worth a dozen loud-voiced, clumsy youths with brawny muscles and no skill. Experience teaches men how to do things and gives them added powers of execution. Our aged Bishops have learned the value of time, and you don't find any of them dilly dallying about business, but when they have a thing to do they go right to the point at once, and without waste of strength or energy do in a day what verdant inexperience or thick-eyed conceit would blunder and bungle about for a month. No, there is no need of hunting around to find men to supplant these able warriors who now lead the van. But you can count on each Bishop now on the bench as severally, for the next four years, worth as many fewer new ones who can be named or elected.

Again, there is no use philosophizing over the duty of the General Conference, nor wasting time sittering wise words of warning or advice. The men who go there, if they have minds of their own, will be self-directing; if they have not, then they will be herded and led by those who have—and that is just the long and short of it.

Some of the conferences which have already elected delegates have run in men who they knew were unfit for the position of delegates just to gratify some canille prejudice by defeating experienced, if any man can find that general superintendency, and certainly no man would willingly place the presiding elder between the pastor and the people.

Why not look the question fairly in the face? If the Church is to be cut up into petty districts with each district fenced in by a Chinese wall, over which no non resident Bishop shall put his Tartar foot, I ask the advocates of this theory, of what earthly use are conference boundaries within this territory? Presiding elders, if they exist, are simply so many staff officers and a petty territory is brigadiered by ten men whose whole duty is to see that one hundred and twenty other ministers do their duty. I grant that this draws a pretty strong picture, but it is not an impossible one under the parcelling out arrangement. The idea of fourteen Bishops to our power and spare active membership is a thing that must be met and opposed It is not Bishops and ministers we need now as much as it is members and churches. Every conference is overrun with preachers What we want now is men bers! members! members! We need to be up and doing More praying and more preaching. Oh, for a baptism of heavenly fire to make us a real soul-saving Church! The thousands, the millions are perishing while we are disputing as to who shall be chief among the disciples. Oh, Thou who hast enabled us to do the little we have done to thy glory, we devoutly pray thee to give us grace, zeal and love that we may do much more the few remaining days that as debtors to thy great mercy we walk the earth than we have ever yet done, and to thee be the glory and honor forever and ever. Amen.

Please remember, nothing but articles for publication, or letters pertaining thereto, should be addressed to the editor, and they to him exclusively.

DEMANDS for Centennial Envelopes are still coming and we are supplying orders as rapidly as possible. Rev. S. H. Robertson orders 800. If the orders for envelopes are to be taken as an index to the interest of the people, the centennial of the independent organization will not be a small affair.

THE A. M. E. CHURCH at Mt. Holly, reported a year ago or so as in anything but a healthy condition, seems to be flourishing. The people have remodaled and repainted the building and are paying for their work as fast as their creditors expect them to do. Their re-opening was last Sunday, when the editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, Rev. G. A. Mills and Bishop Campbell preached. They realized nearly two hundred dollars.

REV. L. J. COPPIN held his fall rally at Allen Chapel last Sunday, assisted by Rev. Dr. Derrick, of New York, and Rev. N. D. Temple, of this city. The day being splendid, the church having just entered fully into the use of the Church Ritual, and attractive visitors filling the pulpit, there were great crowds at the church. The financial result was about $1000. They are a lively people. Rev. J. Whitaker is making a successful year.

OF COURSE it would help the RECORDER to publish all matters of every locality, just as the local papers do, but it would have to be one hundred times its present size. Each local paper has but one locality to please; we have one thousand. A list of the names of persons attending a wedding or a convention can be published by the local paper. It will not be called on to do the same thing for many other localities. The papers of those localities will see to them.

THE "CHRISTIAN INSTRUCTOR," Presbyterian, commenting on Dr. Parker's text, "He is not here but has risen," applying the language used in reference to Jesus to the case of Mr. Beecher, says it "seems startling, if not profane," There is a minister in the A. M. E. Church who, when in the Baptist Church, fifteen or sixteen years ago, preached a farewell sermon in Harrodsburg, Ky., from the text, "It is expedient for you that I go away." This was a close approach to Mr. Parker's profanity. There are many profane uses of the Scriptures in pulpits.

MR. J. G. DITMAN, the Democratic candidate for Recorder of Deeds in the city of Philadelphia, will make a strong and efficient officer, if elected, because he is a strong and efficient citizen, a strong and efficient business man. Mr. Ditman has not been popularly known as a politician, hence has not made many promises, but his natural and practical fair mindedness and appreciation of manliness in men leads us to venture that he will protect the interests of the people and that colored men will suffer nothing at his hands for the mere fact of their color. His letter of acceptance is clear and comprehensive.

ORRA LANGHORN, of Lynchburg, Va., has a thoughtful article in the Independent of 13th inst. on "Mixed Schools in Virginia." He favors them and believes they will pertain soon. His argument is clear; not all of his positions are strong. It is not that colored teachers will lose money by not being employed that sickens the heart of colored teachers and those educating children, so much as that a whole class strongly marked would be excluded from one of the avenues in which many of its minds would delight to move, being by nature adapted to them. This is what brings a cloud over their skies, and well it may. To produce proper American citizens every civil and religious door must be so adjusted on its hinge that the same forces brought to bear will cause it to swing for every individual citizen. There can be no preferred classes regulated by arbitrary customs or unreasonable discrimination. Conditions from the side of State must be absolutely uniform and clearly reasonable in all respects. To keep our race variety for a few years out of any position generally is to prevent our progress largely. It is useless to infer that we will allow such a state of affairs to settle without strong protest. Mr. Langhorn shows that many years ago mixed schools actually existed in Virginia and that one was taught by a colored man. As we stated some weeks ago, the mixed schools are coming.

REV. A. GRANT, in another column, asks if the A. M. E. Church will ever rise to a proper appreciation of education connected with the Church. It is doubtful whether it will ever reach our highest hopes. This point is not reached by many people in respect to educational institutions. We have undertaken too much, not for our purses, but for our hearts. If our hearts were in these school enterprises, the natural affinity between one's heart and money would take an abundance of money there. Not only do our colored men—our able colored men, our African Methodist men—fail to give to our educational undertakings, as Brother Grant says, but there are scores of cases in which they will not send their own children to our schools, will advise others to send their children to Oberlin, Lincoln, Howard and similar other good schools and criticise our Paul Quinn, our Allen, our Wilberforce as coldly and mercilessly as if they, these African Methodists, were not responsible for these schools in equal part with other African Methodists. It is no rare thing to hear Wilberforce scathingly criticised. On and after our last visit to that institution we could but wish the immediate control of the school could be placed into the hands of those whose cold and cold criticisms and whose seldom speaking in its favor are doing so much to prevent its prosperity. We know these facts apply equally to the case of at least one other of our schools. This is for the want of heart for the school, the kind of heart that a mother has for her children, that will not allow her to betray their weaknesses, but enables her to help their infirmities. We have African Methodists enough in Texas to make a booming college of Paul Quinn; enough in Georgia, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Ohio and Kansas with the States adjacent to insure success to the schools located in them, so far as money is to be considered, but if the schools cannot secure the interest of our masses they cannot secure their moneys.

"I DEMAND THAT YOU PUBLISH IT."

Yes; well, that is an unquestionable privilege. Thirty more writers of lengthy Sunday school convention reports demand the same thing. We are perfectly willing to concede to their demand, but must first demand of you and them the ability to do so.

The Sunday School Union, with a bank account running away up in the thousands, does not publish Sunday school convention reports, but ceases to publish the Sunday School Review because it does not pay. We are threatened with instant —— if we do not publish the Long Island Sunday school convention "as written." We shall have to ——. We have long since and several times said that reports of Sunday school conventions and presiding elder meetings could not all be published in our limited columns.

A FALLACY.

Many fallacies steal into our exhortations and dissertations. Here is a fallacy that has been played upon by two able writers for the CHRISTIAN RECORDER: that, since God is infinite in means and methods, Christ's kingdom is spiritual, not of this world, etc., therefore, what is undertaken by the Church as now constituted needs to be underlain with other than the ordinary reasoning concerning financial ability. Men are called "penny wise," "carpers" and the like for not falling into line with suggestions looking to vast increase of A. M. E. Church financial responsibilities when there is no equivalent increase of consecration of our means to the Church.

There is no warrant in Scriptures for our believing that whatever we may undertake will prosper, when this "we" refers to an antecedent much complexed and greatly compounded with evils. The practice of those who advocate a great leap in increasing responsibilities is not altogether consistent with their theory. In fact, nearly every successful business man exercises his reasoning powers as greatly as his religious faith in church arrangements and activities; they go together. Several times our General Conferences have risen on the bubbles of excitement and enacted laws based upon the fallacy that God would make the ideas of the proposer successful. Our present Dollar Money law, inaugurated in 1872, was such a case; it was to be the panacea for all our own financial woes. In 1880 this fallacy underlay the grandest bubbling that could be exercised, appropriating about four or five times as much money from the general treasury as it ever covered in one year. The man who prepared and pushed the scheme through the conference were themselves only ordinary men as to faith, and a part of them, extraordinarily extravagant men with money. God's promises to stand by those who love him and properly appreciate his goodness, doing his law with all their hearts, are not in full force to us when we are not in "such a case."

If our religious notions and life will allow our African Methodists to waste $100,000 annually for tobacco, and $50,000 more for various luxuries, the promises in full are not unto us. A man cannot both spend a dollar and have it; even though he is engaged in religious matters, when that expended dollar is not in religious investments. If the African Methodist Church were sufficiently awake to its great mission; if it were a Church of sufficient faith, Bishop H. M. Turner and Dr. J. H. A. Johnson's "pepuy-wise" suggestions would be timely; but we are not so. As an old brother used to say in his prayer, "Lord, here we air just as we air." It is upon this basis that we are to consider our Church ability. In all purely spiritual things, count by the arithmetic of faith, but where a large material element enters into the composition, never think we degrade faith by exercising reason. This fallacy has thrown a number of schools upon a people who do not rise to a level with the advanced state of mind that exercised itself in establishing these schools. Men may find that it pays to calculate by human mathematics before they demand the same barrel of meal that feeds three persons a given time to feed seven for an equivalent time, the condition being just the same.

It is not tightfistedness nor half heartedness to measure up the human side of the Church before launching out. Secure the thorough devotion of the A. M. E. Church to the principles of Christianity, so that whatsoever we do, whether we eat or drink, all shall be done to the glory and honor of God—then you may calculate on doing an average of $3's worth of Church business for every member, or $1,200,000 for the connection in any given year.

Literature.

The October number of the A. M. E. Review is characterized by a frontispiece picture of Bishop Shorter, and articles on the following subjects: Poetry, "He Saves me Now," B. T. "Stall's Lutheran Year-Book and Historical Quarterly for 1887," completes in 4 Nos., 330 pp. Subscription 50 cts., single nos., 25 cts. each. For sale by the editor, Rev. Sylvanus Stall, A. M., Lancaster, Pa. The Lutheran Church in the United States has grown more than twice as much during the last 20 years as during the 250 years previous. It now occupies the fourth place numerically, and will soon occupy the third place. Stall's Year-Book and Quarterlies present this "Mother Church of the Reformation," and is of value to all who would acquaint themselves with this branch of the Christian church which is so strong throughout Europe that it embraces in its communion fully one-half the entire Protestant population of the globe. The May and August Nos., combined in one issue, contain 132 pictures of Lutheran institutions, churches, pastors, etc., etc., ie called the Art Edition and sells at 25 cents. The Year-Book for 1888 is promised by November first.

In the very interesting work, "Mosses from a Rolling Stone," recently published by Mr Lawrence Oliphant, is an interesting account of a lady who has acted as her country's representative, as Consul at Manfredonia.

Personal.

—Dr. Arnett has been very sick, but is said to be recovering.

—Mrs. Minnie Mahlay, sister of President Mitchell, of Wilberforce University, is dead

—Rev. J. Whitaker re-opened the beautiful church in Mt. Holly last Sunday. The people have expended four or five hundred dollars improving the church, making it a beauty.

—Bishop Campbell has closed his Western conferences and is preparing to hold his Southern Conferences. Meanwhile he is visiting his New Jersey work. He spent last Sunday in Mt. Holly.

OUR WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Jenny Lind is seriously ill at her home in London.

Mrs. Gen. T. R. R. Cobb, of Atlanta, Ga., has the original draft of the Confederate Constitution, as it came from the committee who drafted it.

The Japanese Government has engaged a young San Francisco woman to organize a school of domestic service at Tokio, to familiarize Japanese girls with our customs.

Dr Fannie Berlin, the surgeon of the New England Hospital for Women and Children, has recently returned from a professional tour to Birmingham, London and Paris.

Mrs. Kate Richmond owns extensive lead mines in the Northwestern part of Wisconsin. Mrs. Richmond has introduced her new methods of mining and is adding new life to the lead mining interest and thus adding wealth to the State.

A beautiful memorial to Helen Hunt Jackson and her labors in behalf of the Indians will be the Ramona Indian Girls' School, which is building at Santa Fe, N. M. The building will cost $30 000 and will accommodate one hundred and fifty pupils. Students will be retained from two to five years. A New York architect contributed the design, which is patterned to some extent on the old cliff dwellings of New Mexico and Arizona. Government aid will largely pay for building the school, but the cost of furnishing must be defrayed by private subscriptions. A fine portrait of Mrs. Jackson has been given, and one rich woman devoted her jewels to the furnishing of a memorial room. Prof. Horatio O. Ledd has charge of the old university at Santa Fe, and has devoted himself to the success of this building.

"MORE BISHOPS" UNDER REVIEW.

BY REV. P. M. LEWIS.

No. 3.

1. Eight more Bishops would be a complement, according to Dr. Johnson's plans, just so far as his sole assumption is true, and no further, and this assumption has already been proved to be misleading and incorrect. Twice that number would not do the work as allotted by the doctor.

2 That the two hundred thousand members, constituting 360 societies, with floating members and every church and congregation are to be brought under or made familiar with the heads of our Church in the sense which the doctor urges, is a monstrous mistake and startling to the Methodist Episcopal world. To prepare themselves to travel and deliver specially prepared sermons, lectures, make extra visits, decide church matters of great difficulty, hold their conferences, attend to their correspondence, what could such a course accomplish? Comparatively speaking, nothing. If this plan were adopted and the Bishops undertook the work the actual result would be that these fourteen Bishops would work themselves to death within four or less years, make the system burdensome and the presence of Bishops so common that both Bishops and system would become obnoxious and intolerable to the common people whom we had hoped to benefit most by the system and visits of the Bishops By this course of preparing sermons and lectures and traveling and delivering them, the Bishops could not do this class of people, comparatively speaking, any good. Not one one hundredth part of their hearers could grasp and digest mentally and apply to the good of both body and soul what they would hear on these occasions. This work would simply wear out, untimely, good and useful men, waste precious time and means and make us, as Methodist Episcopals, ridiculous in the eyes of the Christian world.

We all admit that our Bishops must travel and familiarize themselves with their people and the conditions of the work, but it is well understood as to what is meant by these obligations and they are fully carried out among us. Such a work as the doctor plans would, in the long run, I believe, degrade the office and officers and work destruction to our Church instead of exalting and improving it.

3 Military wisdom would divide these 200,000 members into 40 parts, with 40 generals appointed over them. Suppose it was done, each brigadier general would have then only 50 companies, and the major general, which rank our Bishops must take in this comparison, would have to make only one corps or division or army inspection a year, and this not a personal inspection, but having many officers assist them. In our case the doctor has 360 companies to be personally inspected and drilled once a year by the major-general alone.

Again, a complete analysis of the divisions of the army of the living God, as under the supervision of the A. M. E. Church, will show more minute companies than the doctor shows of the worldly army or our spiritual, according to his plan These cases are not strictly analogous nor parallel; the warfares are actuated by different motives, carried on by different means and have very different aims and results In most instances the armies of the world have been led by wicked ambitions and filthy lucre, men who were striving for earthly power and wealth and would have them, even at the cost of thousands of precious souls and treasures Their weapons were treachery, skill and physical force; with these they fought and died and their cause perished with them. We are impelled by the love of God his word of truth, justice, and his spirit are our weapons; with them we fight, conquer and die carnally, but live spiritually and eternally and our cause lives and grows stronger and continually recruits its army to all ages

4. "Expenses, an after consideration." This may do in some cases of minor importance and with worldly matters, but at this day of wisdom and well regulated systems it comes in as about one of the first considerations, in order that the Church work may be organized so as to accomplish the greatest amount of good. And this is a fact which our Church cannot fail to note with the greatest care. It cannot be overlooked to the extent that the doctor claims.

5 Doctor Johnson tells us, in substance, that our Church, in this quadrennial year, has lost three Bishops and thereby left three Episcopal Districts vacant, and that the remaining six Bishops have scattered around these vacant districts, and regardless of the good of the Church connection, but burning with an uncontrollable desire for supreme power and control of these districts, have by their doors them in pieces and utterly destroyed these districts. Now, does the doctor mean all of this? I would like to believe that he does not, but how can I when I take into consideration the whole drift and tone of his arguments toward the Bishops in his articles. The whole of this cruel argument is incorrect and out of place, and I cannot imagine what prompted Dr. Johnson to make these unmerited for and unjust assertions.

The fact that the late Bishops Dickerson's, Cain's and Shorter's works have been divided among our living Bishops does not prove that these districts have been violently torn to pieces and virtually and utterly destroyed. To the contrary. They are as strong, if not a little stronger, and as keenly at work to day as they were in the days of those beloved Bishops, their former leaders. These districts more on just the same under our present Bishops as though the three hemoaned were with us, and the loss of them was not the loss of the districts only, but of the whole Church, and these districts are too well organized to admit the truth of any such argument as Dr Johnson advances.

6 There may be some irregularities in some of the vacant districts that we would like to see corrected, but this, if true, is frequently true of any and all of our M E districts, even while their presiding Bishops are alive and present; but, upon the whole, we all are doing the very best that we can and making wonderful progress.

7. The A. M. E. Church is already where you say that the execution of your plan would place her, and this you have admitted in previous arguments.

8. "Episcopal grace cannot be communicated to all parts of the connection because of the present limitation and confusion attending our system" The doctor's conclusions here are wholly at fault, and from a Methodist Episcopal standpoint, there is everything accomplished which the wise founders of the system intended and all that can be hoped for by all wise persons.

9. "Eight more Bishops added to the present number is like putting eight faithful horses, etc None can fail to see this but those who are so blind that they will not see." Here we are asked to accept this brother's assumed plan for improving our Church and then told that if we do not adopt it we are so wilfully ignorant, and wilfully negligent as to the good of our own Church, that we will not improve our work through this plan.

10. "Nothing short of this plan will do, or meet the demand, nor set bounds to diminution—and the Bishops may dwindle from nine to six and from six to one, and than the smashing business would cease and vital disintegration would be the consequence. Is it not high time the General Conference act upon this important matter?" Dr. Johnson tells us in substance here, that without his plan there is no meeting of the demands of our Church, no end to its diminution. The Bishops will dwindle from nine to one, and then all of them being dead, the smashing up of our Districts and Church will cease, and a complete destruction of the Church be the consequence. Now, I ask, are there any such evil and destructive powers at work in our Church driving her on to such a woeful terminus as the doctor claims? If there are, in behalf of all the truly good and interested, both in and out of our Zion, I call on the doctor to sound the alarm, point out the instances, and let us understandingly rid ourselves of the same The truth is, there are no such forces at work in our Church as Dr. Johnson describes, and the tendencies are not as he says, but to the contrary. Has ever such a state been developed by a Christian organization like ours in an enlightened age like this? No. Does any one, even the doctor, believe that our Church is being led to the pitfalls of utter destruction as he intimates? No. Under the circumstances of this gloriously advanced age, it is impossible It never will be so The doctor's position is in a high degree degrading to the cause of Christian religion as maintained and sustained by our Church, from the highest officials to the humblest member. Dr. Johnson in closing: And the motives for electing Bishops "are forces, seemingly, a few fellows wanted to be made Bishops, and the conference had to make them, and have that as the end of it," etc. It is well to select, and some who wanted to be made Bishops did not get made, and were sadly disappointed This is the same great mind and pen undervaining and impugning the motives of his Christian brethren. Respect for the cause which I am trying to defend, and to the Dr and myself, forbid my farther replies to such arguments, and I shall hereafter simply allude to them and pass on.

12. This plan would confirm the fact that the Bishops would have at their hands something more durable than even their own existences. This can be true, in a logical sense, for only one of Christ and apart from the good of eternal salvation, as the sure reward for our trying to do righteousness to mankind upon earth, there has never been one willing to labor solely for the happiness of others and for his reward. Remember that self-preservation is the first law of wisdom, strength, usefulness, and goodness; and you cannot make the Bishops exceptions to this inalienable and everlasting rule

13 We are not Episcopalians, and will not conform to their laws in filling vacancies on our episcopal bench. It seems to me that if Dr Johnson would lead as a little farther and give us a system for the Archbishopric or Popery order, our great Church would make from criminal stupidity, look around and find in his self exalted wisdom and purity of purposes the only fitted person to occupy that sacerdotal chair, and wear that ermine robe, we would have something of his ideas.

14. We do not want an end to discussions as long as they treat subjects with polite manners and we are benefitted by them. Neither do we wish to suppress the aspirations of good men, for they are the almighty swords of the Lord—his sentinels, standing everlastingly on guard in the protection of the right They are fiery flames, flaming up at every appearance and approach of the enemy, and, with certain victorious powers, have always and do continually crush his armies and establish the camps of living God upon their strongest fortifications. We want these to live while time lasts.

THE DEVIL IN THE CHURCHES.

HIS ORIGIN.

PAPER I.

BY REV. H. T. JOHNSON.

There may have been a time when his Satanic Majesty was not the Devil, but there never was a time when the Devil was not in the churches. Indeed, no church history can be written without giving the Devil his due, begin it where we may or treat it as we will. The sphere of the Church triumphant affords no exception to what we claim, for the place of Satan was once found even in heaven.

The earliest trace we have of him is when he was an angel of light, without any variableness or shadow of turning. The imaginative poet pictures him in glorious majesty enthroned next to the Son. This more exalted station of the Son he craved, he envied, he sought. The mainspring of satanic discontent was pride. His fearful tendency is keenly appreciated by Pope in his verse which says:

"In pride, in reasoning pride, our error lies;
All quit their sphere, and rush into the skies
Pride still is aiming at the blest abodes,
Men would be angels, angels would be gods."

The thought of being a God and of sharing honors with the eternal, so reeled his brain that—

"The Devil did grin, for his darling sin
Is pride that apes humility."

A haughty pride is no more the pioneer of inevitable downfall than the self-exaltation of Satan was a certain forerunner to his self-destructive prowess By had eminence exalted, he heads an embattled host of traitors and revolts against the powers of heaven. But Michael and his angels fight against the Dragon and his angels and prevail against them, so that their place is no more found in heaven.

If we take the wings of Miltonian flight and enter the regions of infernal shadee, or with Istar through the seven gates of merciless entrances, descend to Hadee, the undispnted territory of Diabolus will be reached. How long he remained in these realms of night after his repulsion from the upper world and how his time was spent, is unrevealed, neither can conjecture be made but by license of the imagination. He may be fancied as fired with hate and breathing eternal vengeance against his overthrowere. Or, the archfiend may have glared for ages from the fiery lake in hope of heaven's respite. None given, he may have summoned the apostate host to counsel Perhaps for untold cycles the consultation progressed, but not all of its evil machinations, nor expressions of direful plots, nor exercise of combined inventive skill, nor wisdom focussed on the most salient points, could in the least assuage their entailed miseries or invite divine clemency or promote the infernal prospects. But perhaps, again, of its own accord, a glimmer of heaven's ever merciful ray was seen to pierce the gloomy sky of that land of darkness, and while the sceptre of pardon was withheld, it may be that Satan was let loose for a season. Whether that respite is still in continuance, while yet the implacable spleen of the arch traitor is curbed in strict obeyance, seem overwhelmingly suggested by the verdict of revelation and abundantly attested by facts both in the history of the Church and of the world.

The second chapter of Genesis begins its unfoldings with the fatal account of the old serpent's presence in Eden and his havoc there. If the apocalyptic description of his ejection from heaven into earth be not retrospectively true, it is actually suggestive and seriously tinged with much more than is ordinary colouring. Whether he descended involuntarily from the upper regions and in his precipitous wanderings happened to strike our world, or whether he ascended voluntarily from the bottomless pit to effect the same result, does not in the least effect the certainty of his real presence in the world among us, here and now Entertain either supposition of his rise or fall to the world and the material for sin's most prolific drama is furnished. He may have risen or fell the race fell beneath the swoop of his first temptation He lost the battle in heaven, was disastrously overthrown from the Eden above; he renews the attack upon earth and wins in the Eden below.

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Eighth Episcopal District and the Philadelphia, New England and South Carolina Conferences:

Dear Brethren: The Indian Conference will meet at McCallister, I. T Oct 27-th; the North Mississippi will meet at Kosciusko, Miss., Dec. 8th The General Conference is at the door. All the conferences above named have and will send their best men to meet that august gathering. We must not forget there is something more to be done than casting our suffrages. They must appear there as gentlemen relying upon their own resources. We, as a Church, boast of the ample trade of our wealth and the vastness of our resources To embantanize these statements each pastor collect from each member the small sum of ten cents and bring it to the conference to defray the expenses of the delegates to Indianapolis Don't let them appear there in the capacity of paupers Bring a nickel from each Sabbath school scholar

The conferences already held will forward to their respective treasurers. The presiding elders are expected to see that this important duty is attended to. Where the conferences are in session after November first, appropriate services will be held some time during the sessions, commemorating the birth of the Centennial of Afric-American Methodism and the claims and struggles of our Publication Department fully discussed There will be a large stock of books on sale at each session at reasonable rates

Why not have a hundred thousand dollar line for Dollar Money, twenty thousand for missions? Do you hear the voice that is wafted by the breeze from distant shores, give us the bread of life or we die? Twenty five thousand for education, and is not this a pitiful sum for a half-million of members? We should raise at least a dollar per capita.

For two months Mrs Ward has been looking through the gates of death. During this time I could not leave her 8hs is slightly better, able to sit up an hour each day. We both ask the prayers of our brethren that we may be sustained by the power of God. Dominus Vobiscum. T. M. D. WARD

MACEDONIA RALLIES

The Macedonia Church, Camden, N. J., will hold its fall rally next Sunday. These people have been heavily burdened for three years, paying for the new building. They have done nobly. We appreciate the kind assistance rendered by many faithful friends of the church and brethren of other denominations. Our present indebtedness is $5,700. Will our friends aid us to make a good fall peyment this fall? God's blessings he upon you. Bishop Campbell, Elders Yeocum, Thompson, Lee and J. W. Cooper have been invited to preach for us. G. A VISIT TO SMYRNA.

OUR CHURCH WORK IN DELAWARE.

BY REV. L. J. COPPIN.

For a long time the work of the A. M. E. Church in the State of Delaware languished. At Wilmington and Dover city of the State, the condition was quite different. In charge of such men as Elders Seeton, Smith, Waymen, Steward, Thomas and Pitts, the church at the latter place came to life and now ranks among the first in the Philadelphia Conference. But from Wilmington all the way down to Lewes things continued "about the same." What were the cause of this non-progressive state of things? Perhaps no one thing can be settled upon as the cause, but possibly that which contributed more largely than anything else was the fact that Delaware was made a training or probationery ground for inexperienced men—men who were not in orders, or men who were chronic failures. Now, add to this the influence of Bourbon Democracy of the truest type and the absence of the public school for persons of color, and very poor ones for the whites, and you have, I think, about the sum of the cause. But all is now changing in Delaware, and our Church work now booms there. A new class of men are in the field Men, the most of whom are in orders; young, strong, energetic and possessing a good share of acquired ability. The political atmosphere is not quite so full of caste-malaria and our schools are helped though not entirely supported, by the State.

The Milford Chronicle of October 7th, referring to the district conference held by the Smyrna Presiding Elder District, among other very encouraging things, says: "The reports indicated marked intellectual, spiritual and moral improvement." These words, coming from the source which they do, speak volumes. I must, by no means, forget to mention the fact that much of the recent progress has been brought about by the day school teachers. With small salaries and many other deprivations they have labored heartily in the work of lifting up our people and their faithful and efficient work in the school room, their exhibitions, literary societies, institutes and labors in the Sunday school have produced a good harvest.

At Smyrna, the garden spot of the State, Wilmington excepted (?) our church is a power for good. The work of remodeling the building was begun by Rev. Seth D W. Smith and completed by Rev. J. W. Norris, the present pastor, and the church, as completed, is for beauty, convenience and general arrangement the equal of the average church in any of our large cities. You will be met at the head of either one of the three aisles by an usher, who will lead you over a carpeted floor and politely show you a seat. At the right of the pulpit is a platform enclosed with a neat walnut finished railing. This place is occupied by the choir, and the singing is quite up to the average. The pulpit is reached by a back stairway leading from the basement. The church is lighted with gas and a manuscript can be handled as conveniently at night as during the day. Rev. J. W. Norris, the present pastor, is a faithful, successful and untiring worker, within his charge and in the district over which he presides.

On last Sunday hundreds attended the morning preaching, the Sunday school at 2 o'clock, the five o'clock prayer-meeting and the night service. Men and women who have passed three score years were seen promptly at each and all of these services. Father Holland, an old warrior, an ex-pastor, now superannuated and in his eighty-fifth year, was at the morning service, led in prayer and enjoyed the meeting.

The following "event of the season" is clipped from the Smyrna Record of Saturday, October 8th:

"The most brilliant wedding ever held within the classic precincts of Wapping occurred at the Bethel M. E. (colored) Church on Thursday evening. It is not too much to say that in point of beauty of decoration, in number and distinguished position of the invited guests and spectators, in music, lights, flowers and brilliant but dusky eclat, the occasion has never been equaled. The contracting parties, whose banns of time launched upon the somewhat extensive sea of bliss in the presence of so many of our fellow townsmen, and freighted with so many good wishes and prayers, are David J. Clayton and Sarah A. Heimsley. The service was performed by Rev. J. W. Norris."

Prayer is so mighty an instrument that no one ever thoroughly mastered all its keys. The sweep along the infinite scale of man's wants and God's goodness.—Hugh Miller.

"Look here," said an irate guest at a summer resort, "some chinches may there are no mosquitoes here: and last night I was nearly eaten up by them." "There were no mosquitoes here when that circular was prepared. I assure you, sir," replied the hotel keeper. "And when was that?" "About the beginning of February."—Exchange.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

LESSON HELPS IN FOUR GRADES.

THE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY. A thirty-six page pamphlet for the use of the teachers and older scholars. Its value is enhanced by the introduction of appropriate forms for opening and closing the exercises, hymns and tunes, maps, dictionary of proper names, etc.

THE SCHOLAR'S QUARTERLY. Similar to the above, but with such necessary changes as adapts it to the wants of scholars in the main school. It is marvelously cheap, five or more copies to one address, per year, 7 cents each.

THE JUVENILE LESSON PAPER is four pages weekly, designed for younger scholars who have outgrown the infant class, but who retain their fondness for pictures and simple stories. 208 pages for a dime!

THE GEM LESSON PAPER is a beautiful lesson sheet, four pages handsomely illustrated and printed on pink paper; for primary or infant scholars. Each number contains besides the lesson, a page or more of "baby-land" talk. All for 6 cents a year, where five or more copies are sent to one address

THE CHILD'S RECORDER, now beginning its eighth volume with a larger issue than ever before, offers a rich treat and welcome visitor each week during the year. With additional editorial force, and a list of regular contributors skilled in the style of writing required by young people, it will be spared to put this publication abreast with the foremost of its class.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887) will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society conceived to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat";

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the revolutions of the Haitians, under Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, R. B. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

1. The History of Bethel A. M. E Church, of Philadelphia, Pa., by Rev. J. W. Beckett, B. D.

2. The Pioneer Preacher and Layman of the East.—Bishop J. P. Campbell.

3. The Pioneers of the South and West in 1848 and beyond.—J. M. Brown.

4. The Pioneers of the Southeast.—Bishop H. M. Turner.

5. The Father of the Alabama Conference and his work.—Rev. M. E. Bryant.

6. The Pioneers to Gold Coast.—T. M. D. Ward and J. H. Hubbard.

7. The A. M. E. Church from Allegheny Mountains to the Mississippi.—T. H. Jackson.

8. A. M. E. Church beyond the Mississippi.—J. M. Wilkerson, John Turner.

9. The Organizing and Developing Power of the A. M. E. Church.—B. T. Tanner.

10. The Advancement of the Intellectual Standing of the Ministry of the A. M. E. Church.—Bishop D. A. Payne.

11. The A. M. E. Church and its Relation to the Elevation of the Race.—T. G. Steward.

BENJAMIN W. ARNETT, Secretary.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the completion of a year since our existence commenced, and that services be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J. P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes.

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The secretaries of the Conferences that have elected ministerial and lay delegates to the General conference to convene at Indianapolis, Ind., May, 1888, are hereby urgently requested to forward, at once, names of said delegates, and name of conference. The conferences that have not yet elected said delegates, secretaries are requested to forward names of delegates and name of conference at their earliest opportunity. We are anxious to push the work of preparation as fast as possible. Please write names plainly that there be no mistakes.

Delegates bringing their wives, and all visiting brethren not directly connected with the Conference, must come prepared to pay for board and lodging. We shall provide for members of the General Conference only.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL WHO HAVE BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS WITH THIS DEPARTMENT.

READ, RE-READ AND REMEMBER.

1st. We do not take postage stamps. If you cannot obtain Post Office Money Order, which is the safest method to send money, you can send by registered letter. These are issued by every post office in the United States. If your postmaster insists on selling you stamps you insist the more on having him register your letter.

2nd. Send the exact amount of money required to pay for the goods you order. When this is not done our rule is to send that amount of supplies which the money sent will pay for.

3rd. When you order from us, always write plainly at the bottom of your letter the place where you wish your supplies sent. Very often persons write us an order from one place on a circuit desiring it sent to some other place, and do not mention this very important fact.

4th. For all money sent to us for Sunday school literature we send a postal card receipt, numbered. If your order is delayed, or if there is any irregularity concerning it, write to us about it, but be sure to give the number of your receipt card and the name of the person who sent the order or signed his name to it. When a pastor writes to us that his superintendent sent us money, etc., we do not know who is his superintendent unless he writes us his name. Always send the names of persons and not names of churches, schools, circuits, stations, etc.

5th. Sign your name to your communication We cannot tell who sent a letter to us when there is no name signed to it.

6th. Write your name in large, plain letters. Avoid flourishing. It is useless and often renders obscure what would otherwise be legible writing.

7th. Never send a postal note, money order or express package without any instruction accompanying it. How do we know what to do with money sent thus?

8th. We have lost a great deal of money by sending supplies C. O. D. because the parties whom we thus favored failed to take them from the express office. In consequence of this neglect and absolute loss which we have borne because of it, we have decided to positively refuse to grant any more C. O. D. favors to anyone. Please do not request them.

9th. Our business is conducted on a strictly cash basis. If you are not familiar with our prices write to us when you wish to buy and we will freely quote them or send you a catalogue, price list, blank and return envelope.

10th. Always remit your money for supplies and have it appropriated for them at least two weeks before the beginnig of each quarter; this will prevent much delay. Very often orders do not arrive until one-half or two-thirds of the quarter is past; in which case we have to print an extra amount of literature for the benefit of two or three persons or else lay ourselves liable to a "raking over" by them.

11th. When the Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterly, the Juvenile and Gem Lesson Papers are ordered, they are rolled in one package together. The catechisms, song books, primary lessons, reward cards and other such matter are never in one wrapper. When you order both inquire for two packages at the post office.

12th. If your city has the free delivery system have your mail directed to the street and number. Unless you do this it will be returned to us while you are abusing us for neglect.

13th. Every pastor is hereby earnestly requested to have some one, who is permanently located in his work, elected Sunday school supply clerk, whose duty it shall be to send for all orders for his Sunday school supplies.

We hope this will be done at once by each pastor and that he will send us the name of the one elected to this office. This method of communicating with us through a person who has permanent location in a place will lessen difficulty and greatly facilitate intercourse between us and our patrons. It is hoped that this request will receive immediate attention. We have purchased new books in which to record the names of Sunday school supply clerks and we anxiously await their names. A postal card will serve for this purpose. Hoping that the above instructions will be received with the kindly spirit with which they are given, and praying the blessing of Almighty God upon all those who are, with us, intrusted with the children's welfare. Fraternally,

C. S. SMITH.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints: 1st. Because it furnishes the most natural method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. Because it shows how to preach with ease and grace, and yet with power and success." 3rd. Because "it exposes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to correct them." He reviewers advise ministers to read the work carefully, because "they will find in it much that they never thought of before." 4th. Because it shows how they must need to receive are not furnished by other homiletical workmen." "It is replete with shrewd, hard, good sense;"—because "It is a book for all ministers, however educated, because it is assured by many to be the most helpful book they ever read. —"Worth its weight in gold."

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE
NERVOUS PROSTRATION AND WEAKNESS OF THE ALIMENTARY CANAL.

DR. B. M. GAVITT, Toledo, O., says: "It is a valuable remedy in nervous prostration and weakness of the alimentary canal."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets
SIZE OF PELLETS.
THE ORIGINAL
LITTLE LIVER PILLS.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!
Always ask for Dr. Pierce's Pellets, or Little Sugar-coated Granules or Pills.

BEING ENTIRELY VEGETABLE, Dr. Pierce's Pellets operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation. Put up in glass vials, hermetically sealed. Always fresh and reliable. As a LAXATIVE, ALTERATIVE, or PURGATIVE, these little Pellets give the most perfect satisfaction.

SICK HEADACHE,
Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their sanative influence. Sold by druggists, for 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

BOILS CURED.
WILLIAM RAMICH, Esq., of Minden, Kearney County, Nebraska, writes: "I was troubled with boils for thirty years. Four years ago I was so afflicted with them that I could not walk. I bought two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and took one 'Pellet' after each meal, till all were gone, by that time I had no boils, and have had none since. I have also been troubled with sick headache. When I feel it coming on I take one or two 'Pellets,' and am relieved of the headache."

THE BEST CATHARTIC.
Mrs. C. W. BROWN, of Wapakoneta, Ohio, says: "Your 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are without question the best cathartic ever sold. They are also a most efficient remedy for torpor of the liver. We have used them for years in our family, and keep them in the house all the time."

$500 REWARD
(Is offered by the PROPRIETORS OF)
DR. SAGE'S
Catarrh Remedy
BEFORE USING. AFTER USING.
FOR A CASE OF CATARRH WHICH THEY CAN NOT CURE.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.
Dull, heavy headache, obstruction of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hawking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang; the breath is offensive; smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, with mental depression, a hacking cough and general debility. However, only a few of the above-named symptome are likely to be present in any one case. Thousands of cases annually, without manifesting half of the above symptoms, result in consumption, and end in the grave. No disease is so common, more deceptive and dangerous, less understood, or more unsuccessfully treated by physicians. By its mild, soothing, and healing properties.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY
CURES THE WORST CASES OF Catarrh, "Cold in the Head," Coryza, and Catarrhal Headache.
SOLD BY DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.
PRICE, 50 CENTS.

UNTOLD AGONY FROM CATARRH.
Prof. W. HAUSNER, the famous mesmerist, of Ithaca, N. Y., writes: "Some ten years ago I suffered untold agony from chronic nasal catarrh. My family physician gave me up as incurable, and said I must die. My case was such a bad one, that every day, towards sunset, my voice would become so hoarse I could barely speak above a whisper. In the morning my coughing and clearing of my throat would almost prostrate me. By the use of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, in three months, I was a well man, and the cure has been permanent."

CONSTANTLY HAWKING AND SPITTING.
THOMAS J. RUSHING, Esq., 809 Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "I was a great sufferer from catarrh for three years. At times I could hardly breathe and was constantly hawking and spitting, and for the last eight months could not breathe through the nostrils. I thought nothing could be done for me. Luckily, I was advised to try Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and I am now a well man. I believe it to be the only sure remedy for catarrh now manufactured, and one has only to give it a fair trial to experience a permanent cure."

THREE BOTTLES CURE CATARRH.
REV. ROBBINS, Runyon P. O., Columbia Co., Pa., says: "My daughter had catarrh when she was five years old, very badly. I saw Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy advertised, and procured a bottle for her, and soon saw that it helped her; a third bottle effected a permanent cure. She is now eighteen years old and sound and hearty."

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E Church and African M E Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15-17, 1885

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in MAY, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date fixed. Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

We again call the attention of the pastors and presiding elders to the form of Warranty Deed we have prepared and published for general use in the purchase of church properties. The form is simple, and plain as plain can be, yet it is believed to cover every point in the law. It was drawn by an old experienced attorney, with our Discipline before him. Price, 25 cents per copy, or 5 for $1.00.

Address, J. C. EMBRY,
Box 906, Philadelphia, Pa.

NOTICE.

All communications intended for the Sunday School Union of the A. M. E. Church that are addressed to Rev. C. S. Smith, Nashville, Tennessee, will be received. It is not necessary to give the name of the street nor the number of our business place. Rev. C. S. Smith, Nashville, Tenn., is sufficient. Telegrams addressed the same way will reach us. We are fully settled in our new headquarters and prepared for business. C. S. SMITH, Secretary.

MR. CHARLOTTE LISLE, OF CHICAGO, well known to the Western press, ascribe the cure of a dangerous cough, accompanied by a bleeding at the lungs, to Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar. "My cough," she says, "threatened to suffocate me ; but this remedy has removed it."

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

The Best Remedy

For Dyspepsia is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Other medicines may give temporary relief; but Ayer's Sarsaparilla makes a positive and permanent cure, as thousands can testify all over the country.

"My stomach, liver, and kidneys were in a disordered condition for years," writes R. Wild, of Hutto, Texas, "and I never found any medicine to relieve me, until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than six bottles of this remedy cured me."

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of Holyoke, Mass., was for a long time a severe sufferer from Dyspepsia, trying, in vain, all the usual remedies. At last she began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and only three bottles restored her to perfect health.

"I have gone through terrible suffering from Dyspepsia and Indigestion," writes C. J. Bodemer, 145 Columbia st., Cambridgeport, Mass., "and can truly say Ayer's Sarsaparilla has cured me."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Price $1; six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

A N EXCELLENT MEDICINE.—TARRANT'S Effervescent Seltzer Aperient is the safest and most reliable remedy for Sick Headache, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Liver Complaint and Constipation. Recommended by physicians and sold by druggists everywhere.

DUTY.

—Et fluctus tui super me transierunt.

BY B. T. TANNER, D.D.

But yesterday, O Lord, the tide flowed ont.
I thought myself secure to look about
And see if brighter I could make thy crown,
If honor more thy name; spread thy renown.

To-day the tide flows in; and waters cold
Have, Lord, already of my soul gat hold.
I, from amidst the rising flood, cry out—
From 'midst the roaring of thy waterspout.

Thou hearest, Lord, for now the answer comes,
So stern, undrowned by ocean's thousand drums:
"Wouldst thou still brighter make my glorious crown, Stand to thy post; and if I will it, drown."

Thy voice, so sweetly stern, O Lord, I hear.
I may not, Jesu, will not, cannot fear.
If I more brightly shine can make thy crown,
Then, Jesu, let me die, then let me drown.

BISHOPS AND THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

BY REV. T. G STEWARD, D.D.

One of the fundamental errors in the administration of our affairs is the assumption that the Bishops are officers of the General Conference. I grant that they have been agents of the General Conference for the past three years as the result of the unconstitutional action of the General Conference of 1884, but from the beginning it was not so, and if the principle that what is not done lawfully is not done at all he admitted, they are not so now. But, as I say, I can afford to grant that since 1884 they have acted, in so far as they have obeyed the action of the General Conference, as its agents.

Now, I deny that the Bishops are in any sense, of right, officers of the General Conference after that body shall have adjourned. While the General Conference is in session they are, according to our law, members of the conference and some one of them is chairman each day; but when the General Conference adjourns sine die they are no longer members or officers of that General Conference is dead; they are not officers and members of the next General Conference, for the reason that they may be dead before it shall have been formed. Besides the officers of a past General Conference nor of a future General Conference, it ought to be plain that they are officers of no General Conference. But there are some who are tormented with the phantom that the General Conference is a continuous body, and exists in some indefinable form and in some unknown territory, say from '84 to '88. To get rid of this phantom we have only to ask ourselves, where is the General Conference after it adjourns sine die? And the answer must come, nowhere! What is it that exists nowhere? Not a body certainly (nobody), since not a General Conference composed of delegates elected in a certain manner at a certain time. But it will be replied that the Bishops were elected by the General Conference and are amenable to the General Conference, and, hence, are officers of the General Conference They are elected to certain constitutional positions—positions which the General Conference has no power to tamper with under the constitution Hence, they become officers of the Church as the President becomes an officer, not of Congress, but of the country. Being elected by, or amenable to, a body does not make one of necessity an officer of that body.

On what ground, then, can it be claimed that the Bishops are officers or by constitutional arrangement agents of the General Conference? Perhaps up on the ground that they are General Officers of the Church and are to be classified with those elders who are holding the positions of editors, secretaries, etc. If this view obtain, then I ask, what is the precise value of Episcopacy? If a Bishop is a General Officer in exactly the same relations to the Church as the other General Officers, what a farce indeed is our episcopal ordination or consecration! The exact difference is this: These editors and secretaries are elected to positions which the General Conference created and can destroy—positions which may be regarded as having their place in the by-laws of the Church; while the Bishop is elected to a position in the connection itself. General Conference can create or destroy these other offices, but General Conference did not create and General Conference cannot destroy the office of Bishop. Hence, the former may be classed as officers of the General Conference; the latter as officers of the Church.

And now I reach the point to which all this argument is directed. We read that the General Conference cannot do away with episcopacy or general superintendency; are we therefore to conclude that the Church can never change its form? By no means. We are only to learn that the General Conference is not the Church. What the General Conference cannot do the Church can do, if it should so please, for the Church owes sovereignty to no other than Christ and itself.

Now, no amendment to the restrictive rules can be made without the consent of the Church at large formally expressed, and the Bishop, once elected, finds himself seated exactly among these safeguards. Half formed and half studied, indeed, are those views which regard the Bishopric as subject to the General Conference in the face of that constitution which says, emphatically, it is not so. General Conference may impeach, try and depose a Bishop, but it cannot depose the Bishopric.

"MORE BISHOPS" UNDER REVIEW.

BY REV. P. M. LEWIS.

No. 4.

1. Suppose a generation has passed away since the formation of our present Board of Bishops, this does not prove that the Board is in any respect or to the least degree disqualified to perform the duties of its high office with proficiency and efficiency.

2 "Old methods have been susperceded by new ones." This is true, and blessed be the dispenser of every good gift, this old board, with its great physical, moral, intellectual and religious abilities, so accessible to every new and improved method by which the world is trying to accomplish the greatest amount of good, has not only kept up with the advancing cycles of improvements and new methods, but has led the A. M. E. Church from inabilities, weakness and obscurity to the van of Christian warfare, and made her that distinguished institution for good which she is and which you and all of the world acknowledges her to be. For proof of this, note our Bishops, always laboring and pleading for more and improved facilities and apparatus; revised and new text books for carrying on the work of redemption and education among us. Bishops Payne, Campbell, Brown and Turner are noted for their knowledge and work.

3. "The advancements of the present time require agents and institutions in keeping with it." This is true, and thanks to heaven our Church has them.

4. "The accuracy of adaptation—must be observed—as the effectual means for meeting the demands of the honr." All true, and it has been wisely attended to by our Church and General Conferences in the past, and all we should be careful of is to follow these examples in the future and give us more such Bishops as the Church will need them. For we will never get, as a majority, a superior Board.

Our General Conferences have been very cautions to give us, as a rule, just such men as the doctor describes here, and who, possessed such other noble traits as made them wonderfully successful and enabled them to lead on our Church until she has outstripped the world of similar colored organizations.

DR. JOHNSON'S V. ARTICLE.

Here the doctor scrawls away, and in substance declares that the A. M. E. Church is laboring under ecclesiastical follies and superficial assertions which have made for us bad ecclesiastical economy, and having developed into parsimonious theories have piled up a few dollars and placed seven or nine Bishops behind them; an insufficient number to do the work of their office and thereby have dwarfed all of the vital interests of this Church. It makes competency of force secondary to the preservation of money, and so fails to see the disadvantage of the inconsistency.

1. Logically speaking, the doctor is mistaken in these declarations, and though he may be innocent in making them, to insinuate such ignorance, follies and wilful misgoverning, actuated by parsimoniousness, upon the whole Church, as he does in these remarks, is very unjust to the Church, and unbecoming to this great divine. The glorious record of this Church showing her regular achievements of marvelous good and her position in the Christian world to-day, prove that her progress in doing good has not been hindered in the least by any of the forces which the doctor is pointing out. The Church never was more wisely governed, and in a more flourishing condition than she is to-day; notwithstanding some say that we are losing influence and power in our Church.

2 Now, doctor, just listen what you say next: "Prudence must set aside this old routine of higest folly and decide the question, how many more men or brethren must be elected additional Bishops? I have thought it over and after bringing it down to a practical consideration find it clear to my mind that at the next General Conference eight additional men should be elected to the episcopal office."

Now, if this is not one of the most extremely presumptuous assertions, I do think, and that, too, with the kindest feelings and best respect for the doctor, that it would overtask any and all of us to define it. I remark, once more, that we do not need more Bishops, and if we had them, according to Dr. Johnson's plan, they would not constitute a force half sufficient for their work. I think that that truth is proved beyond the possibilities of a successful contradiction. Every one can see and understand that if a Bishop has 360 societies to vis it in one conference year and that he must deal with them as the doctor says, that he could not average one a day the year around and keep up his studies, attend to his other regular and extra work. Such a task would not allow a Bishop to eat, drink nor sleep, and then he would not live but a few weeks nor perform more than one-third the work allotted him for that time.

But the doctor said something about the Bishops having an amanuensis to write for him. I would like for the doctor to tell us how does he intend the amanuensis to live, for before he gets through with the Bishops he leaves them, in this well systematized world, without any guaranteed plan for getting something to live on themselves. The doctor's position is non-Methodistic, impracticable and is wholly untenable by us.

Let us admit that under the circumstances it may be wise for the next General Conference to elect more Bishops, and I concede this much freely. We all know, and the world outside knows, that we do not need any such a number as eight. The election of that number, or too near it, I believe, would result in great injuries to us as a Church. Our enemies would take advantage of the blunder and magnify the evils against us. Our own good people, ministers and laymen, would feel to be unnecessarily and unreasonably burdened in this direction, and, above all, the Church would have no use for such a number.

3 It is sufficient to say that we Methodists are not Roman Catholics, nor Episcopalians. We do not propose to adopt their systems for governing our churches. The effectual work of evangelizing the world done by the Methodist in every respect will compare favorably with any of them.

4. The Church is not distinctly parsimonious nor greedy of filthy lucre, but is seriously striving to apply our moneys wisely so as to accomplish the greatest amount of good to the greatest number of persons. I pass the remainder of this article as having been sufficiently noticed.

DR. JOHNSON'S VI. ARTICLE.

I highly endorse all that this great writer and Christian brother has mentioned here as a prerequisite for Divine guidance in the election and as to the necessary qualifications for those to have who are fit persons to be elected, and beyond a doubt, they should all be elected on their true merits and independent of special favoritism. The naming of the proper men to be elected from among so great a number of good and truly great men as we have in our Church is too momentous and far too assuming for me. I will gladly leave this paramount work with the trusty, wise old Board of Bishops and the General Conference, should they conclude to elect more Bishops.

INTERESTING MISSIONARY NEWS.

DEMERARA, B. G. S. A., Sept. 9, '87.

SIR:—Permit me, through the medium of your columns, to acquaint you with my last visit to a part of our mission places on the West Coast and Rio Essequebo, which is thirty miles from the metropolis

I left Georgetown at 1 P. M., per ferry steamer for the above places, and after crossing was seated in a carriage, which took me a part of the journey (17 miles) along the coast, and having reached that distance at 6 30 I was entertained by one of our brothers, Mr. Elliot, at Versgeuegoe, after which I went out and found a few of the children of Campbell Church, Farm Village, in the market. They took my bag and I walked with them to the mission, where I was received by Brother Bose at 9 o'clock.

A short time after Brother Campbell (Indian), accompanied by a female and another man, had seen me and informed me that they had brought the canoe "Comet" for me, and stated that it was built by the stewardess (Sister M. Eykel) of Charity A. M. E Church, for mission work at Johannah Cornelia. The Essequebo, a river of twenty miles in length, having many rapids, but is navigable about fifty miles through its rapids. Large vessels cannot go further than the navigable direction. Along its banks are Indians' residences, and around their various places is the recent gold field, which is utilizing many pounds of gold.

Having to go according to the flow of the tide, I had to wait until 3 o'clock in the morning, when the water suited. I must inform you that after the long journey which I had already taken, I went asleep so soundly that when the captain of the canoe awoke me, I it had not been duly I would not have gone; but, remembering the poet's words,

"When Duty calls be never wanting."

I dressed and embarked and away I started for my destination (about 12 miles from where I slept that night) with a dark cloud over my head and the moon barely shining. The canoe glided along the bank of the river. Suddenly the boat began to feel the effect of a strong current and I became sick. Indeed, I thought I was going to die. The men with paddles did their best, while the woman got sick and the captain got alarmed, for our little boat was in danger. At old adage, "Shortly after a storm a calm," proved true. The waves were quiet and we made our destination, where I met Bros. Sparman and Gill, conducting an early service At the conclusion I was welcomed, and with a little ginger tea and a couple hours' sleep felt ready for my work. Having re-opened a little chapel and delivered the Lord's Supper, also took in two candidates who said that they were convinced by my preaching on Gen 28, 17, concerning Jacob's dream, I bade the brethren farewell and embarked for Campbell Church, so as to preach at 7 P. M. I started at 3.30, hnt, with strong current and high winds, the boat could not go ahead. Seeing this, I took up a paddle, and of course we had a little more force, and at about 7.15 I got ashore. I am certain if you had seen us looking for the draining trench, where to land, you would have pitied us, for the night was dark and the brambles surrounded us so that my face and hands were well injured. Had it not been for a good friend (I mean the lightning) the boat would have remained there until morning. Next morning my hands were sore from using the paddle; bnt "necessity has no law." I preached and married a couple, took in three candidates, and you can judge when I went to bed how I felt.

On Monday when I came ont of bed I had to meet the official members and to see after the day-school. After being done I held a short service, preached from 2 Cor. 15, 11. Great credit is due to Bro. Yorke for the training of the day-school scholars. Bros. Bose, Watson, Drakes, Cameron and Johns are all Africans, and they, as officials, assisted by females, manage the church better than the natives of this colony. After the service was over I bade them adieu, and Bros. Watson and Bose accompanied me a little way on my journey until I met Vergeuegoe, where Bros. Williams and Brandis entertained me. After exhorting them I got the service of an Asiatic and started on my journey and walked to Anna Catharina, where Bishop Turner School is located. Tuesday morning I left and was safely landed in town by ferry-boat at 8 A. M.

I hope my communication will give your readers some idea of what a missionary's life is. If we had a horse and carriage such difficulties would not be experienced by poor missionaries "No one knows the pinch of the shoe but he who wears it." The latest news of the work here is that the Governor and Queen's Jubilee committee have granted our church a few dollars for the keeping of a feast for the poor of our flock.

Permit me to ask the young ministers of North and South America a question: Do you intend to remain at home and not come out into the mission field? Remember St. Paul to Timothy, "Endure hardship as a good soldier." Who will go? "Here I am, send me" "For the least you do for Jesus will be precious in his sight."

The greatest anxiety amongst the people is the celebration of Her Majesty's Jubilee on the 21st and 22d of the month, and the gold fever amongst the people.

The spiritual work of the church is on the advance, but financially very much the same way as in my past letters. The Rev. Sheen is here, but I cannot say what he intends doing. I am only watching his movements. I hope to see you soon. I love to the brethren. I am, &c

PERSONAL ATTACKS.

BRO. EDITOR:—Please allow me a note of self defense, as soon as possible, in the columns of the RECORDER. In discussing the subject of "More Bishops," I am, in a Christian spirit, doing what I clearly see is for the best interest of the Church. Other brethren, as a matter of course, are entitled to different views. I did not think, though, that for doing this the columns of the RECORDER would be used by others for the purpose of making such personal attacks upon me as has been made in the balderdash of P. M. Lewis. I have been in the A. M. E. Church during all my life as a preacher and was P. M. Lewis' presiding elder in Baltimore, when he seceded from the connection with a number of its members to establish an opposition organization. If I am to be made the subject of untruthful attacks of such men as he, simply for argumentatively writing, with due respect to Bishops and everybody else, a series of articles for the good of the Church, then may I regret that I have undertaken the task, and be urged to hasten on to finish it that my work may be finally concluded in the RECORDER.

TEXAS NOTES.

The Texas people are moving to California by the hundreds.

Revs A. Grant, J. E. Edwards, J. W. Randolph and J. P. Bradly are making preparations to celebrate the centennial of the A. M. E. Church.

Paul Quinn College opened up with a good number of students this year. The trustees have just paid $1,600 on the indebtedness.

Rev. A. F. Jackson has just gotten through improving St. James A. M. E. Church in San Antonio. He is getting ready for the dedication on 5th Sabbath in October. Rev. A. Grant is expected to be present.

Rev. J. E. Edwards is closing up his fourth year in Galveston as pastor of Reedy's Chapel, with great success.

Rev. J. H. Armstrong has built a very nice church at Dallas and very nearly paid for it in four years.

The connection owns five very nice brick church buildings in Texas; one in Austin with a basement, second to none in the South, built by Rev. A. Grant; one in Galveston with a basement, which will be equal to the one in Austin when finished, built by J. E. Edwards; one in Waco, with basement, purchased by Rev. W. R. Carson from the Presbyterians; one in Dallas, one story, built by Rev. J. H. Armstrong; one at Fort Worth, built by Rev. W. E. Reed, one story. Beside these a great many very nice frame buildings.

Rev. Frank Green, appointed a member of Centeuuial Committee in Texas, is not a member of the A. M E. Church. Revs. Hammitt and Haywood are local preachers. Mistakes should not be made, especially when there is so much at stake.

MORE BISHOPS.

BY REV. JAMES H. A. JOHNSON, D.D.

XIV.

THE CONNECTIONAL STRENGTH MANIFESTED BY AN ADEQUATE NUMBER OF BISHOPS.

In olden times it was common in the itinerancy to have many charges and a few laborers. Circuits were hurdened down with so many churches that none of them could get full attention. Exhausted preachers would be compelled to travel from point to point and do but little in building up any of them, because of the extensiveness of the work. This condition of things prevailed because the Church was poor, the people were poor. They were not able, oftentimes, to supply the preachers with any other kind of a repast but pitch, cornbread and pumpkin mash. In the course of time, though, the membership increased, the Church grew stronger and there was a division of the area of circuits and an increased number of itinerants to represent their strength. Once the general superintendency of the A. M. E. Church had to be served by two Bishops because it was too weak to have a larger number; but as time advanced and strength developed it had additions to its number. As the Church thus moved on it showed itself worthy of respect and secured it. At every stage of its progress an adaptation of its machinery has extended its influence. And so it has gone on until to-day it exists as a great power that claims for itself treatment that shall go far beyond fogyism or puerility. No clondy conception, no superficial conclusion, no illbegotten prejudice must stand in one moment come athwart the deliberation that it demande for its present necessities. It must he clearly seen that the A. M. E. Church of the present is different from that of 1864. It has grown on during the past generation until it has attained proportions which must be brought to bear directly upon the masses of mankind. How can this be done? By setting apart a lese nnmber of Bishops than are needed for the purposes? Can it be done by turning them out of their districts to roam the plains like antelopes? No. The connection's strength is to be made manifest if every member in it has to pay a dollar for this purpose.

It is said that there are so many hundreds of thonsands of them composing the great organization and possessing ability for Church government. This assumption can be made good by the sustenance of a full force of leaders to carry on all the general work. It can be shown then to a certainty that there is a power behind them to keep them in the performance of their duty to give evidence that the claim of numerical strength is a living reality and not a myth. Individually or collectively the members of the Episcopal Board would stand as the representatives of the recorded thousands of communicants forming the African Methodist Episcopal Church. Even the salaries paid to these officials would be effective in proclaiming its character. The world at large would conclude that an organization enstaining such an efficient branch of service was worthy of the highest degree of respect. Everywhere the strength of numbers would be represented. Power would continue to grow. People love to join in with the crowd and they would be induced to do it.

And, still further, the A. M. E. Church has justly claimed to have within its borders a vast amount of intellect and learning. It is presumed that there is no other organization like it among all the millions of the colored population. Perhaps this is true. But whether it be so or not it is beyond controversy that the general intellectual and literary character of the organization demande its highest order of representation. There are so many eyes directed towards it on every cardinal point that wisdom dictates the necessity of having the most ample arrangement made to satisfactorily meet them. Astnte people always want to see what kind of a representation can be made by any noble institution. They are anxious to ascertain what amount of brain and culture lies back of all profeselon. If they perceive meagreness in management or a limitation of the required number of leading agents they conclnde that there is a lack of mental ability in the combination. Bnt if they see an arrangement that is suitable for for every exigency, they conclude that intellect and learning predominate in the methods of government. Every one knows that an imposing Board of Bishops would be of the highest degree of benefit to the intellectual and literary standing of the connection. People by this means would he enabled to form an idea of the intellectual power directing the connectional affairs. Every man of the Board, by his own braine, would be a criterion for his constituents. A Bishop's dignity and ahility make their favorable impressions whithersoever he wends his way. These signal effects produced are always to the advantage of the Church. They turn the attention to its educational enterprises, its teachers and accomplishments. That which has been done, in this direction, by one distinguished man alone—D. A. Payne—is a confirmation of the averment without any additional proof. Take this, then, as the reason for the establishment of a full force, and the matter will be settled without any further controversy to the attainment of proportionally good results. The various departments and agencies created for the promotion of knowledge will hereby he set forth in the most favorable light.

All ranks of the ministry, moreover, will be prominently presented to the world. An episcopal force judiciously distributed all over the land would indicate that a subordinate body of ministers were in co operation as promoters of one common cause. There would be a uniformity in clerical representation that would have a hearing in every direction. A Bishop everywhere would be seen and recognized as the head and front of an active band of preachers. It would be decided by those ignorant of the character of the connection thet organization, discipline, life and efficiency existed as the vigorous elements of the clerical force behind him. Every preacher of experience knows that many respectable people outside of the A. M. E. Church form their estimate of its condition by the appearance of a Bishop. These then through him the various attributes belonging to a religious body and accordingly form their favorable opinion of it.

Taking this method of representation, then, in its general sense, we observe that it effectually presents the whole power of the connection. A strong, imposing Board of Bishops, at any time, makes a more profound impression than one that is weak by inadequacy of numbers. A force equal to the demand of the Church in every part of the land would show the moral, intellectual, financial and personal strength of it to sustain that force in all its operations. Strength would manifest strength; and manifested strength would beget strength. And so the A. M. E. Church would grow in the course of years until its influence would far exceed that of any other religious people. Its departments, and plans, and ministers, and members; its societies, church edifices, schools and colleges; its religions meetings, conventional assemblies and social gatherings would all be presented to the world in one coast and glorious flood of light that would sweep down every obstacle intercepting its onward march to divine accomplishments.

So great would be its character as a part of the militant Church, that the shades of departed spirits—such as Allen, Dunn and Waters; and the lustre of the heavenly hosts—such as fell upon Bethlehem's watching shepherds—would attend it in its onward progress in the work of reformation and regeneration. The Bishops confirmed would move like white-plnmed marshals; the ministers, to snbordinate ranks ordained, would fall in line as faithful orderlies of the communicants, sanctified to the holy roster, would mark time like trne born veterans; and in this manner would the A. M. E. Church go on from conqnest to conquest, whilst little penny-wise philosophers would stand amazed and say, "Dn tell! I didn't think it could be so."

THE A. M. E. CHURCH FINANCIAL SYSTEM.

BY REV. J. W. GAZAWAY.

The wisdom of the General Conference of 1872 is made manifest in the arrangement of the present financial system and the snccess that has attended its operation. The dollar system is adequate to meet every demand for which it is designed. Is our dollar system worked as it can be worked? It has been and is a success, but is it as successful as it can be made? Notwithstanding the fact that the plan is fifteen years old there is not as general an understanding of its nature as one would suppose. And this is in my mind a reason why there is not the interest in the system, npon the part of some, that there should he. I do not think the plan is studied in all its bearings as it should be, and in this case, as has been remarked by some one, that some persons can only see the Bishops' money in this plan. And jnst here appears the necessity for specific publication of the various sources into which the dollar diverges; constant, extensive publication of all the interests subserved, kept before the people will create a greater interest. One of the interests subserved is our church extension work. That feature is not generally understood. Let every congregation among us know that hy increasing the Dollar Money collections we increase the church extension fund, and that if all will give the dollar that fund will have become so enlarged that it would be possible for churches laboring under debt and heavy interest to borrow from our church extension fund at a lower rate of interest than can be done from the money-lenders, and it does seem that that knowledge would haget an interest. Ring the changes upon that point nntil it is understood by even the children from Maine to Florida. If our church extension fund was as it should he (and as I believe it will yet be), we could establish in many places mission churches. Six hundred dollars borrowed on small interest for a few years would give us three more churches here in Indianapolis, making five churches in this fast growing city. And what is true of Indianapolis is trne of many places. The point is to start our work where there is a prospect of success and but few to begin. There are points where, if we had two hundred dollars with which to secure a lot, snch would be the interest in the work that a congregation could he brought together. I understand that a part of the dollar is intended to assist thus in the work of spreading our church organization. Does the majority of the people so understend it? As I have said, there are many interests to he snb served by the doller, each of which is a subject for much thought, and a series of publications in some form, sent to the people constantly agitating the snbjects under consideration and presenting the great advantage of the system, would not fail in the accomplishment of the increase of our dollar fund. Two hundred thonsend dollers annually can be gethered from the people by each one of our four hnndred thousand members paying fifty cents a piece a year, four cents and a fraction a month. Reach the people and money will come.

PENSACOLA LETTER.

BY REV. S. D. JACKSON.

For the past two or three weeks there has been a series of religious meetings held in St. John Baptist Church by the Rev. John Felder and his congregetion. These meetings have accomplished a great good. Last Sunday night I attended and noticed a remarkable chenge of conduct and worship from thet which existed three or four years ago at this church. At 8 o'clock the above-named divine, the pastor, announced for his text these words, "Let him come now unto me," etc. Men should not be made to sit on one side of the church and women on the other, but be permitted to sit together. At the A. M. E. Church this custom prevails. At the conclusion of his discourse Mr. Joseph C. Young, a local preacher of this church, invited the unconverted to the mourner's seat, singing in the meantime a beautiful gospel song, and it sounded a thousand times better than one of our "ditties."

In looking over the vast assemblage I saw several members of the A. M. E. Church sharing most happily in the exercises, while another part were at the Mt. Zion Baptist Church and the remainder at home in the woods. I don't mean any offense to any one connected or interested in this great religious denomination, but I think it is a big mistake for our people to leave a town as full of sin and people as this is to go into the woods where there is nohody scarcely, to advance the "Redeemer's cause." While out in the woods two or three weeke our indebted church suffers; moreover this meeting causes the poor and imprudent colored people to give their money, which they need to buy bread, to heartless corporations and other ways equally as bad, thereby benefitting them nothing and filling their enemies' pocket books. Pouring water on that part of the building that is not burning is a poor way to extinguish the part that is burning.

Already some of our people stand ready to enter the political field for whoever the republican convention nominates. To speak of the different parties, their eagerness to get our votes and to late any part of their history would put the Repnblican party in quite an nncouth position and the Democratic party as a negro oppressive organization in the very worst form. There is no inducement offered to any honest colored man to help that party consummate their aims, and whoever aids them does so through profound ignorance or for some other improper consideration. No party manifests a great love for the colored people and certainly the recognition that they get for their fidelity and work amounts to very little or nothing. The Rev. Mr. Jefferson in the recent issue of the RECORDER that the whites are continually asking each other, "What shall we do with the negro?" Well, sir, I will tell you what they are doing with us down South. They are shooting us down as so many partridges; don't allow editors to speak the truth always through their papers to the people; kicking us off of trains whenever they see fit to do so; distribute the school funds as their conscience directs, charging us very often as high as 24 per cent. per annum for money when we are compelled to borrow it from them, and thousands of other things too nnmerous to mention. Too many of us wait too contentedly for our enemies to strike the first blow for us for liberty and recognition instead of striking it ourselves. Mr. T. T. Fortune, the matchless editor of the New York Freeman, has proposed one of the best plens that I have ever heard of for the colored people to make themselves felt and feared, but a great many of our people don't seem to understand it. But what prevents them from having a national convention in one of our good Northern or Western cities and there mep out a way politically whereby our votes would benefit us something from some one of these many political parties besides polluting ont to us the Hons. Douglass, Bruce, Langston, Lynch, Trotter and others as holding positions for nearly all the negroes in America. We have plenty more such men and we should so shape affairs that they should be seen and heard. I believe that if the colored voters would cast their ballots right things would he far more different from what they are now. Religiously, morally, financially and intellectually the colored people are going with a rapid velocity, bnt not near fast enough politically. I believe that the colored people have more petience, can endure more ill treatment, can be made more joyous under abject government and take things generally as directed hy a Divine Providence better than any of the other races. For many yeers they have been waiting for recognition, just recognition, for equal rights, for votes, to see the law justly administered, for accommodations the same as other American citizens heve, and miserable as the state of affairs is at present, their patience don't seem the least exhausted. I know from experience that it is a good thing to be in possession of. For meny years I have known a young man who has always had a great ambition for a position above that of menial servitude and got in a position in the church to speak for his oppressed race. Only a few days ago one of our best and most reliable citizens offered him such a position, but he had to refuse it owing to the fact that such a few of our people patronize race enterprises. However, this young man thinks that he can muster up enough patience to wait until he can accnmulate a little money to lose on his race then accept the same position. Our young men who are striving to make themselves something should not despond, for the present state of affairs will not exist always. They will soon have to take the place of their fathers and it behooves them to grasp every opportunity that presents itself to them to prepare for the emergency.

Pensecola, with its great shipping facilities, its railroads and the contemplated coming of energetic business men the rapid progress being made by its colored people, the manner in which it is building up at present give promise of a great city. We are proud always to walk by the light being held by members of our race or read the newspapers published by men of our race. We hope that our people will soon see the great good of supporting colored newspapers and that the most excellent journal may receive its full share.

INFLUENCE FOR GOOD OR ILL.

BY MRS. N. F. MOSELLE.

MR. EDITOR:—An article appeared some time ago in your columns instancing the methods by which parishioners might aid their pastors in their church work or reverse the matter by hindering him in his efforts. It saw forcibly on my mind at the time, and some several cases of influence, intentional and otherwise, and their results coming to my notice, I have jotted them down.

Mr. and Mrs. ——, lately teachers, physicians and those engaged in every calling, find among those by whom they are surrondded people who are a real help or hindrance. Said a physician to me, instancing a certain person, "That individual has sent me more patients than any one person since I have been practicing medicine. She has spoken well of me to all, recommended me to many, and, although poor, of no social station, unable to pay her little promptly, yet has proved a valuable friend." One day a teacher who was often vexed by a transient spirit of insubordination among his pupils, said to a scholar who of her own accord showed him such efforts, and therefore recommended heroic treatment for the erring ones, "You dislike to hear theee scholars give impudence and behave unruly, and yet the indwelling spirit now rife in the school can be traced to a certain occurrence in which you were the prime mover." I am reminded of two other cases of unconsciously exerted influence on the lives of others; and at the present time, when vacation has drawn to a close, the lesson might be pressed home with some benefit to your youthful readere especially. A certain lady in a thriving town supported a promising youth through an educational institution. He finished his education and returned to that town and spent his life to small profit. So great was the disappointment of the lady that she has refused ever to give of her wealth to individuals for educational purposes. Another lad, the opposite of the first, is about to enter upon his collegiate studies, but not a dollar will she advance. So cruel and bitter was the first disappointment, no pleadings can move her to rely on her own or the judgment of another in such a case. Another lady gave of her wealth against the wishes and judgment of her husband to support a young man through college. Ambition and a desire for illgotten gain destroyed the young youth, and in an evil hour he committed a terrible crime. While his guilt was yet unproven friends wrote to her in his behalf to help obtain counsel, that he might have a fair trial. Promptly came her check for the needed amount. He was proved guilty and confessed the crime. She was overcome with grief and refused to go to her beautiful villa the next summer, where the young man lived a member of her household, and where he committed the crime.

It is well to remember that the most insignificant one among us has the power of influencing many for good or evil. We cannot watch too carefully nor be too thoughtful concerning the effect of our actions upon others. In both the above cases the patrons were white, the recipients of their bounty colored. As a race we are injured in the eyes of another race. Neither of these women will have the heart to do their first work over.

Let every young man and woman think deliy of the influence they are exerting consciously or otherwise. The world honors success, and if we would help others, we must endeavor to convince them that the time, prayers, money and labor of all kinds spent upon us has been to some purpose. We can always either help or hinder everything or everybody with which we are brought in contact. A pleasent smile, a cheerful manner, a behit of speaking good and not ill of a person, will influence for good. Help our pastors to he successful in their work, help our teachere, help our rising men and women, help boys and girls, help those who are striving to gain education. It only requires a little care and forethought to be a help and not a hindrance, to assist others on the npward and onward way, to exert an influence for good and not for evil.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE SESSION.

BY REV. JOHN H. PRICE.

MR. EDITOR:—Please allow me space in your valnable paper to say something of the third annual session of the Seventh P. E. District of the Philadelphia Annual Conference thet convened in Milford, Del., October 4th, and adjourned 6th inst.

The annual sermon was preached by Presiding Elder J. W. Norris from Rev. 3, 8. It was a masterly effort and elicited much interest. After the sermon the conference was organized with Rev. J. W. Norris, presiding slder, in the chair; Rev. J. M. Nuchy, Secretary; Rev. J. M. Proctor, Recording Secretary, and your correspondent, Corresponding Secretary. Rev. J. J. Evans, of Milton, preached a stirring sermon from Zed. 6, after which the conference entered into a praise meeting, in which many of the people joined. Several sinners fell up their hands for prayer and four began seeking religion.

Wednesday I crossed over the river into Georgia and on to the city of Columbus, which is an African Methodist city. There are three churches and a membership of fifteen hundred. Rev. R. A. Hall is the popnlar presiding elder. L. Thomas is pastor of the St. James. He has just completed a tower, costing five thousand dollars. On Sunday, there was raised seven hundred and thirty-five dollars. Bro. Davis is pastor of St. Johns and Bro. Brookins of St. Paul. Thus the city is ably manned.

Friday morning, in company with Presiding Elder Hall, I visited Talbottom, the place where the next conference is to meet. There is a fine church and congregation and great preparations are being made for the reception of the conference. Brother Smith is the pastor and is considered one of the stars of the Macon Conference.

Saturday I started for Macon, where, twenty years ago, the Georgia Conference was organized. Then our numbers were few and poor; now there are perhaps fifty thousand members and three annual conferences, and each conference has not less than two hundred preachers. It is said that the colored people in Georgia pay taxes on seven million dollars' worth of property. That speaks well for our people in the State. I spent Sunday in Macon, where there are three good churches and congregations. Brother E. P. Holmes is pastor of the first; Brother Garry, of the seconed, and Doctor Harris, the third.

THE CHURCH AT COLUMBIA, SOUTH CAROLINA.

BY WM. WALKER.

MR. EDITOR:—Will you kindly permit me to lay before the people of the A. M. E. Church the true condition of the Bethel A. M. E Church et Columbia, which your readers will remember has just passed through a most trying ordeal. Our sainted Bishop Shorter, at the conference in Greenville, appointed the Rev. R. E. Wall to this station and the sequel has proven the wisdom of his selection. He came among us as he is to-day after two years in our midst a God-fearing, unpretentious, scholarly, Christian gentleman—one whom to know is to respect and whose acquaintance ripens into affection; fearless champion of right, unflinching in the discharge of every duty, a logical reasoner, a sound theologian, a true and tried African Methodist Episcopal preacher. On taking charge of this work the saintation he received was "We, the trustees, respect and have no objection to you, but we cannot allow you to assume the duties imposed upon you until such time as the Bishop will give us the satisfaction demanded." A meeting had been held months previous declaring the church out of the connection and electing a pastor, the notice of such election a copy of which is in our hands). This was the first overt act. This matter was tided over for a few weeks, at this meantime the pastor succeeded in getting into the parsonage, thereby gaining a slight foothold. To the astonishment of the whole church, after three weake of acceptable administration, he received of Bishop Shorter, who came at the instance of the pastor to satisfy (if he could) their demands, they, the trustees, nailed the doors of the church in his face, and when demanded admittance received the reply, "We will nell the doors against you or any one else." This was the commencement of this unholy war. The contest was applied for a writ of mandamus, which was refused, our reasons being on the equity side. An injunction was prayed for, which, after months of harrassing delay, was granted and the leal and true put into possession of what was lawfully theirs by right of purchase and as members of the A. M. E. Church, notwithstanding however, before fifteen hundred dollars was expended in lawsuits—civil and criminal—and months of anxiety and even loss of life itself at the very threshold of the church. Amid it all this pastor stood like a stone wall, never faltering or flinching, but successfully, steadily led the flock committed to his care nntil tc-day there worships at Bethel Church as refined, intelligent and cultnred a congregation as the State can afford, and of which any pastor in the State or out of it need be proud. Nor is this all. Self-sacrificing devotion and Christian integrity evinced by these loyal members, they have paid their debts except a small sum of about $200 and kept up the incidental expenses of the church. Now comes the rumor to our ears that the church is ruined and about to be sold to pay lawyers' fees. Eight thousand dollars' worth of property preserved through eighteen months of hard struggle for the supremacy of right over wrong; then allowed to be sacrificed for less than two hnndred dollars—preposterous foolishness, numitigat ed falsehood.

We invite any or all the Bishops to come with or without notice and investigate. Never in the history of the Church in this age has it been called upon to pass through such a fiery ordeal, technicalities, prohibitory clauses multiplied on each other until it seemed as if the canse of truth must be crushed to earth; and justice sleep the sleep that knows no awakening; but how inscrutable are the ways of God. The church had to be cleansed, for among its officers were those whose character would not bear the light of day; godless tricksters, political hacks, using the Church as a machine; literally turning the house of prayer into a den of merchandise." This was the condition when this unholy and unprecedented war started; such gigantic proportions did it finally assume till all Methodism in the State trembled in the balance. But all this is ended and I would not have taken up my pen to write an article were it not that by gross misrepresentation and contrast, animadversions, Bethel Church its members, and particularly its heroic, self-sacrificing pastor, who deserves the highest encomimns and of whom the connection should feel prond, for through his fortitude the dignity and character of African Methodism has been protected, defended and perpetuated, the appointing power of the Bishop sustained and African Methodism more firmly established in South Carolina than ever. Now, Mr. Editor, Bethel Church at Columbia is in no more danger of being sold than the mother church at Philadelphia; with a membership of nearly four hundred, a floating congregation of a hundred or so more, a debt to lawyers of less than two hundred dollars, how can any sane man believe such a thing possible? If the brethren would cease their unjust criticisms, there would be more harmony in the Church. The members are loyal and true, ready to be led, but the trouble seems to be in the ministery, unholy ambition, incontinent jealousy, penchant for writing, a stirrads of abuse against the time-honored systems of the Church an open disregard of ecclesiastical authority till we, the members, are compelled to stand and wonder whither we are drifting.

Church News.

Rev. S. McDowell, of Sioux City, Iowa, writes: To my surprise I was transferred from the Illinois Conference to the Iowa Conference and appointed to Sioux City, August 18.h. Having no wife I packed my trunk and hacks, bidding my old friends at Plainfield, my former charge, good-bye, with all the regrets that come upon leaving a coggregation which yon have learned to love, yet as preachers, we have to do so. On the 25th I, in company with a number of my friends, passed through Jacksonville and Springfield, stopping at Lincoln, where I had charge for two years. Preached for Rev. P. Thurman at night. I spent the following Sunday with my sister, Mrs. A. Golden, at Peoria. I preached there for Rev. J. A. Clark at night. I started for Sioux City August 29.h. My trip through Northern Illinois impressed me more than ever with the grandeur of the great State. At 8 o'clock in the evening I crossed the great Mississippi River at Dubuque, Iowa. I found Iowa another wonderful State. At 2 P. M. I reached Sioux City, after twenty-six hours' ride from Peoria. I did not know whether to be glad or not. I soon met one of the brethren. The news went over the city that the preacher had come and that he was from Illinois. "How is that?" was asked. "Has Sioux City such a bad name that the Iowa preachers would not come? It is true they did kill a white Methodist preacher but we do not kill black." Sioux City is situated in the North western part of the State, on the north bank of the Missouri river. Across the river is Nebraska and five miles above the city is the Canada line. It has 26,000 inhabitants. This is the place for our people to get homes and make men and women of themselves. They know nothing of the song that is sung in Illinois, "hard times." Indeed it is all money and but a little God. Time, however, will bring all things around. We have a few members, but they hardly know whether they are Methodists or not. In my mind we all may make a mistake by sending our inexperienced men to a young church; always the preacher that follows them has a hard time. We are holding our meetings in a school-house at this time. If the Lord will help me by the sitting of our conference I think I can report a new church. We have made a start for a good house and need is more grace. Pray for us; I thank Bishop Brown and the fathers of the Illinois Conference for what they did for me. I will try not to make them ashamed of me.

AVOID FALSE GUIDES.

Nothing could be more misleadlng than the theory that every man or woman can he his or her own doctor. Books are published which contain long catalogues of symptoms, and lay down inflexible rules for treatment. Many lives are sacrificed annually to such amateur medical treatment. The danger of taking any remedy without having a proper diagnosis of one's case, needs only to be intimated to be admitted. Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa., found, when they introdnced their Compound Oxygen to the public, that wisdom, as well as honesty, demanded the frankest statements to their patients. A correspondence soon brings ont all the important facts regarding the sufferer's condition. If the physicians discover that Compound Oxygen and its associate remedies will not reach the disease under consideration, they make it an unvarying rule to say so. This precept of frank and manly dealing has not been departed from throughout seventeen years of active and remarkably successful practice During that long period their Home Treatment by Compound Oxygen for consumption, bronchitis, rheumatism, paralysis, asthma, and associated diseases has been introduced into forty thousand families, and its remarkable success warrants every recommendation that has been uttered in its behalf. It is not a cure-all remedy, but where prescribed, after careful investigation of the patient's case, it rarely fails to effect a cnre. Drs. Starkey & Palen send a very interesting book, free, to anybody who will write for it.

It is useless to attempt the cure of any disorder, if the blood is allowed to remain impure. Neuralgia and rheumatism are traceable to a disordered condition of the blood, and in numberless cases have been cured by taking a few bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

The original draft of the Declaration of Independence had a paragraph fiercely denouncing slavery, which was, however, stricken out before its final adoption. Hence the fall of Richmond and the snrrendar of Lee. Hence oceans of blood and billions of treasure before the slave became free.

PUBLICATIONS OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

LESSON HELPS IN FOUR GRADES.

THE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY. A thirty-six page pamphlet containing lesson helps for teachers and older scholars. Its value is enhanced by the introduction of appropriate forms for opening and closing exercises, hymns and tunes, maps, dictionary of proper names, etc.

THE SCHOLAR'S QUARTERLY. Similar to the above, but with such necessary changes as adapt it to the wants of scholars in the main school. It is more widely cheap. Five or more copies to one address, per year, 7 cents each.

THE LESSON PAPER is a four page weekly, designed for youngeescholars who have outgrown the infant class, but who retain their fondness for pictures and simple stories. 32 pages for a dime!

THE GEM LESSON PAPER is a beautiful lesson sheet, four pages handsomely illustrated and printed on pink paper, for primary or infant scholars. Each number contains a beautiful lesson, a page or more of "baby-land" talk. All for 6 cents a year; five or more copies are sent to one address.

THE CHILD'S RECORDER, now beginning its sixth volume with a larger issue than ever before, offers superior attractions for the coming year. With a million readers in sight, and a list of regular contributors skilled in the style of writing most pleasing to the young, no pains will be spared to put this publication abreast with the foremost of its class.

REV. F. F. SMITH, Little Bethel, Tonth Street, Camden, N. J., will make especial efforts to raise a good sum of money to provide for winter, November 6th. All friends are invited by the elder to join him and help the little church.

TURNING to our mailieg list the otber day, we learned that the CHRISTIAN RECORDER wes not paying its respects to the Sonthern Recorder, a fact of whicb we were not aware previously; hence the Sonthern Recorder's non-appearance here, we infer.

THE Snnday School Union has made a donation of books to a mission school at Free Town, Sierra Leone, Africa. The application wae made by Rev. J. R. Frederick, our missionary to Africa, and was presented by Mrs. J. M. Townsend during a recent visit to Nashville.

IN ALL onr work of the past there is nothing else that holds np eo beautiful and brilliant a light for the present as that whioh has been purely Christian. This kind of work strengthens ne at every review, encourages us in every difficnlty and enables ns to go forward in good works. It establishes our feet and strengthens our arms.

MR. ISAIAH C. WEARS, after a residence of forty-six years at No. 515 Popnlar Street, Philadelphia, has purchased and will soon oconpy No 955 N. Sixth Street, a commodions residence. Mr. Wears has a record as a business man that wonld pay any one who would follow it. His heritage was a strong will and an intellect capable of discovering the vantage ground in bnsiness, oconpy it and use it well.

THE EDITOR of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER addressed the "United Benevolent Order of Daughters of Eden," of Darby, Pa., last Sunday night. This society is between thirty and forty years old. Its constitution is based npon excellent principles. Its record warrants its being prond. It has never failed to respond to any legal demand and yet it bas a nice little snm of money invested, running np into the thousands.

ONE HUNDRED and seventeen thonsand copies per hour is to he the capacity of the Philadelphia Public Ledger office when its third improved press is placed beside its two mates—this of an eight page, ten column paper—9,306,000 columns—1,950 copies, 156,000 columns per minute. This is progress. The Ledger of last Saturday came ont greatly enlarged and will be a ten column paper hereafter. For reliability of information, obasteness of sentiment and language and solidity of thonght there is no American daily newspaper that excels the Public Ledger.

THE NAME of Dr. Derrick's paper is the Advanced Churchman. A big title. The first nnmber came to hand last week. It gives promise of being as husy as its title is big. It says some nice tbings in funny ways and some fnnny tbings in nice ways. On what ground it is to sustain the character of its name remains for futnre nnmbers to show. We welcome the Advanced Churchman to our table. It is a high pleasnre to read a paper so plain, manly, broad, liberal and comprehensive, pnblished right close at bome. In such a large constituency as New York affords why should a paper that is not published in the interest of the few have a very large circulation. We shall be glad to see the Advanced Churchman weekly.

THE CASE of Rev. W. H. Heard, one of onr freqnent contribntors, before the Inter-state Commissioners, should interest the entire American colored race variety. Elder Heard has the hardihood and pluck to stand up for rights that every man with proper impulses and self-respect wants. It is not a case of a single individnal, bnt of the Afrioo-American race; not against a single incorporation, bnt the generally and well snpported prejudices against wbich Afrioo-Americans contend. His snbcess ie a good step toward the success of the entire race variety. But words are not all that can bo given nor all that he is capable of appreciating in this case. We sbonld reader him financial aid, if necessary. His own church and other friends in Charleston are, we understand, assisting him.

IT IS SAID that Mr. Edison has redneed the phonograph, which a few years ago was invented and used as a curiosity, to a highly neefnl form. It will be used to convey thought any distance, by mail or otherwise; when it reaches the end of its jonrney its message will he delivered vocally with decidedly greater precision and reality than wonld be likely to charactorize a message by either the voice or letter. Wills, instead of, or in addition to, being written will be "talked" to the phonograph. We may all pray that it will never be brought into requisition on the occasion of quarrels. It will be very nnpleasant to have one's harsh words rattled off just as nttered, by an instrument without ears to hear protest or experience from which to exercise sympathy. The instrument is said to be very valnable to reproduce difficult music. Verily the world moves.

ON THE morning of October 15th Rev. John E. Rnssell, pastor of the A. M. E. Church at Williamsport, Pittsburg Conference, departed this life. Elder Russell was one of the scholarly young ministers of our Church. He was born in Pittsburg. He has been in the traveling connection several years. He spent some years in the Western Theological Seminary, at Allegheny, Pa., gradnating regularly. While pursuing his course of study he performed pastoral dutiee and provided for his family. After serving the Pittsburgh Conference five or six years he was transferred by Bishop Shorter to the Ohio Conference, where he filled the Columbus appointment three years. From a youth he was noted for being upright. Never bas there been a complaint made against him. His sermons were very thongbtful and logical. His work at Columbus was rewarded by many conversions. Indeed, over the entire field of his labors, he leaves many marks of a useful, devoted pastor. He leaves a widow, sister of Dr. B. T. Tanner, and six children. All have onr sincere sympathy.

"B," in the Episcopal Methodist of the M. E. Church, Sonth, and published in Baltimore, bas written a lengthy article in reply to the New York Independent's noble defecse of the Afrioo-American. In it be rehashes the old argnment of slave-holders to show that black and white children shonld not be educated together. He is afraid that despite the "natural antipathy" designed by Nature to keep the races apart, they might, after all, defy Natnre and form inter attachments. He thinks that if God had wanted this school association he wonld not have made one race-variety black and the other white. Certainly he is wise. He has probably not seen what God does with colors in every part of natnre. The fact of variety is rather an evidence of a design for inter-mixing than otherwise. As a matter of fact, as we have often seid, we neither conrt nor want the intermixing, bnt it has been going on so long that all attempts of the white variety to get scared at the pictnre drawn by their own dexterous hand only excitee contempt for their pretended appreciation of race purity. When we were in their hands pliant tools, their goods and obattels, why did they not wear their faces of horror at race intermixing? Who, in this laud, or any other, with a thimble full of true humanity and honesty, can respect this whining abont the great dnty of conserving "the race," made by a people who, for the exercise of the lowest passions and for gain, have unscrupulously mixed the races beyond recovery? Natnre, however strong, can never undo the criminal mixing done by these "pure" men.

WE REGRET that Dr. J. H. A. Johnson regards himself ill-treated in the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. While we are not responsible for the opinions and theories advanced by writers, we would not have the paper need hy any one to do injustice to any other one. Of conrse we did not know that Revs. Lewis and Johnson had ever been in the relation to each other that the doctor's note states to be the fact. We have no reason to infer that the Rev. P. M. Lewis is any less honest and Christian than the Rev. J. H. A. Johnson, D.D. We have very limited acqnaintance with the former, bnt do not donbt for a moment that either party, from his own standpoint, is any less than a Christian gentleman. Donbtless both have said that which has made some one feel the pnngency of their thoughts. There are those who have complained privately of some of the words of Dr. Johnson's articles, thinking them as unkind as Dr. Johnson seems to think Rev. Lewis'. Certainly the doctor would not infer that all he has written has been swallowed without a "gulp." Now, may we not snggest that he accept the writing of Rev. Lewis as coming from equal honesty with his own, though it cause him, the doctor, the same unpleasantness that his writings may have caused some others? It could hardly he expected that a series of articles so long and sharp as some of Dr. Johnson's have been would fail to meet with some sharp criticism. We cannot see how the doctor can cease to write to the RECORDER occasionally because others also exercise their rights in the paper. Of conrse if there is anything in Rev. Lewis' article nntrue or misleading, the RECORDER regrets it exceedingly.

Personal.

—Mr. Benjamin Pointer, who left Philadelphia about thirty years ago, is now visiting old friends here. Mr. Pointer is a resident of British Columbia, and is said to have compassed a neat little fortune.

—Bishop Ward left his home last Monday for his work in the Southwest. He leaves Mrs. Ward in very poor health. The Church will pray that the Lord will take care of her and restore her to health.

A SUCCESSFUL DAY.

Macedonia Church, Camden, N. J., raised over $400 last Sunday. Dr. J. S. Thompson, of Philadelphia, preached in the morning, the pastor in the afternoon and Rev. L. Sturges at night. The services of the day were highly appreciated by all concerned and we feel very much pleased with the results. We may call npon our friends again. We thank them kindly for their assistance in this effort.

G. M. WITTEN.

We again call the attention of the pastors and presiding elders to the form of Warranty Deed we have prepared and published for general use in the purchase of church properties. The form is simple, and plain as plain can be, yet it is believed to cover every point in the law. It was drawn by an old experienced attorney, with our Discipline before him. Price, 25 cents per copy, or 5 for $1.00.

STICK TO THE OLD METHODIST CUSTOM OF PUBLIC COLLECTIONS.

BY REV AUGUSTUS W. WATSON, LL.B.

Preachers bave numbers of plans for raising money for the several collections of them by the General Conferences. Some of them seek to get the money privately to obviate the necessity of taking collections publicly. Is it according to the Discipline to fail to take pnblic collections for our various Church interests? Is it best to take collections only privately? Is it not better for a preacher to go before his people publicly for eecb cause? Not that he need restrict himself to this mode, but let this be the great effort and then let private efforts be supplementary. We are of those who believe there is no substitute for public collections. There may be many anxiliaries. While there may not be any explicit declaration on the subject, yet the Discipline seems to go on the assumption that appeals for some, if not all, the Church interests will be made publicly. This is especially true of the educational interests, where law says that the collection for the Children's Day and the missionary cause shall not be taken together (a law that is too often ignored by the preachers.) Aside from this there is an unwritten law of Methodism that collections should be taken publicly. Many of us have been brought up under this custom, and so far from complaining at them, have rejoiced in them as a means of grace. A Methodist church with no public collection is a church with important parts of its machinery lacking. Some brethren are disposed to take collections privately because of the objections and complaints of covetous money-loving Methodist to whom a public collection is offensive; whose religious joys disappear before a call for money as the mists melt away before the rising sun; and for tear people will be driven from the church by appeals for money. As far as lessening the congregation is concerned, this is purely imaginary; besides these are the very kind of people who need most to have the subject of giving brought prominently before them. Their covetousness needs to be rebuked by a public collection. This is about the best way to get at them and to stir their sleepy consciences. Public collections are not an evil, or are giving money to God's cause something supplementary to gospel religion. Giving is part and parcel of gospel obligation. It is as much a duty as prayer or church-going, and there is as much reason for public giving as there is for public prayer and public worship. It is a means of grace. To give way to this demand against public collections is to yield to the covetous and unscriptural notion that they are an evil and giving money to the church is something outside and independent of religion. It is to educate people in the wrong direction. To yield to such a demand is unwise and wrong. If giving is scriptural, there is no need to hide it in a corner as if it were something of which to be ashamed. Public collections have an educational functioc; they bring prominently before the people the obligation of giving and persons are more deeply impressed that it is their duty to give than by other modes. They tend to educate our people into the habit of giving, and this obligation is laid upon them with conscience in a practical way. Even if we get less money by this mode it would be better to take collections publicly for this reason. But if the matter were investigated no doubt it would be found that congregations where collections are taken publicly are better instructed in the duty of giving and are more liberal, according to ability, than where public collections are ignored. They give the preacher a fine opportunity to preach on giving (a subject too often neglected in pnlpit ministration), and offer a fine chance to apply the subject practically. The fruits of his sermons can be quickly seen.

Furthermore, public collections afford a fine opporiunity to advertise the several interests for which money is asked, and tends to put our people in sympathy with them. This fact is not to be overlooked; much good comes ont of it. Many of our people take no church paper and some who subscribe do not read the papers. So that numbers are depeudent solely on the preaching on general to public collection days for all the information they receive. Public collections are a fine advertisement independent of the money received. The different interests are thereby kept prominently before the people. This feature of the case is too often overlooked. Preachers ehonld take advantage of anch occasions to explain fully the interest for which money is asked. People give more intelligently, cheerfully and liberally when this is done. The preacher who takes his collections privately misses fine opportunities for informing his people as to the several interests he represents, and they are the losers. He thereby deprives them of information they will never get in any other way. But some will say, "I get the money and that is all the church wants." This is a mistake—the African Methodist Episcopal Church wants her people informed as to her work that they may give intelligently, and many of them are in the dark till informed by public appeals. It is not enough to get the money—the membership needs light on the work of the Church. We believe that preachers who stick to the old Methodist custom of taking public collections (bnt who supplement it by making private appeals to those who happen to be absent) succeed better, as a rule, than those who confine themselves to private appeals.

Again, under the influence of a public appeal many are disposed to give who would otherwise refuse; while others will contribute more liberally than they would privately. They will be moved by an impulse to do things which, under other circumstances, might not be done While giving from conviction is right, independent of any special influence (and this is the Scriptural line), yet many people will not contribute unless brought under the gracious influence of a public collection They will not pull under a cold collar. They need to be warmed up. Besides, there are outsiders who chance to be present when collections are taken who cheerfully contribnte, bnt who would never be called on privately. They would not be thought of. May God help us this centennial year of the African Methodist Episcopal Church to stick to the old Methodist custom of public collections and never for a moment yield to the cry against them. They are a means of grace; a wise mode of raising money. They have been blessed of God and by long nse have proved themselves a success in disseminating information, educating the people and in getting the money for the different departments.

JOTTINGS.

PORTSMOUTH DISTRICT, A. M. E CHURCH

BY REV. J. STRANGE.

On the 20th of April last Rev. W. H. Hunter, D.D. was appointed to Portsmouth Station. He took the charge quite reluctantly, and has spent most of the time since in removing obstacles that were in his front. He has succeeded to a large extent, and has accomplished much for God and humanity. We are sorry to say that Dr. Hunter went to Auacostia, his bome, sick on the 19th of September.

There is a revival going on in the church at this time, notwithstanding the absence of the pastor. We look for something new to happen nnder the snn in this station before the next annual conference.

NORFOLK CIRCUIT.

Rev. T. A. Wood is pastor of this circuit. He is a new man from the western portion of the State. He has done much this year in liquidating a debt that has been hanging over one of the churches, which has been eating out the very vitals of the people. He has been holding successful revival meetings over the entire circuit. He is doing a good work in this circuit and we wish him much success.

HICKORY CIRCUIT.

Rev. C. H. Hnnter was re-appointed to this circuit. All the churches nnder him have passed through glorious revivals and the good work still goes on. Of this circuit I could say much, but prudence forbids.

SLEEPY HOLE MISSION.

Brother A. A. Bailey, a local preacher, was taken up and appointed to this work. As the future alone can tell, he has held a revival with some success. His wife passed away June 3d, and was buried by your correspondent. Peace to her ashes. September 1st, our district conference was held at this place. The meeting was grand, a large amount of business was transacted and a nnmber of souls converted. September 5th, the Sabbath School Institute convened. I labored as superintendent of the Sabbath schools to have all of the superintendents and teachers present. I have been in a number of Sunday school conventions, in various parts of Virginia; I I thought some of them were grand, but this has excelled them all. We had a fair representation of superintendents and teachers, considering the extensive territory. This department was represented by some of the best brain that the district could afford. The essays of the superintendents, all things considered, were good. The appearance of the teachers was grand. The addresees and lectnres were enperb. I doubt whether this institute has been excelled in the connection. This department is well organised in this district.

SUFFOLK STATION.

Rev. J. C. Mackey, pastor of this station, has been doing what he could this conference year. He has organized a mission Sundsy school, about three miles off, which is having its effect among the people. He consented to marry and was united in holy wedlock to a lady of Ahingdon, Va. She is, in my opinion, a preacher's wife in every sense of the word She is prepared to assist him in the great work of his calling.

NEWSOM CIRCUIT.

Rev. Felix Wood was re appointed to this circuit He has had a protracted meeting on the circnit, bnt not with as much success as last year. This year he has turned his attention especially to the debts, and has been successful in removing some of them. Rev. Wood is respected and beloved by his people. Of course there is an exception to this rule.

HAMPTON STATION.

Rev. G. B. Smith was appointed to this station at the sitting of the last conference. I got him, especially, to build the church. He took bold where Elder Butt left off. He tore down the old hall and the people wondered what was to be done. The material was soon put on the ground and at this writing we have a model brick building, the brick work completed to day; dimensions 34 by 50, incinding a basement. Every effort will be made to enter the basement the last of October. The people labor to support their pastor just as though they were not building. A more willing people I never saw, and any donation from any friend will be thankfully received by them and will be used only in lifting the debt on the building.

SMITHFIELD STATION.

Rev. George Williams was returned to this station. It has pleased God to restore him almost to perfect health. He has the carpenters, plasterers and painters; ere you behold this they shall have done their work. When the church is completed it will be commodious and represent African Methodism in this town He will arrange for a protracted meeting when the church is re opened There is one remarkable feature about Smithfield that I see no where else—the town is more lively in winter than in summer.

CAMPBELL'S STATION.

Rev J. H. Thomas was appointed to this station at the rise of the last conference. Up to this writing he has excelled in the district with protracted meetings. Fifty one joined the church out of fifty-five conversions in August and the meeting is about to be resumed. Rev. Thomas holds the fort at this station; he shuts his eyes and knows nothing but success.

MT. MORIAH CIRCUIT.

Rev. W. H. Carter was appointed to this circuit. There is a vast amount of hard work to be done by both pastor and people. Patience and perseverance will bring this circuit to the front rank. Nineteen souls were converted and sixteen united to the church during a revival held in August.

CHUCATUCK CIRCUIT.

Rev. Joseph Duckett was re-appointed to this charge. Arrangements are being made to build a new church in the near future for the growing people of our church. A new edifice is much needed and a respectable building will tell well for us in this locality. Rev. Duckett is much beloved by his people and they do all in their power to support him.

UNION BETHEL CIRCUIT.

Rev. Isaac Ewer, who has been stationed in the southern portion of the State, was appointed to this place at the sitting of the last annual conference. He is doing well on this circuit and is much beloved by the people he is serving. He is arranging to build a church at Union Bethel, which is also very much needed. With the present outlook of this circuit we look for great things this year. He had a successful protracted meeting during the month of August and has one in progress at this time.

WALSTON MISSION.

Under the care of Brother O. J. Brown, this mission ie improving slowly. They have had a protracted meeting, but as the succeee I have not heard up to this time.

A WORD OF ADVICE.

As this is the great financial year throughont the connection, I advise the pastors and people of Portsmouth District to increase in porportion this year as you did last year, which the statistical table will show a decided increase over the previous year. I call your attention especially to your Dollar Money, Kittrell Normal and Industrial Institute and your General Conference delegate money in connection with your other dntiee. The people only want a leader and the work will be done. Now, dear brethren, look well to the East and govern yourselves accordingly.

Prof. A. J. Moore, of Waco, and Bro. George Young, of Cameron, have been elected lay delegates to the General Conference from the Central Texas Conference.

To a sensitive and affectionate mind, every act of fault-finding or dealing in condemnation is an act of pain.

AN IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Eighth Episcopal District and the Philadelphia, New England and South Carolina Conferences:

Dear Brethren: The Indian Conference will meet at McCallister, I. T., Oct. 27th; the North Mississippi will meet at Yazoo, Jan. 3rd, 1888; the Mississippi will meet at Raymond, Dec. 8th. The General Conference is at the door. All the conferences above named have and will send their best men to meet that angust gathering. We must not forget there is something more to be done than casting our suffrages. They must appear there as gentlemen relying upon their own resources. We, as a Church, boast of the amplitude of our wealth and the vastness of our resources To substantiate these statements each pastor collect from each member the small sum of ten cents and bring it to the conference to defray the expenses of the delegates to Indianapolis. Don't let them appear there in the capacity of paupers. Bring a nickel from each Sabbath school echolar

The conferences already held will forward to their respective treasurers. The presiding elders are expected to see that this important duty is attended to. Where the conferences are in session after November first, appropriate services will be held some time during the sessions, commemorat ng the birth of the Centennial of Afric-American Methodism and the claims and struggles of our Publication Department fully discussed. There will be a large stock of books on sale at each session at reasonable rates

Why not have a hundred thousand dollar llue for Dollar Money, twenty thousand for missions? Do you hear the voice that is wafted by the breeze from distant shores, give us the bread of life or we die? Twenty five thousand for educatiou, and is not this a pitiful sum for a half-million of members? We should raise at least a dollar per capita.

For two months Mrs. Ward has been looking through the gates of death. During this time I could not leave her. She is slightly better, able to sit up an hour each day. We both ask the prayers of our brethren that we may be sustained by the power of God. Dominus Vebiscum. T. M. D. WARD.

PROGRAMME OF THE GREAT CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH TO BE HELD IN ALL THE CHURCHES IN THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER, 1887.

1. In all the cities where there are two or more A. M. E. Churches; as in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Wilmington, Charleston, Nashville, Savaonah, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, etc., etc., we earnestly recommend a grand union opening meeting on Wednesday night, November 9th, or on the night of the 16th, uniting all the choirs of the city in one grand sacred concert. Local committees will see to it that the exercises are made lively and effective—a real time of gladness, thanksgiving and praise. Let pastors, choirs and officers be all thoroughly alive to the occasion.

2. On Thursday or Friday night a public oration or several addresses on the independence and successful work of our Church. We urge that this meeting be made free of charge, and that tickets therefor be given to all respectable persons who will attend.

3. On Friday, or on the same night of addresses, prepare a "Centennial Banquet." Make it a season of congratulation and pleasure for all.

4. On Sunday morning a Centennial prayer-meeting from 5 to 7 A. M. At 10 o'clock a sermon on the rise and progress of the Church. Text, Acts 13, 41: "Behold, ye dispisers and wonder, (and perish), for I work a work in your days, a work which ye will in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you." (Collect your envelopes).

5. At 2 P. M. Sunday school concert with short addresses. (Collect your envelopes).

6. At night, a eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Collect your envelopes. Conclude with the prayer of thanksgiving. (See evening prayer, Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page —), and then repeat the Creed and sing: "From all that dwell below the sky," etc., ending with the doxology, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow," and benediction.

II PART.

Programme of the grand concluding celebration to be held in Philadelphia, commencing on Wednesday, November 23d.

1. Wednesday night, Union Sacred Concert, at ——— hall, ——— street, Philadelphia.

1. On Sunday morning, a centennial prayer meeting at 5 o'clock

2. At 10 30 A. M., centennial sermon on the rise and progress of the Church—text, Acts 13, 41. Collection of envelopes.

3. At 2 P. M Union Sunday School concert, with short addresses, by chosen persons. Collect envelopes. Philadelphia Sunday schools to be united as follows: Bethel, Zion Mission and Murray Chapel Sunday schools together at Bethel; Allen Chapel and Mt. Pisgah Sunday schools together at Allen; Union Church and Morris Brown, at Union.

4. At night, hymn, O, God our help, etc, 701, Ritual 16 A eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Conclude with the prayer for the clergy and people. Ritual of the A. M. E Church, page 160. The prayer for all men, and the general thanksgiving, page 162. Sing the hymn 862, Ritual No. 12, and doxology, "Praise God," etc., Ritual No. 26. Collect envelopes, and report the amount. The creed and benediction.

A DAY IN WEST CHESTER, PA

BY REV. J. W. NORRIS.

MR. EDITOR:—It was my great pleasure to be in West Chester on Sunday, October 16, to assist my old and esteemed friend, Rev. J. C. Brock, at his last grand rally. In the morning the service was of an ordinary character, preaching by your humble servant, the writer of this note, to a fair congregation. In the afternoon the church of the future was brought to the front, the boys and girls. This service was of more than ordinary character. The school showed great progress. In the evening praise service and sacred concert. This service was the leading feature of the day It consisted of the recital of chosen verses from the Scriptures by the congregation, essays, select readings and solos. Miss Mary Brock recited a piece entitled, "The last hymn," which was well rendered and impressive. The collections during the day amounted to $231.11 for which all was elated. The good people in West Chester learning that the friends in Smyrna, Del., would have their last grand rally October 30, sent them $4.00 greeting.

Blast furnace slag has been in the past as complete a waste as any by-product in manufactnres, but the next five years will probably see it playing as important a part in the profits of iron furnaces as by-products do in gas works. The basic slags, with a large percentage of phosphorus, are already profitably used in the manufacture of phosphatic manures, and other slags have been for some time converted into what is known as "mineral wool," of use in building as a non-conductor. The next step taken is to turn this "wool" into the raw material for the manufacture of glass and porcelain, cheaper than sand or clay, and offering color combinations of great beauty. The first step in this process was taken four years ago, and the Engineering and Mining Journal expresses the opinion that "when our iron manufacturers shall have fallen to the unprofitable figures which they have witnessed in the past, and that are surely approaching in the future, our blast furnace owners will find the value conferred upon the slags by this improvement to be no inconsiderable item."

WANAMAKER'S.

PHILADELPHIA, October 25th, 1887.

In writing for Dress Goods be careful to state what sort of dress you wish.

The Black Dress Stuffs. No striking newness to name; old favorites, often with each old goodness made better; a falling off nowhere.

Henriettas were at first used only as mourning stuffs. Many women think that is their limit now. Wrong. We sell most Henriettas for out of mourning wear. A silk-and-wool stuff. Softness and delicacy of the finest wool; springy, crisp toughness of the silk. A mixed fabric with none of the faults of mixed fabrics. 85c. to $4. Below $1, 36 in.; above, 40 in.

Drap d'Alma. Another of Priestly's and another favorite. Simple elegance in the fine diagonal lines. Silk-and-wool, $1.25 to $2.50; all-wool, 75c. to $2.

Camel's-hair will be at the front this season, especially for shopping wear. Priestly's Camel's-hair Serge is a quick friend-getter; 44 in., $1 to $4.

Three styles of silk-and-wool Camel's-hair Diagonals from the famous Bradford maker. Didn't exactly hit the popular taste. That is why the price is down from $2.50 to $1.25.

Full lines of Lupin's Merinos are here; 36 to 46 in., 50c. to $1.75.

Cashmeres, best makes, 50c. to $1.75.

Alpacas are again coming into favor for dresses; 25c. to $1.

The Linen tide. At full flow with all the flaxen whiteness and brightness of the Old World—the Linen world.

The goods and the prices are doing it. These are some of the special things we are selling. Such worth in Linens we think has never before been offered for the money.

HANDKERCHIEFS.

2000 dozen Women's pure Linen Handkerchiefs, hemstitched, colored borders, new patterns $1.30 a dozen.

1000 dozen Men's pure Linen Handkerchiefs, worth 25 cents each, 18 cents a dozen.

1000 dozen Men's pure Linen Handkerchiefs, choice patterns, $1.25 a dozen.

500 dozen Men's pure Linen Handkerchiefs, extra quality 18 a dozen.

1 case Men's heavy Linen Handkerchiefs, slightly imperfect, various qualities, 12½ cents each.

1 case slightly soiled goods, extra size, 10 cents each.

Cases of all sorts of White Linen Handkerchiefs, hemmed and hemstitched.

1 case Women's old-fashioned Handkerchiefs, 40 and 50 cents a dozen.

TOWELS.

2000 dozen Huck Towels at $1 00 a dozen.
500 dozen Huck Towels at $1.20 a dozen.
2 00 dozen Huck Towels at $1.50 a dozen.
500 doz. n Huck Towels at $1.80 a dozen.
5000 dozen Huck Towels at $2.16 a dozen.
500 dozen Huck Towels at $2.40 a dozen.
500 dozen Huck Towels at $2 64 a dozen.
3000 dozen Huck Towels at $3 00 a dozen.
200 0 dozen Damask Towels at 75 to 25 cents each.
10 cases Imported White Turkish Towels at 22 cents each, worth 25 cents.
1 case Imported White Turkish Towels at 25 cents each, worth 50 cents
1 case Imported Striped Turkish Towels at 25 cents each.
Linen Turkish Towels.
Fancy Turkish Towels.

RICHARD ALLEN'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY AND THE OUTLINES OF AFRICAN METHODIST HISTORY TO ONE ORDER FOR $1.25.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHUCH:

My Dear Brethreu:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of orcular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy eldere, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "ont of which grew the African M. E Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolution of Bishop J. M. B rown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887) will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George's Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evile under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat."

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United Statee has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutione of the Haitians, under Tonissaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christiane of the United States. It was one of the casee of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Tonissaint and Allen, by their manly actione and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all the African decendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E. Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who ehall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishop J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, R. R. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastore of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hnndredth year since our existence commenced, and that service be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarierly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moueye be sent to Bishop J. P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministere and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresse on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persone having snbjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volnme. The average length of each addree to be twenty-five minutes.

OFFICE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL WHO HAVE BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS WITH THIS DEPARTMENT.

READ, RE-READ AND REMEMBER.

1st. We do not take postage stamps. If you cannot obtain Post Office Money Order, which is the safest method to send money, you can send by registered letter. These are issued by every post office in the United States. If your postmaster incists on selling you stamps you insist the more on having him register your letter.

2nd. Send the exact amount of money required to pay for the goods you order. When this is not done our rule is to send that amount of supplies which the money sent will pay for.

3rd. When you order from us, always write plainly at the bottom of your letter the place where you wish your supplies sent. Very often persons write us an order from one place on a circuit desiring it sent to some other place, and do not mention this very important fact.

4th. For all money sent to us for Sunday school literature we send a postal card receipt, numbered. If your order is delayed, or if there is any irregularity concerning it, write to us about it, but be sure to give the number of your receipt card and the name of the person who sent the order or signed his name to it. When a pastor writes to us that his superintendent sent us money, etc., we do not know who is his superintendent unless he writes us his name. Always send the name of persone and not names of churches, schools, circuits, stations, etc.

5th. Sign your name to your communication We cannot tell who eent a letter to us when there is no name signed to it.

6th. Write your name in large, plain letters. Avoid flonrishing. It is useless and often renders obscnre what would otherwise be legible writing.

7th. Never send a postal note, money order or express package without any instruction accompanying it. How do we know what to do with money eent thus?

8th. We have lost a great deal of money by sending supplies C. O. D. because the parties whom we thus favored failed to take them from the express office. In consequence of this neglect and absolute loss which we have borne because of it, we have decided to positively refuse to grant any more C. O. D. favors to anyone. Please do not request them.

9th. Our business is conducted on a strictly cash basis. If you are not familiar with our prices write to ne when you wish to buy and we will freely quote them or send you a catalogue, price list, blank and return envelope.

10th. Always collect your money for supplies and have it appropriated for them at least two weeks before the beginnig of each quarter; this will prevent much delay. Very often ordere do not arrive until one-half or two-thirde of the quarter is past; in which case we have to print an extra amount of literature for the benefit of two or three persons or else lay ourselves liable to a "raking over" by them.

11th. When the Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterly, the Juvenile and Gem Lesson Papers are ordered, they are rolled in one package together. The catechisms, song books, primary lessons, reward cards and other such matter are never in one wrapper. When you order both inquire for two packages at the post office.

12th. If your city has the free delivery system have your mail directed to the street and number. Unless you do this it will be returned to us while you are abusing us for neglect.

13th. Every pastor is hereby earnestly requested to have some one, who is permanently located in his work, elected Sunday school supply clerk, whose duty it shall be to send for all orders for his Sunday school supplies.

We hope this will be done at once by each pastor and that he will send us the name of the one elected to this office. This method of communicating with us through a person who has permanent location in a place will lessen difficulty and greatly facilitate intercourse between us and our patrone. It is hoped that this request will receive immediate attention. We have purchased new books in which to record the names of Sunday school supply clerks and we anxiously await their names. A postal card will serve for this purpose. Hoping that the above instructione will be received with the kindly spirit with which they are given, and praying the blessing of Almighty God upon all those who are, with us, intrusted with the children's welfare. Fraternally,

C. S. SMITH.

BOOKS.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints: 1st. Because it furnishes the most natural method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. Because "it shows how to preach with an ease and grace, and with power and success." 3rd. Because "it exposes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to correct them." Its reviewers advise ministers to read the book carefully, because "they will find in it much that they never thought of"—because "the very hints they most need to receive are not hinted at by other homiletical works.—because "it is replete with shrewd, hard good sense"—because "it is a book for all ministers, however educated;—because it is assured by many that "it is worth its weight in gold."

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FOR PREACHERS AND OTHER PUBLIC SPEAKERS.

Dr. Porter's Hints to them is one of the most useful—"Worth its weight in gold," says the Christian Guardian.

For teaching everyone how to do good, "The Winning Path; or, the Sunday School Duty and Methods of Doing Good to Men," by the same author Order of J. C. Embry, 632 Pine Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Price 75 cents. It will do good!

"WORTH MORE THAN ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD." to young ministers and local preachers. "Many a preacher would have been saved from failure by the early study of such a book."—Christian Guardian.

IS THE BIBLE TRUE, AND FROM GOD?

Read Dr. Porter's late book called "Christianity Demonstrated by Its Influence." It will settle the question forever and set your souls on fire. Buy a copy and keep it to lend to the poor society, and especially to unbelievers. On sale by Rev. J. C. Embry. Price, $1.50. A new supply just received.

Any information recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and to the nerves, or womb and its appendages, in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," run-down, debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic. It promotes digestion and assimilation of food, cures nausea, weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating and eructations of gas.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine, "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, exhaustion, prostration, hysteria, spasms and other distressing nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the womb. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, or "whites," excessive flowing at monthly periods, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness in ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

Address, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, No. 663 Main Street, BUFFALO, N. Y.

The following words, in praise of DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION as a remedy for those delicate diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, must be of interest to every sufferer from such maladies. They are fair samples of the spontaneous expressions with which thousands give utterance to their sense of gratitude for the inestimable boon of health which has been restored to them by the use of this world-famed medicine.

$100 Thrown Away.

JOHN E. SEGAR, of Millenbeck, Va., writes: "My wife had been suffering for two or three years with female weakness, and had paid out one hundred dollars to physicians without relief. She took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did her more good than all the medicine they had been practicing upon her."

The Greatest Earthly Boon.

Mrs. GEORGE HENDER, of Westfield, N. Y., writes: "I was a great sufferer from leucorrhea, bearing-down pains, and pain continually across my back. Three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' restored me to perfect health. I treated with Dr. ——— for nine months, without receiving any benefit. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

Threw Away Her Supporter.

Mrs. SOPHIA F. BOSWELL, White Cottage, O., writes: "I took eleven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of your 'Pellets.' I can doing my work, and have been for some time. I have had to employ help for about sixteen years before I commenced taking your medicine. I have had to wear a supporter most of the time; this I have laid aside, and feel as well as I ever did."

It Works Wonders.

Mrs. MAY OLEASON, of Nonier, Ottawa Co., Mich., writes: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' has worked wonders in my case.

Also she writes: "Having taken several bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I have regained my health wonderfully, to the astonishment of myself and friends. I can now be on my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household.

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in for which he prescribes pills and tonics, sustaining them both, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay. A strong treatment and consequent cure is obtained by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

3 Physicians Failed.

MRS. E. F. MORGAN, of No. 71 Lexington St., East Boston, Mass., says: "Five years ago I was a dreadful sufferer from uterine troubles. Having exhausted the skill of three physicians, I was completely discouraged, and so weak I could with difficulty cross the room alone. I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and using the local treatment recommended in his 'Common Sense Medical Advicer.' I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured, and have had no trouble since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them, and enclosing a stamped envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters. In reply, I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to 'do likewise.' From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of 'Favorite Prescription,' had sent the $1.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment so fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females, at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded the most perfect experience in adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the more aggravated and obstinate cases which had baffled their skill, prove it to be the most wonderful and perfect in its power for the relief and cure of suffering women. It is not recommended as a "cure-all," but as a most perfect Specific for woman's peculiar ailments.

Jealous Doctors.

A Marvelous Cure.—MRS. G. F. SPRAGUE, of Crystal, Mich., writes: "I was troubled with female weakness, leucorrhœa and falling of the womb for seven years, so I had to keep my bed for a good part of the time. I doctored with an army of different physicians, and spent large sums of money, but received no lasting benefit. At last my husband persuaded me to try your medicines, which I was loath to do, because I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I finally told my husband that if he would get me some of your medicines I would try them against the advice of my physician. He got me six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of the 'Discovery,' for ten dollars. I took three bottles of 'Discovery' and four of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been in sound woman for four years. I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of 'Favorite Prescription,' had sent the $1.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment so fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

In pregnancy, "Favorite Prescription" is a "mother's cordial," relieving nausea, weakness of stomach, and other distressing symptoms common to that condition. If its use is kept up in the latter months of gestation, it greatly shortens the system for delivery as to greatly lessen and many times entirely obviate the pains and the sufferings of that trying ordeal.

"Favorite Prescription," when taken in connection with the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and small laxative doses of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets (Little Liver Pills), cures Liver, Kidney and Bladder diseases. Their combined use also removes blood taints, and abolishes carbuncnlous and scrofulous humors from the system.

"Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women sold, by druggists, under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years. Large bottles (101 doses) $1.00, or six bottles for $5.00.

Send ten cents in stamps for Dr. Pierce's large, illustrated Treatise (160 pages) on Diseases of Women.

The Wonderful Efficacy of
has been so frequently and satisfactorily proven that it seems almost superfluous to say anything more in their favor. The immense and constantly increasing demand for them, both in this and foreign countries, is the best ev dence of their value. Their sale to-day in the United States is far greater than any other cathartic medicine. This demand is not spasmodic, it is regular and steady. It is not to-day or yesterday, it is an increase that has been steadily growing for the last thirty-five years. What are the reasons for this great and growing demand? Dr. Schenck's Mandrake Pills contain no mercury, and yet they set with wonderful effect upon the liver. They cleanse the stomach and bowels of all irritating matter, which if allowed to remain, poisons the blood and brings on Malaria, Chills and Fever, and many other diseases. They give health and strength to the digestive organs. They create appetite and give vigor to the whole system. They are in fact the medicine of all others which should be taken in times like the present, as they prepare the system to resist the attacks of disease of every character.

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E. Church and African M. E. Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15-17, 1885.

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in May, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date fixed. Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

NOTICE.

All communications intended for the Sunday School Union of the A. M. E. Church that are addressed to Rev. C. S. Smith, Nashville, Tennessee, will be received. It is not necessary to give the name of the street nor the number of our business place. Rev. C. S. Smith, Nashville, Tenn., is sufficient. Telegrams addressed the same way will reach us. We are fully settled in our new headquarters and prepared for business.

C. S. SMITH, Secretary.

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION NOTICE.

The Quarterlies and the Lesson Papers for the fourth quarter are now ready for distribution. Patrons will please send their orders without delay. All Sunday school supplies must be paid for in advance. Address

Rev. C. S. SMITH,
Nashville, Tenn.

NOTICE.

All candidates for admission into the Alabama Conference must put in their appearance at Enfavla, Ala., Tuesday morning, November 29, 1887, for examination; and, also, all those on the first year's study must be present at the same time. Positively the committee will not examine any candidates after Tuesday night. The conference will meet on Wednesday morning, 30th, and our reports must be ready.

E. H. DIXON, Chairman,
Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 17, 1887.

NOTICE.

I should be informed at once how many candidates presiding elders will bring to the North Louisiana Conference and how many General Officers and visiting ministers will attend. Preachers will provide for their wives as well as for their horses.

THE PROSELYTES MADE TO AFRICAN METHODISM BY THE INFLUENCE OF A FULL EPISCOPAL BOARD

The A. M. E. Church started in the face of strong opposition. It had its white enemies and its black enemies. Every inch of ground was gained by fighting all along the way. Ability, pluck and perseverance had to be shown to get the mastery over tremendous odds. Step by step it went proving its qualification to "hold fast to that which is good," and so on gradually added reinforcements to its numbers. The high ways were cast up, the crooked paths were made straight, its progress was expedited and successful organization secured. It pressed its way forward and adopted instrumentalities for its growth. It has now reached an age and size which requires it to endorse the best of means for its prosperity and perpetuation. This is the time in which it should do its most glorious work. Sneering cavilers, listen. I say this is the time in which the A. M. E. Church should do its most glorious work. It should now adopt any measure that would be instrumental in making converts to its service. It should have a standing board of fourteen Bishops to convince the world that it is a strong religious motive power.

Let the attentive multitudes of this nation see our organization in the fulness of its majesty and they will more readily be converted to it. The mistaken idea of increasing offices for emolument does no good: but the exhibition of strength by a great episcopal board is the project that will produce the effect. Bishops enumerated to go all over the land in a dignified manner as gentlemen as well as preachers, showing common sense, and learning, and religion and all the qualities becoming an accomplished gentleman would be more respected than three times the amount of the loan, and held by Mercantile Trust Company of New York, Trustee. Secured also by the entire paid-up capital of $1,000,000.

It also offers GUARANTEED SIX PER CENT. first mortgages on Kansas City business property and improved farms in KANSAS and MISSOURI. Call at office or write for full particulars to JARVIS-CONKLIN MORTGAGE TRUST CO., New York City, 208 Broadway. Providence, R. I., 27 Custom House St. Philadelphia, Pa., 144 South 4th St. London, England, 93 Gresham St.

clerical resources which would reflect credit upon any ecclesiastical body. And now, I ask, is not this sufficient alone, in the name of all common sense, to justify the institution of such an invaluable project? It is a great thing to gain the favorable consideration of any one class of people. Ecclesiastical government is designed to exert a favorable influence over every body. Bishops are ordained for the purpose of making their particular organizations more influential among all parties. If, then, in proportion to the demand, their number be increased, the more and more extensive will be their influence by gravity, grace, refinement, liberality and kindness. Impressions will be made upon other church organizations as well as upon individuals and classes of individuals. Denominational prejudice will be more effectually broken down and fraternal relationship more assiduously brought into existence. People will respect power when it is exercised in a righteous manner. Seeing it wielded by a grand bench of African Methodist Bishops for the glory and honor of God, they, in the fear of God, being ingenuous, will render obeisance to it and the constituency represented by it. The contempt which may have been nurtured by reason of a more contracted number will be extinguished by the transparentness of greater expansion. Even the Romish Church, that looks down with so much disdain upon Protestant societies, would be converted to the idea by the strong designated Episcopal Board that colored people are up and awake to the necessity of the times. Everywhere the process of conversion, in some one form or another, would be observed contributing in various degrees to the benefit of the A. M. E. Church. Hosts of interested ones would be transformed into ardent friends and become pleased with the doctrines, the ministry, the forms of worship, the congregations, the methods of government and all the several departments. Inside and outside of the household of faith the connection would grow in favor. The circumcised would pray for it and the uncircumcised would commend it. Episcopal footprints made in every part of the land, as they cannot be made now by the very small number of incumbents, nor could be made by even a dozen, would be as guiding marks to the true character of the great connection. They would be observed and respected by even the Protestant Episcopal Church that has ridiculed some of the best laborers of the African Methodist Church and likened the religion of the people obtained thereby to "hot mutton gravy poured upon a cold plate." Let wisdom in the hour and this grand provision be made for these glorious results and blest will be the coming generation.

Hagerstown, Md

ITINERANT GLEANINGS.

BY REV. H. T JOHNSON.

All the difference in the world between the Northeast and Southwest, between Brooklyn and Louisville, the disparity almost as striking as that between daylight and dusk, or between chalk and chloriform. More divergent scenes the analogy between the two comparative sections in proportion as the traveler has eyes to see, ears to hear, or a mind to think upon what he sees and hears. Permitting the sense and faculty of judgment to have their play but to the least extent, and the ebon hued itinerant, no matter how highly colored or cultured he may be, no matter how saturated with grace or freighted with that charity which endureth all things, will find himself surrounded with clouds of witnesses to the conclusion that American prejudice is a hydra monster of ubiquitous agility, whose horrible features meet the sight and repulsive mien increase as the square of the distance from Maine to Texas, from New York to Florida, or from Michigan to Georgia or Mississippi. His icy, slimy folds can be felt to tighten, his warning hisses can be heard to frighten, his jealous jaws can be seen to widen, as if to threaten and crush and swallow every unsuspecting traveler in black who wants hotel entertainment by the wayside or who applies for Pullman or parlor coach luxury. Any American with purse endorsement and gentlemanly recommendation and passports of backbone and common sense has a right to enjoy all the immunities of any other American citizen. This is a truism accepted by some, but denied by others, like the uncouth fellow passenger who would parlorce take our entire seat until checkmated by manhood and muscle on our part.

In our lecture tour we struck Falls City, better say Louisville, first. The elements being against us, we had but small audiences at St. James and Calvary Churches. On the evening announced for Quinn Chapel it was so muddy and disagreeable that only the most appreciative came out, an exceedingly small minority, whom we conscenously promised to address at a more convenient season. In our meanderings we were most agreeably surprised to see one whom we had not seen for years, since we met in annual meeting with the boys in Philadelphia, in '83. Ever since he left Baltimore he has been dead to his many friends, to whom we say, rejoice with us now, the lost is found, the dead, as we thought, is alive and actively engaged in these parts of the moral vineyard. The Rev. Wm Hargraves left Baltimore a few years ago for No-one knows-where in the Southwest. He labored a year or so at Danville, Ky., with fair field, after having creditably worked up, he resigned for Louisville, having been called to the pastorate of the Knox Presbyterian Church on Madison street. He is popular among all classes and at home in all the churches, and every one likes him, especially the gentler vessels. By these latter he is held in such estimation that we playfully suggested, in order that he be equal to the census, the transfer of residence to where the mormons abide. The beautiful and accomplished ladies of Louisville complain that the ways of Providence seem to be unequal in the distribution of each to her kind. They say that the desirable young men have caught the echo of Mr. Greeley's advice and are gone West. Their plaintive, macedonian cries are enough to melt the most obdurate heart. But, alas! I fear me, in Brother H's case the answering echo is too late. He expects to take a trip North in a few days.

When the annual conference was appointed for Owensboro, it is said none wanted to go there. The scare-crows of inconvenience and poverty are said to have frightened away general officers and visitors alike. But nobody in the world was more badly fooled than those who pictured hungry wolves and skeleton forms to keep them away, and those others who were deluded by the enchantment of distance and failed to visit the place. The fools of us who ventured where the angels feared to tread were well treated for our folly. The good things we received and the better things both witnessed and accomplished are enough to excite the salivary glands of the most fastidious. An out-of-the-way place it was thought, but plying steamers and rival lines of railroads dispute the libel. A poverty-smitten hamlet in any regard it is, but its jingling car-bells and paved or macadamized walks and streets, its public time-pieces and all-attracting show cases, and sizzling soda-fountains and electric lights, like celestial chandeliers, revealed somewhat of the city's wealth and warned the unadvised of the folly of jumping at conclusions. The benefit of the conference session here was interactory and reciprocal. The citizens, white and colored, never saw such a thing and were elated beyond all expression. The former gave unstintedly of their purse and tendered the use of the opera house. The latter vied with them in giving us their all in all. A Bishop in the eyes of that community was as Columbus' ship to the eyes of the primitive American, a messenger of supernatural construction. The ministers were respected, reverenced and made to feel at home. They were treated as though men of God, and as the people used to treat them before the latter became wise above what is written. With unnoticeable exceptions, the brethren acquitted themselves in model demeanor. The church was helped and the community blessed by the visit of the conference. Bishop Turner so grafted himself in the hearts of the people by his power and eloquence that they classed him in the itinerant category, asked that he be left there and prophesied the speedy revival of their church interest should their prayers be granted. As the Bishop has frequently expressed a qualified dissatisfaction with his lofty post and a decided preference for rough-and-tumble church work, we were tempted to feel that he might have been obliging to the popular prayer and just leave himself, instead of Brother Hill, with the saints at Owensboro.

On Monday evening the Bishop, conference and general community crowded the opera house to listen to a special lecture by the writer on "Some Beacons of our Centennial History." At its conclusion the lecturer was flatteringly rewarded with a unanimous resolution and vote of thanks, after a few characteristic raps from the chairman, Bishop Turner.

To the creditable list of delegates to Indianapolis next May already elected, the West Kentucky Conference does honor to itself in its representation by the able trio of Drs. Porter, Welch and Harper. More anon, including visit to the Tennessee and possibly West Tennessee Conferences.

THE WILBERFORCE SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 12

BY PRES. S T MITCHELL.

MR. EDITOR:—You have kindly invited an article on the organization of our new public school district. The chief offender in this instance, I submit the facts in the case as succinctly as I can in the expectation that they will inform, if not entertain. The repeal of the Ohio School Law, Section 4 008, providing separate schools for colored children, occasioned in Greene county a readjustment of the sub-district boundary lines in Xenia township and in the immediate vicinity of Wilberforce. Hitherto, to accommodate the colored youth of the section, two schools had been maintained: one, on the Columbus Pike, about three fourths of a mile distant; the other, on the Clifton Pike, one and one-half miles from the university. With the change in legislation and the alteration of boundary lines, it became evident that the people of Wilberforce vicinity would have to send their children two and one-half miles to what is known as the Oak Grove School District, No 6. This meant virtual abrogation of all school privileges for the little ones at home. More than that; it meant that a community capable of supporting the largest rural schools in the county, must send their youth en masse into an almost depopulated district, an unlawful distance and overcrowding a building capable of accommodating one-half of the district. Something must be done, not for a colored school, but for an accessible school. Wilberforce fathers met in council—Bishop Shorter always there—a petition was drafted to present to the township board of education. Two boards mutually interested, the Xenia and the Cedarville, met in the latter town, May 9th, '87. I met them alone and presented our reasons for a new district. After a brief rebuttal against Dr. Arnett and the rest, the petition was rejected by a vote of ten to two. Immediately afterward, by resolution, they authorized the sale of the two schools above mentioned. Then and there I promised to meet them at the bar of the common law. Again our citizens gathered for counsel. They endorsed our declaration, signed a petition to the proper district was divided between two presiding elders. For miles all down below Alexandria on the Red river clear to its mouth there are no African Methodist churches." Come, brethren, let us change the affairs of things and go to them that want us. Wait, let us hear from Dr. J. Goins, presiding elder of the Lake Providence District: "My district is over two hundred miles distant. To hold my quarterly conference, as the law prescribes, gives me no time for visiting new missions and organizing new fields of labor. I am looking forward to the day when the conference will make reasonable changes so I may be able to visit every part of my district and overturn every stone. My fourth quarter of the Alto Circuit was held October 15th and 16th, with good results. Additions to the Church, 19; total members, 105; number of Sunday schools, 2; pupils, 110; number of teachers, 11; books in library, 160; moneys raised in the conference for presiding elders, $25 95; pastors' salary, $46.10; church repairs, $16 10; delegate, $2.75; Dollar Money, $1—total cash raised, $91 90; grand total raised up to the quarter, $135. We are determined to do our duty." We are in favor of the presiding elder system, but let the application of the law be left with the annual conferences and give us more presiding elders like J. W. Rankin, D.D., and J. Goins, M. D. I admit I have written too long; you shall hear from us again. Six hundred dollars this year for Dollar Money. Brethren, start now

Alto Circuit, La.

THREE THINGS FOR THE NEXT GENERAL CONFERENCE.

BY REV. D. I MANLY.

1st. Discipline, p. 387, chap. 16, sec. 3. Whenever the law of the land requires a specified mode of election that mode shall be observed in electing trustees. 2d. Where the civil law does not intervene the trustees shall be elected annually by the members of the Church. 3d. The minister in charge shall appoint the time and place for holding the election and give notice, etc., from the pulpit. Previous to the election, etc, we think all our trustees ought to be nominated by the minister in charge and elected by the members of the church, but confirmed or rejected by the quarterly conference and the quarterly conference hold them responsible for faithful performance of their duties. This mode would strengthen our Church.

2d. Discipline, p. 100, chap. 4, sec. 2. The sessions of the quarterly conference shall be held every three months—or four times a year—meaning conference year, on every circuit and in every station. 2d. The time and place of meeting shall be appointed by the presiding elder—meaning the district—but if there be no presiding elder, it shall be appointed by the pastor. This appears to be depriveing the quarterly conference of some of its rights. The time of meeting ought to be left with the presiding elder of the district, but the place for meeting ought to be left with the quarterly conferences of circuits and stations.

3d. Discipline, p. 117, chap. 2, sec. 7. 1st. A presiding elder's salary; it shall be $1,000 per year and traveling expenses paid by the churches, etc. This amount of salary has caused much trouble. His salary should be left to elder's—ought to be redneed to the same as other traveling preachers. A few words of consideration to the ministers of North Louisana Annual Conference. Let us go back to one old landmark, brethren. The North Louisiana Annual Conference ought to be divided into three presiding elder, districts, known as the Lake Providence, Shreveport and Alexandria Presiding Elder Districts. We have traveling preachers enough 35 or 40; we have a church membership between 2 500 or 3,000 members; the work is too large for two presiding elders to superintend. Let us hear what the presiding elders say:

Rev J. W. Rankin, presiding elder of the Shreveport District, says, "My district is over two hundred and fifty miles distant. I can't do the good I might if my district was divided between two presiding elders. For miles all down below Alexandria on the Red river clear to its mouth there are no African Methodist churches." Come, brethren, let us change the affairs of things and go to them that want us. Wait, let us hear from Dr. J. Goins, presiding elder of the Lake Providence District: "My district is over two hundred miles distant. To hold my quarterly conference, as the law prescribes, gives me no time for visiting new missions and organizing new fields of labor. I am looking forward to the day when the conference will make reasonable changes so I may be able to visit every part of my district and overturn every stone. My fourth quarter of the Alto Circuit was held October 15th and 16th, with good results. We are determined to do our duty." We are in favor of the presiding elder system, but let the application of the law be left with the annual conferences and give us more presiding elders like J. W. OCTOBER.

October is the month that seems
All woven with midsummer dreams;
She brings for us the golden days
That fill the air with smoky haze,
She fills for us the lisping breeze
And wakes the gossips in the trees,
Who whisper neer the vacant nest
Forsaken by its feathered guest.
Now half the birds forget to sing,
And half of them have taken wing,
Before their pathway shall be lost
Beneath the gossamer of frost;
Now one by one,the gay leaves fly
Zigzag across the yellow sky;
They rustle here and flutter there,
Until the bough hangs chill and bare.
What joy for us—what happiness
Shall cheer the day, the night shall bless?
'T is Hallow-e'en, the very last
Shall keep for us remembrance fast.
When every child shall duck the head
To find the precious pippin red!

—Frank Dempster Sherman, in St. Nicholas for October.

HAYTI.

ITS HISTORY, GOVERNMENT, PEOPLE, CLIMATE AND PRODUCTIONS.

BY J. M. TOWNSEND, D.D.

We have been impressed that it was our duty to write a series of short letters, containing impressions of the above-named country, that those especially who are interested in the progress of the race and the development of Christian civilization may the better understand the wants and needs of this field.

Hayti, with the exception of Cuba, is the largest of the West India Islands, lying in the tropics. It is situated 17 deg. 30 min. and 20 sec. north latitude, and 68 deg. 20 min. and 73 deg. 28. minwest longitude. Its extreme length, from east to west, is about 600 miles; in width it varies from 34 to 240 miles. Its area is about 10,000 square miles. The coast line of the entire island is about 1,250 miles, quite irregular, and forms many beautiful bays and harbors, good for shipping and anchorage. The island of Gonaive divides the entrance to the city of Port au Prince into two channels —ships can enter by either. The coral reefs, which are everywhere abundant, compel larger vessels to lay off a distance of one mile or more and discharge and receive cargoes by means of lighters Along the north coast are the ports of St. Mark, Port de Paix, Acul Bay, Cape Hayti, Bay of Caracol and Forte Liberte. From Forte Liberte to Saint-Nicholas Mole, no ports are situated. The landfall of Mole St. Nicholas, the entrance to Puerta Plata is very narrow and filled with reefs. The Bay of Salinina is one of the most beautiful in the world. It is about 35 miles long and 10 miles wide. On this bay are situated the towns of Sannamacares and Sanchez, from which ports large quantities of sugar are shipped to foreign ports. Beyond Saleina to the east and south there are no ports until San Domingo City is reached. The mouth of the Ozama river is deep, which enables shipe to land close np to the shore. On the west and south coasts are the ports of Ocoa, Nebia, Carmel, Aquin, St. Louis, Anx Cayes and Jeremie.

Hayti is an exceedingly mountainous country; still there are many large and fertile plaine lying between the ranges. These three distinct mountain ranges extending from east to west, come of the peaks of which reach an altitnde of from 3,000 to 10,000 feet

RIVERS.

There are a number of streams which traverce the plains and mountain passes, none of which are navigable only for a few miles, except for canoes and small boats.

MINERAL PRODUCTIONS

include gold, platinum, silver, mercury, tin, sulphur, marble, rock salt and bitumen. Notwithstanding these minerals abound in large, and no doubt, paying quantities, the mines have been little worked since the daye of Spanish and French occnpancy.

ANIMALS.

Wild cattle, horses, donkeys, bogs and dogs roam at large on the plaine and in the forests. Birds are few, except peacons and water fowl. Snakes, lizarde, tarantulas, scorpions and centipedes abonnd in the low lands.

VEGETABLE PRODUCTIONS.

Because of the richness of the soil, the variety and abnndance of vegetation is not excelled by any country in the world. Tropical plants and fruits attain the highest perfection, and many of the products of temperate climates are grown. Cotton, rice, tobacco, corn, ginger, indigo, arrowroot, pimento, banana, plantain, yam, pineapple, sweet potato, artichoke, sugar cane, coffee, bamboo, breadfruit, mango, orange, aimond, apple, grape and fig grow profusely in almost every part of the island. The forests abound with cabinet and dye woods, such as mahogany, satinwood, rosewood, acoms grigri, Brazil wood, logwood and sassafras. The mountaine are said to contain large forests of white and red pine. White pine and cocoa groves are everywhere abundant.

The climate of Hayti is diversified. In the plains it is always hot; the thermometer registers as high as 96 degrees, while in the high country in often falls to 56 degrees. They have the wet and dry season. The rains are the heaviest in May, June and July.

AGRICULTURE.

There is not that painstaking in the cultivation of the soil that one would expect. There has been a good deal of "trusting to Providence" in this matter. Of late years, I am told, there has been a decided improvement in the tilling of the soil.

It appears to me that if farming and gardening were carried on there as here, soon the farmers would become the nabobs of the land. One thing to be regretted is, that the business of the country is largely carried on by foreigners who have settled there for the purpose of money-making and have but little interest in the development of the country.

POPULATION.

The population of the Island is variously estimated at from 750,000 to 1,500,000. There being no national census, it is impossible to give the correct figures. The island is divided into two independent republics, the Dominican on the East and the Haytian on the West. Possibly two-thirds of all the people live in the last named, and it is estimated that 500,000 of them are of the African descent, with 60,000 to 100,000 French descent, while in Domingo, five-sighths of the population are of Spanish, and the remainder of African descent There are a few Americans, Germans and Italians. The language of Domingo is Spanish; of Hayti, French and Creole.

HISTORY OF HAYTI.

While visiting the island I made numerous attempts to find some history of the country written on the ground, but as often failed. Such books as "Hayti, or the Black Republic," written by Sir Spencer St. John, are a libel on the Republic, and not to be taken as creditable. The studied effort is to degrade negro manhood and impress the world that the negro, as such, is incapable of self-development, and hence of self-government. But I shall have more to say of this further on.

Hayti is historic, dating back to its discovery by Columbus, December 6, 1492. We gather the following facts and receive carpe-ful notice as reliable. Originally the island was inhabited by natives to the number of nearly two millione. Later on European adventurers were attracted by the hope of accumulating rich fortunes. Notwithstanding the feeble resistance of the natives, they were reduced to slavery So terrible was this condition that only abont thirty years were required to exterminate them. After the Spanish had exhausted the gold mines, and the island began to exhaust its wealth in sugar, they began to look around for a new field. Africa was then open to the slave trade, and the Spanish began to fill and continue np and down the line. Mr. Editor, we brethren of Arkansas expect to do our part; we want this to be a mighty time to the pulling down of the walls of sin and to Christian elevation.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY BISHOP A. W. WAYMAN.

MR. EDITOR:—After closing my camp-meeting tour I commenced my fall campaign. My first visit was made to the Eastern Shore of Maryland, crossing the Chesapeake Bay for Easton, where I met Rev. Charles B urne's live congregation on Friday night, September 9th.

Saturday morning, in company with my oldest brother, Charles H. Wayman, I started for the great Tuckahoe. On the road we passed by many places that were familiar to us—places where we spent days and months in our youthful days. A great change has taken place in that part of Maryland in the last twenty-five years. Then over those large fields hundreds of slaves could be seen ploughing and driving oxen, singing what were then known as the "Corn songs." But all those songs have died away and when they sing in the woods and fields it is "Take the name of Jesus with you." On the road we passed the place Hon. Frederick Douglass was born and spent his early days. The farm has changed hands and the old log house where his grandfather and mother used to live has disappeared. About 12 o'clock M. we reached the famous Tuckahoe.

Sunday morning a beautiful congregation was ont to attend service at Tuckahoe Chapel. Afternoon I met another congregation at Ridgley and wound np the Sabbath's labors at Denton.

Monday morning I rode seven miles to the station to meet Prof. H. O. Tanner, who came down from Philadelphia to take a photograph of the old log house where I was born. This is the place that is called "The University of Tuckahoe." Prof. Tanner has since sent me a copy of it. There will be some copies at your book store hereafter. From Tuckahoe we went on to Roseville and Church Hill, in Queen Anne county, and then crossed over the Chester river to Chestertown, in Kent county. All the places we visited the churches were in good condition. I then returned to Philadelphia.

On Saturday I visited Philadelphia, and then on Sonday dedicated for Bishop Ward the Morris Brown Chapel, Philadelphia. Monday night I called at Allen Chapel and found a lively congregation there, being led on by Rev. L. J. Coppin. While in Philadelphia I heard of the death of Rev. Thomas A. Cuff, at Salem, N. J. Rev. J. H. Morgan brought a request that I should attend the funeral. Accordingly on Thursday, in company with several other ministers. I went to Salem, N. J.; there was a large congregation of friends and relations in attendance. From Salem I returned home to Baltimore, and then to Cambridge, Md., to assist Rev. J. M. Cargill on Sunday, September 25. Then I took a tour through Delaware, calling at Seaford, Dover, Smyrna and Middletown; at all of these places the churches are doing well. The pastors are young, enterprising ministers. Last Sunday I spent with Rev. T. E. Lane, at Annapolis, Md. It was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the church in that city. It was a grand day. I leave to-morrow, Tuesday morning, October 4:h, for a tour through Georgia.

THE PITTSBURG CONFERENCE.

BY REV. JOHN M. PALMER.

The Pittsburg Conference assembled in its twentieth session at Parkersburg, West Virginia, October 5th, 1887, in Bethel A. M. E. Church. The small brick edifice erected this year by the popular young minister, Rev. Charles A. McGee, is a fine monnment to African Methodism in that section.

Rev. McGee deserves great credit for the excellent work he has already accomplished in Parkersburg. The people, both of our own and the colored M. E. Church, appreciate his work. This was seen in the fact, first, that however averse many of our friends of the C. M. E. Church may be to African Methodism, yet they entertained us in the most cordial manner—possibly the majority of the ministers of the conference, and were as demonstrative when Rev. McGee's appointment to that charge for another year was announced as the members of his own flock. We do not believe that we ever too much when we declare it as our belief that Brother McGee in proving himself a man, a christian gentleman and a worker.

The venerable Bishop Campbell arrived at Parkersburg quite in advance of the most of his brethren and was comfortably quartered at Sister Jones', an Allenite indeed in whom there is no guile, of whom we could devote a column in your paper. But it may suffice for me to say that eternity itself will reveal a history of these flowers that bloom unnoticed in the world, a class to which Sister Jones belongs. She possessed a heart sufficiently large in benevolence to entertain the whole conference. She is said to be one of the greatest workers in the A. M. E. Church. Her sister, Mrs. Watkins, is affable, kind and extremely polite.

In opening the conference on Wednesday morning, the 5th, Bishop Campbell delivered an interesting address to the young men, informing them that the work of the fathers would soon be committed entirely to their hands. The encouraging address of the Bishop forms a part of the history now making by the Pittsburgh Conference. After devotional exercises had been conducted by the Bishop, the Rev. W. S. Lowry was elected secretary, to succeed Dr. Cornelius Asbury, who has served the conference acceptably for several years. Dr. Asbury was elected recording, and Richard Tanner, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., was elected statistical secretary; Rev. Jno. M. Palmer was elected reporter to the RECORDER and Parkersburg Weekly Sentinel, and Rev. Berverly Jamison, of Uniontown, Pa., was elected reporter to the Daily State Journal, Parkersburg. Upon a suggestion of Dr. B. T. Tanner, J. M. Palmer was also elected stenographer for the conference. Taken altogether, he is the wisest and best ruler Hayti has ever had. In talking with people of all classes, they say: "Long live Salomon!" Under his reign the people have enjoyed an unbroken term from revolutions, save the unfortunate affair of 1883, which the people say will be the last. God grant that it may be so; that that fair land, owned and governed by our brethren, may be made to bloom and blossom as a beautiful garden of God's own planting.

THOUGHTS ON THE CENTENNIAL.

BY REV. A. L. RIDGEL.

MR. EDITOR:—I thonght as Arkansas had been silent upon the above topic that a few words from over here would not be amiss. This is an advanced step in the right direction and should have the hearty co-operation of the entire African Methodist family. Extraordinary exertions, powerful organization, unbounded enthusiasm, humble prayer and Christian sincerity, should be made indispensable elements upon this sublime, exalted and glorious occasion. Men travel across continents —across mighty waters—at an almost incalculable expense for the sole purpose of visiting the graves of mighty warriors, and there, around the dust of the long since deceased heroes, they get down and thank God that such a one lived to bless the nations Nations erect great monnments of honor over the graves of their departed statesmen at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars and each year hundreds from all parts of these United States gather together for the purpose of perpetuating the memory and conferring due respect to the life and character of the deceased hero.

The fourth day of each July is made a day of joy, recreation and general respite from all secular pnrents, for upon that day our grand American people received the famous Declaration of Independence and became a free country. The year when the Emancipation Proclamation was issned and the news was shouted across this cold, blood-stained continent that the negro is free —free from bondage, free from slavery's chain, free from "old master's emoky buts" and from "old mistress's sloppy kitchen;" yes, free from the innumerable outrages that had for over two hnndred years been wilfnlly, maliconsly and shamefully perpetrated upon them at the hands of infamous, villainous, heart-no-daring and God-insulting men, is held in highest repute by the dusky sone of Ham." Oh, blessed year; oh, glorious time when God, with a hand of supernatural power, shook this old continent and shook off the chains of four and a half millions of wretched, ignorant negroes. Theee were great and enblime occasions worthy of mention, worthy of note, worthy of praise and commendation; but what occasion deserves more enlogy, more praise, more commendation than that occasion when Richard Allen exclaimed, "Come let us worship God under our own vine and fig-tree?"

African Methodism will be one hundred years old the forthcoming November, and it is requested that the whole Church celebrate a certain day in the above mentioned month in honor of the grand event and for the purpose of raising means to relieve our embarrassed Publication Department. Let each one do his duty. Commence the work of preparation at once. Do not put off the time. Procrastination is the thief of time. Bury sectarianism in the grave of no resurrection. Catch stinginess by the throat and choke it to death. Let the ball begin to roll and continue np and

Scott, Principal of the public schools; responded on the part of the church.

This was one of, if not the most pleasant session of the Pittsburgh Conference. At times the discussions were stormy, but there would soon come a calm and the brethren seemed to treat each other in the most gentlemanly, Christian manner. The M. E. Conference was in session in Parkersburg during the same week of the A. M. E., and a fraternal delegation from the latter visited our conference at the instance of Bishop Bowman. They were kindly received by the Bishop and brethren, and there was the greatest scene yet witnessed in our conference. Notably among their speakers was Dr. Payne, president of the Ohio Wesleyan University, Ohio, who, in the course of his remarks said, "I look upon this as being one of the supreme moments of my life; there is a union of churches here this morning. I could sit here and shed tears of joy and weep as I hear the words of these brethren. I rejoice with you, brethren, in the fact that we have found one battle, though we were not another to fight. I was glad to hear one of my brethren here say 'we don't want slavery back.' I heard a colored man boasting that he had no mean blood in him. I met the same man a few weeks ago; he said he was born in slavery and went ont into the army. He told me how he came ont and what different treatment he met np with in the North, how he came by the old Ohio river, which used to be the dividing line between the North and South; he entered a hotel in one of the Northern towns, a white man took his satchel up to a sevant's room; a white man blacked his boots. Then followed a number of other incidents, showing marked gain over previous years; notably among them that of the Dollar Money. The total amount of Dollar Money raised in the Pittsburgh Conference in 1870 was $688; total amount in 1886 was $1,032, while at this session of the conference there was $1,215 turned over, or an increase over previous years of $183. The other receipts were equally as encouraging. About two-thirds of the Dollar Money required by law was paid by each member of the church in the Pittsburgh Conference last year, 1886.

One of the notable incidents reported during the opening session was Brother A. A. Barber's appointment to Bethel Eider, Rev. Geo. G. Skinner, as having walked 203 miles to get to the annual conference. Brother Berber was asked to stand up before the conference, which he did amid the sympathy of the members and friends. Brother Barber is a missionary indeed. The members of the conference, with but one exception, seemed at their best in health and appearance. Rev. Wm. H. Russell, of Williamsport Station, proved the exception, and to all appearances was in the last stage of consumption. Rev. Russelle mind, however, was bright, his intellect clear and keen. It was your correspondent's privilege to serve as chairman of the committee on third years' studies with Brother Russell. He did all in his power to make the examination of the candidates as thorough as possible. Probahy the last time in this world he subscribed his name to a paper was on the last night of the conference he subscribed to the report of our committee, recommending that Reverdy C. Ransom, Geo. W. Webster and H. C. Honesty be passed to the fourth year's studies and retaining as many of the third year's agent as possible. He arrived home at Williamsport, Pa., abont Thursday, 13th, and died Saturday morning, the 15th of October. He was a zealous worker, a conscientious Christian, a fine sermonizer, a gentleman and last, but not least, he was a man. Ten years' acquaintance with him settles the fact in our mind. Although there were points upon which we differed, we never had a word upon the conference floor, yet, taking his excellent qualities as a whole, "he was a man" His remains were conveyed to Pitsburgh, his former home, where he was buried from Wylie avenue A. M. E. Church Tuesday, October 18th, at 10 o'clock A. M. The following members of the Pittsburgh Conference participated: Revs. B. Wheeler, W. S. Lowry, Cornelius Asbury, Wm. H. Brown, J. M Morris, J. M. Palmer, D. S. Bently, Geo. G. Skinner, George C. Sampson and others. The service was a solemn and impressive one.

The matter of electing delegates to the General Conference was done with depatch. The following are the delegates: Revs. C. Asbury, D.D., W. S. Lowry and W. H. Brown. Alternates: Revs. A. B Palmer and J. M. Morris. Another notable event which occurred during the conference was the presentation of one hnndred dollers to the church at Parkersburgh and one hnndred dollars to the church at Wheeling. This action on the part of the Bishop and conference has excited very favorable comment and will serve as a very great encouragement to the faithful workers in each of these churches. The trustees, stewards and stewardesses gathered around the altar, together with their pastor, Rev. McGee. Bishop Campbell made the presentation speech in a creditable manner and Professor T. D. Scott, Principal of the public schools, responded in a very becoming manner, raising still higher the standard of the race.

Notably in answer to the question per Discipline, no member died this year, none withdrew but the Rev. J. J. Jones, of stereoptican fame. Dr. B. T. Tanner, editor of the Church Review, was present, and your correspondent can assure you that the members of the Pittsburg Conference look for Dr. Tanner as regular as the sessions rotate. Not unlike Bishop Campbell, he always leaves us something original and fresh to think upon. We have no injustice in calling him original Dr. Tanner of the Review.

Bishop Campbell delivered his lecture on Hayti and San Domingo in two parts, the first part being "Hayti and Ethnology," on the unity of mankind. He based part first upon Isa. 18, 1-2 in connection with the 7th, and declared that the first verse should be read, "Ho to the land shadowing with wings," etc., instead of "Wee to the land shadowing," as in present translation. The sermon is pnb lished in full in the minutes of the Conference, parts one and two. The theologians and Hebrew scholars were given a "nnt to crack."

Dr. Tanner remarked to the Bishop and Conference that it would be an irreparable loss should Bishop Campbell be called away suddenly and the Church and world as well fail to obtain before his leaving the valuable information from a historical standpoint now in his possession.

The Conference as well as the church membership within its bounds is growing rapidly in point of members. Rev. Cornelius Asbury, D.D., preached the annual missionary sermon in an elegant, forcible manner, and Rev. I. N. Rose preached the annual sermon in the place of Rev. John Russell. The next session will be held in Canonsburg, Pa., Oct. 3rd 1888.

FROM BISHOP TAYLOR'S CATECHISM ON METHODIST EPISCOPACY.

From Apostolic teaching and precedent founded by John Wesley, he discovered and taught, that the only regular scriptural orders of gospel ministers were those of Deacons and Elders, recognizing the titles Elder, Presbyter and Bishop as synonymous. All mean substantially the same, except that some of the Elders become General Superintendents; a distinct office but not a different order.

Ques. 1. What is meant in the Methodist Ministry by the title "Superintendent?"

Ans. Mr. Wesley called each preacher whom he appointed to the charge of a circuit, the Superintendent of the Circuit." All such are so designated to this day in England and all her colonies.

Ques. 2. What is meant by the title General Superintendent?

Ans. When Mr. Wesley ordained Dr. Coke to the General Superintendency of American Methodism he distinguished him from the Superintendents of Circuits by the appropriate title of General Superintendent.

Ans. Were there any limitations to the General Superintendency of Dr. Coke?

Ans. Yes.

Ques. 4. What were these limitations?

Ans. The bonndaries of particular fields assigned him by the authority investing him with his official functions and the limiting conditions involved in the administration of that authority to which he was amenable.

Ques. 5. Did Dr. Coke ever by any means come into the possesion of the authority exercised by Mr. Wesley?

Ans. No.

Ques. 6. To what administrative body did that authority directly descend from Mr. Wesley?

Ans. His Conference.

Ques. 7. Was Dr. Coke's amenability to the authority of said Conference the same as it was to Mr. Wesley?

Ans. Yes.

Ques. 8. What proof have we of that fact?

Ans. When Dr. Coke at his own personal cost, financially, proposed to plant a mission in Ceylon he pleased the Conference in vain for nearly a week of its daily sessions for permission to do so. On the day of its adjournment one of its members arose in his place and moved that the action of the Conference regarding the proposed mission to Ceylon be reversed, and went on to say that Dr. Coke had laid on the floor in his bed room all night weeping over his disappointment and that he would certainly die with a broken heart if the Conference did not allow bim to go to Ceylon. Then the Conference granted him leave to proceed and thus extend his superintendency to that remote island of the sea.

Ques. 9. Did the authority of Mr. Wesley that passed into his Conference in England ever belong to Dr. Coke or to the Episcopal successors in America?

Ans. No.

Ques. 10. Where does it belong?

Ans. To the General Conference.

Ques. 11. How is it exercised in relation to Methodist Episcopacy?

Ans. It elects the Bishops, it assigns either directly or indirectly to each one his field of Episcopal jurisdiction, with its limitations both as to geographical extent and term-limit of his occupancy of said field, and holds him responsible for the faithful discharge of his duties.

Ques. 12. What is the difference between the assignment of Missionary Bishops to the fields of their Episcopal jurisdiction and that of other Bishops?

Ans. Missionary Bishops are appointed by the direct action of the General Conference to a foreign mission field, for a term of four years. By the same authority, delegated to the College of Bishops, the official jurisdiction of each Bishop is assigned, defined, limited and published in the place of Episcopal visitation over the entire.

Ques. 13. Are Missionary Bishops General Superintendents?

Ans. Yes.

Ques. 14. Were Bishops Roberts and Burns, of Liberia, General Superintendents?

Ans. Yes, they were regular Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The irregularity of their election was but incidental and did not effect its validity; for it was in accordance with the action of the General Conference in electing them to the office of Bishops in the Church of God. Diocesan Episcopacy is precluded from the Methodist Episcopal Church by her constitutional laws: hence they were not Diocesan in law, nor were they in fact; for in common with their Episcopal Peers they exercised the functions of their office under the appointing power of the General Conference. The fact that the General Conference did not see fit to appoint them to other fields than Liberia did not effect the law of the Church in their case, nor the fact that the General Superintendency in the field assigned to them.

Ques. 18. Are not Presiding Elders and Superintendents of Missons General Superintendents?

Ans. Certainly not in the Episcopal meaning of that title, yet they have for a limited period of time a Sub-General Superintendency under the appointment of the Bishops.

Skin diseases cannot be successfully treated by external applications. The proper way to cure such complaints is to purify the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Under the vitalising influences of this medicine all the functions of the body are brought into healthy action.

THE WHITE RAID UPON THE UTES.

It is earnestly to be hoped that this latest outrage upon the Ute Indians of Colorado will not only signally fail, but that the white plotters who are at the back of it will be arrested and punished. The probabilities are, however, that there are so many engaged and interested in it—so many of varied conditions, from the idle gambler and loafer up to the seedy politician and greedy land grabber, whose interests will be best served by getting up a so-called "Indian war," killing off the Indians, seizing upon and dividing up the lands of their reservation—that political reasons will indnce the authorities, both in Colorado and Washington, to let them escape.

Whether the trouble began by an attempt to indnce the old chief Colorow to go on the war path by first shooting one of his "bucks," and when that failed, then to shoot his sister (as one account asserts), or whether it was brought about by some cowboys refusing to pay over some ponies to the Indians, which they had lost at horse race, which is a very common occurrence with those fellows when they lose at a horse race with the Indians, and the Indians then seizing the ponies won, and the whites getting a sheriff to issne a warrant for the surrender of the Indians, who had taken what they considered theirs, and going in parties, as another dispatch asserts, and mounted were all ready at Rawlins, and more at other places, who immediately marched under the leadership of the sheriff Kendall and one General F. M. Reardon, shows that the raid has been long planned, and that many others, some high in authority, besides the idlers from the mining camps, are concerned in it.

If the Utes were a great and powerful tribe, and the whites surrounding them were few in numbers, the getting up of a war under such pretenses would be inexcusable; but when, as in the present case, the Indians are few in numbers, their reservation reduced to the smallest possible limits for their subsistence, and this guaranteed to them by the most solemn promises and contracts of our government—the present scheme to plunder and kill them is simply outrageous.

Again: If this were an exceptional case, we might be less indignant; but when we remember the "Sands Creek massacre," where a large body of armed whites from the same State of Colorado, under Colonel Chivington, about twenty years ago, fell upon and slaughtered without cause or provocation over three hundred Indians, men, women and children, who were living peaceably in confidence under the protection of our government; or the Camp Grant massacre in 1870, where over three hundred Apaches, of both sexes and many little children, having come in under promises of protection from the United States officers commanding at Camp Grant, in Arizona, and while they were resting securely, as they believed, and wholly unprepared, within two miles of that post, were set upon and slaughtered in the night by an armed mob of whites from Tucson—we feel that the possibility that this present raid upon the brave Utes may result in another such disgraceful atrocity—these and many other similar crimes of the kind arouse our indignation, and we feel that the Christian public sentiment of the country should assert itself against it in language that cannot be mistaken.

It is not Colorado alone that is disgraced by such outrages, but the whole nation. We are very glad to notice that thus far the United States officers in command of the troops nearest the Ute reservation have declined to be drawn into joining in the pursuit of the Indians. But the question comes up: Should they not be ordered at once to clear the Ute reservation of the white intruders —as our treaty with the Indians calls for —and if the sheriff and his party refuse to leave arrest the whole gang.—Vincent Colyer in the Lutheran Observer, September 2nd, 1887.

CHRISTIAN GIVING.

Oh that men should accept the testimony of Christ touching the blessedness of giving! He who sacrifices most for the cause; and he who loves most is most blessed. Love and sacrifice are related to each other like seed and fruit; each produces the other. The seed of sacrifice brings forth the fragrant fruit of love, and love always has in its heart the seeds of new sacrifice. He who gives but a part is not made perfect in love. Love rejoices to give all; it does not measure its sacrifice. It was Judas, not Mary, who calculated the value of the alabaster box of ointment. He who is infinitely blessed is the infinite Giver; and man, made in his image, was intended to find his highest blessedness in the completest self-giving. He who receives, but does not give, is like the Dead Sea. All the fresh floods of Jordan cannot sweeten its dead, salt depths. So all the streams of God's bounty cannot sweeten a heart that has no outlet; is ever receiving, yet never full and overflowing.

If those whose horizon is as narrow as the bushel under which they hide their light could be induced to come out into a large place and take a worthy view of the kingdom of Christ and of their relations to it; if they could be persuaded to make the principle of Christian giving regnant in their life, their happiness would be increased as much as their usefulness.—Rev. Josiah Strong, in Our Country.

FOREWARNED FOREARMED.

He who uses his eyes, ears and reads, is compelled to see that the world is in a mighty struggle, as we believe, hastening on to a grander civilization than has ever yet blessed the earth. All Europe and much of America are aroused and are watching each nation, his own interest. Railroads, telegraphs, navigation and all civilizing influences are penetrating Africa. China, Japan and the isles of the sea. New inventions, discoveries and ideas are being made every day.

What part shall the negro play upon the future stage of earth? To-day we are in a sad condition, but let us not be discouraged. The place of honor is the place of danger.

To day we are in a transit state. We are passing from the evil of slavery and degradation to the stage of citizenship, progress of the Church. Text, Acts 13, 41: "Behold, ye dispisers and wonder, (and perish), for I work a work in your days, a work which ye will in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you."] Collect your envelopes]

5. At 2 P. M. Sunday school concert with short addresses. (Collect your envelopes).

6. At night, a enlogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Collect your envelope. Conclude with the prayer of thanksgiving. (See evening prayer, Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page —), and then repeat the Creed and sing: "From all that dwell below the sky," etc., ending with the doxology, "Praise God from whom all bessings flow," and benediction.

II PART.

Programme of the grand concluding celebration to be held in Philadelphia, commencing on Wednesday, November 23d.

1. Wednesday night, Union Sacred Concert, at —— hall, —— street, Philadelphia.

2. Thursday night (Thanksgiving Day) Centennial Banquet at each of the churches, or such other exercises as each pastor and his committee may decide to have.

3. Friday night, Grand Literary Meeting, with speaking by the following named gentlemen, at —— hall, —— street.

Speakers: Prof. T. McCants Stewart, of N. Y.

2. Rev. ——, of Fla.

3. Rev. C. S. Smith, of Tenn.

4. Rev. William J. Law, of the Iowa Conference.

Portrait of Bishop Allen, life size, executed by the colored artist —— to be presented to the connection by Rev. C. T. Shaffer, through Bishop Payne. Address and reply.

III PART.

1. On Sunday morning, a centennial prayer meeting at 5 o'clock.

2. At 10:30 A. M., centennial sermon on the rise and progress of the Church—text, Acts 13, 41. Collection of envelopes.

3. At 2 P. M. Union Sunday School concert, with short addresses, by chosen persons. Collection. The Philadelphia Sunday schools to be united as follows: Bethel, Zion Mission and Murray Chapel Sunday schools together at Bethel; Allen Chapel and Mt. Pisgah Sunday schools together at Allen; Union Church and Morris Brown, at Union.

4. At night, hymn, O, God our help, etc, 701, Ritual 16. A enlogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Conclude with the prayer for the clergy and people. Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page 160. The prayer for all men, and the general thanksgiving, page 162. Sing the hymn 862, Ritual No. 12, and doxology, "Praise God," etc., Ritual No. 20. Collect envelopes, and report the amount. The creed and benediction.

NOTICE BY THE MANAGER.

We again call the attention of the pastors and presiding elders to the form of Warranty Deed we have prepared and published for general use in the purchase of church properties. The form is simple, and plain as plain can be, yet it is believed to cover every point in the law. It was drawn by an old experienced attorney, with our Discipline before him. Price, 25 cents per copy, or 5 for $1.00.

Address, J. C. EMBRY,

Until he who is head of the church and the living breath of the Scriptures can be dethroned from his resurrection glory, neither the church nor the Bible can be overthrown.—Independent.

What unthankfulness it is to forget our consolations, and to look only upon matters of grievance; to think so much upon two or three crosses as to forget a hundred blessings.—Sibbes.

A man is for foreign mission work just in proportion as the gospel has been powerful in his own redemption. You find me a man who is not in favor of sending the gospel of Jesus Christ to China at any cost, and I will show you a man that the gospel never did much good for.—Sam Jones.

All orders for changing address of the paper, securing Sunday school or Church supplies, must be sent to the Manager, not to the editor. Please remember, nothing but articles for publication, or letters pertaining thereto, should be addressed to the editor, and they to him exclusively.

OUR OFFER of "Richard Allen's Autobiography" and "Tanner's Outlines of the Histoy of the A. M. E Church," together for $1 25 has caught the people's eye. Orders come in quite rapidly. Yet we have more of the worke on hand at the same price. These two booke furnish just the data needed to talk about the Centeunial of African Methodism.

THE BETHEL Literary Society, Philadelphia, was honored Tuesday night, October 25, by an extensive and eloquent address by Rev. C. S. Smith, Secretary of the Sunday School Union. Dr. Smith has so far recovered from his long continued illness as to be able again to thrill an audience with his wonted flow of words and logical force.

The Bethel Literary cheered their eloquent speaker very frequently. His address of nearly an hour closed, having the closest attention and deepest interest of the audience.

WE WOULD inform brethren again that orders for envelopes are being filled with the greatest possible rapidity. We are glad to have the orders thicken on us and trust they will continue. The people show a deep interest in a laudable enterprise, the A. M. E. Publishing House, and a high connectional spirit in reference to the hundred years' work of colored organized Christians. From all quarters come the orders; in all quarters will rise the jubilant notes of praise and thanksgiving. It is remarkable that the interest runs so high in small towns as well as in large, in those parts where African Methodism is newest as well as where it is old, by the young and the old, the ministry and the laity.

HOW RARELY colored men speak of the virtues of colored men in public. The race is becoming like some households, over-governed, over-criticised Continual underestimatiou leads to reuder a people careless and hopeless. The colored people are about equal to other Americans in morals and in mental possibilities. Recent observatioue show that many fewer colored persons than white persons become insane or demented. There are no names of colored persons among those organizations that threaten to undermine our institntions; as the anarchists. There is no association of men in the country tainted with any disreputableness that includes any considerable uumber of colored men. The fact is, colored men are aiding in American progress largely and hindering it but little.

IN THE Philadelphia Times of one day last week, a correspondent from Baltimore wrote, with reference to the approaching election in that city, that "all colorad men look so much alike it was difficult to detect them in illegal voting." The idea with which he begins is foolish. If he will take time to gather seven millions of white persons, taking them as they come, and compare them with the same number of colored persons, all native born, he will find equal, if not greater, variety among the colored than the white. It reminds us of a case in which we are interested. Living neighbors to Dr. J. S. Thompson, looking about as much like him as like almost any other man, we are called by many white friends, "Mr. Thompson" very frequently. We look alike to them, because we don't "look" at all to them. They have little interest in us.

THE CHURCH of Christ is the institiou alone, of all institutions, that is designed for existence co-equal with the human race. It is prepared to associate with the movements of the ages in a perfectly adjusted manuer. If the world fail to get full benefits from it, its own blindnese is the cause. All the talk of politicians and philosophers about personal rights and individual prerogatives, race reserves and superiority must be wasted on the desert air, only in so far forth as they come from the philosophy of pure hearts. To lift the haud or voice against the sanctity of the Sabbath; to declare the right of men to use the hours of that day as they please; to assert the right to blaspheme the name of God, trample upon the natural and common rights of men because of the incidental power acquired by wealth, position or heritage, is to fall into the line of sure destruction. God reigns; let the earth keep silent. The hand of the oppressor, the tongue of the liar and blasphomer, the head of vain philosophy —all must yield to the eternal law of right. Only the right can succeed ultimately.

WHAT GOOD will the success of this African Methodist centennial do me? What reason have I to contribute to it my time, my thought and my money? are questions that may arise in many minds. We reply: It is designed that the oouestion, made up of all the individual members—that includes you—shall become more solid and that every member —and that includes you—shall thus be enabled to accomplish more good in the future. Then it is designed that the one department of the Church upon which all the others depend shall be placed in conditiou to reduce the essential connectional literature to such prices as to place it within the easy reach of all members—that includes you—and thus to relieve the whole counection—and that includes you—of a small indebtedness which the world holds against It. The African Methodist who says "see thon to it," concerning these matters has a very improper conception of his church and Christian responsibilities. Will not every African Methodist, therefore, turn aside from his own way and make the very best effort he can toward centennial success this month?

THE RECORDER may not exhibit the strength on the political question that would please the Conservator. The CHRISTIAN RECORDER will not, under the present editor, become a champion for any political party. It is thoroughly, constantly and strongly against rum and equally in favor of total abstinence. It may be weak for us not to say and do just what the Conservator might suggest, bnt to us it does not so appear. That there is to come some day a direct and terrible issne between the drink league and the anti drink league there can be little doubt. The RECORDER is quite definitely on the right side of the rising issue, bnt is not a political paper. The Conservator is not to be salled weak because it doss not do the work which the RECORDER is bound to do; why should the RECORDER not be accredited with strength for attending to its own business? Some of our friends seem to think that because the RECORDER is edited in the interest of colored men especially it must be as political as other papers published in this interest. We have determined that the RECORDER in the future, under the present editor, shall be less political than it has been previously to 1886; we do not say 1884, observe.

WHY SHOULD ministers have their hearts fixed upon certain appointments, so that they would seem to be willing to sacrifice much to obtain them? There may be many answers to this question. Ministers bring men in the same relations and with the same responsibilities of other men, having the same amount of ambition, thrift, and other energies, are actuated by very much the same motives that move other men to action. But there are few things connected with Methodist appointments more poorly understood than ministers' relatiou to placee of appointments. Some churches have been led to belisve that they are the objecte of general ministerial ambition, that almost every miuister would like to be their pastor, for the two reasons that they are large and haudle much money. Soms persoue even fear to have their churchee do all they can for the counoction simply because they fear "all the preachers will want to come to our church."

There are other things that draw ministers beside money. Health, peace, cooperatiou and sympathy are more attractive than money, considered alone; but, if these churchee were right in their judgment would they be right in their action? Would it pay any local church to give just sufficient attention to its counectional claims to be excused? Would not connectional improvement improve that local work? This petty treatment of our connectional matters continued long would incapacitate these local churches to co-operate with any great organization, and, finally, to support themselves.

REV. H. P. THOMAS, of Gouldtown, N. J., collected moneys for General Conference delegates last Sunday. It was our pleasure to spend the day at home with him and his good people. There have been many descriptive notes of that neighborhood, one of the best instances of long supported thrift given by colored Americans. Seven consecutive generations of free colored people have lived right in that place. But we are not going to repeat what has been so often and so well said of this people, but on the contrary find fault with them. There are not more than a dozen copies of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER taken there, though the A. M. E. Church numbers about 150. One officer of many years' standing in the church, whose father was probably one of the earliest African Methodists, drops the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. Why? Certainly not because he could not be profited by reading it. Some other members of the Church, in high official positiou—stewardesses, Sunday school teachers, stewards, trustees, etc.—do not take the RECORDER. Some of them read the Church organs of other denominations. To this we offer no objectious, but must suggest that if members of those other denominations did the same with respect to eburch papers, they would grow very slowly.

We can see no reason why this thrifty, good people should shut out the light, nor why they should fail to support their own Church as a sonnection. We do not know how to account for it. It ought not to be laid at the door of pastors; yet somebody must be responsible for the attempt to raise African Methodists on milk from other dairies It cannot be that the superiority of the milk they get is so great as to warrant this self-boycotting, for those who are doing this, as a rule, have never paid enough attention to the CHRISTIAN RECORDER to be able to compare it with other papers that they read. While there are very few exceptions in the whole neighborhood, these few are loyal to the CHRISTIAN RECORDER with an earnestuess worthy of the reputation of their unique hamlet. They have files of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER covering many years. All are loyal to the connection, but how can they comprehend the vastness, wants and the doings of the counection without reading its organ?

CENTENNIAL THOUGHTS.

The centeunial month is upon us. Next Sunday thousands will hear and say something about the work and lives of the men who gathered the material for the building—the A. M. E. Church, the men who laid the foundation, the men who created the superstructure and the men who have supported the erection. There is much to be said with reference to each of these classes. The considerations in which the material lay hidden were not such as, considered apostleriori, would have led to the conclusion that they contained the germ of a plant that was to overshadow millions of Americans, or a material that could be wrought into a building fitly joined together for the accommodation of millions. But in considering subjects of this nature we are apt to forget or fail to take into account the conjunctiouse of simultaneous thoughts and acts; the sxtent of an inner movement that is the foundation of a future outer movement. In the case before us the whole heart of the free negro, and many not free, had become weary with the unchristian treatment received from professing Christians. This alone would not have served for the construction of a peculiar building. They had thought long on what might be the results of the unkindness of their brethren of brighter color, if allowed its own way, and what they might do to modify the results. The "protest" followed, but for the pre-existing thoughts and plans, the protest would have been ineffectual. Refusing to submit to existing treatment, they thought out a more excellent way. The spirit of concentration and organization seems to have grown upon them, and with this growth came a corresponding growth of ability. The material of four men increased very slowly, so that there were but three or four thousand persons in sympathy with separate organizations after the lapse of over twenty years. If it had grown slowly, it had grown solidly; "the whole 'lump was leavened." But this material organized into rather twin than a unit movement. The men who gathered, i. e., the leaders, though united as to going, were divided respecting where to go. The result was that one branch formed an episcopal society, falling into existing lines, the other grew away from all existing organizations, remaining a solitary star. Each of these formed local organizations, which exist to day. The difference between their respective dimensions need not be mentioned. Though one attached itself to one of the most powerful church organizations, the so-called "historic" church, that some African Methodists seem so much to long for, the other constituting a foundation for an additional organization, becoming itself historic. One could spread its influence bnt little because of the very facts that had made Methodism necessary; the other could scarcely avoid development because of the possession of the very elements that had impelled Methodism forward. Any African Methodist anxions for the "historic" touch and who argues for the very stiffness that hindered the historic church till she was obliged to relax, would do well to compare these two facts in a grand movement of negroes a hundred years.

The immortal fifteen men who met in 1816 were the men who laid the counectional foundation. The growth of the work after that, as it spread through the Middle and Eastern States, making its way across the mountains westward slowly, is well known. The Ohio Conference, the Indiana Conference and the Missouri Conference sprang into existence. Later, Southward in the track of the great civil strife, the Church bore the gospel to thousands who had long sat in darkness and in the region and shadow of death. The important and vast responsibilities of these great movements are the bequeathment of the fathers to us. The refinement of material, polishing and decorating—these are among the requirements made upon us. The raw material is to be wrought into a more glorious fabric. What shall the celebration in 1916 have to say of us? What will those who live till 1987 say? These stimulants should act upon every member of the connection.

Personal.

—Fifty cents was received at this office from Carthage, Ala. No name.

—Rev. W. H. Davis spent Sunday, 23d ult., with Rev. T. H. Moore, at Columbia, Pa.

—The Rev. Dr. Derrick recently made an extensive tour through his presiding elder district.

—Rev. B. F. Lloyd, of Prospect, Va., is again in Philadelphia collecting funds for his new church.

—Rev. W. L. Hunter and the Bridge Street Church, Brooklyn, will celebrate the centeunial November 18th.

—Revs. Coppin, J. W. Cooper and Lee will assist Rev. F. Smith at Little Bethel, Camden, next Sunday.

—It is our friend Rev. N. B. Stewart, of South America, whose article appeared last week, accredited to "H. B. Stewart."

—Dr. E. W. Blyden, LL. D., one of the best negro scholars, has left Christianity and joined himself to the Mohammedans

—Rev. Dr. W. H. Hunter, of Portsmouth, Va., is reported as having been very sick, but is now recovered sufficiently to resume work.

—October 12th, the instance of his birthday anniversary, Rev. L. Sturges, of New Brunswick, received substantial recognition of the appreciation in which his charge holds him.

—Mr. T. McCants Stewart, LL. B., is said to have been in our city last week. Mr. Stewart is winning a considerable reputation as a lawyer. Papers state that he has turned to the democracy in politics.

—Rev. G. M. Witten, Camden, N. J., collected education money last Sunday. Late, but much better than never. He is pretty sure to keep an eye on all connectional interests, as well as those of a local character.

—Bishop Wayman's "Notes by the Way," appearing in this issue of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, is a little old. It had been overlooked till two or three later communications from the Bishop had been published.

—Mr. Wm. Fitch, 515 Seventh street, Washington, D. C., is inquiring for any soldiers of Company H, 31st Regiment, United States Colored Troops. We are interested in his finding such a man, as there is much involved.

—On Thursday evening, Sept. 30th, at the parsonage, Amandale, S. C., Rev. D. Johnson Lites said the service that united Miss Matilda Palmer, of Charleston, S. C., to Rev. James D. Barksdale, to remain as one "till death does them part."

—Bishop Payne, enroute for his fall and winter conferences, spent last Sunday in our city, preaching for Rev. C. T. Shaffer. Philadelphia, like every place that knows Bishop Payne, is glad to welcome him to its hospitality and to hear over and over again his words of wisdom.

—Rev. John S. Brown, of Fayetteville, N. C., is closing a pleasant pastoral term of three years, having added three points to his circuit, two hundred and sixty two members to the church and held a camp meeting resulting in thirty-one members added to the church Brother Brown is always successful.

—Rev. D. P Sexton, M.D., of Baltimore, spent last Sunday with Rev. L. J. Coppin, and also addressed the Philadelphia Ministers' Association Monday morning. Dr. Seaton is holding his own well, looking scarcely older than ten years ago. He reports the African M. E Church in Baltimore as in a flourishing condition.

OUR WOMAN'S COLUMN.

Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy has reached its thirtieth thousand.

The Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, at their last executive meeting, reported over three thousand dollars in the treasury.

Madame Ilma Di Murska will preside over the fortunes of the American School of Music founded by Mrs. Thurber and other lovers of the divine art.

The Pundita Ramabai has brought out a second edition of her deeply interesting book, "The High-Caste Hindu Woman" Every woman ought to read it.

At the Paris Salou this year there are more than five hundred women exhibitors, including some twenty five Americans. The total number of feminne artists in Paris, both exhibitors and students in serious ateliers, is about $1,200.

The Ohio W. C. T. U. has added to its programme a peace department, in charge of Mrs. Hannah W. Blackburn. Its object is the settlement of international difficulties by arbitration. Germany, France and Denmark have peace associations composed of women.

Since the death of "Aunt Jemile," the newsboys' friend, in Cincinnati, a movement has been started in that city to erect a suitable and comfortable newsboys' home. The charge of it will be given to Mrs. McCabe, who for many years aided Aunt Jennie in the care of the newsboys.

FRANCES WATKINS HARPER.—This talented woman is not merely sustaining her reputation as a public speaker, but is rather excelling herself as it were. She seems to have "renewed her youth," and is as bright and sparkling and full of poetry as she was twenty years ago. At present she is doing a grand work as National Superintendent of work among Colored People, for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. At the recent State Convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held at Lewisburg, Pa., Mrs Harper made a decided impression as to her ability as a speaker and stirred the audience by her earnest eloquence. One of the delegates from a town in Western Pennsylvania delared she would engage Mrs. Harper to speak for them if she had to pay the expense out of her own pocket. Mrs Harper is a ready speaker and is never at a loss for ideas. She is logical and argumentative and witty, but much of her success as a speaker depends on the qualities of her voice; it is clear, honest, silvery. It is a voice that thrills and electrifies and once heard can never be forgotten.

H. V. A.

The Philadelphia Press of last Sunday contains the following concerning a few notable colored women of the country: Colored women have hardly had opportunity to do much that is sensational, but still there are several who are prominent among their own people and who have earned a solid reputation. The most promineut colored women in Washington in the best sense of the word are the teachers—such women as Miss M B. Briggs, professor of English in Howard University, a most talented woman; or Josephine J. Turpin, of the same school, who is a frequent contributor to newspapers; or Lucy Moten, who is the efficient principal of a big training school; or Mary Nalle or Marian Shadd —all highly cultured women, respected and esteemed by those who know them. In the ranks of prominent colored women of Philadelphia there is the skillful woman physician, Dr. Caroline V. Anderson. She is the daughter of William Still, a wealthy colored merchant, and a regular graduate of the medical department of Howard University, and enjoys a big practice. Then there is Mrs. Fanny Jackson-Coppin, the lecturer, who devotes most of her time to the Institute for Colored Youth, and Mrs. Gertrude Mossell, who used to conduct the Women's Department on the New York Freeman, and who has written for The Philadelphia Press as well as for papers published in the interest of the negro race. Mrs. Mossell is also a member of the Women's National Press Association. Mrs Frances E W. Harper, the temperance lecturer and writer, has also been a resident of Philadelphia. Among colored woman who have become more or less renowned in the arts and professions must be mentioned Mrs Nellie Brown—Mitchell. She is a musician with a mechanical turn of mind. She has invented and patented two or three appliances now in commou use by musical instructors. Equally well known in another branch of the fine arts is Edmonia Lewis, the sculptor. She is an Afro-Indian, and was born in New York State, but now has her studio in Rome, where she has plenty of commissions and has done some fine work. "The Old Arrowmaker and his Daughter" is one of her best known productions and is owned in England. Ida B Wells—"Iola"—whose suit for damages under the Mississippi laws for being forcibly thrust out of a passenger car in Memphis by three or four white men brought her before the public a few years ago, is probably the best known of colored women journalists, and Mrs M. E Lambert, of De roit, is a poetess of genius. There are two colored women in the ranks of the law, Miss Florence Ray, of Brooklyn, and Mrs M S. Cary, of Washington. There is at least one colored minister, the Rev Mrs Freeman, of Providence, and there has been one woman at the head of a newspaper published in the interest of Afro-Americans, Miss Carrie Bragg, who for some time edited the Lancet at Petersburg, Va. Nor would it be difficult to pick out a dozen colored women in the country whose property in the aggregate might be expressed, "on information and belief," by seven figures. In such a list would come the Gloucesters, the rich landing house keepers of Brooklyn; Miss Amanda Eubanks, of Rome, Ga., whose white father left her $400,000; Mrs. Mary A. Wilson, a wealthy Florida woman; Mrs. Mary Piessants, of San Francisco, who holds something more than $35 000 in Government bonds, owns a ranch and has some city real estate; Mrs James Thomas, of St. Louis, who is worth something like $300,000 and whose last her shop, the "Lindell," is the most luxurious in the country, and Mrs. Catharine Blake, who owns the Kenmore Hotel at Albany, which is reputed worth $150,000. Miss Drake, a wealthy young colored woman, of Nash, N. C., has taken the prize for the best production of cotton at all the State fairs, and several other Afro-American women with ample incomee are doing solid industrial work.

A WHOLE DISTRICT ON THE CENTENNIAL.

ORANGEBURG DISTRICT IN LINE.

Pursuant to call of Rev. I. S. Lee, presiding elder of Orangeburg District, to cons der and arrange for a week celebration of the Centeunial of the A. M. E. Church for the district, the following named brethren answered the roll call, viz.: Revs. I. S. Lee, J. S. Parker, F. Y. Dendy, R. H. Frierson, M. M. Martin, L. W. C. Minty, D. H. Johnson. Absentees, Revs. L. S. Prioleau, R. S. Campbell, N. W. Edwards, D. C. Calhoun, I. A. McCasland, L. Lawrence, H. D. Darrah, T. M. Freeman, I. S Grant. The meeting was organized with Rev. I. S. Lee chairman, and Rev. D. H. Johnson, secretary. It was agreed that three places in the district be selected to call all the neighboring churches to and to spend two days and nights at each place during the fourth week of November. Places selected and time given: Elloree, Mt. Zion Circuit, Monday and Tuesday; Bethel, St. Matthews Station, Wednesday and Thursday; Orangeburg Station, Friday and Saturday.

PROGRAMME.

1. Introductory Remarks with History of Bethel A. M. E. Church, Philadelphia; Rev. I. S. Lee.

2. The Publication Department—Its Rise, Power and Influence on the Church Members and Its Work; Rev. F. Y. Dendy.

3. The Pioneers and the History of the A. M. E. Church in Orangeburg District; Rev. L. Lawrence.

4. The A. M. E. Church in Abbeville; Rev. M. M. Martin.

5. One Hundred Years of Individual and Local Effort and Seventy Years of Organization and Work; Rev. J. S. Parker.

6. The Mission of the A. M. E. Church to the Darker Races of the Earth; Rev. L. W. C. Minty.

7. The Aim and Character of the Preaching of the A. M. E. Church; Rev. R. H Frierson.

8 Eulogy on the Life and Influence of Richard Allen; Rev. D. H. Johnson

9. Sunday morning a sermon on the Rise and Progress of the Church. Text, Acts 13, 41.

The ministers are fully alive on this subject and feel that if they miss taking a part in this Centeunial they may not live to see 1987, therefore every nerve is being strained to do credit to themselves and the great cause. The programme was ordered to be published in the RECORDER. D. H. Johnson, Secretary.

NORTH ALABAMA CONFERENCE NOTICE.

All candidates for Elders' orders and in their third year's studies must appear in the conference room in Selma, Ala., November 22, at 12 M., as this is the only day for examination; so, brethren, take due notice and govern yourselves accordingly.

J. M. GOODLOW,
Chairman.

TO THE NORTH ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

All candidates for elder's orders and third year's studies are requested to meet in Brown's Chapel, Selma, Ala., on the 22d day of November, 1887. By order of Bishop Payne.

J. M. GOODLOW,
F. B. MORELAND,
Committee on 3d year's studies and elders' orders.

WANAMAKER'S.

PHILADELPHIA, October 3 st, 1887.

An unheard of thing in Wraps and Coats.

Real Seal Cloth Wrap, deep pile, quilted satin linings, trimmed with pendant Seal Cloth fringe, and with real Seal Skin ornaments in front, $8.50. Less than the plush would cost you, making and trimmings thrown in. It is an unexpected turn that puts these things within your reach. The price would be surprisingly little were the Wraps made of German Plush or Box Plush. They are of one of the best makers of Plush, and not a scrimped piece or stitch in them.

Real Seal Cloth Coat, 40 in. long, lined throughout with quilted satin. 4 real Seal Skin ornaments, $14.50. Nothing of the kind approaching this price has before been offered in Philadelphia.

Workmanship as fine as on our $100 garments.

Fancy Black Dress Goods.

Stuffs that are newer to you than Cashmeres or Henriettas: stuffs that vary with the years—new weavers, new loom tricks to produce novel effects. The makers' wit is all the time turned to getting up new styles. Twice as many designs, perhaps, as we ever had before. Patterns for young and gay; patterns for quiet matrons. Whether for giddy or sedate, a richness that charms.

Here are some of the stuffs:

Armures—

10 styles 40 in. 50c.
4 styles 36 in. 60c.
5 styles 40 in. 65c.
3 styles 40 in. 75c.
10 styles 42 in $1.00
11 styles 40 in. $1 25

Fancy Stripes—

8 styles 40 in. 75c
7 styles 40 in. 85c
10 styles 40 to 42 in. $1.00
5 styles 40 in. $1 25

Fancy Checks—

7 styles 40 in. 85c.
11 styles 40 in. $1.00

Fancy Novelties—

More than we care to name—not more than you will care to look at. How deftly hands and machines have wrought to bring such delicate shades on the soft wool surfaces! $1.25 to $7.50.

You can't go amiss among these Fancy Black Goods. Every piece has a pleasing fitness of its uses.

A new thing in Blankets, cotton warp very light and silk filling. The silk is all you see. Rich, luxurious, handsome. Colored grounds with Roman stripes. Two sizes, 56x80 in., $3, and 72x84 in., $4. The price is a trifle for such beautiful things. Your wonder will be that it is so little.

JOHN WANAMAKER.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE for the coming year will contain matter of interest to everybody. The history of Abraham Lincoln during the War—the personal, inner history—will be recounted by the private secretaries of Mr. Lincoln. The Siberian traveler, George Kennan, who has just returned from an eventful journey of 15,000 miles through Siberia and Russia, undertaken with an artist, at the expense of THE CENTURY, will make his report on "Siberia and the Exile System," in a series of papers which will astonish the world. Mr. Kennan made the personal acquaintance of some 300 exiled Nihilists and Liberals. Edward Eggleston, author of "The Hoosier Schoolmaster," George W. Cable, Frank R. Stockton, and other famous authors, will furnish novels and novelettes; there will be narratives of personal adventure in the War—tunneling from Libby prison, etc., etc., with an article by Gen. Sherman on "The Grand Strategy of the War"; articles bearing upon the International Sunday-School Lessons, richly illustrated; papers on the West, its industries and sports; beautifully illustrated articles on English Cathedrals; etc., etc.

YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO BE WITHOUT THE CENTURY. It has recently been said by a prominent paper that "it is doing more than any other private agency of to-day to teach the American people the true meaning of the words Nation and Democracy. It is a great magazine, and it is doing a great work." The regular circulation of THE CENTURY is about 250,000. Send for our illustrated catalogue and get the full prospectus and particulars of A SPECIAL OFFER. Mention this paper. THE CENTURY CO., 33 East 17th St., New-York.

Centennial Circular.

1st. When the Jubilee Week has come let the first two days—Monday and Tuesday—be spent as days of preparation. First, by visiting and cheering your friends, by settling old disputes and becoming reconciled heartily with all men.

2d Visiting the old and sick in your church and neighborhood Tell them of the Centennial, pray for them and give them some relief, if in your power. Confess your sins to God. Get his blessing. Be thankful for His bounty. Think of what great things He has done for us in the past hundred years. Be merry in your heart, in your house, at your work and sing. Then make up your mind to do something during this effort that will send a blessing to those who shall celebrate the bi-centennial in 1987.

NOTE TO THE PASTOR.—Call your committee, namely: the Stewards, Leaders, Stewardesses and Superintendent of the Sunday School. Organize at once. The pastor is chairman. After naming your secretary and treasurer we recommend the following committees to be appointed: 1. Committee on printing and distributing tickets. 2 Committee on Centennial Banquet for Thursday, or Friday night. 3. Committee on decorations and music. Try to make enough out of your tickets and banquet to cover all expenses, and if there be a few dollars, or a hundred, left to your church, all well. What we want is this: Send for our envelopes and distribute them to every man, woman and child in the church and Sunday school at least ten days in advance of the time. These you will ask the people to put their contributions in and return on Sunday, all giving according to their ability, from 5 cents to $1.00. Count up and report the whole amount contributed on Sunday, and on Monday morning send the amount realized, payable to Bishop J. P. Campbell, care of Book Concern, No. 631 Pine Street, Philadelphia, Pa., and enclose with your remittance the name of the church, the name of the city or town (or circuit to which the church is joined). 2. Name of pastor, name of secretary and address, name of Sunday school superintendent and his address. To each one of these names we wish to send a Centennial copy of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, to be issued about December 15th or 22d, containing a complete list of all churches, with the names of pastors, secretaries and superintendents, that have held a celebration and the amount contributed to the "Centennial Publication Fund."

Call your meeting early, choose your week in the Centennial month and notify us at once of your intentions to celebrate, and the number of envelopes you will need. Publish the matter; aim to make it a grand success.

Yours for Christ and His Church,

A. M. E. CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism" its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat;"

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitians, under Christophe, Toussaint, Pétion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions are love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual Christianity and those the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore,

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, A. Turner, B. R. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

1. The History of Bethel A. M. E Church, of Philadelphia, Pa., by Rev. J. W. Beckett, B. D.

2. The Pioneer Preacher and Layman of the East.—Bishop J. P. Campbell.

3. The Pioneers of the South and West in 1848 and Beyond.—J. M. Brown.

4. The Pioneers of the Southeast.—Bishop H. M. Turner.

5. The Father of the Alabama Conference and his work.—Rev. M. E. Bryant.

35. The Origin and Development of the A. M. E. and B. M. E. Churches in Canada.—J. A. Johnson.

36. African Methodism as seen from without.—J. S. Durham.

JOHN M. BROWN, Chairman.
BENJAMIN W. ARNETT, Secretary.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hundredth year since African Methodism commenced, and that service be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and Church, the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the minister and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes,

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The secretaries of the Conferences that have elected ministerial and lay delegates to the General conference to convene at Indianapolis, Ind., May, 1888, are hereby urgently requested to forward, at once, names of said delegates, and name of conference. The conference that have not yet elected said delegates, secretaries are requested to forward names of delegates and name of conference at their earliest opportunity. We are anxious to push the work of preparation as fast as possible. Please write names plainly that there be no mistakes.

Delegates bringing their wives, and all visiting brethren not directly connected with the Conference, must come prepared to pay for board and lodging. We shall provide for members of the General Conference only.

Direct all communications to John W. Gazaway, 214 West Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, New York.

BOOKS.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints. 1st. Because it furnishes the most natural method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. Because it shows how to preach "easy and strong, and yet with power and success." 3rd. Because "it exposes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to correct them." Its reviewers advise students to read the book carefully, because "they will find in it much that they never thought of"—because "in the very hints they most need to receive are not furnished by other homiletical works."—because "it is replete with shrewd, hard, good sense"—because "it is a book for all ministers, however educated"—because it is assured by many "that the additional material from a skilful regular contributors skilled in the style of writing required by the young, no pains will be spared to put this publication abreast with the foremost of its class.

PUBLICATIONS
OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

LESSON HELPS IN FOUR GRADES.

THE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY. A thirty-six page pamphlet devoted to lesson helps for teachers and officers of the school. The plan adopted is the introduction of appropriate forms for opening and closing exercises, responsive tunes, maps, dictionary of proper names, etc.

THE SCHOLAR'S QUARTERLY. Similar to the above, but with such necessary changes as to adapt it to the wants of scholars in the main school. It is more condensed. Five or more copies to one address, per year, 7 cents each.

THE JUVENILE LESSON PAPER is a four page weekly, designed for younger scholars who have outgrown the infant class, but who retain their fondness for pictures and simple stories. Each page for a class!

THE GEM LESSON PAPER is a beautiful lesson sheet, four pages handsomely illustrated and printed on pink paper; for primary or infant scholars. Each one word and sentence, below the lesson, a page or more of "baby-land" talk. All for 5 cents a year, when five or more copies are sent to one address.

THE CHILD'S RECORDER, now beginning its eighth volume with a larger issue than ever before, offers superior attractions for the coming year. With additional editorial force, and a list of regular contributors skilled in the style of writing required by the young, no pains will be spared to put this publication abreast with the foremost of its class.

LIVER, BLOOD AND LUNG DISEASES.

LIVER DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE.

Mrs. Mary A. McGuire, Columbus, Kansas, writes: "I suffered your letter in November, 1885, in regard to my health, being afflicted with liver disease, and heart trouble, etc. I was induced by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, Favorite Prescription and Pellets, to use a bottle of the 'Discovery.' I used one bottle of the 'Discovery,' and four of the 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' My health began to improve under the use of the 'Discovery,' and my strength came back. My difficulties have all disappeared. I can work hard all day, or walk four or five miles a day, and stand it well; and when I began using the medicine I could scarcely walk across the room, most of the time, and I did not think I could ever feel well again. I give your remedies all the credit for ouring me, as I took no other treatment after beginning their use. I am very grateful for your kindness, and thank God and thank you that I am as well as I am, after years of suffering."

LIVER DISEASE.

Mrs. I. V. Webber, of Yorkshire, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., writes: "I wish to say a few words in praise of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets.' For five years previous to taking them I was a great sufferer; I had a severe pain in my right side continually; was unable to do my own work. I am happy to say I am now well and strong. Thanks to your medicines."

Chronic Diarrhœa Cured.—D. Lazarre, Esq., 875 and 877 Decatur Street, New Orleans, La., writes: "I used three bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and it has cured me of chronic diarrhœa."

INDIGESTION, BOILS, BLOTCHES.

Rev. P. Asbury Howell, Pastor of the M. E. Church, of Silverton, N. J., says: "I was afflicted with catarrh and indigestion. Boils and blotches began to arise on the surface of the skin, and I experienced a tired feeling and dullness. I began the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as directed by him for such complaints and in one week's time I could feel like a new man, and am now sound and well. The 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are the best remedy for bilious or sick headache, or tightness about the chest, and had been of much benefit to me."

HIP-JOINT DISEASE.

Mrs. Ida M. Strong, of Ainsworth, Ind., writes: "My little boy had been troubled with hip-joint disease for two years. When he commenced the use of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets,' he was confined to his bed, and could not be moved without suffering great pain. But now, thanks to your 'Discovery,' he is able to be up all the time, and can walk with the help of crutches. He does not suffer any pain, and can eat and sleep as well as any one. It has only been about three months he commenced using your medicine. I cannot find words with which to express my gratitude for the benefit he has received through you."

A TERRIBLE AFFLICTION.

Skin Disease.—The "Democrat and News," of Cambridge, Dorchester Co., Md., has been cured of a bad case of Eczema by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The disease appeared first in her head, extended to her knees, covering the whole of the lower limbs from feet to knees, then attacked the elbows and knuckles of her fingers. The child, being treated by several physicians for a year or two she commenced the use of the medicine mentioned, and the sores began to mend and in now well and hearty. Mrs. Poole thinks the medicine has saved her life and prolonged her days.

Mr. C. A. Reed, of New Market, Dorchester County, Md., vouches for the above facts.

GENERAL DEBILITY.

Mrs. Parmelia Brundage, of 161 Lock Street, Lockport, N. Y., writes: "I was troubled with chills, nervous and general debility, with frequent sore throat, and my mouth was badly cankered. My liver was inactive, and I suffered much from dyspepsia. I am pleased to say that your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and 'Pellets' have quired me of all these ailments and I cannot say enough in their praise. I must also say a word in reference to your 'Favorite Prescription,' as it has proven itself a most excellent medicine. It has been used in my family with excellent results."

INVIGORATES THE SYSTEM.

Dyspepsia.—James L. Colby, Esq., of *Tuc

The Great Success

Of Ayer's Sarsaparilla is due to the fact that it meets the wants of the people, being economical to use and always reliable and effective. Its ingredients are the best, and their combination the result of profound study and skill. Thus, for all diseases originating in impure blood, Ayer's Sarsaparilla stands unrivaled.

"As a blood-purifier and general builder-up of the system," says Eugene I. Hill, M. D., 381 Sixth ave., New York, "I have never found anything to equal Ayer's Sarsaparilla."

Mrs. Eliza A. Clough, Matron of the M. E. Seminary, Tilton, N. H., writes: "Every winter and spring my family, including myself, use several bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Experience has convinced me that, as a powerful blood-purifier, it is superior to any other preparation of Sarsaparilla."

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla gives better satisfaction than any other blood medicine I handle."—Geo. W. Whitman, Druggist, Albany, Indiana.

Professional men assert that there is hardly a disease which Electricity or Magnetism may not benefit or cure, and they daily practice the same, as your own physician will inform you.

The celebrated Dr. W. A. HAMMOND, of New York, formerly Surgeon-General of the United States Army, after thirty years' study, and having advised all medical men to make trial of these agencies, describing at the same time most remarkable cures he had made, even in cases which would seem impossible.

We have received thousands of testimonials from patients all over the world, endorsing and commending our goods. We will cheerfully send pamphlet containing specimens of this testimony if you still doubt.

THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

BY MRS. M. E. LEE.

Ring out, sweet bells of Bethel, ring!
The gospel echoings scholing,
"The pure in heart shall see the Lord."
Not for the wealthy nor the great,
Nor for a race in proud estate,
Awaits that glorious abode
"The pure in heart shall see the Lord."

The Church ye build for Christ alone
Must have for chief and corner-stone,
To all mankind, brotherly love.
God's mercy flows through every race,
All are but creatures of his grace;
In the triumphant Church above
All enter through unbiased love.

A hundred years has Bethel stood,
Still aiming for that brotherhood,
Which Christ declared his Church should be.
As she in numbers may increase,
Oh, may she wax in righteousness!
Her light shine forth, o'er land and sea,
In faith, and hope, and charity.

"MORE BISHOPS" UNDER REVIEW.

BY REV. P. M. LEWIS

No. 5.

THE VIII ARTICLE.

I object to the doctor's first proposition in this article: to provide for his compliment of Bishops. (a) Because we do not need such a number to begin with. (b) And in this case, the plan would abuse and degrade the office by allowing it to be filled, virtually, by one who would not be competent to do the work of said office. (c) This course would contravert all law and usages of Methodist Episcopal Churches on this point, and render us obnoxious to all well-regulated Christian denominations. (d) A bishop would be appointed to the office, but he could not lawfully perform any of the all-important work which would be incumbent upon him. He would receive one-half of the regular salary of a rightful Bishop, but a legally constituted Bishop would have to be called into this elder's district to execute the real work of the office, and thereby sustain the dignity and honor and glory of the office and Church. The Bishop is to do this, too, without receiving a cent of money, or pay, to enable him and his family to live while he continues to labor to relieve suffering humanity at large and to glorify God.

This arrangement would be unjust to the Church and all of the Bishops. I object to it, because if it could be made to strengthen our Church work at this point, the extent of time limited to conveyers and appoint said elder is entirely too long. The doctor says meet within three months after death occure. Now, very much work ought to be performed by an active Bishop during this time, and it would be unwise to waste the time by this delay. Again, if we were to have two or more such deaths as we have had this quadrennium, one-half of the active services which ought to be performed in these districts, for an annual conference year, would be lost. If such a plan were feasible, the time of meeting and filling the vacancy should not be longer than six weeks after the death of a Bishop. But the truth is, this plan for the preservation could do no good. It would degrade and impede, if not virtually destroy, the usefulness and good influences of the office and the Church.

To the second argument I object and reply that it is far too expensive, and the time of assembling the extra session of the General Conference too long after the death of a Bishop to do any good. In most cases it would be too unreasonable to think of carrying it out.

Third, that the episcopal committee be empowered to meet, I suppose within three or six months after the death of a Bishop and have all of the remaining Bishops present, and that this committee elect and have ordained a brother to the office of the deceased Bishop. I object to this proposal, because among Methodist Episcopals it is not necessary. Their General Conferences meet every four years, and where they have several Bishops, when a few of them die, it has been found always to do well and give general satisfaction to have the remaining Bishops superintend the work of the deceased ones, and wait until the ensuing General Conference could fill the vacancies.

Our laws, in common with the laws of all Methodist Episcopals providing for the election and ordination to the office of Bishop, have been found to work admirably well among all of these churches up to the present. But put the doctor's plan into practice, and it will subvert these laws among us. It would take the election and ordination of our highest and most important officers out of the hands of our people as they are now, through their ministerial help of about 1,000,000 and 9 Bishops. Each one of these Bishops superintends upon an average 111,111 members. The numerical table of the African M. E. Church in 1884 shows 245,597 members and 9 Bishops Each one of these superintends upon an average, 27,288 members.

One Bishop of the M. E. Church superintende about six times as many members as one of our Bishops, and one of the Southern church about four times as many as one of ours; and yet we are told that we need eight more Bishops. In keeping with Dr Johnson's plan, the former ought to have about 1,333 Bishops and the latter about 666; but, as yon see, they have no such numbers of Bishops, and yet what grand and successful Methodist bodies they are What excellent examples for the Methodist world they are Now, making all allowances for the wide, extended territory over which our Church work is scattered and the much travel necessary to enable the superintendents to get a proper understanding so as to wisely manage it, the position in which Dr. Johnson's plan would place us, compared with these other Methodist Episcopals, is simply preposterous. I believe that the mode of carrying on the work by these Methodists, and the figures showing the astounding comparisons, should be carefully considered by us in this case. We should be positive sure that we are right and would succeed before leaping so far in the advance with our schemes of the well established customs and usages of such famous Methodist organizations as the two which I have spoken of. I say candidly that the A. M. E. Church cannot afford to take any such risks as are here proposed; such steps would almost, if not quite, destroy our Church.

The arranging of the work into districts is the old and valuable mode of great Methodist churches; but Dr. Johnson's plan for this arranging of it is impracticable, and it would not make the powers of the Bishops in their work any more effective than they are now. "Money should not be allowed to outweigh virtue" This is right, but remember that a wise and proper use of money is, in a high degree, a virtuous act, and in this enlightened and well-systematized age a sheer and wilful neglect to recognize the value and proper use of money and to use all honest means to procure the necessary amount to enable each one to do the most good he can, is a great sin. Money and its equivalents, properly used, are secondarily to the Christian religion only in that they cannot give eternal life. And a wise provision for the procuring of the same in order to carry on the Church work successfully demands a first consideration, and without it we cannot build up the Redeemer's kingdom upon earth. It cannot he dealt with vagnely by our General Conference in connection with this case if we would have success.

THE X ARTICLE.

This article purports to be the doctor's plan as arranging for the help and protection of the oldest Bishops of our Church; but a close analysis and the logical deductions of it prove it to be just the opposite. If it were true that it did or was really intended to make such provisions, I think that these actions would be stepping quite beyond the bounds of true wisdom. We cannot afford to make such provisions as this plan proposes and plead them as reasons why we made so many Bishops. Our people and the world would regard such an argument as puerilauimous and unworthy of such an intelligent body of men as our General Conference ought to be composed of in these days. If our next General Conference were to elect eight more Bishops, making fifteen in all, thousands of Christiane of other denominations, who are weak enough to oppose us, would take advantage of this act, and to make proselytes to their own churchee would argue that we had elected and burdened our people with two times as many Bishope as needed. And this argument would be effective. Thousands of our own people would be dreadfully discouraged and thousands would refuse to join our Church on this account and many would leave it. It has been argued, in substance, to let these Bishops go upon the churches or conferences in a non-systematic way for their support, but I do not think that it needs any argments to show that this would never do for our Church at this enlightened and progressive age; and this would be just as bad a weapon in the hands of our enemies as the other They would say that we had made fifteen Bishops, but would not and could not make an arrangement (as all other respectable Methodist Episcopals do for their Bishops) for ours to get from the Church deceut support. Such a condition would degrade the cause of Christ, our Church and Bishops. My prayerful petition is that the General Conference will not make more than three Bishops. Pay them and these we have promptly, pay our General Officers a little more and promptly, provide for and sustain our general departments, schools and missionaries, provide for our worn-out preachers, widows and orphans and we and the world will be more benefited.

DOLLAR MONEY AND PRESIDING ELDERS.

BY REV. J. M. HENDERSON.

Ecclesiastical government is the machinery of the Church, and can claim no higher dignity than that of being the means to an end. The polity of Congregationalism, Episcopalianism or Presbyterianism are of worth only as they subserve the end of the Church. Any feature of any of these forms of government which retards the progress of the Church or diminishes its usefulness is to be abandoned. To cherish any detrimental feature from respect for its antiquity, is culpable fogyism. The ancient landmarks are to be venerated for their age, but only weak sentimentalism would cherish them one day beyond the period of their usefulness. No customs, however dear to the heart from long association, would he permitted by wise men to stand in the way of true progress.

If we as a Church would follow the law of self-preservation, we must esteem the welfare and the perpetnity of our Church as of importance far paramount to the interests or wishes of any individual or class of individuals. If we cannot adopt this principle and practice it, we have not the capacity for self-government.

Thus far our history has been marred by such weakness; our leaders have been wide awake to the demands of the hour; the necessities of each period have been considered and cared for. So fully has this been done that the demands of our Church, being different from those of all other Methodist bodies, we have incnicated in our form of government features distinctly different and unique. African Methodism has an individuality of her own. Our Church is not in the field to perpetuate Methodism, Episcopalianism or Africanism either, but to maintain her identity and usefulness as the African Methodist Episcopal Church of America. As such and in this identity she came into existence destined by providence for a special, specific work. Though she has greatly changed in size and has dropped many of her original features and developed many new ones, she is still the same Church that Allen loved so well. She should ever seek the greatest possible efficiency and be ever willing to adapt herself to the demands of the hour. Whenever changed circumstances demaud a change in her machinery she should make it. No matter how old, forms must be relinquished; their right to survive perishes when they become useless If we become Episcopal Methodist rather than Methodist Episcopal, so long as we become more powerful and more useful, it does not matter, nor does it make us one whit less African Methodist Episcopals; we are only growiug.

If I were called upon to name the greatest need of our Church I would say, "A more determined and vigorous policy." Our financial system is by no means what it could or should be. But our method is weak and should be improved. It can be done. But have we the courage to undertake it? We hear far more from fault-finders than from those who have any ideas to suggest. Fault-finding is the characteristic of the weak; strong men, upon discerning an error, should not sit down and repine, but seek to remedy the mistake. All admit the insufficiency of our financial methods. Now, why not proceed to remedy them? I have a plan to suggest; having done so, I will present it in a future article.

NOTICE.

We again urge the pastors who shall take part in the Centennial to make returns promptly to this office, payable to Bishop J. P. Campbell. Send by postal order, if possible, but when this cannot be done, register the money in a letter addressed to J. C. Embry, and be sure to mark inside, "Centennial Fund."

In all cases, give the name of the pastor, and the name of the church, and tell us the conference you are in, as we desire to credit each conference with the amount sent by it in our report. By doing this you will oblige us, and facilitate our work.

☞ A receipt will be sent to each and all persons immediately on receiving their money.

MORE BISHOPS.

BY REV. JAMES H. A. JOHNSON, D.D.

XVI.

THE TEMPORAL ADVANTAGE TO BE GAINED BY THE OPERATIONS OF A BOARD OF FOURTEEN BISHOPS.

As we near the end of our discussion the most important features present themselves for practical consideration The great question to be noticed now is: What is to be gained by electing so many more Bishops? Some who have only superficially looked at the matter think it would be only an additional expense. Some preachers—the very men who should be ready at a moment's suggestion to strengthen every grade of their order—are the very ones to be the most conspicuous leaders in their inconsiderate opposition. They seem not to realize the fact that the stronger you make the clerical ranks the better the chances for the subjugation of the world. There are those who, knowing nothing of a consecutive argument and its concomitant illustrations, are always ready to stick two ten cent pieces in their glass-frames to look through them at the gravest ecclesiastical subjects, to come to such a conclusion as an opaque ten cent lens will bring them. I am not writing to make a show or to gain eclat, but for the glory of God to advance the interests of the A. M. E. Church. I know that the ideas and plans are practical and that in carrying them out there is an advantage on every hand seen by everybody except those who are PAST MERIDIAN. The temporal advantages to he gained are as conspicuous as a field of corn.

Congregations would be increased in every direction. Access would be gained to more people of every class—to both colored people and white people. This would he done to an extent of at least thirty-five per cent. This calculation is accurate, moderate and reasonable. It may he applied to every place within the range of increased episcopal influence. This would be the leading step for the promotion of temporal economy. Make the Bishops and you get the people: get the people and—well, what? Get the people and you have the means of increasing the finances of the Church. Those who should be drawn would be inclined to give liberally because of the provision made to give them satisfaction. The extra benefit derived from them alone would far over-balance any additional expense. It would go to the extent of at least twenty per cent; and this would bring out the following profitable result: In one conference of sixty appointments we would have an increase of $1,200; and in the district complete $3,600. By taking this calculation throughout the whole work as the general result of eight more Bishops, we would have $28,800; this, over and above their salaries, would give us a surplus of $12,800. Be it understood, though, that this calculation applies to only the current receipts and not to the general income hy the dollar apportionment. Much greater indeed would he the advantage in this part of the case.

Fourteen Bishops (and, hy the way, a learned brother said to us a few days ago—"If I could have my say I would make forty") fourteen Bishops traveling all over the land, seeing to all the temporal, as well as spiritual, affairs of the Church, would infuse so much life into the people that the church treasury would realize twenty per cent. more of the dollar collection than it does now. Putting this upon the minimum basis of our previous calculation, this would annually hring to the treasury, $50,000 more than it receives to-day. This fact, in the argument, is as plain to the mathematical thinkers of the Church as a simple lesson in a spelling book. But to those who know merely how to read and write, it is as a gem in the mud. Hard working ministers know that a great many people refuse to pay their dollar, for the reason, they say, that they never see a Bishop. Satisfy their desire then in this direction and it is evident that you make up the deficiency If we make provision to draw the people nearer to the Church, we can work upon their better feeling and lead them to the accomplishment of greater results. This is the only enre step by which we can make financial progress. It would bring $50,000 more into the Church treasury just as certainly as day succeeds night; and this would be regarded as only a small sum in the proportional calculation. Two hundred thousand members with their multitude of attendants ought to annually put $200,000 into the Church treasury; and would do it, if business principles in the Church government were permitted to prevail and concession were made to the aphorism of Bishop Payne—that "wise men learn hy reasoning." The idea is in nowise extravagant; the plan by no means infeasible.

The Presbyterian Church is proposing to raise $1,000,000 over its current expenses for the Church and ministry in connection with the General Assembly. Is it not reasonable in the highest sense for us to conclnde that by the establishment of the productive cause the infallible result for the A. M. E. Church would be one-twentieth of this amount every year? The cause will bring it, but without the cause, it never can be obtained.

The connection at this time needs a fund for Church extension. This important matter lies as a still-born baby at its feet, and why? No practical preconception has been formed and persistently carried on to its logical result. For more than twenty years in the literacy have I heard brethren talk of Church Extension; and to-day there are some who know as little about it as some of the people in the days of Paul knew ahont the Holy Ghost Of a truth they can say, "We have not so much as heard whether there be any"—Church Extension. Soon though they would be made to know all about it by the operations of a full, efficient Episcopal Board. Money would be accumulated and invested into a substantial fund that would contribute more to the expansion of the connection than has been done by anything during the present generation. When one thinks that the connection is old as it is and powerful as it is, has no fund for Church Extension and that some are in the dark concerning it, he is almost startled to cry ont,—"Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph!"

In the course of one year, hy the efficiency of such a board, the connection would be prepared to make a movement

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led hee one hundred years in the wilderness"

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat"

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religions colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitien, Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E. Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, B. B. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

30. Has African Methodism been a Success in New England?—J. T Jenifer.

31. The A. M. E. Church as one of the Intellectual Forces for the Elevation of the Race: What has she done and what is she doing?—W. D. Johnson.

32. One Hundred Years of Individual and Local Effort, and Seventy Years of Organization and Work.—B. W. Arnett.

33. The Relation of the Church to Its Baptized Children.—L. J. Coppin.

34. The necessity of order in worship and uniformity in services in our Church.—W. H. Thomas.

35. The origin and development of the A. M. E. and B. M. E. Churches in Canada.—J. A. Johnson.

36. African Methodism as seen from without.—J. S. Durham.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh S:., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes,

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The secretaries of the Conferences that have elected ministerial and lay delegates to the General conference to convene at Indianapolis, Ind., May, 1888, are hereby urgently requested to forward, at once, names of said delegates, and name of conference. The conferences that have not yet elected said delegates, secretaries are requested to forward names of delegates and names of conference at their earliest opportunity. We are anxious to push the work of preparation as fast as possible. Please write names plainly that there be no mistakes.

Delegates bringing their wives, and all visiting brethren not directly connected with the Conference, must come prepared to pay for board and lodging. We shall provide for members of the General Conference only.

Direct all communications to John W. Gezway, 214 West Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind.

This is pertinently put: "Boycott your temper, strike your vices, and work for your living."

I have been benefited by praying for others; for making an errand to God for them I have got something for myself.

It is in vain for anyone to speak of divine things without something of divine affection. He has not been able to prevail upon himself to be holy, and no marvel if he fail in prevailing upon others.

Afflictions hunt us again into God's fold when we have leaped out. They are God's file to rub off our dust; God's soap and fuller's earth to remove spots; God's fan to blow away our chaff.—Frances Roberts.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTICE.

All candidates for admission into the Miss. Annual Conference are requested to be present at the A. M. E. Church in Raymond Miss., December 7th, also those in their first and second years' studies. The different committees are requested to be present on same date. All General Officers who anticipate attending the Miss. Conference please notify by card Rev. Jacob Cartwright, Pastor.

BOOKS.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints. 1st. Because it furnishes the most natural method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. Because it shows how to preach with ease and grace, and yet with power and success. 3rd. Because "it exposes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and points out the appropriate forms for opening and closing exercises, hymns and tunes, maps, dictionary of proper names, etc.

THE SCHOLAR'S QUARTERLY. Similar to the above, but with such necessary changes as adapt it to the wants of scholars in the main school. It is marvelously cheap. Five or more copies to one address, per year, cents each.

THE JUVENILE LESSON PAPER is a four page weekly, designed for younger scholars who have outgrown the infant class, but who retain their interest in pictures and simple stories. 208 pages for a dime.

THE GEM LESSON PAPER is a beautiful lesson sheet, printed handsomely illustrated and printed on pink paper; for primary or infant scholars. Each number contains a lesson, a good sense;—because "it is a book for all ministers, however educated—because it is secured by many to be the most helpful book they ever read—"Worth its weight in gold."

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FOR PREACHERS AND OTHER PUBLIC SPEAKERS.

Dr. Porter's Hints to them is one of the most useful—"Worth its weight in gold," says the Christian Guardian. $1.25.

For teaching everyone how to do good. "The Winning Worker; or, the Possibilities of Every Christian Layman. 75 cts.

"WORTH MORE THAN ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD."

To young ministers and local preachers. "Many a preacher would have been saved from failure by the early study of such a book."—Christian Guardian.

IS THE BIBLE TRUE, AND FROM GOD?

Read Dr. Porter's late book called "Christianity Demonstrated By Experience." It will settle the question forever and set your souls on fire. Buy a copy and keep it and lend to the poor society, and especially to unbelievers. On sale by Rev. J. C. Embry. Price, $1.50. A new supply just received.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets

SIZE OF PELLETS

THE ORIGINAL
LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!

Always ask for Dr. Pierce's Pellets, or Little Sugar-coated Granules or Pills.

BEING ENTIRELY VEGETABLE, Dr. Pierce's Pellets operate without disturbance to the system, diet, or occupation. Put up in glass vials, hermetically sealed. Always fresh and reliable. As a LAXATIVE, ALTERATIVE, or PURGATIVE, these little Pellets give the most perfect satisfaction.

SICK HEADACHE,

Bilious Headache, Dizziness, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the stomach and bowels, are promptly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. In explanation of the remedial power of these Pellets over so great a variety of diseases, it may truthfully be said that their action upon the system is universal, not a gland or tissue escaping their salutive influence. Sold by druggists, for 25 cents a vial. Manufactured at the Chemical Laboratory of WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

BOILS CURED.

WILLIAM RAMICH, Esq., of Minden, Kearney County, Nebraska, writes: "I was troubled with boils for thirty years. Four years ago I was so afflicted with them that I could not walk. I bought two bottles of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, and took one 'Pellet' after each meal, till all were gone. By that time I had no boils, and have had none since. I have also been troubled with sick headache. When I feel it coming on, I take one or two 'Pellets,' and am relieved of the headache."

THE BEST CATHARTIC.

Mrs. C. W. BROWN, of Waupakoneta, Ohio, says: "Your 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' are without question the best cathartic ever sold. They are also a most efficient remedy for torpor of the liver. We have used them for years in our family, and keep them in the house all the time."

"Perfect Satisfaction,"

Is the verdict of every one using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and all Lung troubles. Unlike cod-liver oil, and many other specifics, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is agreeable to the taste and leaves no ill effects.

"I cannot say too much in praise of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes Mr. Robert F. McKeon, of New Genoa, N. J. "I have used it in my family, many years, and always with perfect satisfaction."

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is truly the

of the age, reodering full satisfaction in every instance."—Thornton Edwards, Lonely Dale, Ind.

F. L. Morris, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "Your medicines have been satisfactory to me throughout my practice; especially Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which has been used in great quantities by my patients, one of whom says he knows it saved his life."

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

GRATEFUL—COMFORTING.
EPPS'S COCOA
BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

IS LIFE WORTH LIVING?

"Is life worth living?"
Comes to me, o'er and o'er,
When the way is dark and dreary,
And my heart is sad and sore;
I find myself repeating
In murmurs soft and low,
"Is life worth living
In this journey here below?"

"Is it worth the struggling
With the cross we have to bear?
Is the crown worth the victory
When we that crown shall wear?
From out the clouds and darkness
Seem these meaning words to roll,
"Life is what we make it."
How this truth sinks in my soul!

And I cried aloud to heaven:
"O Lord, forgive my doubt,
Give to me a new heart
And drive the old donbt out."
Life is worth living
In this world of toil and care,
And the cross is worth gaining
By the cross we have to bear.

And from my lips that murmured
Breaks forth a joyous song:
"Life is worth living:
To this my faith is strong;
And my soul once blinded
Thou hast restored to sight,
And led me out of darkness
Into Thy marvelous light."

—Mrs. Virginia Ross, in the Western Rural.

MORE BISHOPS.

BY REV. JAMES H. A. JOHNSON, D.D.

XVII.

THE POWER A BOARD OF FOURTEEN BISHOPS WOULD WIELD OVER THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

The Church needs just as many Bishops as will wholesomely effect all of its conditions, assemblies and departments.

In an important sense there is a concentration of morality, intellect, learning, experience, loyalty and religion, which give it pre eminency of influence on all important occasions. Such a body of men DEMANDS respect and gets it. On certain occasions there are times when a full force, when numerical strength is needed to make a deep impression; times when all the power of the episcopacy is required to sustain the majesty of the Church. A weight of numbers is worthy of consideration in this connection. It has direct hearing upon the General Conference. Such a Board can do more in the regulation of this law-making body than can be done by a smaller one. Each Bishop would have a better chance to train the brethren of his district—I say district—to do the legislative work before them.

The persuasive influence, moreover, of the extended Board would produce a greater effect upon the General Conference proceedings. It would make them more reasonable in their character. When the excitement would become very intense the number of Bishops specified would have greater power to control it than would be invested in a smaller number of Bishops. Nearly all persons have respect for an imposing body, and so would the members of the General Conference in the moments of their excitement. They would not be so likely to disregard the united voice of this number as they would that of two or three.

Fourteen grave men rising in the moments of excitement and confusion to uphold the hands of the presiding officer would by the majesty of their position produce a salutary effect.

In council, by the knowledge obtained of this Church work in detail, they could do, and would do, far more in the management of the General Conference than is done by the present limitation of numbers. They could get nearer to the hearts of all the members and there by exert a persuasive influence that would in exciting times bring calmness and deliberation. Such a result as this would make one of the strongest reasons by the way of justification.

Every man of General Conference experience knows that there are certain periods during the session when the mind inflamed runs counter to all law and order and every effort, for the time being, to make a modification is unavailing. The power on the platform is excited to the utmost extreme, but is not equal to the occasion. Now, it can either be made equal, or it cannot be made equal. If it can, then it should be done; and the advocacy of such a course is by no means a fallacy in the estimation of any just thinker. Fourteen men of equal ability can at any time do more than seven of the same number. They, as Bishops, could and would exert a greater influence as presiding officers of the sessions of the General Conference than is done now by the present number. They could, in every emergency, put their heads to gether and control refractory spirits.

Their united efforts, moreover, directed at convenient seasons for the purpose of getting the good graces of the members, individually, would increase the respect collectively and make more effective the power of the chair. And not only so, but their mluute work, in detail, in the course of four years would make an impression that would be signally realized upon the platform in general session. Is this fallacy or is it a logical sequence? Would we not just as naturally experience this good result as the seed-corn in the ground feels the effects of the gentle showers of rain? Let an episcopal force, equal to the demands of the connection in all respects, be firmly established and it is certain that its influence will be felt in the General Conference whenever it is in session.

It will, moreover, beneficially effect the work of legislation. The views of Bishops do have a bearing in this direction, and it must be conceded that whenever they are numerically strong enough to thoroughly superintend the connection they will be able to give the most valuable opinions concerning all the particulars of legislation and government. They will in this manner be able to modify wild theories and check unprofitable conclusions. Their serious study of all subjects, from year to year, will be accepted as worthy of mature consideration. Their knowledge will have its weight. The deliberation of the body, consequently, will be made more practicable and profound. Concentrate as much power in the General Conference into the presiding agency and you thereby highly improve those who are subject to it. By this means our General Conference proceedings can be advanced to the highest degree of administration. The controlling hand of the episcopacy will coolly, calmly and surely guide them to the very best end. The members of the conference will be instructed and convinced in all cases of importance so that they will be able to give good and substantial laws. The effects of such a power will go from every session to the uttermost borders of the Church.

A general superintendency accurately and judiciously applied to every annual conference district would be the means of acquiring an amount of experience and information that would be invaluable in qualifying the presiding officers to produce these great results.

Bishops more extensively associating themselves with brethren would thereby become better acquainted with them. This would give them more power to control them as delegates in General Conference assembled. By this means efficacy would be given to moral suasion, so that the Bishops, as presiding officers, would be relieved in order cases of temporary confusion and not be compelled to turn to their. dernier resort. I hold that an inadequately limited number of them, be they ever so good, cannot accomplish this object as much as though they make the most laudable exertions. If, then, fourteen, by the grace of God, can prove efficient in this direction, grand, great and glorious indeed will the advantages be, gained for the general interests of the Church. Power to control a General Conference session is not the least among the subjects which must be considered in this line of argument. Still, those who know nothing about the matter may say, "Tut, tut, tut!"

These dignitaries—the old ones and the additional ones—working as only such a number of them could work, would make themselves so influential as the presiding officers of the General Conference that the glances of their eyes, the words of their months and the motions of their hands would be more effectual than a cart-load of gavels and the maces of many marshals.

Business would then be carried on in a uniform manner and finished in a shorter time. Participants in, and observers of, the proceedings would all be better pleased with the conclusion of them. Better laws would be made and the Church would be stronger in every respect. All of its branches would be made to flourish like a green bay tree. Other denominations would be drawn into closer alliance and a warmer fraternal feeling would be made manifest on every hand. The episcopal board would become more admirable because of its efficiency and gain more assistance in the prosecution of its missionary work in distant parts of the world. It would be instrumental in having a culmination of all that is good in every General Conference session and in proving the true merit of the Church.

STRAY SHOTS.

"Glittering generalities" is a very fine and high-sounding phrase. It is so marked in its alliteration. It sounds so nice; but it has no application at all to my argument. It is an old worn-out expression of the Southerners who used to direct it against the logical speeches of the abolitionists. Its sound, though, in such a connection was much better than its meaning. The same is true of it today in a similar attempt to use it. Let it die.

It is so hard sometimes to get some people to understand the difference between a brick and a stone. A clergyman, it is said, once visited an old woman, in her windowless hut, and talked to her about the death of the Saviour, and when she wanted to know if he was dead and the reply was made into her, "Ah, my sister! I see that you are still in the dark," she immediately answered, "Yes, law me. I have been after John for some time to knock a hole in dat wall." And so we just have to smile and let the matter go.

Washington, D. C.

FIAT JUSTITIA, RUAT CÆLUM.

BY REV. N. W. EDWARDS.

MR EDITOR:—In view of the startling fact of oppression and lynching now in operation in different sections of the United States, and especially in South Carolina, which is being hoed upon my race, I am called upon by conscience to pen a few words for publicity by way of condemnation. Allow me to ask, is it right in the light of Scripture, reason, law or humanity? Is it necessary for the good of the republic? If such is your conviction, then I say continue it ore a sempre. If not, then I say to each and all, bring to bear all of your combined forces upon these awful imposing monsters, which are destined to hurl this nation into such a crevasse of immorality and sin. I am proud of our American form of government and code of laws, but shudder when I think of how they are enforced—enforced, yes, and that in the eyesight of our law-makers of both State and United States. I sympathize with the "Irish movement," now in progress in Ireland, and would to God that we, the poor negro, especially of the South, had some one who could and would so arouse this nation with his Chief d' aenore of eloquence until she would acknowledge us as human beings and grant us those rights which God has given us.

We do not seek or beg for favors or intermarriage. No, no, no. But we demand in the name of reason, law, humanity and God those rights decreed to us from the foundation of the world. We are deprived of our rights before the courts of so-called justice which ought to hold to every man equal balanced scales without regard to race, color, position, political opinion or previous condition. We are cheated out of our earnings and driven from our homes and lands and wander from place to place if we were vagabonds. We are taken from the custody of the sheriff and from our homes, from the bosom of a wife and the care of mothers, sisters and children and shipped, shot or hung to some tree without judge, jury or law. "I tu this day there is no judge in Israel." Yes, such is the state of affairs in South Carolina and other sections of the South—the "Solid South"—the "New South"

Ah! do I hear the query from states men and others asking, "Where is your witness and proof of Judge Lynch's work?" If it was necessary I could produce them, yes, living ones, but I simply say to the sane mind and to that one who doubts my assertion, Si monnmentum queris circumspice

May I ask, what next? Our votes are gone, the "Seventh," or "Black District" is all hut out of our hands and what next? Oh, slavery! slavery! slavery! If this be what the "Pilgrim Fathers" came to America for—if this be what the "Colonial Fathers" fought for—if this is the pearl of great price which caused the disunion and rebellion —if this is the freedom that our fathers spilt their life blood on the battle-fields for—if this is the liberty which called forth those burning words of eloquence from the lips of the eminent Patrick Henry, Charles pastina, give me slavery. Yes, give me slavery. Imprimatur that I say give me slavery. I call upon ministers and statesmen to lift their voices in Church and in the halls of congress, etc., against this greatest evil of the day, remembering that "righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people"

Edgefield, S. C.

THE CENTENNIAL OF AFRICAN METHODISM IN NOVEMBER IS NOT THE CENTENNIAL OF THE ORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH.

BY REV. L. J. COPPIN.

In the RECORDER of November 10th there is an article which refers to the celebration in this month as" the time when it will be said that the African Methodist Episcopal Church has been organized one hundred years." This is the first article in which I have noticed the word organized. Such a statement is incorrect and might prove to be misleading. All we claim for the month of November, 1887, is that it marks the centennial of the coming together of the persons referred to in the preface of our Discipline—"to take into consideration the evils under which they labored." But this was the acorn from which came the mighty oak, and this acorn was planted in November, 1787. To pass this event by without notice would be as criminally thoughtless or careless as to call it the centennial of the organization is incorrect.

The declaration of American independence is one thing and the promulgation of the Constitution is another. The former held its Centennial in '76, the latter in '87. I consider that 1787 is as legitimately our origin as is "the latter end of the year 1739" the origin of Wesleyan Methodism.

How ministrs can read the general rules every quarter, and make no objection to the date therein given, then call for celebration in November, '87, "a local affair," I cannot exactly understand. However, from the present outlook there are many who will make an honest effort to place this important piece of history squarely before the world, and so impress the present generation with its importance that they will ever venerate the memory of Richard Allen and those who co-operated with him for forming a holy resolution to cut loose from those environments that vexed their souls, stifled their manhood and hindered them from answering the end of their creation.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Being moved, as the Quakers say, "by the spirit," I again send an occasional item gathered from the many sources of interest in and about Washington City. Your reporter has carefully scanned and doubts scanned well the horizon, but the fact is, there is so much to see at the nation's Capitol that a pair of additional eyes, provided they are not color-blind, may add slight interest in portraying it.

Among the many beautiful things in new Washington, and one that attracts general admiration and attention, is the Metropolitan A. M. E. Church, situated on M street between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets. The General Conference, in erecting this Mecca at the National Capitol, wherein people from all parts of the United States can always find a Christian welcome, built better than they thought, for not only Methodists, but representatives of every faith, members of all denominations and those who claim allegiance to no church or order are received, not as "strangers within thy gates," but as welcome visitors, friends, invited to worship and share with us the privileges of our common faith.

Several entertainments have recently been given in aid of this church, notably a "Blue Tea Party" under the auspices of the Sinking Fund Association, and a little later on a "Concert and Apron Bazaar," the last-named feature, under the management of the Co-operative Club. On this occasion the spacious auditorium was well filled by the good people of the city, and again the membership and friends had reason to congratulate themselves on the liberal patrouage bestowed by a generous public. The musical part of the programme was under the direction of Prof. J. T. Layton, and was fully up to his usual excellent standard. The honors were divided between Mrs. Waring, Misses Wormley and Hand, and Messrs. Layton and Hall. The Amateus Glee Club also acquitted themselves in a most acceptable manner and made many friends. The apron part was quite a novel feature. The ladies endeavored to excel each other in taste and style. The finest collection, however, were those contributed by former parishioners of Dr. Steward's, Camden, N. J., Zion Mission and Union Churches of Philadelphia; Bridge Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., were also represented. The "Sunny South" also sent her contribution. There were aprons from Macon, Ga., from the "Palmetto State" and one from away down East, in Massachusetts.

I may be permitted to state here that this exhibit of good feeling towards Dr. Steward from his former charges is akin to that entertained for him by his present membership. Dr. Steward has, by his able discourses, his refinement of manner, and, above all, by his Christian consistency, won the esteem and regard, not only of his own parishioners, but that of many of our best citizens, as well be attested by a visit to the Church on any Sabbath day. Among the regular attendants is to be seen the manly form of the "Old Man Eloquent," Hon. Frederick Douglass, and other lesser hut well known representative men of our race. There is no disguising the fact that if the present efficient management of our Church affairs is sustained the place of African Methodism in the District of Columbia is assured. I cannot forhear mention of a recent gift of our venerable Bishop Payne to the Sinking Fund Society of the church. Through his generosity several beautiful and costly steel engravings have been added to the furnishing of the parlor. Among the subjects may be noted "The Black Horse" and "Moses before Pharaoh." All the engravings are masterpieces, and, aside from the generosity of the donor, the fact that Bishop Payne, amid the multiplicity of his duties, still found time to remember this church in a manner at once so beautiful and appropriate, adds much to the intrinsic value of the gift. The society, through its efficient president, Mrs. Cornelia Wilkinson, has framed the pictures and they now adorn the walls of the church parlor. The outlook is certainly brighter for the assured success of our connectional church. With patience we will work, hoping for the Divine blessing on our efforts.

EXPLANATIVE CARD FROM REV. P. M. LEWIS.

I most emphatically deny having made any personal attack in my series of articles published in our paper upon the good character of dear Brother Jas. H. A. Johnson, as he claims in his personal attack upon me. I have only been endeavoring to expose what I believed to be the weakness and impracticability of his plan for improving our Church work, and in doing so have at all times acted with the greatest respect and kindest Christian feelings towards Dr. Johnson. Further, I have meant no personal attack upon this dear brother's character or reputation. How could I have? We never had a cross word in our lives and I have never held a brother in higher esteem than I have Dr. Johnson.

In conclusion, I shall continue to write from my standpoint in answer to anything the doctor may say on the present subject which I may think necessary to answer, and this I will do fearlessly until we are through with this discussion, and I will do this to what I shall believe to be the best interest to our Church and people, in the fear of God and with due respect to dear Dr. Johnson. I shall cheerfully and Christianly accept all argumentative means used by Dr. Johnson or anyone to prove my position to be at fault.

Fraternally,
P. M. LEWIS.

Gen. Sir H.F. Ponsonby, the queen's private secretary, has written a letter in reference to the statement made by Canon Weldon, at the recent meeting of the Church of Ireland Temperance Society at Dnblin, that the last festival in the Highlands in honor of the queen's presence was the occasion of much drunkenness. Gen. Ponsonby says he was present during the festival, and did not see any drunken persons.

HAYTI.

ITS GOVERNMENT LAWS, COURTS, LEGISLATURE, FINANCE, ETC.

NO. 2.

BY REV. J. M. TOWNSEND, D.D.

The government of Hayti is republican in form. The President, however, is the embodiment of all law, for to speak against the president, or to question any of his acts, is regarded as a conspiracy, and the one who thus presumes will soon find himself compelled to exile or take alternative, which means to be put to death.

Next to the President come the cabinet officers, who correspond, in kind, to those of our own country, added to which is the minister of "public worship." This office is made necessary by the union of State and Church, a thing which will always militate against the good of the country and the freedom of the people.

Following the cabinet is a senate and chamber of deputies, who are elected by the people.

The republic is still further divided into districts or communes, somewhat similar to our States, over which is a governor. All of the affairs of these districts are regulated by the councils, under the control and with the approval of the executive power. A peculiar feature of office-holding is that individual responsibility is attached to every public function.

Senators are elected for six years and must be at least thirty years of age. The local council selects one, the President nominates one and the people elect the other one by ballot. Instead of an electoral college, the national senate elects the President. Under the amended constitution he serves a term of seven years.

The judicial power is vested in the supreme court and in the tribunals and inferior courts. The members of the Supreme Court are elected, I think, for four years, and may be re elected indefinitely.

There are also town councils, which are free and independent bodies elected by the people of their respective localities, whose functions are the financial government of their own communes, subject, of course, to certain rules prescribed by the national constitution.

Every African, Indian or their descendants may become naturalized citizens. A white man may if he marries a native woman, which is often done. This last provision, I understand, has been repealed since the "Tortugas indemnity case" last spring.

All Haytiens are equal before the law, a naturalized foreigner not being eligible to legislative or executive functions, being the only exception.

Formerly land grants and concessions were made, but since the trouble referred to above, a law has been enacted which strictly forbids the alienation of any lands belonging to the Republic. This seems a little strange, no doubt, to the citizen of this country, who sees his government giving away and selling off the public domain by millions of acres, and as lightly as we esteem this matter now, I believe that America, with all her vast possessions, will yet regret that foreign capitalists and syndicates hold and demand exhorbitant prices for lands in this country, which ought to be the rightful heritage of citizens, instead of aliens.

The Haytien government, in the past, has always been treacherously dealt with, and in every case where a treaty has been made and concessions granted, this black republic, (like black men everywhere), has been the sufferer. And in the school of experience, not willingly, but as a matter of protection against the encroachments of the civilized (?) pirates of the world, she has learned to play the role of the Ishmaelite. I am aware that the resources of Hayti would be the sooner developed, that factories, machine shops, railroads, telegraphs, telephones, indeed all the industries of civilized life, would the sooner spring into being if the gateways of the country were thrown open to all indiscriminately. Yet, while this is true, that other fact so abhorent to the Haytien patriot comes up, namely, that equally soon the avaricious white man would not only control the business of the country, but the country itself. For that beautiful island the Haytien paid as a price the best blood of his race and he will not willingly forfeit his right of possession, nor do I blame him when I know the history of his country.

As America has dealt with the Indian, he feels, and naturally so, as I heard one express it: "One white man in, two Indians out;" and so would France, Spain, Germany, England and America deal with Hayti.

Individual liberty is guaranteed. This article of the constitution, however, is rarely, if ever, enforced by the national government. In this I am reminded of some things in our own government. While the American constitution declares in favor of equal rights and the equal protection of all citizens in those rights, the case stands about like this: The federal government will go to any foreign country in the world and exhaust every function of her diplomatic machinery to defend, protect, liberate one of her citizens; but she dare not, or will not, enter the domain of one of her "sovereign" (?) States to secure to a citizen, or to any number of citizens, the liberties of his citizenship. Especially is this true if by any accident of birth he happens to be cast in a darker hue. He is at once referred to the courts of his State, and to them he appeals; but these courts are fickle things. In many cases our courts of justice are the merest mockery. He at once concludes that it is better to die robbed of half he has than to die an absolute pauper; he turns away in disgust and feels that the meanest thing which God hath made is man. So, too, the Haytien is left to find whatever of redress he may at the hands of petty officers and uncertain courts. Trial by jury is established in all political and criminal causes. There is always a suspicion, however, that the side which shows the most money will win.

REVENUE.

The revenues of the Republic are derived principally from import duties collected at the custom houses, at which are collected tonnage and various other dues on vessels which enter their ports.

There is also some revenue gathered from stamps, stamped paper, etc. Added to this also some exports.

There is no direct taxation of the people, or of real estate.

The present system is very oppressive; the duties imposed amount to from 50 to 75 per cent. on the valuation of imports; which embrace the necessaries of life, hence the cost of living is enormous. This has much to do with the forming of those conditions which render life itself a burden to many, but of this we shall speak more at length in treating of the social condition of Hayti.

POST-OFFICES.

Hayti is now in the postal union, and when we consider the disadvantages, such as the irregularity of vessels, poor public roads, no telegraph connection with any other part of the civilized world, etc., we must say that the postal service is fair. Now and then there is just ground for complaint, owing to the carelessness and indifference of some of the employees.

PUBLIC WORKS.

I noticed while there that considerable was being done to improve the highways, especially in the vicinity of the capital. There are no roads built in the interior except those left by the French, and these are now in rather poor condition.

Port-au-Prince also has an excellent system of water works which supply the city with good water from the neighboring mountains.

The government buildings, which were destroyed in the revolution of 1883, are being replaced with rather imposing brick and stone structures. President Salomon's palace and grounds are really things of neatness, beauty and comfort. Mr. St. John, in his book, "Hayti; or the Black Republic," would have the world believe that these people have no taste, no style, no love for the beautiful. Indeed, it is a mystery to me how the Haytiens have sustained themselves so nobly despite the ordeals through which they have passed. While there may be much to disgust, dishearten and cause the hands of the friends of the Republic to fail, yet, as every honest man who is informed must admit, there is evidence on all sides that the Haytien is determined, resolute, persistent, progressive.

PUBLIC LANDS.

The government holds large and fertile tracts of land. Up to the present, however, the administrations have not undertaken to make a general survey, owing to the fact that they have been kept busy in maintaining peace and providing for the financial necessities of the republic.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY BISHOP A. W. WAYMAN.

MR. EDITOR:—Once more I am permitted to say a word to your readers. Monday morning, when starting from Macon, Ga., the cars were so full of people going to Atlanta to the exposition that it was almost impossible to get a seat. I finally crowded my way in and got one. At every station the people came in such great numbers that part had to stand up inside and the rest had to stand out on the platform. There was no discrimination on account of color, for they sat together. When the train reached Forsythe I had hard work to get out, and when I got out I felt as if I had made my escape from the greatest crowd that I had met for many years.

Forsythe is a very pretty town and the colored people are doing well. There are some good business men among them. The A. M. E. Church has a very small man for a pastor, but he is said to be a very big preacher. The people are very much attached to him and think he is the greatest man in the conference. The rain commenced to fall about night and continued until morning, and therefore I had not the pleasure of seeing the congregation, which I regret very much.

Tuesday morning when I reached the depot to take the train for Griffin the crowd was greater than on Monday. I could not get on the first section, and when the second one came it was just as bad. I finally got a seat and rode on to Griffin, where I met an old Marylander in the person of Rev. George Washington, the pastor. I met his fine congregation at night. The next morning I found the trains still crowded, yet I got to Atlanta, where I expected to take the train to Madison; but when I got into Atlanta I had to remain there two days before I could get out, and therefore failed to get to Madison or Greensboro, which I regret very much.

Friday morning I tried it again and succeeded in getting in, but had to stand up for twenty miles. I reached Augusta at last safe and sound. There I spent one night and had the pleasure of meeting the congregation of Bethel. Brother A. W. Lowe is doing well. He is a big man in stature and is considered, like many other Georgia pastors, a big preacher.

Saturday afternoon found me at the city of Savannah, Ga., where the biggest man in Georgia is stationed, and when you shall read his name you will conclude that he has the largest one. It is Scipio Hannibal Africanus Robertson. Savannah is the first city in the State I ever visited. It was in 1865, soon after that city was taken by General Sherman. When I reached there then it was all torn to pieces by the army. Rev. James Lynch had succeeded in organizing the A. M. E. Church there. Rev. C. L. Bradwell was one of the first ministers who united with him. Then there was a small frame building where our people worshiped; now they have the great St. Stephens Chapel, with two other fine churches and congregations in the city.

Bros. H. H. Taylor and M. R. Wilson are the pastors of the other two churches. I visited them all and found the pastors cheerful and the congregations in good spirits. The next city I visited was Charleston, S. C. On reaching there my mind went back to the time when I first entered that city, in 1865. There were hundreds of colored soldiers around and about the city; and as I walked around and looked at them there were many that I recognized. Several of them are doing good work in the ministry of our Church now.

The Sunday I spent in Charleston, S. C., in 1865, was the day when I addressed the largest congregation of our people in the South. I took for a text, "I will seek my brethren." Then the A. M. E. Church had not a member in Charleston and now she has nearly six thousand. I visited Mt. Zion Church on Monday night and Emanuel on Tuesday night. Brother B. H. Williams, of Emanuel Church, was so much indisposed that he was not out at all, but his congregation was out in their strength. The good old ship is moving on finely in the city, with Brothers Williams, Haines and Heard at her helm. In all parts of the work there is a great deal of sorrow expressed at the death of Bishop Shorter, who was much beloved in that Episcopal District.

Charleston, S. C.

SELF-SACRIFICE.

BY REV. S. A. HARDISON.

In the daily history of our race, much that is beautiful and noble is continually taking place, which, if written down, would keep many pens and presses constantly employed. Low as we have fallen as a race, there is yet something left of the original excellence and virtue of our first parents. Men, in their efforts to assist one another, often bring themselves into straight places, and without a word of complaint they risk life itself and fortune when it is called for in saving a fellow-man from misfortune or peril. This principle is of itself noble and divine, and is admired of God, angels and men. When it is sanctified and strengthened by the spirit of God it elevates the human to the divine nature to such an extent as to bring the possessor into a very close relationship with the inhabitants of heaven and to the Saviour, who laid down his life for man. Soldiers sometimes put themselves in the most dangerous positions to save a fellow soldier, and the same is true of sea-faring men; they will do and dare anything to save life, and sometimes the most valued men have lost their lives to obtain even the body of a fallen comrade on the battle-field. A very striking case of regard for the life of a fellow-man—even an enemy—was recently related by a brother in our meeting. During the late Rebellion, a wounded rebel lay in agony and blood, groaning with pain and crying most piteously for aid. He laid midway between the two lines of battle, and it seemed like instant death for any one to venture out to assist him. His rebel comrades dared not venture amid shot and shell to rescue their wounded fellow-soldier, but the Union soldiers could not hear his cries unmoved, so two brave men crawled upon the ground to the wounded man within ten rods of the rebel line and dragged him to a safe place in the Union army. By the good providence of God, they escaped unhurt and the rescued man recovered and joined the ranks of the Union army. This circumstance, remarked our brother, shows that by kindness we may win even our enemies to the side of truth. We should show kindness not only to our brethren, but to all men with whom we may be associated in life—even our enemies—and thus souls may be saved.

Many know just how to accumulate wealth for self, but have never learned to pay it out for the public's good. If a soldier will risk his life for another life, how much more should Christ's soldiers risk means and time and talents in the grand and important enterprise of saving souls! Do not measure the piety of a man by the strength of his lungs—

"Who from the well-spring of his own clear breast,
Can draw and sing his griefs to rest."

A good conscience and the aid of Christian faith—there is no stronger support under the burdens of our lot than the companionship of such refreshing and soul-lifting thoughts as spring up by the wayside of duty, from our being at home with the approved interpreter of nature and truth. This is indeed to carry with us in our working hours a power that beautifies the fairest shore and mitigates the hardest clime.

Ottumwa, Iowa.

FROM MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

BY REV. L. H. REYNOLDS.

We pause a moment in the midst of pressing pastoral duties to drop you a line from this, the extreme Northwestern part of our work—the Dan of African Methodism. We shall not write of "More Bishops," for if ever a hobby was ridden to death it is this same Bishop question. Do we not elect delegates to settle the matter in General Conference? May not the question be safely entrusted to the aggregated wisdom of that body under Divine guidance? Nor shall we discuss the presiding elder question, for pastor and people are in complete harmony with existing laws on that subject as we expect to be with all properly enacted legislation of the Church.

Though only ten miles from St. Paul this city is radically different in nearly every particular. St. Paul is hilly and broken; Minneapolis is level and sandy. St. Paul is older and more settled; Minneapolis is younger and more vigorous. Society in St Paul, as indicated in Rev. Henderson's recent letter, has assumed settled and well-defined strata; in Minneapolis it is going through a formative period. Many colored citizens of St. Paul, having come to that city in earlier days, when real estate was cheaper, brought homes and in the rapid increase of values, which has since taken place, find themselves well-to-do. In Minneapolis "the boom" came before many colored people came, so when they did begin to come, they found values advanced and opportunities gone; however, there are numbers who are doing very well.

Strangers are coming in rapidly. Many are identifying themselves with the church and the day is not remote when in church work, society and material prosperity the colored citizens of Minneapolis will rank second to none. The gloom which has so long hung over our work from past failures and mismanagement is rising and we see daylight. The Lord has signally blessed the work. The membership grows steadily, congregations large and interest on the increase. We recently contracted for a very desirable site for our church. Lot 50x134 for $1300, $500 payable November 1st, balance in five years. As soon as the negotiations were brought to a close we began a mustering of the clans. On the 11th inst., at our first grand rally, we raised $266 92. We have funds in hand to meet the first payment. We are exercising special care in securing a good title properly vested in properly elected trustees for our Church. We shall try to get in a foundation before winter closes in on us, if possible. The people have a mind to work.

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E. Church and African M. E. Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15–17, 1885.

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in May, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date fixed. Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

PROGRAMME OF THE GREAT CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH TO BE HELD IN ALL THE CHURCHES IN THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER, 1887.

1. In all the cities where there are two or more A. M. E. Churches; as in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Wilmington, Charleston, Nashville, Savannah, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, etc., etc., we earnestly recommend a grand union opening meeting on Wednesday night, November 9th, or on the night of the 16th, uniting all the choirs of the city in one grand sacred concert. Local committees will see to it that the exercises are made lively and effective—a real time of gladness, thanksgiving and praise. Let pastors, choirs and officers be all thoroughly alive to the occasion.

2. On Thursday or Friday night a public oration or several addresses on the independence and successful work of our Church. We urge that this meeting be made free of charge, and that tickets therefor be given to all respectable persons who will attend.

3. On Friday, or on the same night of addresses, prepare a "Centennial Banquet." Make it a season of congratulation and pleasure for all.

4. On Sunday morning a Centennial prayer-meeting from 5 to 7 A. M. At 10 o'clock a sermon on the rise and progress of the Church. Text, Acts 13, 41: "Behold, ye dispisers and wonder, (and perish), for I work a work in your days, a work which ye will in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you." (Collect your envelopes).

5. At 2 P. M. Sunday school concert with short addresses. (Collect your envelopes).

6. At night, a eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Collect your envelopes. Conclude with the prayer of thanksgiving. (See evening prayer, Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page —), and then repeat the Creed and sing: "From all that dwell below the sky," etc., ending with the doxology, "Praise God from whom all bessings flow," and benediction.

II PART.

Programme of the grand concluding celebration to be held in Philadelphia, commencing on Wednesday, November 23d.

1. Wednesday night, Union Sacred Concert, at —— hall, —— street, Philadelphia.

2. Thursday night (Thanksgiving Day) Centennial Banquet at each of the churches, or such other exercises as each pastor and his committee may decide to have.

3. Friday night, Grand Literary Meeting, with speaking by the following named gentlemen, at —— hall, —— street.

Speakers: Prof. T. McCants Stewart, of N. Y.

2. Rev. —— ——, of Fla.

3. Rev. C. S. Smith, of Tenn.

4. Rev. William J. Lawe, of the Iowa Conference.

5. Portrait of Bishop Allen, life size, excuted by the colored artist —— to be presented to the connection by Rev. C. T. Shaffer, through Bishop Payne. Address and reply.

III PART.

1. On Sunday morning, a centennial prayer meeting at 5 o'clock.

2. At 10 30 A. M., centennial sermon on the rise and progress of the Church—text, Acts 13, 41. Collection of envelopes.

3. At 2 P. M. Union Sunday School concert, with short addresses, by chosen persons. Collect envelopes. Philadelphia Sunday schools to be united as follows: Bethel, Zion Mission and Murray Chapel Sunday-schools together at Bethel; Allen Chapel and Mt. Pisgah Sunday schools together at Allen; Union Church and Morris Brown, at Union.

4. At night, hymn, O, God our help, etc, 701, Ritual 16. A eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Conclude with the prayer for the clergy and people. Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page 160. The prayer for all men, and the general thanksgiving, page 162. Sing the hymn 862, Ritual No. 12, and doxology, "Praise God," etc., Ritual No. 26. Collect envelopes, and report the amount. The creed and benediction.

When I reached there then it was all torn to pieces by the army. Rev. James Lynch had succeeded in organizing the A. M. E. Church there. Rev. C. L. Bradwell was one of the first ministers who united with him. Then there was a small frame building where our people worshiped; now they have the great St. Stephens Chapel, with two other fine churches and congregations in the city.

Bros. H. H. Taylor and M. R. Wilson are the pastors of the other two churches. I visited them all and found the pastors cheerful and the congregations in good spirits. The next city I visited was Charleston, S. C. On reaching there my mind went back to the time when I first entered that city, in 1865. There were hnndreds of colored soldiers around and about the city; and as I walked around and looked at them there were many that I recognized. Several of them are doing good work in the ministry of our Church now.

The Sunday I spent in Charleston, S. C., in 1865, was the day when I addressed the largest congregation of our people in the South. I look for a text, "I will seek my brethren." Then the A. M. E. Church had not a member in Charleston and now she has nearly six thousand. I visited Mt. Zion Church on Monday night and Emanuel on Tuesday night. Brother B. H. Williams, of Emanuel Church, was so much indisposed that he was not out at all, but his congregation was out in their strength. The good old ship is moving on finely in the city, with Brothers Williams, Haines and Heard at her helm. In all parts of the work there is a great deal of sorrow expressed at the death of Bishop Shorter, who was much beloved in that Episcopal District.

SELF-SACRIFICE.

BY REV. S. A. HARDISON.

In the daily history of our race, much that is beautiful and noble is continually taking place, which, if written down, would keep many pens and presses constantly employed. Low as we have fallen as a race, there is yet something left of the original excellence and virtue of our first parents. Men, in their efforts to assist one another, often bring themselves into straight places, and without a word of complaint they risk life itself and fortune when it is called for in saving a fellow-man from misfortune or peril. This principle is of itself nohle and divine, and is admired of God, angels and men. When it is sanctified and strengthened by the spirit of God it elevates the hnman to the divine nature to such an extent as to bring the possessor into a very close relationship with the inhabitants of heaven and to the Saviour, who laid down his life for man. Soldiers sometimes put themselves in the most dangerous positions to save a fellow soldier, and the same is true of sea-faring men; they will do and dare anything to save life, and sometimes the most valued men have lost their lives to obtain even the body of a fallen comrade on the battle-field. A very striking case of regard for the life of a fellowman—even an enemy—was recently related by a brother in our meeting. During the late Rebellion, a wounded rebel lay in agony and blood, groaning with pain and crying most piteously for aid. He laid midway between the two lines of battle, and it seemed like instant death for any one to venture ont to assist him. His rebel comrades dared not venture amid shot and shell to rescne their wounded fellow-soldier, but the Union soldiers could not hear his cries unmoved, so two brave men crawled npon the ground to the wounded man within ten rods of the rebel line and dragged him to a safe place in the Union army. By the good providence of God, they escaped unhurt and the rescued man recovered and joined the ranks of the Union army. This circumstance, remarked our brother, shows that by kindness we may win even our enemies to the side of truth. We should show kindness not only to our brethren, but to all men with whom we may be associated in life—even our enemies—and thus souls may be saved.

Many know just how to accumulate wealth for self, bnt have never learned to pay it ont for the pnblic's good. If a soldier will risk his life for another life, how much more should Christ's soldiers risk means and time and talents in the grand and important enterprise of saving souls! Do not measure the piety of a man by the strength of his lungs—

"Who from the well-spring of his own clear breast,
Can draw and sing his griefs to rest."

A good conscience and the aid of Christian faith—there is no stronger support under the burdens of our lot than the companionship of such refreshing and soul-lifting thoughts as spring up by the wayside of duty, from our being at home with the approved interpreter of nature and truth. This is indeed to carry with us our working hours a power that beautifies the ldlest shore and mitigates the hardest clime.

FROM MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

BY REV. L. H. REYNOLDS.

We pause a moment in the midst of pressing pastoral duties to drop you a line from this, the extreme Northwestern part of our work—the Dan of Africa Methodism—where we shall not write of "More Bishops," for if ever a hobby was ridden to death it is this same Bishop question. Do we not elect delegates to settle the matter in General Conference? May not the question be safely entrusted to the aggregated wisdom of that body under Divine guidance? Nor shall we discuss the presiding elder question, for pastor and people are in complete harmony with existing laws on that subject as we expect to be with all properly enacted legislation of the Church.

Though only ten miles from St. Paul this city is radically different in nearly every particular. That is hilly and broken; Minneapolis is level and sandy. St. Paul is older and more settled; Minneapolis is younger and more vigorous. Society in St. Paul, as indicated in Rev. Henderson's recent letter, has assumed settled and well-defined strata; in Minneapolis it is going through a formative period. Many colored citizens of St. Paul, having come to that city in earlier days, when real estate was cheaper, brought homes and in the rapid increase of values, which has since taken place, find themselves well-to-do. In Minneapolis "the boom" came before many colored people came, so that they did begin to come, they found values advanced and opportunities gone; however, there are nnmbers who are doing very well.

Strangers are coming in rapidly. Many are identifying themselves with the church and the day is not remote when in church work, society and material prosperity the colored citizens of Minneapolis will rank second to none. The gloom which has so long hung over our work from past failures and mismanagement is rising and we see daylight. The Lord has signally blessed the work. The membership grows steadily, congregations large and interest on the increase. We recently contracted for a very desirable site for our church. Lot 50x134 for $1300, $500 payable November 1st, balance in five years. As soon as the negotiations were brongbt to close we began a mustering of the clans On the 11th inst, at our first grand rally, we raised $266 92. We have funds in hand to meet the first payment. We are exercising special care in securing a good title properly vested in properly elected trustees for our Church. We shall try to get in a foundation before winter closes in on us, if possible. The people have a mind to work.

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E. Church and African M. E Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15-17, 1885.

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in May, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to be present at Bessemer, Ala., from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date fixed. Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

PROGRAMME OF THE GREAT CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH TO BE HELD IN ALL THE CHURCHES IN THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER, 1887.

1. In all the cities where there are two or more A. M. E. Churches; as in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Charleston, Charleston, Nashville, Savannah, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, etc., etc., we earnestly recommend a grand union opening meeting on Wednesday night, November 9th, or on the night of the 16th, uniting all the choirs of the city in one grand sacred concert. Local committees will see to it that the exercises are made lively and effective—a real time of gladness, thanksgiving and praise. Let pastors, choirs and officers be all thoroughly alive to the occasion.

2. On Thursday or Friday night a public oration or several addresses on the life, labors and snccesses in work of our Church. We urge that this meeting be made free of charge, and that tickets therefor be given to all respectable persons who will attend.

3. On Friday, or on the same night of addresses, prepare for a "Centennial Banquet." Make it a season of congratulation and pleasure for all.

4. On Sunday morning a Centennial prayer-meeting from 5 to 7 A. M. At 10 o'clock a sermon on the rise and progress of the Church. Text, Acts 13, 41: "Behold, ye dispisers and wonder, (and perish), for I work a work in your days, a work which ye will in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you." (Collect your envelopes).

5. At 2 P. M. Sunday school concert with short addresses. (Collect your envelopes).

6. At night, a eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Collect your envelopes. Conclude with the prayer of thanksgiving. (See evening prayer, Ritnal of the A. M. E. Church, page —, and then repeat the Creed and sing: "From what is here below the sky," etc., ending with the doxology, "Praise God from whom all bessings flow," and benediction.

II PART.

Programme of the grand concluding celebration to be held in Philadelphia, commencing on Wednesday, November 23d.

1. Wednesday night, Union Sacred Concert, at —— hall, —— street, Philadelphia.

2. Thnrsday night (Thanksgiving Day) Centennial Banquet at each of the churches, or such other exercises as each pastor and his committee may decide to have.

3. Friday night, Grand Literary Meeting, with speaking by the following named gentlemen, at —— hall, ——street.

Speakers: Prof. T. McCants Stewart, of N. Y.

2. Rev. —— of Fla.

3. Rev. C. S. Smith, of Tenn.

4. Rev. William J. Laws, of the Iowa Conference.

5. Poem of Bishop Allen, life size, executed by the colored artist —— to be presented to the connection by Rev. C. T. Shaffer, throngh Bishop Payne. Address and reply.

III PART.

1. On Sunday morning, a centennial prayer meeting at 5 o'clock.

2. At 10 30 A. M., centennial sermon on the rise and progress of the Church—text, Acts 13, 41. Collection of envelopes.

3. At 2 P. M. Union Sunday School concert, with short addresses, by chosen persons. Collect envelopes. Philadelphia Sunday schools to be united as follows: Bethel, Zion Mission and Murray Chapel Sunday-schools together at Bethel; Allen Chapel and Mt. Pisgah Sunday schools together at Allen; Union Church and Morris Brown, at Union.

4. At night, hymn, O, God our help, etc, 701, Ritnal 16. A eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Conclnde with the prayer for the clergy and people. Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page 160. The prayer for all men, and the general thanksgiving, page 162. Sing the hymn 862, Ritual No. 12, and doxology, "Praise God," etc., Ritual No. 26. Collect envelopes, and report the amonnt. The creed and benediction.

RICHARD ALLEN'S AUTOBIOGRAPHY AND THE OUTLINES OF AFRICAN METHODIST HISTORY TO ONE ORDER FOR $1.25.

Methodist church, in contradistinction to societies been formed, when everyone of them went into "innocnous disuetude." Now, the question is pertinent, is it progress to revert to the fossilated customs by those ont of whom Methodism grew, and declare, "Why, this is methodistic; you who oppose it do so from ignorance?"

When the Methodists became a church, they almost unhesitatingly divested themselves of certain attachments, that had been dragged along for forty years by the societies, simply because they were their mother's child and did not wish to offer her any unnecessary slack. But when once they were formed into an independent body, having a fair chance with the Episcopal Church, they let Methodism wear its native character, the character that it had been sighing for. They let Methodism advance; or rather caused the human race to advance by Methodistic principles.

The African Methodist Church was never designed, nor has it claimed, to be anything but straight ont and ont Methodist; it would seem, therefore, Brother Henderson, very material whether it be Methodist Episcopal or Episcopal Methodist. It would seem a subject worthy of deep consideration whether we shall be characterized the more by the principles that constitute Methodism, or by those that characterize Episcopalianism; whether we shall progress backward to reach the stiff forms and narrow grooves of the establishment, or launch ont into the full and free tide of Methodism. This much seems pretty sure: if our Church should at any time get well ready to adjust itself to the enstoms of worship and notions of prerogatives, etc., held by the Episcopal Church, other Methodist churches will observe our plunge into the sea of inactive order with full assurance that they will have little more trouble with us.

Notwithstanding all the talk that you can hear about the dignity the robe gives an elder or a Bishop, the beauty there is in the litany, the power in the stated prayers, etc., we have but to observe the almost incomparable advancement made by our people by the plain Methodist practices over that made by the "beautiful," the "dignified," and the "orderly" methods.

Whenever we become Episcopal Methodists, our sister colored Methodist Churches will leap away beyond us in a few years. It is an unfortunate fancy that seems to stick to some of us and to characterize very much of our talk and some of our legislation, that we are in need of the very old clothes that Methodism shed off nearly a century ago, when she "stripped herself for the race." It is in Methodism that the African Methodist Episcopal Church is interested. Methodism is its soul, episcopalianism is in the framework of its government, both must stand. It is in Methodism that we want to advance.

Personal.

—Dr. Arnett is with Bishop Ward in the Southwest.

—Dr. C S. Smith has concluded to remain in our city longer.

—Bishop Wayman has just closed the North Georgia Conference.

—Rev. C. C. Felts preached in Chester, Pa., last Sunday evening.

—Rev. T. A. Thompson, of Columbus, O., has poor health this fall.

—Mrs. F. E. W. Harper is busily engaged in the temperance campaign.

—Bishop Campbell is traveling through the work in North Carolina.

—Next Sunday Rev. Dr. Derrick celebrates the Centennial of African Methodism.

—Rev. W. H. Bryant, of Chester, Pa., held his Centennial celebration last Sunday.

—Rev. Benjamin Wheeler has been appointed to Williamsport, Pa., where the Rev. J. E. Russell died.

—The Stewart mansion in New York is guarded by private watchmen at all hours of the day and night.

—M. Petrofsky, secretary of the late Editor Katkoff, has been appointed manager of the Moscow Gazette for six years.

—Mr. Henry O. Tanner, the artist, is attending the Florida Conference. He will spend the winter in the land of flowers.

—Grevy, President of France, proposes to resign on account of his son-in-law's connection with the Legion of Honor decoration scandal.

—J. E. Smith, the express messenger who recently killed two train robbers near El Paso, has been paid $2 000 as a reward by the governor of Texas

—Daniel Lamont, the President's able secretary, has been honored by the citizens of a new town near Emporia, Kansas, naming their place after him.

—President Brown, of Highland University, Kansas, and himself an earnest Prohibitionist, pronounces John P. St. John "the most despised man in Kansas."

—The Pope, who is anxious for a renewal of diplomatic relations with England, is said to be disappointed at the result of Monsignor Persico's mission to Ireland.

—It is stated that Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria has advanced $200,000 from his private fortune to the Bulgarian treasury to hasten to completion government railways.

—Rev. W. G. Catus, one of the most promising young ministers of the North Carolina Conference, has been obliged to retire from the active itinerary owing to failing health.

—It is stated that Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria has advanced $200,000 from his private fortune to the Bulgarian treasury to hasten to completion government railways.

—Rev. B. A. Murphy has given some interesting scientific lectures to the Literary Society of Morris Brown Church, Philadelphia. Brother Temple has paid especial attention to physical science.

—Rev. J. Murphy has his work on baptism about through the press. It will be on sale in a few days. The book is well written, and, for the greater part, well founded in truth and logic.

—At his Centennial meeting, Thanksgiving night, Elder Chambers, of Zion Mission, Philadelphia, expects to be assisted by Drs. Lee and Embry. The occasion will be the celebration of the A. M. E. Centennial.

—Rev. G M. Witten will hold Centennial celebration November 29. Revs. J. W. Cooper, F. F Smith, J. H. Bean and B. F. Lee are to make addresses. The preparations for the entertainment are in the hands of a committee of ladies.

—The war sword of the celebrated raider, Gen. John Morgan, is on exhibition at the G. A. R. fair at Wellsville, O. The sword was worn when at the side of Morgan's capture, when he was in the hotel at that place, and is now the property of H. H. Whitacre.

—One of the objects of Stanley's present expedition in Africa was to rescue the explorer Emin Bey. Bnt Emin Bey got along very nicely with the African kings until Stanley's approach, when a suspicious black monarch threatened to attack him because of his fear of Stanley, and he had to be bonght off with presents.

—Elder C. H. Pearce (colored), who was buried in Jacksonville, Fla., October 28, at the age of 66, did more political influence over his race in Florida and surrounding States than almost any one single politician. He came to Florida from the Bahamas during the war, and located in Tallahassee, where he was elected to several offices. In the reconstruction period he was the leader of the "carpet-baggers," and assisted them to an immense extent, and they used him for all they were worth. Since the downfall of his party in the State he was lost sight of, and passed into obscurity. He was a good speaker, and could always carry his race with him, even on the most absurd plans or plots.—Western Rural.

Notes on Education.

The Rev. Dr. A. P. Peabody has prepared a volume of "Personal Reminiscences" of Harvard College as it was sixty years ago.

A new college course in "scientific temperance" has been added to the curriculum of the Grant Memorial University at Athens, Tenn. It is the first of the kind in any collegiate institution in the world.

Professor Charles S. Sargent, who occupies the chair of arhoriculture in Harvard University, and directs the Arnold Arboretum—the most complete and systematic collection of hardy trees and shrnbs in the world—is at home again, busily engaged in preparing for the illustrated weekly journal of forestry, whose first nnmber will appear early next year.

Wilberforce University has again been fortunate in secnring the services of Miss Mattie F. Roberts as instructor in music and art. Miss Roberts is a graduate of the Michigan Conservatory of Music at Adrian, Mich., and comes highly endorsed by the Faculty of that institution. She is an accomplished performer, with ten years' experience at the piano forte. Her talents as an artist are of high order. All who have recently visited the home of Dr. Arnett will recall the very fine portrait in crayon, executed by her hand. She has finished for the art gallery of the university the portraits of Bishop J. A. Shorter and Dr. J. G. Mitchell—two of the three founders of the institution, and is now preparing that of Bishop Payne, the first of the three. A professional German artist from Springfield, O., has filled several orders at Wilberforce, but his work will not compare with that done by Miss Roberts. The cost of instruction in both music and drawing is very reasonable and is a reduction upon all previous charges.

President McCosh, of Princeton College, has tendered his resignation, and will probably retire from office. As he is now 76 years old, he donbtless feels the need of rest and freedom from the arduous duties which the presidency of a large and growing institution imposes npon him. He has given full nineteen of the most fruitful years of his life to Princeton, and has faithfully earned the leisure he now craves. No American college has made the advance Princeton has during the presidency of Dr. McCosh. He has greatly broadened its field of work, added largely to its facilities and placed it in the very front rank of our higher institutions of learning. He has made a judicious use of the generous sums given to the college during his incnmbency and showed that his executive ability was fully as marked as his learning was profound. The work which he performed at Princeton has been felt not only at that institntion but in all educational circles in the country, and when he retires to private life he will well, wed by the love and admiration of the friends of learning everywhere.

Literature.

The cover of the Christmas number of Scribner's Magazine will be something entirely unique in the field of magazine publicacation.

Short stories appear in the November Scribner's by Rebecca Harding Davis and Margaret Crosby. The former writes of life on a Louisiana bayon plantation.

The ballad which Robert Louis Stevenson, the author of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," who is now in this country, will contribute to the Christmas Scribner's is the first which he has ever published, and those who have read it say that it will surprise the most ardent admirers of his versatility by its vigor and stirring movement combined with delicate imagery. It has an American title—"Ticonderoga."

The American Magazine for December will be a Christmas number. Its leading article, by Wm. H. Ingersoll, will discuss the peculiarities of the accepted likenses of Christ, and recount the legend of its origin. This likeness is traceable in the sacred art of all Christian nations from the beginning of our era. Mr. Ingersoll will more especially describe the endeavors of distinguished American painters and sculptors to represent this ideal. The article will be abundantly illustrated.

Recent telegrams from Russ'a show that the Government of that country is still pursuing the policy of arbitrary and despotic repression which is described by Mr Kennan in a paper entitled "The Last Appeal of the Russian Liberals" in the November Century. A number of young army and navy officers in St. Petersburg have just been sentenced to penal servitude in the Siberian mines for merely setting forth in the conrse of a debate the advantages which another governmental system would have over the present one. There is said to be much excitement and indignation among the friends of the young officers in military circles, and the circumstance fur nishes another illustration of the way in which the Russian Government, by punishing with excessive severity natural and peaceful discussion, excites and keeps alive the revolntionary spirit. As the liberals of Moscow say in the interesting appeal to the Tsar, quoted in Mr. Kennan's article, "The principal reason for the morbid form which the contest with the Government has taken is the absence in Russia of any opportunity for the free development of public opinion and the free exercise of public activity."

DEDICATED BY THE BISHOP.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONIES AT THE ST. JAMES AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

Standing room was at a premium at the dedicatory services in the beautiful new church of the St. James A. M. E. congregation yesterday afternoon. Chairs, benches and stools filled every aisle, and a fair-sized congregation remained standing the greater part of the time taken up by the services. The decorations were tasty and beautiful in the extreme. The altar was surrounded with pillars of moss roses entwined with green leaves, while here and there were numerous house plants. On a small table to the left of the altar was a magnificent anchor made up of roses, geraniums and other flowers, entwined with smilax. Over the entrance was the motto, "God Bless Our Bishop," worked in evergreens and placed there in honor of Bishop John M. Brown, of Washington, D. C., who was present at the dedication.

On the entrance of the Bishop, T. H. Lyles, on behalf of the trustees, presented him with the keys of the church, after which the dedicatory services were performed by Bishop Brown, assisted by Rev J. M. Henderson, the pastor of the church; Rev. Gray, of the Pilgrim Church, and others. The Pilgrim commanders Knights Templar and the Pioneer Lodge were each represented by about thirty-five men in full regalia. These organizations occupied the front seats in the church.

After the dedicatory services by Bishop Brown, the pastor, Rev J. M. Henderson, delivered a short address, briefly recounting the history of the church and the condition of the finances. Bishop Brown also delivered the DEDICATORY SERMON.

"This is the second time," he said, "in three years that I have come to dedicate a church on this spot. Three years ago I dedicated the old church and to-day I come to dedicate this improved, enlarged and beautified church. It shows the progress you have made in this community. One of the charges against our race is that we are not able and do not keep up to our white brethren. This is false. We have just come from the Pacific Coast, where I have dedicated several beautiful churches. In Denver, Col, and at Omaha we have beautiful churches. I told Brother Jacobs to get the lot adjoining to build a large church, because I see that was to be one of the large cities of the land. I was surprised, riding through the streets, to see the vast improvement made in the past few years." The speaker then took as his text, "And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner-stone," and from these words preached an eloquent sermon.

Rev. Henderson then announced that $750 were needed to meet present obligations, which would then leave a debt of $3,000. The people crowded up around the altar, and in less than half an hour over $1,000 had been turned in, and so the church is now placed on a solid foundation.—Western Appeal.

WE HAVE ALL ALONG HAD THE BEST BLACK Cashmeres we knew of. But so long as a better of anything is possible we are on the watch for it. We have been lucky for a little better in some respects Black Cashmere. No reason to hope for better weight, or better color, or better touch, but might it not be possible to every time get all these beats in one.

It was close enough to have the weight right if the colors were even a suspicion out of the way, or the proper color and weight if the touch were a trifle wrong. We think we have got what we were after.

ROBES $2.50 TO $10.

You save time and the matching worry by letting us choose the stuffs for you. Often save money too; we can pick better than you'll be likely to. Not better than you could, but every woman hasn't the knack of putting just the right accessory with the plain; and every woman who takes advantage of

A $4 Robe: 9 yards of 50 in. Serge; heavy, prominent twill, and good for lots of wear. A staff that needs nothing added to make a suitable dress. But we put with it 2 yards of fancy stuff—bright colored plush cubes on a matching Serge ground —and there's a lovely dress. The plain colors of these $4 Robes are—

black	3 blues
2 browns	2 garnets
1 green	1 black

Almost as much variety in the Novelties. Take black—black and black black and white black and gray

black and red

In a $6 Robe, 7 yards of fine imported Serge, and 1½ yards of Novelty. A very pretty Novelty for: 1 inch plush block in one corner of a square formed by bright bourette cluster stripes inclosed by heavy wide stripes, forming a plaid.

brown	blue
green	garnet

Higher class goods, 76, [illegible], $7, 78, $8.50, $8.75 and $10 for a Robe.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHUCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of our circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat; and

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitians, under Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and others. These men were of Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. Accomplished that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1857.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, R. R. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that services be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of service to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution he made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in the paying of the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November be observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes,

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The secretaries of the Conferences that have elected ministerial and lay delegates to the General conference to convene at Indianapolis, Ind., May, 1888, are hereby urgently requested to forward, at once, names of said delegates, and name of conference. The conferences that have not yet elected said delegates, secretaries are requested to forward names of delegates and name of conference at their earliest opportunity. We are anxious to push the work of preparation as fast as possible. Please write names plainly that there be no mistakes.

Delegates bringing their wives, and all visiting brethren not directly connected with the Conference, must come prepared to pay for board and lodging. We shall provide for members of the General Conference only.

Direct all communications to John W. Gazaway, 214 West Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind.

This is pertinently put: "Boycott your temper, strike your vices, and work for your living."

I have been benefited by praying for others; for making an errand to God for them I have got something for myself.

It is in vain for anyone to speak divine things without something of divine affection. He has not been able to prevail upon himself to be holy, and no marvel if he fail in prevailing upon others.

All tedious hunting again into God's fold when we have leaped out. They are God's file to rub off our dust; God's soap and fuller's earth to remove spots; God's fan to blow away our chaff.—Francis Roberts.

BOOKS.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints: 1st. Because it furnishes the most natural method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. Because it shows how to preach well; ease and grace, and yet with power and success. 3rd. Because it points out the common errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to overcome them. In reviewing all he ministers to read the work carefully, because "they will find in it much that they never thought of"—because "the very hints they most need to receive are not furnished by other homillical manuals"—because it replies to an shrewd, hard, good sense"—because "it is a book for all ministers, from the youngest to the oldest"—because many to be the most helpful book they ever read. Worth its weight in gold.

Address Rev. William Clark, Laredo, Webb Co., Texas.

The following words, in praise of DR. PIERCE'S FAVORITE PRESCRIPTION as a remedy for those delicate diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, must be of interest to every sufferer from such maladies. They are fair samples of the spontaneous expressions with which thousands give utterance to their sense of gratitude for the inestimable boon of health which has been restored to them by the use of this world-famed medicine.

$100 THROWN AWAY.

JOHN E. SEGAR, of Millenbeck, Va., writes: "My wife had been suffering for two or three years with female weaknesses, and had paid out one hundred dollars to physicians without relief. She took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it did her more good than all the medicine given to her by the physicians during the three years they had been practicing upon her."

THREW AWAY HER SUPPORTER.

Mrs. SOPHIA F. BOSWELL, White Cottage, O., writes: "I took eleven bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' and one bottle of your 'Pellets.' I am doing my work, and have been for some time. I have had to employ help for about sixteen years before I commenced taking your medicine. Now I have not had a supporter most of the time; this I have laid aside, and feel as well as I ever did."

THE GREATEST EARTHLY BOON.

Mrs. GEORGE HERSHER, of Westfield, N. Y., writes: "I was a great sufferer from leucorrhœa, bearing-down pains, and pain continually across my back. Three bottles of your 'Favorite Prescription' restored me to perfect health. I recommend it to all suffering females, without receiving any benefit. The 'Favorite Prescription' is the greatest earthly boon to us poor suffering women."

IT WORKS WONDERS.

Mrs. MAY GLEASON, of Nunica, Ottawa Co. Mich., writes: "Your 'Favorite Prescription' has worked wonders in my case. Again she writes: "Having taken several bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription' I have regained my health wonderfully. To the astonishment of myself and friends. I can now be on my feet all day, attending to the duties of my household.

TREATING THE WRONG DISEASE.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion or prostration, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present alike to themselves and their over-busy doctor, symptoms and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms, and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

3 PHYSICIANS FAILED.

MRS. E. F. MORGAN, of No. 71 Lexington St., East Boston, Mass., says: "For years now I was a dreadful sufferer from uterine disease. Having exhausted the skill of three physicians, I was completely discouraged and so weak I could with difficulty cross the room alone." I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and using the local treatment recommended in his 'Common Sense Medical Adviser.' I commenced to improve at once. In three months I was perfectly cured, and have had no trouble since. I wrote a letter to my family paper, briefly mentioning how my health had been restored, and offering to send the full particulars to any one writing me for them, and enclosing a stamped envelope for reply. I have received over four hundred letters in reply, I have described my case and the treatment used, and have earnestly advised them to 'do likewise.' From a great many I have received second letters of thanks, stating that they had commenced the use of 'Favorite Prescription,' had sent the $4.50 required for the 'Medical Adviser,' and had applied the local treatment so fully and plainly laid down therein, and were much better already."

JEALOUS DOCTORS.

A Marvelous Cure.—MRS. G. F. SPRAGUE, of Crystal, Mich., writes: "I was troubled with female weakness, leucorrhœa, falling of the womb for seven years, so I had to keep my bed for a good part of the time. I doctored with an army of different physicians, and spent a ton of money, but received no lasting benefit. At last my husband recommended me to try your medicines, which I had no doubt to do, because I was prejudiced against them, and the doctors said they would do me no good. I finally told my husband that if he would get me some of your medicines, I would try them against the advice of my physician. He got me six bottles of the 'Favorite Prescription,' also six bottles of the 'Discovery,' for ten dollars. I took three bottles of 'Discovery' and four of 'Favorite Prescription,' and I have been a sound woman for four years. I then gave the balance of the medicine to my sister, who was troubled in the same way, and she cured herself in a short time. I have not had to take any medicine now for almost four years."

THE OUTGROWTH OF A VAST EXPERIENCE.

The treatment of many thousands of cases of those chronic weaknesses and distressing ailments peculiar to females at the invalid hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has afforded a vast experience in nicely adapting and thoroughly testing remedies for the cure of woman's peculiar maladies. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the outgrowth, or result, of this great and valuable experience. Thousands of testimonials, received from patients and from physicians who have tested it in the most thorough manner, abundantly prove its wonderful curative powers in all those painful and delicate disorders and weaknesses incident to our mothers, wives, sisters and daughters. As a powerful, invigorating tonic, it imparts strength to the whole system, and the uterus or womb and its appendages, in particular. For overworked, "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," housekeepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing, cordial and restorative tonic. It promotes digestion and assimilation of food, cures nausea, weakness of stomach, indigestion, bloating and irritations of temperament, and all the symptoms of "nervousness." "Favorite Pr

Be Sure
To ask for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, if you are in need of a Blood-purifier—the only certain and reliable remedy for pimples, blotches, and all other eruptions of the skin. As an alterative,
Ayer's Sarsaparilla,
after a trial of nearly half a century, is universally conceded to be the best ever discovered. It is agreeable to the taste, and, being highly concentrated, only small doses are needed.
An old lady of eighty, Mrs. Mary C. Ames, of Rockport, Me., after forty years of suffering from a tumor in the blood, manifesting itself in Erysipelas and other distressing eruptions on the skin, at last began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after taking ten bottles, she is now, she says, "as smooth and fair as ever."
Frank Jones, 962 Eighth ave., New York, writes: "I suffered from impurity of the blood, which showed itself in troublesome eruptions and mattery pimples on my face, neck, etc. Ayer's Sarsaparilla effected a complete cure. I had previously taken many reputed blood-purifiers without benefit."
Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles, $5.

DR. JAEGER'S SANITARY WOOLEN SYSTEM CO.'S GARMENTS
FOR MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN.
1104-1106 CHESTNUT STREET,
PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Mr. Denny is a minister with quite a family of children. He entertains his friends quite often at the parsonage at supper. He has a custom of giving certain things at the table into the charge of certain of the children. Benny, for example, sees that the guests are properly taken care of in the way of meats. Harold has bread and butter under his supervision, while the little girls have their special provinces in the realm of sweets. One evening Dr. Denny chanced to notice that a visitor was without a biscuit. "Why, Doctor," said he, "you haven't had the biscuits passed yon. Why, really, this is a great oversight. Harold, my boy, no biscuits yet passed to Dr. Holmes!" "Father," said the tiny Harold, "no one always speaks slowly and with great solemnity, and who to-night had in his voice a reproach that his beloved father had for a moment believed him unfaithful to his trust. "Father, he has had three already."—Western Rural.

CONSUMPTION CURED.
An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. THE LONG AGO.

Oh! a wonderful stream is the river of Time,
As it flows through the realm of tears,
With a musical rhythm and a faultless rhyme
And a broader sweep and a surge sublime
As it blends with the ocean of years

How the winters are drifting like flakes of snow,
And the summers like buds between,
And the year in the sheaf—so they come and they go
On the river's breast, with its ebb and flow,
As it glides in the shadow and sheen.

There's a magical isle up the river Time,
Where the softest of airs are playing;
There's a cloudless sky and a tropical clime
And a song as sweet as a vesper's chime,
And the Junes, with the roses, are staying.

And the name of this isle is the Long Ago,
And we bury our treasures there;
There are bronze of beauty and bosoms of snow,
There are heaps of dust—but we loved them so!
There are trinkets and tresses of hair

There are fragments of songs that nobody sings;
There's a part of an infant's prayer;
There are broken vows and pieces of rings,
There's a lute unswept and a harp without strings,
And the garments she used to wear.

There are hands that are waved when the fairy shore
By the mirage is lifted in air,
And we sometimes hear through the turbulent roar
Soft voices we heard in days gone before,
When the wind down the river is fair.

Oh, remembered for aye be that blessed isle
All the day of life till night!
When the evening comes, with its beautiful smile,
And our eyes are closing in slumber awhile,
May that Geenwood of soul be in sight.

MORE BISHOPS.

BY REV. JAMES H. A. JOHNSON, D.D

XVIII.

THE CONDITION OF AFFAIRS PECULIAR TO THE COLORED PEOPLE OF AMERICA THAT MAKES IT NECESSARY FOR THIS AMPLE FORCE OF BISHOPS.

The condition of colored people in America, as every one knows, is altogether different from that of white people. It is, in many respects, the result of oppression running through centuries. In the course of this time white people have regarded colored people as unworthy of their association. They, or a great mass of them, have looked upon colored people as brutes, or as valuable beasts of burden; have debarred them from every edifying agency beyond the preaching of their selected scriptures—"Servants, be obedient to your masters"—and left them where only brutalizing oppressors could leave them. Having even deprived them of gospel light, and hardened them into the Ten Commandments, they have done all they could to degrade them. And then, in the face of all of this, a Rev. Mr. B. A. Goodwin, of the Divinity School of Petersburg, Va., turns his cheek into the hardness of Apollyon's, and reads a paper before an Alliance, at Alexandria, Va., and says: "There are, at least, seven millions of negroes in the United States that cannot under the true definition of Christianity be called Christians." He makes his ungodly onslaught upon the whole race, and upon all these Christian elements of the race, and then goes on still further, charging them with doing all the bad things which his bad people in the days of slavery have compelled some of them to do. So much for Mr. Goodwin and all of that class represented by him.

Now, as to the white people in general, it is known that they do not even hold colored people in Christian fellowship. Putting all of these facts together, we are urged at this point to ask, what argument is there in comparing the instrumentalities of the M. E. Church with those of the A. M. E. Church? It matters not whether the former has but a single Bishop or the latter fourteen.

The colored people of the United States need just such clerical appliances as will rapidly advance them to the highest point of spiritual excellence. They are but slightly acquainted with the methods of church government. Even the ministry itself is not wrought up to that state of efficiency that prevails in organizations among white people. It is indeed far from it. There is a lack of many qualifications which are indispensable to success on the part of the colored clergy. Science, and literature, and theological studies have not been advanced by colleges, academies, and seminaries as they have been in the M. E Church; and so the untrained, suffering by these privations, have been compelled to go forth with the additional embarrassment caused by a want of experience. The consequences naturally following this state of things are too patent for any amplification. It is enough to know that they exist and need a remedy.

Apart from this fact, there are preponderating irregularities among colored people, caused by slavery, which give rise to the cry, as by that, "Although the assertion of Goodwin is absolutely false, it is true that there are many colored people in the United States who belong to church, but are in no sense Christians."

They will shout and sing like saints, whilst they act and live like devils. This is true beyond all controversy. They exist as subjects for some plastic hand to form them from the form of Godliness unto the power of it. And here the question arises—What agency in the A. M. E. Church would be the most powerful in making that hand effective? Perhaps some insane man would like to hear some sane man give a pertinent answer: for some think themselves very sane indeed when they ignore every proposition that cannot be called their own.

Bearing still further on this point is the fact, moreover, that colored people outside of the Church everywhere go to a most woeful extent in profligacy. They waste their time in wild, senseless games. They degrade themselves in low grog-shop revelries. They incur divine wrath in Sabbath breaking indulgences. They follow the highways of folly, fashion and sin They form a great host of worldlings to be converted to the sacred fold, whilst a watchman on the walls of Zion cries out, "We want members! members! members!"

True And that is the reason why the A M E. Church should have the force necessary to obtain them. The people upon the mountain may cry out, "We want fish! fish! fish!" but the want will not be satisfied if the force is not sufficient to cast and haul the seine to get them. It requires more clerical power of the highest order now to advance the interests of colored people than it does for those who are ahead of them. Slavery has left many of them with crude notions concerning religion, and bad habits affecting society. It is plain to every man of reason that it requires extraordinary agencies to reach them, elevate them and redeem them. It requires a thoroughly organized force for the demand respect, engender love and give the spirit of insubordination. They have been left in a ditch and the appliance must be equal to the emergency.

Twenty-five years ago hundreds of thousands of them knew nothing about church organization and government. They were insensible to the real honorable nature of the marital relationship and lived according to the rule of the oppressor. Pitiful indeed was this condition of affairs, as observed by us at the close of the war, when we, Jas. A. Handy and all of us, went down South to organize church work. Moral darkness prevailed in every direction over those who had been kept in bondage. They were ignorant of letters, ignorant of rules and ignorant of everything essential to their moral development. Many more Bishops were needed than were available at that time.

Coming down from that period to the present we find colored people laboring still under disadvantages, in an ecclesiastical sense, which are not experienced by any other class of people in the land. They are discarded, proscribed and left to work out their own destiny by depending upon their own resources. In this condition they stand merely upon the outer lines of the important works of the Church. They are mere tyros in great missionary projects, in extensive educational processes, in the advancement of charitable institutions and in the manipulation of all the machinery belonging to the establishment of the Church. They are like raw recruits waiting to be drilled into service. Some advancement have they made by the means at their command, but they are not up to the times. This general inefficiency, as a matter of course, has its bearing upon the A. M. E Church. Surrounded by such obstacles it cannot make rapid progress without thorough organization. It cannot overcome those obstacles without the active, powerful, episcopal agents which are necessary to forward on its interests in every direction. They must be put at its head because the condition of the colored people needs just such a force to persevere against their discouragements and to overcome them Such dignitaries, and just such a number of them as we have set forth, are needed to inspire the lower ranks of the clergy and build up the interests of the masses.

Apropos, Rev. H T. Johnson, in writing of a conference session at Owensboro, says: "Bishop Turner so grafted himself in the hearts of the people by his power and eloquence that they classed him in the itinerant category, asked that he be left there; and prophesied the speedy revival of their church interest should their prayer be granted."

Here we have an illustration by a living fact. Let it be accepted in its full force according to the condition of the race and great will be the godly competition.

STRAY SHOTS

If a point is proved an opponent can do nothing but accept it. He may be reluctant to yield, but common sense will compel him. If he resist this and continue in his course of making a whole list of groundless assertions, he shows himself to be like a boy who cannot swim, floundering in a pond. He makes a great splash, but fails to make any headway. In his failure to comply with reason he may find himself going to destruction. If the Church needs fourteen Bishops, and it will be to the very best advantage to situate them in a certain manner, then, by all means, it is reasonable to yield to the arrangement in the matter. Every attempt at resistance has no effect upon the truth.

Many remarks may be made to intensify them, but in the end they will only amount to declarations and stand no examination. In fact, they will be as bad as the old woman's exclamation: "My gracious, how much, those twins resemble each other, especially the one this way!"

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY BISHOP A. W. WAYMAN.

MR. EDITOR:—Monday, November 7th, about 3 P M, I left home (Baltimore) for the North Georgia Conference and, after an all night and one day's ride, I reached Rome, where the conference meets. I found it a large town and the A. M. E. Church is situated in the popular part of the town. The church building was once owned by the M. E. Church, South. The pastor, Rev. D. A. Shepherd, who has been stationed at Rome for the last two years, was successful in securing that very desirable church property

On Wednesday morning the conference assembled, and, as it has been nearly twenty years since I had the pleasure of meeting any of the Georgia Conferences, at the roll call there were only a few faces I recognized, and they were Peter McClain, C. L. Bradwell, W. J. Gaines, and a few others. The conference is composed of about one hundred and fifty, and a great many of them are young men of promise A very large class of fine, intellectual young men were admitted on trial. Some of them have been students of the Clark and Atlanta universities, and should they be faithful to God they will do honor to the Church and the cause. As this was the conference at which the delegates were to be elected, there was considerable interest manifested among the members as to who should be successful candidates. As the conference was favored with the presence of Rev. Tanner and Embry, they were requested to act as tellers and the balloting commenced; and, to use the racing phrase, W. J. Gaines came in on the first heat ahead of all the rest and was declared by the judges elected, which he said was the height of his ambition. After a few moments to blow the roll was called and the competition started again, and the old war-horse of African Methodism in Georgia, C. L. Bradwell, came in under whip and spur, followed by John G. Yeiser and B. Graham, and they were pronounced elected. Another ballot was had, when J. H. Gary, Jr., and D. J. McGhee made time. D. T. Green, who is a small man, but runs well, came in at the eleventh hour and was elected; this ended a very warm and exciting episode. When the report from the electoral college that elected the lay delegates was called for and presented, there was a protest presented against the modus operandi, by which the delegates were elected, and as it was the first case of the kind that came before me I held it sub curia until the next day and then suggested that the matter be referred to a special committee, which reported that after examining the papers before them, they had reached the conclusion that the election was not in keeping with the law of the Church and, therefore, their names ought not to be placed on the roll of delegates. Dr Gaines gave notice that he would take the case to the General Conference

Tuesday morning the conference met at 8 o'clock to close up its business. At 10 o'clock memorial services were held in respect to the memories of Bishop Shorter and Rev. A. Brown. Remarks were made by Drs. Embry and Tanner on the death of Bishops Shorter and Cain; Brothers Gaines and Bradwell on Brother Andrew Brown. The Dollar collection was taken up of former this year. At 3 o'clock the conference adjourned and there was a great taking out of the preachers to their places.

THE NORTH GEORGIA CONFERENCE.

BY REV. W. J. GAINES.

MR. EDITOR:—I thought it would be interesting to the many readers of the RECORDER to hear from African Methodism of the "Empire State" The North Georgia Annual Conference convened in Rome, Ga., on the 9th inst., Bishop A. W. Wayman, D.D., in the chair, and went through the usual devotional services. The old secretary called the roll and the ministers answered to their names with few exceptions. The reports were good, both spiritually and financially. This conference has only four presiding elder districts, viz: Atlanta District, Athens District, Griffin District and the Marietta District. All of the presiding elders are proud of their positions and are trying to honor the Church for entrusting them with these offices. Every man ought to think he is honored to be a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ. The presiding elder's office cannot be dispensed with in these Southern lands. All that is needed to make this office a success is in selecting the proper men to fill it The opening of the conference seemed a little excitable. We can account for this when we think of its being the year of electing delegates to the General Conference. However, this passed off all right; the names of whom have been forwarded to the RECORDER by the corresponding secretary, Rev. A. Watson, who, by the way, is an alternate to the General Conference. Bishop Wayman managed the affairs of the conference very easily. As a presiding officer he is graceful, cheerful and almost jovial. When he becomes earnest on a matter he is grave and commanding. Drs. B. T. Tanner and J. C. Embry were present and represented their departments well. Also D. Wm. D. Johnson, Secretary of Education, who is a member of this conference, was present and took a very active part in some portions of the conference business. The brethren all understand the doctor. We would have been glad to have seen Drs. Lee, Smith and Townsend. These are all grand men and the Church is proud of them. Our dollar collection was about $3,000. The Atlanta District raised $1,400 of this. The other three districts did equally as well according to location, situation and condition.

The Morris Brown College was represented before the conference by the writer and the conference appropriated $300 in cash to the college after they heard the report of the secretary and treasurer. No one knows how my heart trembled when I presented the case of the college Is it possible that we can love a building, a project or a principle? Must I say I love Morris Brown College? I love the project, the principle, with infinite love. I will not hold my peace, I will not rest until its brightness goes forth to the world as a lamp that burneth. There was not one dissenting voice against giving the $300 We had able preaching during the session of the conference by Rev. C. S. Greene, A. W. Watson, J. G. Yeiser, Louis McClarin, J. S Flipper and Drs Tanner, J. C. Embry and Bishop A. W. Wayman. The Bishop "mndded the water" Sunday morning at 11 o'clock A. M as he usually says, but Drs. Tanner and Embry managed to swim through and save their reputation as able preachers. Memorial services over the lamented Bishops Cain, Shorter and Rev. Andrew Brown were very touching When the history of African Methodism is completed the names of these men will shine forth upon the pages of its history like the milky way across the heavens. We now start out upon another year's work on our districts and pastoral charges, hoping to return at the next annual conference with victory upon our banners. My heart repeats the Master's advice, "I must work the we of him that sent me, while it is day; the night cometh, when no man can work."

Quite an excitement in Atlanta over prohibition. The Anti-Prohibition party is trying its best to bring bar-rooms back to Atlanta with all of their curses. The women and children with the good men of this city are raising their prayers to God to keep this wicked demon from our fair city. We have ministers in our midst who will raise their voices against this wicked traffic. Shame on them. Disgrace to be called a minister of that kind, but we are in hopes that on the 26th of this present month we will snow the anti-prohibition party under by 1200 or 1500. O, that God may let his light shine upon us, as he did upon Israel in the desert with a pillow of light. He led them with a banner cloud of light. These are some of my morning thoughts.

FATHER, I STRETCH MY HAND TO THEE.

BY REV. C. A. ADAMS.

This very song has been the solace of a thousand minds. "Tis the cry of some poor widow sitting in her solitary cabin with no meal in the barrel, no wood under the shed and no money in the till; or some poor father, or orphan child, wandering from house to house begging for food. Hear him say: "Father, I stretch my hand to thee, no other help I know." It is grievous to them to look back over their past life and see that rare opportunities were offered them for homes and they refused. The Almighty did not will that they should fail to share this world's goods. There are thousands of our people who could purchase homes if they would only leave town, go into the world and suffer awhile. Will they go? No; can't leave town; could'nt hear the city bells' tone; could'nt ride on the street cars; could'nt go on the railroad excursions; could't go to the different places of vain amusement; all the big shows will pass me by. No, let me stay in town, pay $5 per month house rent, $1 per week for wood. This is but $112 per year, two years $224, three years, $448, besides my whiskey and tobacco, and once in awhile an extra cigar and then have plenty of food for my family. This is the pusillanimous sentiment of thousands of our people It is useless to sit down and cry, "Father, I stretch my hand to thee; no other help I know." The Father's hand is stretched to you when some one offered you that tract of land for $150 per acre, upon that beautiful city site; is to one settling beyond your reach. The negro race must get homes as well as education; if not our children will be a lot of educated tramps. All can't teach school or preach; some must till the soil. Go to work, get homes for yourselves and children Four years ago a colored man was offered a little rocky piece of land for some little oxen and he refused. Now, under those rocks is a bed of coal, at which the miners are at work and about two furlongs from this is commenced a beautiful little village, the railroad running through its centre. Ye ministers of God, stop telling the people about dying awhile and tell them about living. Get homes to leave your children and die happy.

THE CHURCH THAT ALLEN NAMED.

BY REV. GEO. W. BAILEY.

'Tis time, creation's accurate scribe,
When retrospectively surveyed,
Reveals our nature's rapid tide,
From morning dawn to evening shade.
About one hundred years ago,
Just as the colonial sunk with gold,
The genius of a true negro
Began to rapidly unfold
'Twas then, great Allen, bless his name,
Began the rubbish to remove;
This mighty fabric, thus to frame:
A house for God, the bond of love.
Since then, the calendar of Time,
One century has scored;
His work from rustic to sublime
Has to his race secured
The liberty, the sacred right
Of all the sons of men;
And we, his heirs, will ever fight,
Her ramparts to defend.
This church our Father Allen named African Methodist,
Is now and ever shall be famed:
Salvation is her gist.
The' Allen's bones are resting now
Beneath yon turfy mound;
A victor's mark adorns his brow,
Where harps incessant sound.
Shout, shout, ye sons of Allen brave,
Nor scorn your fathers choice;
May evergreens bedeck his grave,
And sons echo his voice.
All hail, the church that Allen framed,
The negro's apex found,
She's crossing now the stormy main:
She'll belt the globe around.
But who will meet to celebrate,
One century hence to-day?
From Caribees to the Golden Gate,
And o'er in Africa?
Those sea-girt lates will swell the throng,
With songs in Allen's band;
None then will ask, does he belong,
To our native land?
O time, yon wrote inception day,
Of this great Church of mine;
And when she victor's laurels sway,
Christ will omega sign.
Adieu, century number one,
We'll meet on earth no more,
For one by one we're passing on
To yon eternal shore.
Hosanna to the Prince of Light
Who put in Allen's heart
The spirit of eternal might
This wondrous work to start.
Rest this one hundred years to come,
Whilst I in sabes lie;
My soul with Allen's gathered home,
To mansions in the sky.

FROM A DOLLAR AND CENTS STANDPOINT.

BY REV. J. M HENDERSON.

The able articles of Rev. P. M. Lewis, written under the shadow of the tall pines in far away Southeast Missouri, like the cries of "Peter the bermit," have echoed throughout the Western wing of our connection, and to the support of many of the opinions heralded forth the sturdy men of this, a no insignificant portion of our Church. Suppose Brother Lewis, for reasons, did withdraw from the field, he is now again under her wing and in good standing.

Dr. Johnson has written a very able series of articles, which, however, when read together, do not appear so well. The text bristles and glitters with many brilliant ideas scattered here and there. The arguments upon which the doctor attempts to support the demand for "more Bishops" are all weak as elder stems; their lame and trembling backs quiver under even the slightest attack. However, the position taken by our brother is not to be answered in argument of the same kind as those urged for its support.

This is an age of dollars and cents; the most trasby nousense can live if supported by money, while the most benevolent enterprise will perish unless it have behind it "vnigar gold." He who advocates any measure or any enterprise, however grand, only creates a vague dream unless he plant his feet upon money.

Can the A. M E. Church support eight more Bishops at an additional cost of $16,000 for to speak of paying a Bishop one cent less than the present salary would be an insult to common sense.

The estimate of expenses for 1887, not including percentage retained by conferences, is $44,371 45. Add to this $16,000, and you have $60,371 45. The general treasurer under our present financial system has no fair prospect of receiving, per annum, more than $44,-371.45. We would therefore be deficient $16,000 for current expenses. The addition of eight Bishops would create an increased expense and yet, in no way shown by the doctor, would increase the income to any notable extent. Therefore good hard common sense, viewing the matter from an economic standpoint, would say, "No, no, no" to the doctor's demand.

A wise General Conference would waste little time in such extravagance, but would turn its earnest attention to the more practical question of how to increase our income. At present we are only able to keep up current expenses; we are not able to launch out into any benevolent enterprises. Which would it be wiser for a poor man to do: spend his savings for beautiful pictures, or purchase a potato-patch? Instead of us indulging the expensive luxury of having eight more Bishops, why not make a good, strong and effective presiding elder system by which we could double our present income? However desirable eight more Bishops might be, we can't have them for the simple reason that we are not able to pay for the luxury. If we have a great number of good men who would grace a Bishop's chair, they won't spell for eight years at least, so that let them content themselves and we, his heirs, will ever fight,
Her ramparts to defend.

Townsend's arrangements for the Missionary Jubilee at Ocean Grove. I received no reply. I then wrote to Bishop Shorter, thinking he was yet President of the Missionary Board. Meanwhile Dr. Stokes wrote to me for a list of speakers for the Jubilee Day. I referred him to Elder Sampson as the first on committee as arranged by our conference, but Dr. J. M. Townsend as the one to arrange the programme and solicit speakers. A week or more elapsed; I least, so that I, seem content if the done, they should be dispensed with and methods adopted that would fill the bill.

Talk and write as you will, an experiment will prove that the Presiding Elder system can be made the means of bringing us ont of our financial trouble. I rejoice to say that since August 22nd, we have raised for St. James A. M. E Church over $2,700 in clear cash, and Sunday, Nov. 7th, dedicated one of the most beautiful churches in the connection. Bishop Brown officiated; Revs. R. Knight, S. H. Reynolds and Wm. Morris were present.

Personally, I feel that the connectional enterprise of the most importance is our Publishing House, and would favor four years of earnest, strong effort devoted to the task of bringing it out of embarrassment and making it a paying institution. It could be made to raise the episcopal fund, if properly supported. This would happen inside of four years. The present centennial effort has the right ring. We did not observe the 6th for that purpose because we had just finished our church and dedicated it on that date. But we have organized a certain mall club and have prepared a historic monument to be erected to the memory of Bishop Allen. It is made of pine and built in sections, each one of which represents a period in our Church history. The club hopes to send in from $50 to $100 by January first. We also have already authorized Brother Taylor, steward, to purchase about $100 worth of hymn books and Church Services.

IN REPLY TO BISHOP CAMPBELL.

BY REV. J. T. DIGGS.

MR. EDITOR:—Having just read Bishop J. P. Campbell's article [on membership and Church theft] in the issue of this week, with a heartful of regret to see how our beloved Bishop allows himself to be blinded and misled by those in whom he deeply confides, please permit me to set myself aright before Bishops, General Officers, New Jersey Conference and the many readers of our church organ, for the reflection upon me by Bishop Campbell, through his prompter, is greater than I can lie quietly under. Now, as to the pastor at Fair Haven, I have nothing with I only speak for myself. As to theft, I defy Bishop Campbell or anyone else to prove that I have defranded any department of the Church out of one cent, but have given as many dollars as any of those bonds pastors to whom the Bishop refers. All who ever knew me, know that I have been a quiet Methodist pastor for over fifteen years, attending to my own work, taking care of whatsoever was my Bishop saw fit to give me, and making as good a report to the annual conference as any other pastor or presiding elder. I never asked for an appointment nor refused any. I always have taken what was given me and made the best of it, whether little or much. I suppose I have done as much in and for the New Jersey Conference as some others who have made more noise about it. I never thought it worth while to sound a trumpet for what little I could do for God and his cause. For after one has done all he can do, he has only done that which is his duty.

EXPLANATION.

As to the excursion from Newark to Ocean Grove, it was a matter of our church in Newark, and has been running for the last six years, and the pastor of three years ago established the Jubilee at the auditorium as an attraction for the excursionists. The day of the church excursion has heretofore been governed by the day given for the Jubilee. The New Jersey Conference of 1886 appointed the pastors of Orange, Ocean Grove and Newark as a conference committee to assist the General Missionary Secretary in arranging and conducting the affair at the Grove. Everything passed off pleasantly that year, headed by Dr. J. M. Townsend, Missionary Secretary. This year time passed away and nothing was said about the Jubilee. Conference had passed without action as to it. My attention was called to it by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. I wrote to Rev. Dr. Stokes to know what day in July had been given for the Jubilee. He replied by sending me a programme of the season, which had the Jubilee set on the 21st. I then knowing that Dr. Townsend was abroad, wrote to Dr. Arnett, asking if he knew anything of Dr. Townsend's arrangements for the Missionary Jubilee at Ocean Grove. I received no reply. I then wrote to Bishop Shorter, thinking he was yet President of the Missionary Board. Meanwhile Dr. Stokes wrote to me for a list of speakers for the Jubilee Day. I referred him to Elder Sampson as the first on committee as arranged by our conference, but Dr. J. M. Townsend as the one to arrange the programme and solicit speakers. A week or more elapsed; I least, so that I, seem content if the done, they should be dispensed with and methods adopted that would fill the bill.

Talk and write as you will, an experiment will prove that the Presiding Elder system can be made the means of bringing us ont of our financial trouble. I rejoice to say that since August 22nd, we have raised for St. James A. M. E Church over $2,700 in clear cash, and Sunday, Nov. 7th, dedicated one of the most beautiful churches in the connection. Bishop Brown officiated; Revs. R. Knight, S. H. Reynolds and Wm. Morris were present.

Personally, I feel that the connectional enterprise of the most importance is our Publishing House, and would favor four years of earnest, strong effort devoted to the task of bringing it out of embarrassment and making it a paying institution. It could be made to raise the episcopal fund, if properly supported. This would happen inside of four years. The present centennial effort has the right ring. We did not observe the 6th for that purpose because we had just finished our church and dedicated it on that date. But we have organized a certain mall club and have prepared a historic monument to be erected to the memory of Bishop Allen. It is made of pine and built in sections, each one of which represents a period in our Church history. The club hopes to send in from $50 to $100 by January first. We also have already authorized Brother Taylor, steward, to purchase about $100 worth of hymn books and Church Services.

IN REPLY TO BISHOP CAMPBELL.

BY REV. J. T. DIGGS.

MR. EDITOR:—Having just read Bishop J. P. Campbell's article [on membership and Church theft] in the issue of this week, with a heartful of regret to see how our beloved Bishop allows himself to be blinded and misled by those in whom he deeply confides, please permit me to set myself aright before Bishops, General Officers, New Jersey Conference and the many readers of our church organ, for the reflection upon me by Bishop Campbell, through his prompter, is greater than I can lie quietly under. Now, as to the pastor at Fair Haven, I have nothing with I only speak for myself. As to theft, I defy Bishop Campbell or anyone else to prove that I have defranded any department of the Church out of one cent, but have given as many dollars as any of those bonds pastors to whom the Bishop refers. All who ever knew me, know that I have been a quiet Methodist pastor for over fifteen years, attending to my own work, taking care of whatsoever was my Bishop saw fit to give me, and making as good a report to the annual conference as any other pastor or presiding elder. I never asked for an appointment nor refused any. I always have taken what was given me and made the best of it, whether little or much. I suppose I have done as much in and for the New Jersey Conference as some others who have made more noise about it. I never thought it worth while to sound a trumpet for what little I could do for God and his cause. For after one has done all he can do, he has only done that which is his duty.

EXPLANATION.

As to the excursion from Newark to Ocean Grove, it was a matter of our church in Newark, and has been running for the last six years, and the pastor of three years ago established the Jubilee at the auditorium as an attraction for the excursionists. The day of the church excursion has heretofore been governed by the day given for the Jubilee. The New Jersey Conference of 1886 appointed the pastors of Orange, Ocean Grove and Newark as a conference committee to assist the General Missionary Secretary in arranging and conducting the affair at the Grove. Everything passed off pleasantly that year, headed by Dr. J. M. Townsend, Missionary Secretary. This year time passed away and nothing was said about the Jubilee. Conference had passed without action as to it. My attention was called to it by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. I wrote to Rev. Dr. Stokes to know what day in July had been given for the Jubilee. He replied by sending me a programme of the season, which had the Jubilee set on the 21st. I then knowing that Dr. Townsend was abroad, wrote to Dr. Arnett, asking if he knew anything of Dr.

escape, and will be seen by the delegation who shall make up the next General Conference, and for his frankness, fearlessness and honesty of purpose, which are known traits of his character, he will no doubt be long and kindly remembered by the brethren as a faithful, progressive condition. Several new mission fields have been entered upon since conference. This work is in the hands of our new or inexperienced men, who are to make full proof of their calling, not by excellency of speech, but by their capability to gather souls for Christ, and to train them in harmony with the teachings of the Holy Scriptures. We rather appreciate the custom of the fathers, who tested well all inexperienced men before clothing them with higher ministerial powers.

PROGRAMME OF THE GREAT CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH, TO BE HELD IN ALL THE CHURCHES IN THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER, 1887.

1. In all the cities where there are two or more A. M. E. Chnrches, as in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Wilmington, Charleston, Nashville, Savannah, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, etc., etc., we earnestly recommend a grand union opening meeting on Wednesday night, November 9th, or on the night of the 16th, uniting all the choirs of the city in one grand sacred concert. Local committees will see to it that the exercises are made lively and effective—a real time of gladness, thanksgiving and praise. Let pastors, choirs and officers be all thoroughly alive to the occasion.

2. On Thursday night, a grand public oration or several addresses on the independence and successful work of our Church. We urge that this meeting be made free of charge, and that tickets therefor be given to all respectable persons who will attend.

3. On Friday, or on the same night of addresses, prepare a "Centennial Banquet." Make it a season of congratulation and pleasure for all.

4. On Sunday morning a Centennial prayer-meeting from 5 to 7 A. M. At 10 o'clock a sermon on the rise and progress of the Church. Text, Acts 13, 41: "Behold, ye dispisers and wonder, (and perish), for I work a work in your days, a work which ye will in no wise believe, thongh a man declare it unto you." (Collect your envelopes).

5. At 2 P. M. Sunday school concert with short addresses. (Collect your envelopes).

6. At night, a eulogy on the life and infinence of Richard Allen. Collect your envelopes. Conclude with the prayer of thanksgiving. (See evening prayer, Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page —), and then repeat the Creed and sing: "From all that dwell below the sky," etc., ending with the doxology, "Praise God from whom all besings flow," and benediction.

II PART.

Programme of the grand concluding celebration to be held in Philadelphia, commencing on Wednesday, November 23d.

1. Wednesday night, Union Sacred Concert, at ——— hall, ——— street, Philadelphia.

2. Thursday night (Thanksgiving Day) Centennial Banquet at each of the churches, or such other exercises as each pastor and his committee may decide to have.

3. Friday night, Grand Literary Meeting, with speaking by the following named gentlemen, at ——— hall, ——— street.

Speakers: Prof. T. McCants Stewart, of N. Y.

2. Rev. ———, of Fla.
3. Rev. C. S. Smith, of Tenn.
4. Rev. William J. Laws, of the Iowa Conference.
5. Portrait of Bishop Allen, life size, executed by the colored artist —— to be presented to the connection by Rev. C. O. Shaffer, through Bishop Payne. Address and reply.

III PART.

1. On Sunday morning, a centennial prayer meeting at 5 o'clock.

2. At 10 30 A. M., centennial sermon on the rise and progress of the Church—text, Acts 13, 41. Collection of envelopes.

3. At 2 P. M. Union Sunday School concert, with short addresses, by chosen persons. Collect envelopes. Philadelphia Sunday schools to be united as follows: Bethel, Zion Mission and Murray Chapel Sunday schools together at Bethel; Allen Chapel and Mt. Pisgah Sunday schools together at Allen; Union Church and Morris Brown, at Union.

4. At night, hymn, O, God our help, etc, 701, Ritual 16. A eulogy on the life and infinence of Richard Allen. Conclude with the prayer for the clergy and people. Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page 160. The prayer for all men, and the general thanksgiving, page 162. Sing the hymn 602, Ritual No. 12, and doxology, "Praise God," etc., Ritual No. 26. Collect envelopes, and report the amount. The creed and benediction.

NORFOLK DISTRICT LETTER.

BY REV. J. E. W. MOORE.

MR. EDITOR:—The work in the Norfolk District advances in every particular, much to the satisfaction of the workmen and all who are immediately concerned.

At Norfolk, the head of the district, there are evidences of energy and thrift both upon the part of the pastor and people. Since our second quarterly meeting at this point thirty-five have been added to the congregation and five hundred and sixty-seven dollars and fifty cents have been collected for building purposes, making a total of two thousand fifteen dollars and thirty-seven cents raised since the annual conference for said purpose. The temporary edifice in which Elder Cook and his people will worship until the completion of the new church was opened for divine worship Sunday, November 6th, the day, according to appointment, of the third quarterly meeting. Everything was properly arranged. The opening was a success. The presiding elder was ably assisted during the day by Dr. Hunter, of Portsmouth, and Elder Peter Sheppard, of Drummondtown. Elder Cook is doing a grand work for God and humanity. Shall we not pray for his continual success?

London Bridge and Princess Anne Circuits are being successfully supervised by Elders Thaddeus Peedan and Lemuel L. Lee. These circuits during my second quarterly visit were under the influence of a gracious revival, since which time some thirty-two accessions have been made to the several churches.

BERKLEY CIRCUIT.

The progress being made by this circuit is an evidence of the worth of Elder Scarboro as a Christian minister. Since our last quarterly meeting thirty-four have been added to this circuit. Our church in Berkley, the head of the circuit, exerts an infinence calculated to strengthen African Methodism in Norfolk county.

The Chesapeake Bay are two counties belonging to the Old Dominion, viz., Accomack and Northampton. In these counties we have two stations, four circuits and four missions. This part of the district has increased in membership twenty per cent since the rise of our last annual conference, and from the present aspect, I think the increase financially will be equal to that in membership.

Elder Offer, at Eastville, has labored incessantly and ardently in this station for nearly three years with cheering results. During our second quarterly visit to this station we were received on probation and a large number of precious souls were at the anxious seat pleading with God for mercy.

Bridgetown Circuit, under the care of Elder B. H. Gowens, has received on probation since conference twenty-six. The elder took hold of the circuit determined to complete the church at Bridgetown. The work goes on successfully. This church when completed will surpass in finish any of our churches on the Eastern Shore.

Elder Lewis, at Franktown, continues to build up this circuit. The new church is in a fair way to be near completion slowly but surely. These people believe in paying as they go. Several accessions have been made to this circuit since conference.

Shepherdsville Circuit moves onward under Elder James A. Haynes, in company with whom I went to Hack's Neck for the purpose of organizing a new mission, but was prevented by the inclement weather, yet the work will go on, for Elder Haynes believes in extending our work.

Onancock Station. This station has been strengthened by a glorious revival, such as they say has not been witnessed there for a number of years. The meeting of the district conference at this point did much toward advancing African Methodism in that vicinity. Too much credit cannot be given to Elder J. C. Williams for the present status of our church at Onancock.

Drummondtown Circuit advances steadily under Elder Sheppard, who will not permit old age to lessen his activity for Christ. In every department of this circuit can be seen the effect of the persevering energy of the Christian father. The work some conferences has been blessed with the outpouring of God's spirit and already number has been added to the church as the fruit will be finally saved.

The mission work of the district is in a progressive condition. Several new mission fields have been entered upon since conference. This work is in the hands of our new or inexperienced men, who are to make full proof of their calling, not by excellency of speech, but by their capability to gather souls for Christ, and to train them in harmony with the teachings of the Holy Scriptures. DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

BY REV. S. M. JOHNSON.

MR. EDITOR:—Please allow me space in your paper to say something about the Baltimore District Conference, which met in Water's A. M. E. Chapel, Baltimore, October 19, 1887. The pastor, Rev. R. F. Wayman, had made all arrangements for the reception of the conference. Rev. William B. Arnold, the presiding elder, called the conference to order, and conducted religious exercises by singing hymn, "And are we yet alive."—p. 264. At the conclusion of the hymn, Rev. R. F. Wayman offered a prayer that will long be remembered; after which Rev. J. M. Cargill was elected secretary, and your humble servant reporter for the RECORDER. The hour of meeting was 9 o'clock and the hour for adjournment was 1 o'clock. The elder appointed the committees and they were confirmed by the conference. The presiding elder was asked to make his report, which he promptly complied with. It was found that four churches were deficient. Rev. J. M. Cargill moved that the conference would say to those churches, they were not exempted from the law. Rev. W. A. Gaither seconded and Rev. James T. Morris were introduced. The report of the financial ability of the people throughout the district was called for. Rev. R. F. Wayman, the chairman of the committee, read a very interesting report on the subject, pointing out the financial ability of our people; after which the conference made some very creditable addresses on the same. Rev. J. M. Cargill read a programme for the District Sunday School Convention, which was referred to committee on Sunday schools. Meeting adjourned. Benediction by Rev. C. Bourne.

EVENING SESSION.

The district conference convened at 8 o'clock to hear the opening sermon by Rev. William B. Arnold, presiding elder. Hymn, "Oh, for a heart to praise my God."—p. 491. The elder selected for his text, "But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man shall be blessed in his deeds."—James I, 25. Subject, "The perfection of the law of God," and he spoke at length. Among many other good things he said, "Man made in the image of his Creator, has a copious soul; to fear God and to keep his commandments are too often overlooked as important duties. This passage points out to us in a clear manner the mistakes made in this direction. It is my opinion that this scripture points to revelation in general: it is the law of love. What is the law? And what is love? Law is some precept of moral action and a rule by which to measure moral deportment. Cursed be the man who shall question the authority of the Law-giver. This law is the rule by which he measures the lives of his subjects. Love is the first impression made on man's heart. It is the standard by which all moral action should be governed, and the humblest creature can keep it to the glory of God. Every obligation urges that man should love his God and his fellows. Christ has given a new commandment, that you love one another. This is the law of liberty; even the archangel could not unfold the perfection of the law. This law is perfect from so high a source needs no amendments. All other law has been repealed or amended, but this law declares what must, and what shall be done." At the conclusion of the sermon, Rev. J. M. Cargill read the following resolution:

Resolved, That we, the members of the Baltimore District Conference now in session, have heard with pleasure the able and instructive discourse from Rev. William B. Arnold, presiding elder, do by vote affirm it, as well worth our highest indorsement. Signed, J. M. Cargill, R. F. Wayman, S. M. Johnson.

SECOND DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Conference convened at 9 30 o'clock, Rev. William B. Arnold in the chair. Rev. J. H. Ballard conducted exercises by reading hymn, "Jesus, great shepherd of the sheep," and offered prayer. The report of the moral worth of the people in the district was called for, and Rev. C. Bourne, the chairman of the committee, presented a very worthy paper, showing the advancement of our people morally. Rev. G. T. Watkins, B. D., Lloyd W. M. Traverse were introduced. Rev. J. M. Cargill read the paper on the subject, "The means necessary to make the churches financially more prosperous." The paper was witty and proved many to be friends of Trinidad. He is the progeny of a father born in Connecticut, and a mother, a native of St. Christopher, B. I. He received his primary education in the West Indies. On coming to the United States he once entered Strait University, New Orleans, and continued to pursue his studies, after which he engaged in the vocation of teacher in the public schools of Louisiana and Mississippi.

In 1876 he entered the itinerant ranks of the Methodist Episcopal Church, where he gave much satisfaction. But on learning of the superior advantages that awaited him as a minister of the Gospel in the A. M. E. Church, he renounced his allegiance to his former church, and was received at Cape Girardeau, Mo., by the Rt. Rev. T. M. D. Ward as an elder, and was at once appointed pastor of St. Peter's Chapel, St. Louis, Mo.

He found the church in ruins, the result of a fearful cyclone, by reason of which the congregation had become disheartened and scattered. He at once called a meeting of the remaining members of St. Peter's Chapel and regrouped them, stimulating them with new courage and impetus. He, with his Board of Trustes, then changed the former model of this church and rebuilt for his congregation an edifice commensurate with the spirit and genius of the mechanic, artisan and intelligence men of the period, the cost of which was $7,-000. At the expiration of the two years he had cancelled the debt, and, with a membership of a hundred and twenty, full of hope and ambition, he left his flock and departed.

In September, 1885, Elder R. L Beal, having received the appointment by Rt. Rev. John M. Brown as pastor of Bethel A. M. E. Church in San Francisco, arrived in this city and found his church recently reconstructed in its interior and exterior and refurnished in a manner that necessarily (in view of its diminutive congregation) resulted in causing him to find a debt of more than ordinary magnitude to contend with. Yet, after finishing two terms with Bethel Church Society in this city through his vigilance, intelligence and industry, he has succeeded in meeting the current expenses of said church, including interest on mortgage, which he has also decreased, also reduced the floating debt.

In conclusion we are free to assert that we hazard nothing in saying that Elder Richard Lewis Beal and his amiable companion carry with them the best wishes of the good people of the state of California wherever they may roam in aid of the Christian Church.—The Elevator.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE
THE BEST RESTORER.

Dr. T. C. SMITH, Charlotte, N. C., says: "It is an invaluable nerve tonic, and the best restorer when the energies flag, and spirits droop."

A banquet was given Oct. 28, in Paris, in celebration of the anniversary of the dedication of the statue of "Liberty Enlightening the World" in New York harbor. Mr. McLane, United States minister; Mr. Blaine; M. Spuller, minister of public instruction; M. de Lafayette, Col. Lichenstein, of President Grevy's military household, accepted invitations to be present. The invitations were issued in the name of Count de Lesseps. Members of the French-American club were in attendance at the banquet.

DEFENDING NORTH LOUISIANA ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

BY REV. I. J. WILLIAMS.

MR. EDITOR:—Please grant me the privilege of speaking a few commonplace words through the RECORDER. I appear in the defense of North Louisiana; its Bishop and members, in answer to an article by Rev. J. H. Hord, one and one only, member of North Louisiana, which appears in the RECORDER of October 13th, 1887, entitled "North Louisiana on the Transfer System." North Louisiana has never yet, to my knowledge, been called upon to discuss the transfer system. Never was any opposition more untrue. Had the writer said that he, J. H. Hord, was expressing his sentiment on the transfer system he would have said the truth and nothing else but the truth before God. But when he says finds a Bishop blamed for doing what the law directs him to do (transferring ministers from one conference to the other conference). How can these things be when a Bishop in the A. M. E. Church, by virtue of law, has the right to transfer ministers? Brother Hord ought to know that the transfer system was not intended for a cloak with which men's sins are to be hid from the ruling of justice, and this is not the conception of North Louisiana. Brother Hord ought to have said, I am not opposed to the transfer system, instead of saying that "North Louisiana says so." North Louisiana has said nothing respecting the subject and Brother Hord is not the North Louisiana Conference, but one single member of that conference. The writer should have said, "I," instead of "we," are opposed to men coming to our conference through that system, for that conference has never yet asked J. H. Hord to speak for it. There are two transferred ministers to this conference: Revs. J. W. Hamilton and J. Goins, who are tried and true men, just what Brother Hord says he wants, and they are filling that important position—presiding elders—and they are doing the people without a fault. He, Hord, should have said, and not "we" do not believe in the Bishop taking up men along the road and bringing them to the North Louisiana Conference, etc. This truly is not the sentiment of North Louisiana Conference. If the Bishops think ministers will be more useful and are more needed in one conference than another, he is wise to say to them, follow them we, as I suppose Bishop A. W. Wayman did when he transferred Rev. Dr. Goins to North Louisiana. Of course pick them up on the road, for men like Hankins and Goins cannot and must not be passed by. Ever more bring such men, Bishop These men might have asked for a transfer; how ever, North Louisiana is proud of them. Brother Hord throws a red action when he says, "We want men born of God and divinely called to preach the gospel, that can stand grubbing." If he has to grub them through the paper they can't stand it. I admit without this qualification all others are utterly useless but I from my very soul pity the man who attempts to direct others in a way that he himself has never known. But Jesus has settled this matter at once when he said, "If the blind lead the blind, both will fall into the ditch." That is, if the unconverted teach the unconverted they both will fall into hell. Then let a preacher examine himself.

ELDER RICHARD LEWIS BEAL.

The above named clergyman, who has just finished his second term as pastor of Bethel A. M. E. Church in this city, has, in our opinion, much to be proud of—because of his ancestry, because of his antecedents and by reason of having enjoyed through life, up to the present period of his eventful existence, an enviable reputation as a man, and distinguished, though unassuming, unheralded and nncontestatious leader in the great Christian Church of the world, regardless in the main from what his actions in unity have demonstrated in our midst, from the date of his arrival on the golden shores of the Pacific accompanied by his inestimable consort, until he has finished his holy mission of creed or faith, other than the unbelievers in the great Jehovah, God.

Elder Beal first beheld the sunlight of day and the silvery moon and twinkling stars illuminating the firmament by night on the island of Trinidad. He is the progeny of a father born in Connecticut, and a mother, a native of St. Christopher, B. I. He received his primary education in the West Indies. On coming to the United States he once entered Strait University, New Orleans, and continued to pursue his studies, after which he engaged in the vocation of teacher in the public schools of Louisiana and Mississippi.

PLEASE NOTE THIS.—Our Centennial Envelopes are sent out for collection in behalf of the Department only. They are not to be used for making local collections. They are not to be returned to us, but we want the money only. Open them in church, count the money, and send it by postal order or bank draft, payable to Bishop J. P Campbell. Address all letters containing centennial money to Rev. J. C. Embry, 631 Pine St., Philadelphia. Where no orders can be gotten, register the amount and address the letter as above. In making returns of Centennial collections, please give name of pastor, name of the church and the name of secretary of committee, also the conference.

J. C. EMBRY, Manager

THERE will be very strong opposition at our next General Conference to retaining both presiding elders and episcopal districts, and so there ought to be.

BEING considerably indisposed in the early part, and extraordinarily busy in the latter part of last week, we enlisted the ready pen of Dr. C. S. Smith. The three editorials, "Use Your Sword," "Thanksgiving" and "Our Sunday School Literature" are to be accredited to his kindness.

CENTENNIAL returns are coming in rapidly and encouragingly. Rev. Jonas Moutgomery, of Eaton, Pa., sent in the first fruits. The largest amount thus far has come from Dr. Jenifer, at Providence, R. I. We observe from communications, that large money has been collected at some other places, but it has not yet reached this office.

WE ARE very grateful to Rev. J. M. Henderson, of St. Paul, Minn., for raising nearly $3,000 since August, completing the beautiful new church and saying cheerful words for the Book Concern. His article in this issue of the RECORDER includes a very practical reference to this department. If once the Publishing Department can be put on its feet squarely, it will do all that Brother Houderson suggests; take care of itself and pay our Bishops.

THE CHRISTIAN RECORDER premium Calendar for 1888 is out. We expect to raise our subscription by March 1st, to at least 10,000. In order to do this we are offering probably as attractive a list of premiums as ever went from this office. No less than forty different articles are offered to choose from on securing us a single subscriber, while for larger numbers we shall give out good watches, silver sets, parlor organs, bicycles, silk dress patterns, parlor sets, &c., &c.

THE BENEFIT which the ocunection will derive from the Centennial cannot be easily estimated. Where a whole week is given to the subject, our people will receive a new impetus and our work will advance rapidly. Rev. W. H. Bryant, of Chester, Pa., thus celebrated the A. M. E. Centennial, sparing no pains to make it serviceable to all concerned. His audiences were good all the week.

The programme of Dr. Jenifer was very interesting. His address on the A. M. E. Church was entertaining and instructive.

THE CENTENNIAL PROGRAMME of Dr. Derrick, in New York, included two entire weeks and engaged the attention of nearly all denominations, beneficial and benevolent associations, many African Methodist preachers from suburban charges, the editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, Rev. N. B. Stewart, of British Guiana, and Bishop Disney, of the Tenth Episcopal District. The following is an outline of his elaborate programme: Sunday, November 13th, General Praise and Song Meeting: preaching by Rt. Rev. R. R. Disney; November 14th, address to Daughters of Conference and Centennial Committee, by Rev. J. P. Sampson, A.M.; November 15th, The Church's Night—Fraternal Greetings; November 16th, Grand Army Night; November 17th, Old Folks' Night; November 18th, Society Night; November 20th, preaching, morning and night, by B. F. Lee, Centennial Sacramental at 3 P. M.; November 21st, Addresses to Knights Templar and other orders; November 22nd, Young People's Night; November 23d, Madame Selika and Blind Tom, at Steinway Hall; November 24th, Children's Night; November 25th, Members' Night——Farewell. It is very doubtful whether African Methodism in New York ever before wielded so great influence as in this centennial demonstrations. The secular press throughout the city paid the greatest deference to the meetings and the subjects treated, giving the doctor a crowded house on nearly every occasion.

THANKSGIVING.

According to the proclamation of the President and of the governors of the several States, the American people are recommended to observe this day as one of thanksgiving to the Creator of the universe for his continued mercies and blessings. The spirit that prompts the setting apart of one day in each year for such a purpose is in keeping with the highest needs of humanity, and is in substantial agreement with the desire of every soul that looks up through nature to nature's God. The trend of the most enlightened thought of all civilized people is toward peace and unity; a fact itself that furnishes an occasion for real thanksgiving and praise, and which is due to the presence of the divine influences that found their incarnation and expression in the life and utterances of the Prince of Peace. The signs of the times point to the near approach of the day when all the world shall be kin. Another occasion for rejoicing is the general prosperity which the country at present enjoys. We have been preserved from the ravages of war, the distress of famine and the blight of pestilence. Our national advancement has been commensurate with the general prosperity that has existed, and has revealed to us more fully the important mission that we are to fill among the nations of the earth. The day has its lessons for all, whether high or low, rich or poor. It teaches us that this nation is founded on the God-idea, that it recognizes the existence of a supreme and overruling Providence, and that the benign influences of the sanctuary are helpful in molding both individual and national life. It is to be hoped that on this day the voice of rioting and revelry will not be heard in the land, but that everywhere the people will rejoice and give thanks in a manner in keeping with the dignity of our citizenship, and the consciousness of our accountability to Him from whom cometh every good and perfect gift.

OUR SUNDAY SCHOOL LITERATURE.

Previous to 1885 the A. M. E. Church had but two Sunday school publications—The Child's Recorder and the Turner Catechism. To these two the Sunday School Union has added eight others, as follows: the Teacher's Quarterly, the Scholar's Quarterly, Juvenile Lesson Paper, Gem Lesson Paper, Primary Lessons for Beginners, the Handy Songster, Sunday School Record and Teacher's Class-book, making a full complement of graded Sunday school helps. Comparing periods of time, it will be seen that, in the production of Sunday school literature, the Sunday School Union, in two years, accomplished just four times as much as the Church accomplished in sixty-nine years. This does not mean that the Church could not have accomplished more, but merely that it did not. The great lack of the Church has been not so much in ability as in organization. Prior to the formation of the Sunday School Union we had made no organized effort to provide our Sunday schools with a suitable literature, and to turn the profits of the business resulting therefrom into our own coffers and to our own account. We were content to enrich others and leave ourselves poor. It is said, however, that everything that ought to be comes in its own order and time. The Sunday School Union was formed at a time when the conditions were such that its success was assured from the begining. The Church realized its need, the possibilities of its usefulness, and was, therefore, prepared to give it a hearty welcome. The responses to the benevolent demands of the Union during the present quadrennium, as indicated by the report of Children's Day money are exceedingly gratifying, nearly sixteen thousand dollars having been contributed to that fund.

The business that the Union has developed is, perhaps, one of the best evidences of its success and usefulness. It has "gathered up the fragments" to a much larger extent than was anticipated by its most sanguine friends. The semi-annual statement, published in last week's issue of this paper, shows that, during a period of six months, the business of the Union amounted to $5,028.98, which at the same proportion would amount to over $10,000 a year. This represents the present business of the Union from the sales of its publications, miscellaneous books, etc., and does not include one cent of Children's Day money. Ten thousand dollars handled by ourselves that used to be handled by others, and the profits therefrom being used to build up our own institutions. So long as denominational institutions are regarded as necessary they should be sustained to the fullest extent of our ability and resources.

The Union has succeeded admirably in providing a suitable literature for our schools. There is nothing flimsy or trashy about a single one of its publications, and they will compare favorably with the best of their kind that can be obtained elsewhere. The same reasons that urge the use of our Church literature by our churches, also urge the use of our Sunday school literature by our Sunday schools. Not only is it adapted to our wants, and in matter and style equal to the best, but is as cheap as any other. It has been examined and received the unqualified endorsement of the best Sunday school workers in our Church, and is being used by hundreds of our schools. There are, strange to say, hundreds of others that do not use it, and the main object of this article is to entreat all to fall into line. The year 1888 is rapidly approaching and our schools will be renewing their orders for lesson helps. From whom will you order? If you are loyal to your own institutions, and desire their prosperity, you will order of our own Sunday School Union, the only authorized publishers of lesson helps for African Methodist Sunday schools. There is nothing gained by helping to build up and enrich others. Our first duty is to ourselves. Instead of ten thousand the Union ought to do a business of at least twenty-five thousand dollars a year, and will when all of our schools shall have fallen into line. The Union is prepared to furnish every A. M. E. Sunday School with all the literature it may need. Let every school give it a fair trial, and we are sure that satisfaction will follow.

USE YOUR SWORD.

Trite and seemingly inexplicable was the saying of the Master, "I came not to bring peace but a sword." He was not a man of war, but of peace; and yet he knew that his firm and unyielding defense of the right would create strife, stir up the passions of men, disturb the peace of society, divide families, cover the strongest ties of friendship, fill the streets of Jerusalem with the cry of an enraged and howling mob—Crucify him! Crucify him! and that there would be wars and rumors of war until the principles he enunciated, and for which he died, should dominate the life and thought of all kindreds and tribes of people. True to his mission, he breathed the spirit of peace whenever and wherever it would avail; but when it was necessary he wielded the sword—the sword of stinging rebuke and bold denunciation of wrong doing, both in high and low places, and branded the selfish and corrupt leaders of a misguided people as vipers and hypocrites; and though they gnashed their teeth and sought to do him violence, he remained firm and undaunted. He acted upon the principle that honorable warfare is better than dishonorable peace, and that peace secured at the sacrifice of right and duty is not the peace that is permanent and abiding. Every person called by the Spirit and sent forth by the authority of the Church to preach the gospel is supposed to carry a sword, which is the symbol of his warfare, his conviction of duty, his devotion to principle, his courage, aggressiveness and loyalty.

Use your sword. It is the symbol of your warfare. Paul exhorts us to fight the good fight. Our weapon—the sword of the Spirit which is the word of God; and he tells us that the word of God is sharper and quicker and more powerful than a two-edged sword, piercing and dividing asunder even to the joint and the marrow. No Christian minister can hope to war a successful warfare without inciting enmity against him. Remember that though foes assail, it is your business to use your sword.

Use your sword. It is the symbol of your conviction of duty. There can be no stability of action unless there is positive conviction of duty. It was the sublime conviction of duty that led the Master to tread the wine-press alone. Are you a leader? If so, what is the mainspring of your action? Selfish ambition? Thirst for gain? Desire for popular applause? To be counted a good fellow by the crowd? Scorn such motives. Hold them in utter contempt. They are groveling and unmanly. Be actuated by a firm conviction of duty grounded in reason and righteousness.

Use your sword. It is the symbol of your devotion to principle, of which Christian martyrdom is the highest expression. Never struggle in a cause in a half-hearted way. The advocacy of right principles is worthy of your most intense and constant devotion, and herein is explained the saying of the Master: "He that loveth father or mother more than me is not worthy of me." Whatever right principles you embrace, whether they relate to a religious or a civic society, prove the sincerity of your acceptance of them by your devotion to them. If you are a preacher, you are a leader; and in whatever branch of the Church militant you may have cast you lot, let your devotion to the cause which you represent be the seal of your sincerity. Your devotion will be the measure of your earnestness, and in proportion to your earnestness so will be your success.

Use your sword. It is the symbol of your courage. Cowards don't carry swords except for bravado, and they are never found fighting at the front, but always skulking in the rear. The highest and most endoring courage is that which springs from a firm conviction of duty. The ultimate success of even the most important causes is oftimes hazarded by the lack of courage on the part of their champions. Many a crisis is left unsettled because those who possess the virtue of courage fail to display it, and many a wrong is allowed to go unchallenged and unrebuked for the same reason. It is useless to have convictions on any principle or line of duty unless there is the necessary courage to emphasize them. This is what is meant by the saying: Faith without works is dead. In the selection of leaders no greater mistake can be made than to choose persons who have not the courage of their convictions. The Church stands sadly in need of brave, courageous leaders.

Use your sword. It is the symbol of your aggressiveness. If at times the Church seems to be more like a parched pool than a gushing torrent, it is because its leaders have relaxed their aggressiveness, and, like the intrepid but impolitic Hannibal, have pitched their tents on the plains in sight of the enemy, instead of marching to victory. The age demands that those who assume to lead in any department of life shall be aggressive. The Christian warfare is perpetual, and those who are engaged in it are required to go from conquest to conquest. No halting or lagging, but aggressive action. Our Church needs to be possessed of a greater spirit of aggressiveness than it now can justly claim. There is much territory that we can occupy, many heights where we can plant our banners, outlying posts that we can man, and multitudes of souls whose present and eternal destiny we can influence along the line of righteousness and truth. Give us an aggressive leadership and we shall not only recover our lost ground, but advance to new victories and more splendid achievements.

Use your sword. It is the symbol of your loyalty, and, if you are a leader the insignia of your position. The rank and file of an army carry muskets, the commanders always carry swords, and in the thickest of the conflict their gleaming blades can be seen piercing the smoke of battle, pointing their undaunted followers to this or that object of attack. The true commander never sheaths his sword so long as there is an enemy to be subdued. Your obedience to constitutional authority will be the chief test of your loyalty. It is painful to witness the impunity with which a few men among us flagrantly violate constitutional enactments and defy constitutional authority. Certain enactments passed by the last General Conference are no more regarded by these men than if they had emanated from the seat of Russian despotism. The unity of no organization can be perpetuated unless its lawful authority is obeyed and respected. This can be demonstrated with the same precision as can the axiom: The whole is greater than any of its parts. All the members of any organization are equally bound to obey its authority. This is an inexorable law from which none can justly claim exemption. The one great need of our Church is loyal leaders—a loyalty that will be evidenced by cheerful obedience to the mandates of the body of which they are the creatures.

Use your sword—not only as the symbol of your fidelity to your Master, but to the denomination of which you are a member, remembering that loyalty to constitutional authority is the price of perpetual unity.

Personal.

—James Russell Lowell will contribute a paper on Walter Savage Landor to the Century. It will be accompanied with a number of unpublished letters by Landor

—Mark Twain has written something in the form of a play, entitled "Meisterschaft," which will appear in an early number of The Century. The play, as may be supposed, is in two languages

—Dr. B. W. Arnett is in the city furnishing facts and figures for the Centenial celebration that takes place here this week. The doctor appears to be in excellent health, and is full of enthusiasm for African Methodism.

—Hon. C. H. J. Taylor, the accredited representative of this government to the Republic of Liberia, is in the city en route to New York. Mr. Taylor will not return to Liberia. He has tendered his resignation, to take effect January 11. He entertains a very poor opinion of Liberia.

—Rev. T. Gould writes from Boston that "Charles Street A. M. E. Church is alive. We have had one hundred accessions since conference. On Sunday, Nov. 13th, was rally day, at which time $827.95 was collected." He adds that he hopes to raise the amount to twelve or fourteen hundred dollars on next Sunday—gleaning day.

Literature.

That capital serial, "A Man of the Name of John," is concluded in the December number of Cassell's Family Magazine.

A pathetic account of an organized method adopted by our soldiers, when in the field, for celebrating the return of Christmas, will be given in the December number of The American Magazine, by one of the survivors of the society which held its last meeting during the war.

Mrs. F. H. Burnett's new story will begin in the Christmas number of St Nicholas. It is called Sara Crewe, and it depicts the life of a little girl in a boarding-school in London. This number of St. Nicholas will have stories by Washington Gladden, H. H. Boyesen, Frank R. Stockton, and J. T. Trowbridge, with an illustrated account of the voyage of the World balloon, written by the reporter who took the trip from St. Louis last summer.

The Quiver for December opens a new volume and we will venture to say that no handsomer number of this periodical was ever issued. Not only is the quantity of the magazine increased but its quality has been vastly improved. The frontispiece of the current number is a beautiful lithograph representing a young bride bidding good-bye to the old home. The parents kiss her farewell at the cottage door while the husband waits until she turns to him to begin her new life.

Messrs. Cassell & Company, Limited, announce that they are about to publish The Woman's World in this country as well as in Europe. There is no magazine in America that is published exclusively in the interests and for the sole edification of women, or perhaps we should say which covers the field so thoroughly as does The Woman's World. Mr. Oscar Wilde, whose name is a household word and who has long been regarded as the apostle of good taste in dress, is the editor, and he has gathered around him a staff of writers which anyone who consults the list will say is at least remarkable. There are titled ladies by the score and there seems to be no well known writer on either side of the ocean who has not promised a contribution.

The Pansy has begun its new year already, the year we shall shortly be calling 1888. Pansy's story to last all through the year is "Up Garret," sequel to "A Sevenfold Tronble," with the same people in it. Her Golden Text Story is "We Twelve Girls," an actual history of how twelve girls tried to live by certain golden texts. Margaret Sidney also makes another story ont of the Children that figured in the "Little Red Shop" last year. Her story this year is about "The Old Brimmer Place." Rev C M Livingston writes a serial, "Treasures: Their Hiding and Finding" The Pansy is going on as heretofore, a monthly magazine made up of weekly parts: the first part containing Pansy's Golden Text and other stories: the second part Pansy's own and other stories; the third part stories of what is going on in America; the fourth part stories of life abroad; the fifth of missionary work. This weekly arrangement adapts it to Sunday School use, the weekly parts being given out separately. It is better than any Sunday school paper; indeed it is the Sunday school paper. A sample copy can be got by sending five cents to the publishers, D. Lothrop Company, Boston

OPEN LETTER.

TO THE TRUSTEES OF ALLEN UNIVERSITY, COULMBIA, S C.:

DEAR BRETHREN:—Rev. Wm. H. Heard officially notifies me that you have elected me to the deanship of Allen University Theological Department. With prayerful consideration and thoughtfulness, I have been trying to see the possibility of my coming to your call. I am, indeed, sorry to find that the condition of African Methodism in this city will not allow me to leave just now. This is the opinion of experienced pastors, therefore I am compelled to pray you to have me excused. I assure you, however, that I am in sympathy with Allen University and am deeply interested in the progress of the people of my native State and conference and exceedingly regret that circumstances will not allow me to obey your maternal and fraternal call. I trust that in the not distant future, I shall be able to serve you in a much humbler sphere.

Fraternally yours,
JOSHUA HENRY JONES.

Centennial Circular.

1st. When the Jubilee Week has come let the first two days—Monday and Tuesday—be spent as days of preparation. First, by visiting and cheering your friends, by settling old disputes and becoming reconciled heartily with all men.

2d. Visiting the old and sick in your church and neighborhood. Tell them of the Centennial, pray for them and give them some relief, if in your power. Confess your sins to God. Get his blessing. Be thankful for His bounty. Think of what great things He has done for us in the past hundred years. Be merry in your heart, in your house, at your work and sing. Then make up your mind to do something during this effort that will send a blessing to those who shall celebrate the bi-centennial in 1987.

NOTE TO THE PASTOR.—Call your committee, namely: the Stewards, Leaders, Stewardesses and Superintendent of the Sunday School. Organize at once. The pastor is chairman. After naming your secretary and treasurer we recommend the following committees to be appointed: 1. Committee on printing and distributing tickets. 2. Committee on Centennial Banquet for Thursday or Friday night. 3. Committee on decorations and music. Try to make enough out of your tickets and banquet to cover all expenses, and if there be a few dollars, or a hundred, left over, all well. What we want is this: Send for our envelopes and distribute them to every man, woman and child in the church and Sunday school at least ten days in advance of the time. These you will ask the people to put their contributions in and return on Sunday, all giving according to their ability, from 5 cents to $1.00. Count up and report the whole amount contributed on Sunday, and on Monday morning the names of the city or town (or circuit to which the church is joined). 2. Name of pastor, name of secretary and address, name of Sunday school superintendent and his address. To each one of these names we wish to send a Centennial copy of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, to be issued about December 18th or 22d, containing a complete list of all churches, with the names of pastors, secretaries and superintendents, that have held a celebration and the amount contributed to the "Centennial Publication Fund."

Call your meeting early, choose your week in the Centennial month and notify us at once of your intentions to celebrate, and the number of envelopes you will need. Publish the matter; aim to make it a grand success.

Yours for Christ and His Church,

A. M. E. CENTENNIAL COMMITTEE.
J. C. EMBRY, Corresponding Secretary, Box 906.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

We begin once more to send out subscription bills. We urgently request all who are in arrears for the paper to pay us immediately.

Please remember that subscription to the paper is payable in advance. We shall be compelled to stop sending to all who owe us until payment is made.

Respectfully Yours,
J. C. EMBRY, Manager.

NOTICE FROM THE MANAGER.

1st. On and after December 1, 1887, we resume the cash plan of business. All orders for merchandise, books and Church requisites must come with the money.

2d In making orders, first ascertain the price of what you want, then send on your order.

Remember, cash with your order after this.

NOTICE BY THE MANAGER.

We again call the attention of the pastors and presiding elders to the form of Warranty Deed we have prepared and published for general use in the purchase of church properties. The form is simple, and plain as plain can be, yet it is believed to cover every point in the law. It was drawn by an old experienced attorney, with our Discipline before him. Price, 25 cents per copy, or 5 for $1.00.

TO THE NORTH ALABAMA CONFERENCE.

All candidates for elder's orders and third year's sindies are requested to meet in Brown's Chapel, Selma, Ala., on the 22d day of November, 1887. By order of Bishop Payne.

J. M. GOODLOE,
F. B. MORELAND,
Committee on 3d year's studies and elders' orders.

NOTICE.

To the Fifth Presiding Elder District, New Jersey Conference. Brethren: You are hereby requested to hold Centennial meetings and take Ceutennial collections this month.

Truly Your Brother,
G. M. WITTEN, P. E.

NOTICE.

We again urge the pastors who shall take part in the Centennial to make returns promptly to Bishop J. P. Campbell. Send by postal order, if possible, but when this cannot be done, register the money in a letter addressed to J. C. Embry, and be sure to mark inside, "Centennial Fund."

In all cases, give the name of the pastor, and the name of the church, and tell us the conference you are in, as we desire to credit each conference with the amount sent by it in our report. By doing this you will oblige us, and facilitate our work.

A receipt will be sent to each and all persons immediately on receiving their money.

J. C. EMBRY, Manager.

NOTICE.

All candidates for admission into the Alabama Conference must put in their appearance at Eufaula, Ala., Tuesday morning, November 29, 1887, for examination; and, also, all those on the first year's study must be present at the same time. Positively the committee will not examine any candidates after Tuesday night. The conference will meet on Wednesday morning, 30th, and our reports must be ready.

E. H. DIXON, Chairman,
Montgomery, Ala., Sept. 17, 1887.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E. Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22, 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the House of God, and even pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat"

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitians, under Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E. Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the founder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and his Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, R. R. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

The following was the recommendation of the committee:

36. African Methodism as seen from without.—J. S. Durham.

JOHN M. BOWN Chairman.
BENJAMIN W. ARNETT, Secretary.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that services be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangements to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J. P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November he observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver one or more addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the General Conference Volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes.

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The secretaries of the Conferences that have elected ministerial and lay delegates to the General conference to convene at Indianapolis, Ind., May, 1888, are hereby urgently requested to forward, at once, names of said delegates, and name of conference. The conferences that have not yet elected said delegates, secretaries are requested to forward names of delegates and name of conference at their earliest opportunity. We are anxious to push the work of preparation as fast as possible. Please write names plainly that there be no mistakes.

Delegates bringing their wives, and all visiting brethren not directly connected with the Conference, must come prepared to pay for board and lodging. We shall provide for members of the General Conference only.

Direct all communications to John W. Gazway, 214 West Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind.

This is pertinently put: "Boycott your temper, strike your vices, and work for your living."

I have been benefited by praying for others; for making an errand to God for them I have got something for myself.

It is in vain for anyone to speak of divine things without something of divine affections. He has not been able to prevail upon himself to be holy, and no marvel if he fail in prevailing upon others.

Afflictious hunt us again into God's fold when we have leaped out. Here are God's file to rub off our dust; God's soap and fuller's earth to remove spots; God's fan to blow away our chaff.—Francis Roberts.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTICE.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints. 1st, Because it furnishes the most natural method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. Because it shows how to confer with man and God, and yet with power and success." 3rd. Because "it exposes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to correct them." Its reviewers advise that the book be carefully read, because "they will find in it much that they never thought of"—because "the very hints they most need to receive and profit by are those most critical works—because "it is replete with shrewd, hard, sensible sense"—because "it is a book for all ministers, however educated,—because it is assured by many to be the most helpful book they ever read. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

THE ENGLISH SPARROW.

Whatever doubt in regard to the wholly injurious habits of the English Sparrow, Passer domesticus, may have remained in the minds of farmers and gardeners, it must now be dispelled, when the mass of facts are fully known which have been collected by the Department of Agriculture, and published in the Report of 1886, recently distributed.

The information on this subject in the possession of the Department was obtained in answer to circulars which it had distributed in all parts of the country. Thirty-two hundred replies have been received.

The ravages of the English Sparrow affect almost every crop produced by the farmer, fruit-grower and truck gardener, and extend over the entire year. Indeed, it is safe to say that it now exerts a more marked effect upon the agricultural interest of this country than any other species of bird; and its unprecedented increase and spread, taken in connection with the extent of its ravages in certain districts, may be regarded with grave apprehension. In the early spring it prevents the growth of a vast quantity of fruit buds of trees, bushes and vines, of which the Peach, Pear, Plum, Cherry, Apple, Apricot, Currant and Grape suffer most.

But it is not only the buds, but the fruit itself, which is eaten or mutilated so as to make it worthless.

Detailed accounts are given of ins destroying Lettuce, Peas, Beets, Radishes, Cabbages, Cauliflower, Blackberries, Raspberries, Strawberries, Grapes, Tomatoes, Plums, Peaches, Pears, and Apples. It appears to be particularly destructive to Grapes.

The Report commends to the legislative bodies of various States and Territories "the immediate repeal of all existing laws which afford protection to the English Sparrow.

"The enactment of laws legalizing the killing of the English Sparrow at all seasons of the year, and the destruction of its nests, eggs and young," and other legislation providing for the destruction of the birds by persons appointed for the purpose.—Vick's Magazine for November

THE PILLOW-INHALER

Introducing, as it does, an entirely new form of inhalation, is the most powerful cure that has ever been discovered for catarrh, bronchitis, incipient consumption, and all diseases that affect the respiratory organs.

The Pillow-Inhaler enables a person to inhale the fumes of appropriate medicine constantly while he sleeps. The inhalation is done at night, while the patient is taking ordinary rest and refreshment in sleep. The Inhaler is apparently an elegant hair-pillow, and contains no machinery, nothing to get out of order, nothing to explode, and has no concealed reservoirs in which are poured healing balme, the volatile vapors of which permeate the patient's inflamed tubes and air-cells and produce marvelous results. It is perfectly safe and can be used by any one.

The testimonials as to the efficacy of the Pillow-Inhaler, which have accumulated during the past six years, are such an array of extraordinary facts as would be almost incredible, but for the fact that they are in the handwriting of multitudes who have been cured and benefited.

Inhaling for a few minutes a day by the old-fashioned method of portable tube inhalers sometimes cured; imagine the increased power arising from a prolongation of the act to about eight hours in every twenty-four.

If you are a sufferer and have been so long, you have become very skeptical, but if you will try the Pillow-Inhaler, your skepticism as to the possibility of relief and a removal of the festering issues and distressing breath will become vividly apparent to you each day. The Pillow-Inhaler will cure catarrh; it makes no difference what else has failed.

Call and see it or send for explanatory pamphlet and testimonials. The Pillow Inhaler Co., 1520 Chestnut Street (2d floor), Philadelphia, Pa.

The Austrian government has introduced a bill in the reichsrath to restrict excessive drinking. The result of this tyrannuous act will be to drive the oppressed sons of Austria to America, the land of the free, where there are no despots to say that a citizen shall not drink himself under the table if it pleases him to do so.

A ferryman on the lower Danube, who has been in the habit of conveying across the river workmen returning from Roumania, who took this route to avoid producing certificates that they paid taxes in Roumania or money in default thereof, has taken them to a small island, where he murdered and robbed them of their savings. A judicial inquiry reveals the astounding fact that hundreds of workmen have been dispatched by the fiend and their bodies buried or thrown into the reeds along the river banks.

When two men start out with the understanding that they are to get full they decorate the town with all-agree work.—Merchant Traveler.

A PARTY OF HARVARD STUDENTS

Visited Cape Cod last summer to study the natural history of the coast. Their amusing experiences have been described by one of their number for the Youth's Companion, which will publish the article in its coming volume.

NOTICE FROM THE MANAGER.

1st. On and after December 1, 1887, we resume the cash plan of business. All orders for merchandise, books and Church requisites must come with the money.

2d In making orders, first ascertain the price of what you want, then send on your order.

Remember, cash with your order after this.

NOTICE BY THE MANAGER.

We again call the attention of the pastors and presiding elders to the form of Warranty Deed we have prepared and published for general use in the purchase of church properties. The form is ample and plain as can be, yet it is believed to cover every point in the law. It was drawn by an old experienced attorney, with our Discipline before him. Price, 25 cents per copy, or 5 for $1.00.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the presiding elders of the Columbia Annual Conference. Dear brethren: Please inform me by postal at once if you have any applicants for the ministry or candidates for local orders.

To the General Officers of the Connection: Dear brethren, as many of you as expect to visit the Columbia Conference at Newberry, S. C., Dec. 7th, you will favor the pastor by dropping him a postal to that effect, who is holding no stone unturned that will add to the pleasure of the conference.

Your yoke-fellow in Christ.

O. PERRON NELSON, Pastor,
Address, Newberry, S. C.

CATARRH CURED.

A clergyman, after years of suffering from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, and vainly trying every known remedy, at last found a prescription which completely cured and saved him from death. Any sufferer from this dreadful disease sending a self addressed stamped envelope to Prof. J. A. Lawrence, 312 East 9th St., New York, will receive the recipe free of charge.

TO SECRETARIES OF CONFERENCES.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Many thanks for favor. Please send me a copy of your last conference minutes.

WM. D. JOHNSON,
Secretary of Educatiou, Box 263, Athens, Ga.

NOTICE.

To the Presiding Elders of the West Texas Annual Conference: You will please notify me at once as to the number of candidates each will have for the traveling work. Likewise we will be pleased to have the General Officers communicate the fact to me that they intend visiting the conference, so I will be able to prepare homes for them. This is imperative.

PUBLICATIONS

OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

LESSON HELPS IN FOUR GRADES.

THE TEACHER'S QUARTERLY. A thirty-six page pamphlet devoted to lesson helps for teachers and older scholars. The value is to be enhanced by the introduction of appropriate forms for opening and closing the school, hymns and tunes, maps, dictionary of proper names, etc.

THE SCHOLAR'S QUARTERLY. Similar to the above, but with such necessary changes as adapt it to the wants of scholars in the main school. It is narrowly sheep. Five or more copies to one address, per year, 7 cents each.

THE JUVENILE LESSON PAPER is a four page weekly, designed for younger scholars who have outgrown the infant class, but who retain their fondness for pictures and simple stories. 20c pages for a dime)

THE GEM LESSON PAPER is a beautiful lesson sheet, four pages handsomely illustrated and printed on pink paper; for primary or infant scholars. Each number contains, besides the lesson, a page or more of "baby-land" talk. All 50 cents a year, where five or more copies are sent to one address.

THE CHILD'S RECORDER, now beginning its eighth volume with a larger issue than ever before, offers superior attractions for the coming year. With admirable moral editorial force, and a list of regular contributors skilled in the style of writing required by the young, no pains will be spared to put this publication abreast with the foremost of its class.

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E. Church and African M E Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15-17, 1883

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in May, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date fixed. Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

NOTICE.

All communications intended for the Sunday School Union of the A. M. E. Church that are addressed to Rev. C. S. Smith, Nashville, Tennessee, will be received. It is not necessary to give the name of the street nor the number of our business place. Rev. C. S. Smith, Nashville, Tenn., is sufficient. Telegrams addressed the same way will reach us. We are fully settled in our new headquarters and prepared for business. C. S. SMITH, Secretary.

SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION NOTICE

The Quarterlies and the Lesson Papers for the fourth quarter are now ready for distribution. Patrons will please send their orders without delay. All Sunday school supplies must be paid for in advance. Address

Rev. C. S. SMITH,
Nashville, Tenn.

NOTICE.

I should be informed at once how many candidates presiding elders will bring to the North Louisiana Conference and how many General Officers and visiting ministers will attend. Preachers will provide for their wives as well as for their horses.

All Travelers
Whether by land or sea, who are liable to be out of reach of drug stores and doctors, would do well to have a supply of Ayer's Pills at hand. For this purpose, the Pills are put up in bottles as well as boxes, and may be conveniently carried in one's pocket. Six of the most distinguished physicians of Syracuse, N. Y., in giving their joint testimony as to the excellent medical combination of Ayer's Pills, make this point: "Their beautiful coating of gelatine and sugar is a great advantage, in that it protects them from change by time or climate, and renders them pleasant and even agreeable to take."

"During the twenty-five years I have lived on the frontier," writes John McDowall, of Sweetwater, Col., "Ayer's Pills have been my best friend. I have lived, usually, where there was no doctor within twenty miles, and have been hard sick several times. I always kept Ayer's medicines on hand, and with them, and the Almanac, have pulled through. I have also doctored others, and believe I have saved some valuable lives by the use of Ayer's Pills."

DR. JAS H A. JOHNSON'S XI ARTICLE

Here the doctor discusses one of the gravest features of our Church work, namely, the business ideas needed in order to regulate and enforce more wisely, vigorously, constantly and religiously this work.

The proper regulations of our financial system and ample provisions for new coporations and institutions and for the support and perpetuation of those we already have, and all other departments of our Church, I believe demand serious and immediate attention by the ensuing General Conference and our Church at large; hnt of these I mean to speak particularly in another place

The doctor argues, in effect here, that the episcopacy is the position in which men of our Church must be placed before they can conceive and formulate and enforce the plans necessary for the ideal Church of ours. But for fear that it may be said that this is not the gist, or that my argument here is misleading I will quote. "The episcopacy of a Church is as a grand observatory; it is the station at which and in which men must see, form conceptions and devise plans, with malice toward none and with charity for all, to promote every interest of the Church, both spiritual and temporal. It is the position in which men must be placed to see the difference between fossilized notions and timely ideas The A. M. E. Church today needs those men at the head of government,"etc.

Now, I ask, has not the doctor claimed too much for the mere ordination to this exalted office? Far be it from me to say or do the least thing which would have the appearance of attempting to detract from the true merits of our immortal dead, from Allen to Shorter, and our beloved and honored living, from Bishop Payne to Bishop Turner, and yet I cannot help but think one of these sainted souls, in heaven or on earth, will claim such exclusive qualifications and pre-eminence in these abilities as set forth above by the doctor inherent upon them through the ordination to the office of Bishop. I have never known of any Methodist to claim such before, from the most renowned to the most ill-informed, and such arguments among Methodist Episcopals are misleading.

In proof of the correctness of my position I call on our Church to answer. At what time did the Bishops of our Church and their contemporaries conceive of the plan, lay the foundations of, do the greater part of their individual work in making our Church the grand and effective organization for good that she is to-day? Answer they were Bishops No. It was when a majority of those pioneers were elders. When the immortal Allen began to assert that manhood which contends for the inalienable rights of human being; when he first sounded the trumpet of salvation under the impulses of African Methodism, that mighty man, whose spirit and work have belted the world and associated it to heaven and still resounds from worlds to worlds, which spirit and voice laid the foundations of our Zion—that man was an elder then

When all of our beloved Bishops, both dead and alive, with their indomitable wills and energies and matchless business qualifications; most of them eminently learned, first swept over this world on the wings of almighty wisdom, power, eternal love and life, founding and building up our Church in all of her departments, they were elders. Again, shall we fail to note the equal merits of that innumerable host of elders who never have nor will ascend to the order and office of Bishops in our Church? Recount the wisdom and labors of Tapsco, Revels, Turner, Gaines, of the South; Handy, Tanner, Embry, Lee, Derrick, and Dr. Johnson himself, and a host of others too numerous to mention. Has the work of any men in or out of our Church been greater, and the personal bearings more impressive for good than these? Wisdom, truth, justice and love answer, no. Then it is not necessary for one to ascend to this office before he can comprehend the timely ideas required to formulate and execute the plans needed to carry our Church forward to success; neither are we put in the necessity of looking to and depending solely upon this aggregate in our Church for the proper conceptions and formations of those ideas and plans.

It is true that we always expect to find those qualities fully possessed by every incumbent of the Bench of Bishops, and why? Simply because we try to elect to the office of Bishop every time a brother who has proved himself to be in possession of all of those abilities; therefore we expect with just reason to see them fully and incessantly represented by our episcopal board But the aggregate number of brethren off of the board possessing those qualifications is far greater than that comprising the board. Therefore, the greater strength is outside of the board; and therefore, the most of said ideas and plans took original forms within the minds of brethren who were not on the board at the time of such formations, hnt in many cases were elected and ordained to that office in after times.

If I am right, it is not necessary for a brother to be made a Bishop before he is possessed with the abilities requisite to carry our Church to the highest stage of usefulness, and as African Methodist Episcopal. Neither is it necessary in our success for us to transcend the well established rules of all wise and well-regulated, strong, influential and successful Methodists, by electing an unusual and unprecedented number of these brethren to the office of Bishop. The value of our Church would not be enhanced by such steps, hut rather by an increase of such brethren in our Church work in general.

Remodel our business systems a little, and uniformly and universally; as a Church, excute more vigorously and incessantly, in the fear of God and the interest of man, and all will be accomplished that can be.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY BISHOP A. W. WAYMAN.

MR. EDITOR:—When the North Georgia Conference adjourned at Rome on Tuesday, Nov. 15th, there was something that was remarkable to me in Georgia, and that was the Superintendent of the railroad sent two special first-class coaches from Atlanta to Rome to convey the ministers to the several appointments that went in a certain direction; and as I had to go another route I did not leave until night, then left for Cave Spring, Ga., where I spent the night after speaking to a large congregation.

Cave Spring takes its name from a large spring of water that runs out from a rock very clear and beautiful. In the town there are two deaf and dumb schools, one for the whites and the other for colored misses. On Wednesday morning I visited the colored department and there found a large number of misses being taught by a colored gentleman, who is the principal; and his wife is the matron. They are from what belonged to the M. E. Church, South, but now it belongs to the State of Georgia, which pays so much every year to support it. I was very much pleased with the mode in which Mr. Gordon conducted the school, and promised to call the attention of our Bishops and ministers to the importance of the school and ask them to make inquiry all over the State for deaf and dumb colored children and have the parents send them to the said institutions

PROGRESSIVE CHURCH ARCHITECTURE

BY REV. J. M HENDERSON.

The Christian Church, from earliest times, has shown a willingness to take advantage of all opportunities to improve. Church government, its machinery, is almost entirely of human origin; many of the most prominent features are borrowed from civil government The crude methods employed in the early church have, through the long succession of centuries, been developed and improved upon; had features have sometimes been entirely discarded and new methods adopted; in other instances faulty features have been emended, altered, developed, until they became proximately perfect. True, there sel dom has occurred an instance in which, when an innovation or change was needed, the hosts have not met in battle. Strong men have ever been found to champion the landmarks against the vehement onset of the progressives. Notwithstanding the warm and loyal defense each landmark has received, one by one faulty methods, however ancient, have disappeared and new methods have taken their place.

Nothing causeless ever comes, all existing forms are the result of a previous process; Methodist Episcopalianism, as it exists to-day, is but the result of the long process of development through which the seed society has passed. We bear in our form of government features which mark every epoch and reflect every period through which the church has grown.

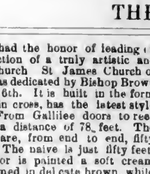
What is true of the internal forms of polity or doctrine is also true of the architecture of our houses of worship. The early Christians soon found it necessary to provide for themselves churches or a place for worship. They were not original in the design of building adopted; however, they did not, as is sometimes erroneously supposed, copy after the temples of the Jews and alter heathen temples. At first they were under the whip of necessity and sought to provide houses of worship chiefly for the purpose of accommodating the congregation. The heathen temple was designed for the accommodation of priests only, who, in the seclusion of the temple, performed the rites, while the people waited on the outside; but the Christian method of worship was different. The liturgical services in which the people were to participate, and the homilies to which they were to listen, demanded a place suitable to accommodate a multitude.

The popular places for concourse in those early days were the basilicas of the Grecians and Romans. The first Christian churches were modsied after this. However, in the course of time, more than a mere place of gathering was demanded; the early church, modsied after the basilica, was but a utilitarian structure. It served the purpose of a place to gather, but there was nothing in its form to awaken Christian feeling or sentiment. What was more sentimental than that the cross, lifted by Christianity from being the symbol of infancy to the majestic emblem of immortality, should be adopted and its form preserved in the houses of worship. Thus the basilica was easily transformed into the cross-shape; at the places of the side entrances trancepts were added. In the east end the apse became the choir; the tribunal bench the altar, and the altar the table. Some of the earliest examples of this new development from the primitive basilica are still to be seen in Scotland; for instance, the church of Dameny and Inchkinloss, mentioned by Mr. Parker in his Glossary of Architecture. Thus in early times we find evidences of a desire to make the house of worship suggestive of religious sentiment. This idea has obtained more and more strongly through the centuries. Thus five different styles of church architecture have been evolved Intelligent Christians have long since endeavored to render their beautiful the house of God.

Nor are the African Methodists behind. The M. E. Church, at first, only attempted to build chapels; but increasing taste and increasing wealth awoke and drew out the growing desire for architectural beauty. In our connection we have progressed from the simple chapel of Allen to the splendid Metropolitan; from the rude log meeting-house and whitewashed plank structure, to the beautiful St. Paul's of Raleigh.

However, among our noted churches we have but few the architecture of which would stand critical analysis. There, however, is some excuse for this. Many of our finest churchee are in crowded cities, where there is scarcely ever room to erect a structure which will admit of any exterior beauty at any parts except the front. However great may be the dearth, thns far, in the way of beautiful structures, a day is coming which shall witness the erection of many buildings of great taste. The more educated and tasty among the laity are now gaining ascendancy in our societies; our ministers, also, are becoming more progressive and our means are increasing. I believe that the little St. James society of this far Northwestern State has had the honor of leading all in the erection of a truly artistic and beautiful church St James Church of this city was dedicated by Bishop Brown November 6th. It is built in the form of the Latin cross, has the latest style of apse From Galilee doors to rear of apse is a distance of 78 feet. The transcepts are, from end to end, fifty feet long. The naive is just fifty feet. The exterior is painted a soft cream color, trimmed in del cate brown, while the roofs are of grey slate. The great doors are beautifully panelled The roof is ornamented save with ornamental end fillians. The exterior is modest, yet exceedingly attractive

The interior is a perfect art study The chancel is handsomely furnished with choir partition of fine panels, carved pulpit and chairs of butternut, altar handsomely carved, rails, pulpit and altar posts all of turned or panelled and carved designs. The pews, of latest style, are made of beautifully finished butternut, furnished with book racks of black walnut One broad aisle six feet wide passes up the naive, the pews of the transcepts set at right angles with those of the naive, leaving a comfortable space around the altar, which is in the form of a segment. The floor is all completely covered with beautiful carpet of conventional pattern and color. The entire finish is in natural wood, the roof is open timbered supported on seven richly moulded and carved beams which terminate three feet below the wall plate with delicately turned pendents. The walls are recoed in delicate tints, ornamented with columns, arches and stencil work The ceiling of the apse is tinted a pale soft azure and decked with gilded stars; it also contains three windows of unique pattern worked in leaded glass. The rear window is in imitation of the veil of the temple rent in twain, the sections separated by ruby. The large windows of the transcepts are fifteen feet in height and contain leaded glass of most exquisitely harmonized tints and beautiful designs. The center-piece of one is a crown made of opel and ornamented with jewels of amber and ruby; the other has for its emblem an opal cross resting on a rock of crystel. The window in the naive over the greet door is of leaded glass, the base being deep blue, while the upper part is tinted, it passes by scarcely perceptible gradations into faintest. softest ezure and then grades upward in amber, thus presenting a perfect imitation of a sunset sky. The emblem is an open Bible of opal, upon the leeves of which fall rays of amber.



The auditorinm is heated by a furnace. The basement forms a commodious Sabbath school room, also is used for entertainments, classes, etc. The cent here presented gives a graphic view of the interior. The naive of this beautiful structure was once a Jewish synagogne, which was purchased four years ago under the pastorate of Rev. R. Knight at a cost of $6,000. The present structure was projected under the pastorate of Rev. C. S. Jacobs. The design and interior first was drawn by Walter Ife, architect, under direction of Rev. J. M. Henderson and the trustees. Excepting the frame work this all has been completed since Aug. 22nd, at which date the present pastor began his term. We now have, according to Bishop Brown and others, by far the most beautiful church of the size in the connection. The lot and old building were purchased by the indomitable Rev. Knight, who broke up the fallow grounnd; the debt, over $1,200, was paid and $600 toward the new building raised during the two years' pastorate of that prince of pastors, Rev. C. S Jacobs. During the past ten weeks, under the present pastor, over $2,700 in clear cash has been raised. The entire cost of building, including furniture, falls helow $5,600. It would be difficult to find any city which could claim the honor of contributing more liberally and expending more judiciously in the erection of a church than our beautiful Saintly City, nestled among the hille upon the far head waters of the Mississippi. I have not written the above with any desire to boast or arrogantly assnme undue credit for a work the success of which is so largely due to the self-sacrificiug lebors of Knight; the indomitable struggles of Jacobs, and the steadfast and loyal co-operation of our very progressive and intelligent Trustee Board; but I do feel a just pride in presenting to our connection, through the columns of the RECORDER, the account of the blessings God in his mercy has bestowed upon a deserving people. All of the money needed, $2,700, save $600 raised by Rev Jacobs, and the amount borrowed, an amount of over $2,700, has been raised during the past ten weeks by less than 100 persons

On the 29th of last May we began, without a dollar, and built at Joliet a beautiful chapel 32x50, furnished and carpeted it and opened it before the setting of the lowa Conference in August, and left the people a property worth over $3,000, with but about $800 of debt, whereas at the beginning of the year they had nothing Dear brethren, with hnndreds of you I have had a personal acquaintance in years past. I want to say tnst especially during the last two years I have endeavored to identify myself fully to the race and our Church I find in this new and better spiritnal life incentives to effort and a source of zeal and vigor of which before I had never even dreamed. With grateful heart I cell to mind and now thank God for the many good bnt painful lessons learned while a deacon under the intrepid Carson, of Texas; the kingly W. B. White, and the fatherly and talented W. A. Dove, of Missouri; to have elweys loved and obeyed my presiding elders, and now find, in the person of Rev. Trevan, one of the most modest, dignified and consecrated Christian gentlemen and efficient officer that I have ever met.

Brethren, I append the above concluding paragraph to let the old friends from whom I have been separated for years that the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ is able to transform an embittered cynic into a happy man and useful servant of the Cross.

THE A. M. E. CHURCH AND ITS RELATION TO RACE ELEVATION.

BY REV. A J. MOORE.

Individnals, institutions and societies exert certain influences upon humanity; the degree of influence exercised, and the results derived therefrom, depend upon the amount of contact brought about between them and the people.

The lives of Abraham and Moses gave to the Israelitish social system characteristics that can be seen to-day. Their glorious literature, rich in the most magnificent compositions in prose and poetry, presenting the only anthentic and trne account of the origin of the world, constituting in its history its revealed truths, its devotional productions, its moral precepts and discourses, and in its wonderful prophecies the basis of thet religion whose influence has given a new impulse and direction to human culture.

The degree of civilization attained by the Egyptians was due to the general education among the people who were instructed by priests educated at the schools of learning at Thebes, Memphie and Heliopolis. Many instances snstained by history could be cited, illustrating the first declaration; but we pass on to consider whet has been the effect of e Christian society upon a race and in what respect has it aided in race elevetion. We are told in divine writ that "God has made of one blood all nations of the earth;" also "He that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out." In the face of these secred truths, ecclesiastical differeuces and doctrinal disagreements have been the establishment of the many branches of societies now existing.

Our purpose is to deal with the African Methodist Episcopal Church. This Church was founded by Richard Allen in 1794, in Philadelphia. The organization was formed because there were unjust and ungodly discriminations made by the officials of St. George's Church of that city against its colored communicants,

Concerning the organization of the first A. M. E. Church, we quote the following from Dr. B. F. Lee's edition of the Life of Richard Allen: "I hought an old frame that had been formerly occupied as a blacksmith shop, from Mr. Lewis, and hauled it on the lot in Sixth near Lombard street that had been formerly taken for the Church of England. I employed carpenters to repair the old frame and fi it for a place of worship. In July, 1794, Bishop Asbury being in town, I solicited him, to open the church for us, which he accepted. The Rev. John Dickens sung and prayed and Bishop Asbury preached. The house was called Bethel, agreeable to the prayer that was made." Such, briefly stated, was the organization of the first African Methodist Episcopal Church in America, organized that a race of people might enjoy religious liberty unmolested; organized that the hatred spent of caste and prejndice might not be felt by its worshipers in God's house; organized that the divine truth might be verified, "Him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out."

When that breve little monk, Martin Luther, stood before the Diet at Worms and exclaimed, "Here I stand. I can not do otherwise. God help me," he paved the wey for that religious liberty that shook the Roman Church to its center. Yet he had friends in the Elector of Saxony and other princes. The step made by Allen was one made by a poor negro, unaided by powerful assistance, but ridiculed for attempting such a stupendous undertaking. Studying results, we decide that relative to religious freedom Allen occupied the same relation to the negroes of America that Luther did to the Anglo-Saxons.

The cause that creates an organization has much to do with the character of its work. Methodism was born in England. John Wesley, Charles Wesley and Geo. Whitfield banded themselves together for the purpose of intellectual and spiritual improvement, in contradistinction to the cold formality and ritualistic ceremonies of the Church of England; they advocated experimental religion that is evected in the heart and manifested in believers to perpetuate its divine influences through class-meetings, love feasts and conferences. The A. M. E Church believes with the mother church as to tenets and doc rines, but it also believes this, God our Father, Christ our Redeemer, Man our Brother; established upon this rock ribbed foundation, there is no thwarting the rightly directed religious ambition of its communicants and no fines of demarkation are drawn to act as barriers to elevation in the Church militant. We occupy positions in this Church in accordance with the way we put forth intelligent Christian effort. Our Christian Church have said there is no necessity for a distinct church of this kind. We take the position that as long as prejudice and caste are displeyed in the Protestant Churches, just so long will there be a need for the kind of an organization. A tendency in this direction meulfested itself long before the shackles of servitude were removed.

Bishop Haygood, in speaking of our people and African Churches in America, says, "Indeed the great majority of them belong to churches not only of their own faith and order, but of their own race and color." This tendency showed itself in many ways in the South before their emancipation. I have known them in old times walk from ten to fifteen miles on a Sunday to attend their own meetings. This disposition has become very pronounced and has expressed itself on a very large scale since they were set free.

Despite chaine that divine spirit of independence will assert itself, so it is with this Church; being so constituted it infnses and disemminetes through its functionaries a similar spirit. A proper degree of pride is the outgrowth, and where pride exists efforts for elevation may be looked for. Four or more humble nations achieved greatness by cultivating love and pride for those things which are ennobling. History attests many instances where nations battled for the cause that was not with the sword, but by maintaining the principles of justice, equality, liberty and truth, and were successful.

There is something strange and almost wonderful connected with the growth of this connection. In 1822 the numerical strength was as follows: Number of Bishops, 1; annual conferences, 2; itinerant preachers, 17; stations, 2; circuits, 10; missions, 5; total number of members, 7,027; amount of salery for traveling preachers, $1,054.50; incidental expenseee, $97 25; total amount of money raised annually for ell purposee was $5 151.7. Now, by analysis we find it has Bishops, 10; General Departments, 7; General Officers, 7; annual conferences, 46; presiding elders, 69; appointments, 2,450; ministere traveling, 2,540; widows of preachers, 140; organizations, 3,978; church buildings, 2 732; trustee boards, 2,750; trustees, 12,133; eiewards, 12, 150; official hoards, 4,978; stewardeeses, 9,936; class-leaders, 13,550; sextons, 27,420; local preachers, 9,760; members, 390,000; total members, 405,000 The estimated value of Church property is about $3,000,000, and it has organized 11 institutions of learning and appropriated for their support $77,000

The CHRISTIAN RECORDER is the Church organ under the efficient management of Revs. Lee and Embry, who are doing a grand work for the connection and the race. Statistics are dry things at best, hut just here they illustrate what has been done in the way of race elevation and speak in tones louder than reverberating thunders what has been done by heroic and divinely inspired men for God, for man and for our brother; and fiually it has demonstrated the capacity of the negro for self-government. Stimulated by what has been accomplished during the past century, we will go forward, not like the quarry-slave scorgred to his dungeon, but sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust, working zealously for future victories to be achieved, when we shall be crowned immortal heirs of that inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, which fadeth not away.

THE INDIANA ANNUAL CONFERENCE AND TOBACCO.

BY REV. J. MITCHEM.

LETTER NO II.

MR EDITOR:—In this age of progress and refinement much is being said, by a large number of preachers in the Indiana Conference, in regard to "consistency and dignity." Now, I admit that both of them are very precious jewels, and will prove a great blessing to every one who possesses them; but I am quite sure that there is no class of men on earth stand more in need of these jewels than the ministers of the Lord Jesus Christ; but I am forced to believe that a large per cent. of the members of the Indiana Annual Conference are minus both of the jewels above mentioned. I speak of the Indiana Annual Conference because I am better acquainted with it than I am with any other I know its make-up, and I think that by careful examination we will find that a large per cent. of those preachers in the A. M E Church who seem to be so earnest in their sermons, that the people call it "consistent and dignified," are themselves willing slaves to the use of tobacco. Yes, they are guilty of heiping to waste thet one hundred thousand dollers of the Lord's not been done to them. Then for that almighty dollar a great many of yon claim yon are democrats. I must say we are living in stirring times; an age pregnant with great events everywhere, how they are agitating upon the railroads, in the public places of entertainment, in the Southern cane-field, in the cotton field, and, I might say, in the corn-fields of the North, to some extent; justice has Address all letters containing centennial money to Rev. J. C. Embry, 631 Pine St., Philadelphia. Where no orders can be otten, register the amount and address the letter as above. In making returns of Centennial collections, please give name of pastor, name of the church and the name of secretary of committee, also the conference.

J. C. EMBRY, Manager

DR. DERRICK'S Centennial committee was composed of ladies exclnsively; no wonder his exhibition was excellent.

REV. C. C. GREEN, of Snow Hill, N. J., has built a new chnrch at Haddonfield, N. J., this year and will lay the corner-stone the second Snnday in December.

DR. ARNETT wishes every minister to forward to him a copy of his Centennial programme. This is highly necessary, as he will probably be connected with the Centeunial compiling and pnblishing committee.

THE LETTER published in this issue, tonching the Thibodeanx (La.) troubles is pitiable in the extreme. O, God, how long? Where is the contomptible sympathy wasted on the vile cause of anarchy a few weeks ago?

THE CENTENNIAL CONCERT at Association Hall, Philadelphia, 23rd nlt., was a success. The choirs of several A. M. E. Chnrches acquitted themselves well. The management may he congratnlated npon, having elicited the commendation of the press.

IN HIS Centennial address Dr. Arnett gives the following figures with reference to the A. M. E. Church: 2,858 traveling ministers; local preachers, 5,097, and exhorters, 2,660. Total pnlpit speakers, 10,615; 3,392 churches, whose valnation is $5,341,889.

AFTER enjoying the hospitality of Dr. W. B. Derrick's beantifnl, peaceful and Christian home two days on a recent visit to Flnshing, L. I., we conld not wonder at the racy letter furnished the Southern Recorder recently, respecting the dwelling place of the popnlar New York preacher.

THE New York Bethel Choir, under the leadership of Prof. F. Savage, has lost nothing of the qualities that made it famous in the past. For harmony and melody it is superb. Its chanting the response to the Decalogue wonld lose nothing in comparison with that of choirs in the most aristocratic Episcopal churches.

BETHEL CHURCH, Philadelphia, reports a full, rnnnd one hundred dollars Centennial money; Dr. Derrick says Bethel, New York, will report not a cent less than those figures. Providence, R. I., did not qnite reach that mark, hnt, in proportion, went beyond it. It was from Eaton, O., not Pa., that Elder Montgomery sent first Centennial money.

WHILE up in New York last week we obanced to stnmble npon the Southern Recorder. The editor was laying it on the shonlders of Dr. T. G. Steward in a lively mannar. Among other things he declares that the Southern Recorder, originated for the purpose of encouraging and advocating the temperance oanse, has become a Church organ. So, at last, we have it out plainly, the Southern Recorder is a "Church organ."

MANY TIMES we have informed our subscribers that the editor has nothing to do with snbscriptions, change of address, orders for books, etc. In fact, our readers will find a standing notice to this effect at the head of this page. Please address Dr. Embry for everything, excepting when yon send matter for publication. All letters inquiring for friends, though often addressed to the editor, are tnrned over to the manager on reaching this office.

IN ITS reference to the sermon in Snllivan Street Church, by "Dr. Lee," the Age makes some mistakes; the most serious of which is, that "he said the white Methodist Chnrch," etc., speaking of mission work in Africa. The minister said, "a wealthy church, a Christian Church, a Methodist Church," bnt did not say "the white Methodist Church," nor did he refer to the M. E. Chnrch, which it is presumable was meant by the Age as the "white ohnrch."

THE CRIMES committed by black men shonld be punished. No guilty men should escape, bnt we submit that it is unmanly, cowardly and barbarous to hang a man without dne civil trial, because he is a black man, even though his crime be against the opposite race variety. The lynching case at Frederick, Md., last week did no credit to the intelligence nor sense of honor of the people who snatched the life from a colored man without proper trial.

IN THE city of New York is a case of real plnck and trne American spirit exercised by several colored teachers, who, when the State legislature decreed that there shonld be no more separato colored schools, were left without work, though the law provided that no teacher engaged at the time of the enactment shonld be dismissed. These teachers have steadily and daily taken their places in the school room and drawn their salary, though they really perform no service. They report for duty regularly and stick to their post.

POOR ATLANTA (Ga) lacked the moral conrage to retain prohibitory laws against the sale of whiskey. Since the evils of intoxicants are so plain, what will a wise age, that is possible in the future, think of the character that supports as honorable the traffic in strong drink? The objeot lessons in any single day shonld be sufficient to satisfy intelligent newspaper readers that whiskey drinkers and whiskey sellers are incapable of self-government on this question; hence, like persons demented or insane, shonld be considered nnder the general care of persons of safe and sonnd judgment.

HAD THE CENTENNIAL celebration accomplished nothiog else, the light gained by thousands of our people concerning the record of the A. M. E. Church in particnlar and organized Christian work among colored Americans in general more than repays all the cost of the Centenoial. The little book which Richard Allen wrote of his own record has been too slightly regarded herstofore, bnt the Centennial has thoronghly awakened an inquiry into the interesting sketch of this interesting man. We keep the autobiography of Richard Allen on our shelves for the purpose of supplying the demand.

HAVING spent last Sunday in Smyrna, Del., with Rev. J. W. Norris, whose thrift and that of his people has been mentioned in these columns recently by two Philadelphia Conference ministers, we can but indorse all they have said and, indeed, add to it; first, Carrie and Harry, both of whom were born to Elder Norris November 13th; and, second, a good Centennial programme enthusiastically carried out in all parts. The Church has no more energetio congregation anywhere than in Smyrna, where they have a beantiful ohnroh, a good ohoir, and a majority of families living in their own houses. We have one big fault to find with them: they have taken too few CHRISTIAN RECORDERS, but they promise to make amends.

THERE WAS not a little surprise expressed that none of our Bishops could be at the Centeunial exercises in Philadelphia. The presence of one or more would have enhanced the interest of the occasion. Their absence strongly favored Dr. Johnson's claim and substantiated some of his argument. All seem to have been so busy holding conferences that the Centennial at the historio beginning place of African Methodism had to forego their presence and service. It was a little humiliating to African Methodists, as well as surprising to non-African Methodists. It is probable that at least one of our Bishops was in New York last week, hnt the pressing on, necessary to the opening of conference prevented Philadelphia from enjoying his presence. "More Bishops," Dr. Johnson.

IN HIS address at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Mr. J. C. Durham made a statement that should be known and carefully remembered by every colored oitizen: that our popnlar newspapers receive their tone very largely from minds prejndiced against the colored race, being from the Sonth to a very great extent; that, though honest in intention and pnre in motive, they are likely to write to the disadvantage of the colored people. Magazines are giving the reading world much information relative to the statns and relationship of the raoe varieties here from this same olass of writers. This, he urges, shonld cause African Methodism to bestir herself and make all her literary avonnes accommodate strong and nervons thonght, both to declare and exemplify the Afro-American's ability, defend his rights and honor, and make aggressions npon the camp of the army of nnjust writers. All this we indorse most heartily, and regard as a strong warning, coming to us from without.

THE CENTENNIAL MEETING in Bethel Church, Philadelphia, 25th inst., was well attended. Probably few less than two thousand persons were in attendance. All denominations were represented. The most scholarly colored men in the city, its best business men—all took an hour with African Methodism. From a distance were some of our most thoughtful and advanced preachers, and some of our most thonghtful laymen. The Philadelphia Conference was well represented. Washington, D. C., was represented by Mrs. John A. Sims and Mrs. Dr. James A. Handy; Trenton, by Mrs. Yeoman; Ohio, by Dr. Arnett and Mrs. Bishop, mother of Mrs. Yeoman; Revs. T. A. V. Henry and J. Height Bean, of the New Jersey Conference, and Revs. A. W. Upshaw and Dr. J. T. Jenifer, of the New England Conference; Rev. W. J. Laws, who was one of the speakers. Rev. C. S. Smith, Secretary of the Sunday School Union, was present also. Elder Laws dwelt somewhat on the pecnliar influence of the A. M. E. Chnrch on the people within it. The speeches of Mr. J. C. Durham, of Philadelphia, and Prof. T. McCants Stewart were listened to with interest. Mr. Stewart thrilled the great andience with the electricity of his oratory, as of yore. He looked as well in the pulpit as ever. His address was historio. It was learned in constrnction and inspiring in delivery. The speaker indicated the course that might be pursned by the great Chnrch in 1916, when the centesnial of connectional organization would be celebrated. Mr. Stewart is a happy speaker, eloquent and strong. The presentation speech of the beantiful orayon portrait of Bishop Allen, by Rev. C. T. Shaffer, was happy. Dr. Arnett's response, of conrse, was brilliant, jingling with statistical figures. The work had been executed by our city artist, Mr. Stidnm. It is a great credit to his genius.

THE "CHRISTIAN RECORDER" PREMIUM LIST.

Personal.

—Miss H. Q. Brown is teaching elocution in Louisville, Ky.

—Dr James H. A. Johnson is traveling through a part of the South.

—Rev. N. B. Stewart, of South America, is now in this country.

—Professor Freeman, of Liberia, called at the RECORDER office last week.

—Rev. B. W. Arnett has left Philadelphia for the North Carolina Conference.

—Rev. W. H. Bryant will hold his quarterly meeting at Chesler, Pa., next Sunday.

—Mr F. A. Stewart, former manager of the Wilberforce singing tronpe, has now a male quartette.

—Rev J H. Morgan's history of the New Jersey Conference will soon be ready for purchasers and readers.

—Rev. W. L. Hunter, of Brooklyn, had a nnique Centennial programme, exhibiting antique customs, the old blacksmith church, &c.

—Dr. Jenifer attended the Philadelphia Centennial. He preached highly acceptable sermons on Sunday at Bethel in the morning and Zion Mission at night.

—A call from Counsellor Stewart, of New York, in company with Connsellor Minton, of this city, was not among our smallest pleasures in the Centennial week.

—Mr. Joseph Gould, who has taught many years in Augusta, Ga., has returned to his native place, Bridgeton, N. J., where he is about to open a private school.

—Revs. I Derricks and C. S. Gooseley, both of whom have been pastors at Newark, N. J., question the correctness of the report that the A. M. E. Church property at that place was entalled property.

—Mrs. H. H. Garnett, of New York, is one of the busiest teachers in the great cities. Her assistants and she do a considerable missionary work in the way of enlisting pupils, some of whom go more than five miles to Mrs. Garnett's school.

—Rev. George M. Witten, pastor of Macedonia Church, Camden, delivered a discourse on the Centennial of African Methodism in that church on last Sunday morning; and in the evening Rev. W. J. Lewis preached from John 14, 15. The collection amounted to $40.

—Edward Wilmot Blyden is perhaps the ablest negro in the world. He can read the Koran in Arabic, the Bible in Hebrew, Homer in Greek, Virgil in Latin, Shakespeare in English and Dante in Italian. Blyden is a complete Knowsomething. Nothing and his cry is, "Africa for the Africans."—The Phila Press.

—Mrs. E. G. Caswell says: "Rob the workingman of his franchise and his wages will depreciate one half. He knows the ballot is the lever that moves the world, and accordingly he holds sacred his political rights. The toiling American woman also knows the value of the elective franchise, and she, too, wants it in her hand."

FROM CRADLE TO COFFIN.

We rock the cradle gayly, and swing it to and fro,
A new life sleeps within it. In tender tones and low,
A mother soothes to stumber, in tove-notes soft and mild,
While hetd in sleep and safety there rests an earth-born chtld,
As we rock the cradle gayly.

We lay aside the cradle, the bird its nest has flown,
And spread its ptnions boldty, to make its way alone,
To fly, to fatt in sorrow, or rise and keep its way,
'Mid toils, temptations, triumphs, fair frnitage of life's day,
As we lay aside the cradle;

We bend above the coffin, another soul has fled—
The earthly fight is over, is won or tost, and dead
The babe who in the cradle first knew of earthly strife,
And there with hands close folded, lies all we know of life.
As we bend above the coffin,

OUR WOMAN'S COLUMN.

The LaPetre brothers have given $400,000 to endow a Methodist college for women at Glenwood, Cal.

Miss Louise Cable, the eldest daughter of Geo. W. Cable, the novelist has marked artistic talent, and may some day illustrate her father's books.

The women of the Congregational churches contribnte more than one-third of the money annually received by the American Board for Foreign Missions.

Miss Yonmans, who was for many years the assistant and companion in studies of her brother, the late Prof. Edward L. Yonmans, has succeeded to the editorship of the Popular Science Monthly.

The Princess Olympia Bariatinski is a trusted political agent of the Czar. She is now in Berlin on a confidential mission to Emperor William The Czar evidently believes that a woman can keep a secret.

So far as is known, there are only fourteen Chinese women in New York City. Of these nine are married. They obey to the letter the customs of their own country, where the wife is the property of her husband.

Miss Ida L. Griffin, of Syracuse, N.Y., Democratic candidate for school commissioner in the Third District of Oswego County, was elected by nearly four hundred majority, running six hundred ahead of her ticket.

The Mt Holyoke Alumnae are discnssing the propriety and need of making the seminary a college, to give it its deserved rank. They want an endowment fund of $100,000. They propose to call the institution the "Mary Lyon College."

Rosa Bonheur, the celebrated artist, once had a "philopena" with a Russian prince, and the prince lost. He asked what the shonld give her as his forfeit. She answered, jokingly, "Oh, any pretty little animal that I can use for a model." Several months after, when she had almost forgotten the affair, she received her philopena present—three enormous white bears.

A pleasant incident of the meeting of the American Woman Suffrage Association in Philadelphia was the presentation to the audience of Mrs E R Hunter, of Wichita, Kan., as a real voter who could never be mistaken anywhere for any but a modest and good woman. When the applause snbsided, Mrs. Hunter said that in Wichita there were four candidates for mayor. Two of them were unknown to the women, who were told on inquiry that they were "some of the boys." Bnt the Wichita women wanted men and not boys for mayor. When these unknown candidates found that six hnndred of the best women had registered, they withdrew, sure that they had no chance of election.

OUTLOOK FOR WORKING WOMEN.—Mrs. Eliza Putnam Heaton has been investigating the employments, wages and prospects of working-women in New York. She finds that women constitute more than half the workers in dry-goods stores, a quarter of the telegraph operators, about one-fifth of the type-setters and more than half the type-writers. Women as a rule seem to make less good telegraphers and type-setters than men, as good stenographers, and better typewriters and dry-goods clerks. Nowhere do they receive equal pay for equal work, except where the men's trades unions have made it a stipulation, and have been able to carry their point. More women are employed in dry-goods stores than in any other line of work except domestic service and factory labor. The conclusion Mrs. Heaton draws from her investigations is that the general outlook for self-supporting women in all lines is probably better than it ever was before. She says: "Business habits and attention to health are the two great needs. As a very bright girl who is earning good wages, put it, 'As fast as we learn to do something that somebody wants done, and stop trying to carry the drawing-room into the office, we get on very well.'"

A SUCCESSFUL CONCERT.

A very successful concert was given under the management of Mrs. Bertha B. Cook on the evening of the 15th of November at the new mission building on the St John's A. M. E. Church, on Cumberland street, Norfolk. The participants acquitted themselves in a highly creditable and pleasing style, and some very artistically.

The audience was an appreciative one and bestowed its plandits graciously. Mrs. Sarah C. Ruffin, who possesses an excellent and well cultivated voice, was the general favorite, being greeted with rounds of applause at every appearance. The power and excellence of her voice and John A. Gray, in their duet, "The were shown to fine advantage in a duet with Miss Hill, whose alto was just superb in quality and fully sufficient in quantity. Mr. Robert Stith, one of our rising young men who is destined to make his mark, enthused the audience by his very excellent rendering of two taking motto songs. Messrs. Samnel Cup of Woe," deserve great praise for the manner in which it was rendered; especially does the former gentleman, in his fine impersonation of the father in his "Mortgage the Farm." For the fear (which I think is wholesome) that I may occupy too much of your space, I cannot speak at length of others equally deserving of mention. Mr and Mrs. McNeil came in for a large measure of well-bestowed praise; bnt it was reserved for Mrs. Ruffin, with Messrs. Bonney and McNeil, to appeal most successfully to the hearts and sympathy of the audience in their trio, "Carline," from the unpublished opera of the "Unknown," by C. A. White. The impersonation of the dutiful daughter pleading to her father for her poor but faithful lover was touchingly portrayed Mr. McNeil played the role of the suitor, rejected and despised by the lady's irate father, very acceptably. Mr. Bonney won the plaudits of the house by the very tow-bonaire manner in which he acted the implacable and aristocratic father.

The conception and successful carrying out of this entertainment was due to the artistic and executive skill of Mrs. Bertha B. Cook, wife of the able and efficient pastor of the above-named church.

NORTH SANTEE CIRCUIT.

MR. EDITOR:—Our protracted meeting, which has been going on four weeks, just closed. Our success was very encouraging. Ninety-three persons were converted to God. You may call this good news if you wish to.

With the following manly letter appended:

DEAR BROTHER LEE:—You can publish this slip if you want to. I am working for God and the Church as well as you are, and whether I know as much as you or not, thank God I can be as good a Christian as you.

Yours for every thing good,
Amandalo S. . . D. J. LITES.

THE CENTURY MAGAZINE.

WITH the November, 1887, issue THE CENTURY commences its thirty fifth volume with a regular circulation of almost 250,000. The War Papers and the Life of Lincoln increased its monthly edition by 100,000. The latter history having recounted the events of Lincoln's early years, and given the necessary survey of the political condition of the country, reaches a new period, with which his secretaries were most intimately acquainted. Under the caption

LINCOLN IN THE WAR,

the writers now enter on the more important part of their narrative, viz.: the early years of the War and President Lincoln's part therein.

SUPPLEMENTARY WAR PAPERS,

following the "battle series" by distinguished generals, will describe interesting features of army life, inmuling from Libby Prison, narratives of personal adventure, etc. General Sherman will write on "The Grand Strategy of the War."

KENNAN ON SIBERIA.

Except the Life of Lincoln and the War Articles, no more important series has ever been undertaken by THE CENTURY than this of Mr Kennan's. With the previous preparation of four years' travel and study in Russia and Siberia, he sailed for another journey of 15,000 miles for the special investigation here required. An introduction from the Russian Minister of the Interior admitted him to the principal mines and prisons, where he became acquainted with some three hundred State exiles—Liberals, Nihilists and others—and the series will be a startling as well as accurate revelation of the exile system. The papers illustrations by the artist and photographer, Mr. George A. Frost, who accompanied the author, will add greatly to the value of the articles.

A NOVEL BY EGGLESTON

with illustrations will run through the year. The novels will follow by Cable and Stockton. Shorter fictions will appear every month.

MISCELLANEOUS FEATURES

will comprise several illustrated articles on Ireland, by Charles DeKay; papers touching the field of the Sunday-School Lessons, illustrated by E. L. Wilson; wild Western life, by Theodore Roosevelt; the English Cathedrals, by Mrs. van Rensselaer, with illustrations by Pennell; Dr. Buckley's valuable papers on Dreams, Spiritualism and Clairvoyance; essays in criticism, art, travel and biography; poems; cartoons, etc.

By a special offer the nnmbers for the past year (containing the Lincoln history) may be secured with the year's subscription from November, 1887, twenty-four issues in all, for $6 00, or, with the last year's numbers handsomely bound, $7.50.

Published by THE CENTURY Co., 33 East 17th Street, New York.

NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

We begin once more to send ont snbscription bills. We urgently request all who are in arrears for the paper to pay us immediately.

Please remember that subscription to the paper is payable in advance. We shall be compelled to stop sending to all who owe us until payment is made.

Respectfully Yours,
J. C. EMBRY, Manager.

NOTICE FROM THE MANAGER.

1st. On and after December 1, 1887, we resume the cash plan of business. All orders for merchandise, books and Church requisites must come with the money.

2d In making orders, first ascertain the price of what you want, then send on your order.

Remember, cash with your order after this.

NOTICE BY THE MANAGER.

We again call the attention of the pastors and presiding elders to the form of Warranty Deed we have prepared and published for general use in the purchase of church properties. The form is simple, and plain as plain can be, yet it is believed to cover every point in the law. It was drawn by an old experienced attorney, with our Discipline before him. Price, 25 cents per copy, or 5 for $1.00

St. Nicholas

FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

SINCE its first issue, in 1873, this magazine has maintained, with undisputed recognition, the position it took at the beginning—that of being the most excellent juvenile periodical ever printed. The best known names in literature were on its list of contributors from the start—Bryant, Longfellow, Thomas Hughes, George MacDonald, Bret Harte, Bayard Taylor, Frances Hodgson Burnett, James T Fields, John G. Whittier; indeed the list is so long that it would be easier to tell the few authors of note who have not contributed to "the world's child magazine."

THE EDITOR, MARY MAPES DODGE, author of "Hans Brinker; or, The Silver Skates," and other popular books for young folks,—and for grown-up folks, too—has a remarkable faculty for knowing and entertaining children. Under her skillful leadership, ST. NICHOLAS brings to thousands of homes on both sides of the water knowledge and delight.

ST. NICHOLAS IN ENGLAND

It is not alone in America that ST. NICHOLAS has made its great success The London Times says: "It is above anything we produce in the same line." The Scotsman says: "There is no magazine that can successfully compete with it."

THE COMING YEAR OF ST. NICHOLAS.

The fifteenth year begins with the number for November, 1887, and the publishers can announce: Serial and Short Stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Frank R. Stockton, H H. Boyeson, Joel Chandler Harris, J. T. Trowbridge, Col. Richard M. Johnston, Louisa M Alcott, Professor Alfred Church, William H Rideing, Washington Gladden, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Amelia E. Barr, Frances Courtenay Baylor, Harriet Upton, and many others. Edmund Alton will write a series of papers on the "Routine of the Republic,"—how the President works at the White House, and how the affairs of the Treasnry, the State and War Departments, etc., are conducted; Joseph O'Brien, a well known Australian journalist, will describe "The Great Island Continent"; Elizabeth Robina Pennell will tell of "London Christmas Pantomimes" (Alice in Wonderland, etc); John Burroughs will write "Meadow and Woodland Talks with Young Folk," etc., etc. Mrs. Burnett's short serial will be, the editor says, a worthy successor to her famous "Little Lord Fauntleroy," which appeared in ST. NICHOLAS.

Why not try ST NICHOLAS this year for the young people in the house? Begin with the November nnmber Send us $3 00, or subscribe through booksellers and newsdealers. The Century Co., 33 East 17th St., N. Y.

Many of the Christmas Carols, especially Dickens. We have a notion that the Dickens admirers—and they are legion—will sell it the best of the kind ever made. Here is what the great novelist's son writes about it:

TH MONT HOUSE, BOSTON, Nov. 3, 1887.

Dear Sir:

I have to acknowledge with thanks, receipt of the Dickens Calendar, with which I am very much pleased. Faithfully yours, CHARLES DICKENS.

A wonderfully like portrait of Dickens; half a dozen picture scenes, and a thought-burdened sentence for every day in the year 50c.; by mail, 56c.

Christmas Cards are ready. As many as ever, as carefully picked as ever; seem to be prettier and cheaper than ever.

15½ FEET OF RIBBON COUNTER AND NOT A waste inch! Is there any doubt where the Ribbon trade of the town centres? We take it to be the Ribbon spot in the whole world.

Every sort of Ribbon. Every width, every color of Ribbon.

Gros-Grain Plain.

For Millinery, the popular satin-edged Ribbons, plain and moire, 2½ to 5 in—black, navy, browns, terra-cotta, myrtle, and any wanted color.

A BOOMFUL OF $1.35 BRUSSELS CARPET AT $1.10. There would be enough in such a statement to let an extra tide of buyers surging through the Store were this little price put on odd lots, broken pieces, remnants, or unthrifty hangers-on. It isn't. 382 piece—123 patterns—of the best quality Brussels Carpet (maker's name woven on the back) at 25 cents a yard less than the regular price! Full quantities of every design. Borders to match. Not a style that limps; not a pattern that does not be your first choice; not a yard that would not go at $1.35.

It is precisely the same sort of stock we have been selling all the season. But these big trade weeks have a way to turn that lets us drop a quarter dollar from every yard.

This is how it came about: At some seasons Carpet manufacturers and jobbers close out the stock on hand. Taking advantage of such happenings, we have been to us several large lots at lower-than-ever prices for standard goods.

It is the nick of time for you if you wish to eat a Brussels Carpet.

Or a Tapestry Carpet, for that matter. They too are dressy, very dressy, and by the same chance.

Bright and cheerful colors; border designs than Brussels, and about half the cost—

32 patterns at 50 cents.
35 patterns at 55 cents.
60 patterns at 60 cents.

These are the lowest prices we ever made on such goods. The 55-centers are the kinds usually sold at 75 cents, and the other sorts are just as far out of the common.

OFFICE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL WHO HAVE BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS WITH THIS DEPARTMENT.

1st. We do not take postage stamps. If you cannot obtain Post Office Money Order, which is the safest method to send money, you can send by registered letter. These are issued by every post office in the United States. If your postmaster insists on selling you stamps you insist the more on having him register your letter.

2nd. Send the exact amount of money required to pay for the goods you order. When this is not done our rule is to send that amount of supplies which the money sent will pay for.

3rd. When you order from us, always write plainly at the bottom of your letter the place where you wish your supplies sent. Very often persons write us our order from one place on a circuit desiring it sent to some other place, and do not mention this very important fact.

4th. For all money sent to us for Sunday school literature we send a postal card receipt, nnmbered. If your order is delayed, or if there is any irregularity concerning it, write to us about it, but be sure to give the number of your receipt card and the name of the person who sent the order or signed his name to it. When a pastor writes to us that his superintendent sent us money, etc., we do not know who is his superintendent unless he writes us his name. Always send the names of persons and not names of churches, schools, circuits, stations, etc.

5th. Sign your name to your communication. We cannot tell who sent a letter to us when there is no name signed to it.

6th. Write your name in large, plain letters. Avoid flonrishing It is useless and often renders obscure what would otherwise be legible writing.

7th. Never send a postal note, money order or express package without any instruction accompanying it. How do we know what to do with money sent thus? In order to avoid loss we will have to quote them or send you a catalogue, price list, blank and return envelope.

10th. Always collect your money for supplies and have it appropriated for them at least two weeks before the beginnig of each quarter; this will prevent much delay. Very often orders do not arrive until one-half or two-thirds of the quarter is past; in which case we have to print an extra amount of literature for the benefit of two or three persons or else lay ourselves liable to a "raking over" by them.

11th. When the Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterly, the Juvenile and Gem Lesson Pages are ordered, they are rolled in one package together. The catechisms, song books, primary lessons, reward cards and other such matter are never in one wrapper. When you order both inquire for two packages at the post office.

12th. If your city has the free delivery system have your mail directed to the street and number. Unless you do this it will be returned to us while you are abnsing us for neglect.

13th. Every pastor is hereby earnestly requested to have some one, who is permanently located in his work, elected Sunday school supply clerk, whose duty it shall be to send for all orders for his Sunday school supplies.

We hope this will be done at once by each pastor and that he will send us the name of the one elected to this office. This method of communicating with us through a person who has permanent location in a place will lessen difficulty and greatly facilitate intercourse between us and our patrons. It is hoped that this request will receive immediate attention. We have purchased new books in which to record the names of Sunday school supply clerks and we anxiously await their names. A postal card will serve for this purpose. Hoping that the above instructions will be received with the kindly spirit with which they are given, and praying the blessing of Almighty God upon all those who are, with us, intrusted with the children's welfare. Fraternally,

C. S. SMITH.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH.

TO THE BISHOPS, MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE AFRICAN METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHUCH:

My Dear Brethren:—"Read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the subject-matter of circular—the "Centennial of African Methodism." Its contents are more than a mere passing interest. "Remember the days of old, consider the years of many generations: Ask thy father, and he will show thee; thy elders, and they will tell thee. Remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee one hundred years in the wilderness."

The hundredth year of the first colored Methodist Society in America, "out of which grew the African M. E Church," will be celebrated November, 1887, according to the following resolutions of Bishop J. M. Brown adopted by the Council of Bishops in Washington, D. C., January 22 1887:

WHEREAS, November next (1887), will be one hundred years since Richard Allen, Absalom Jones and others left the St. George Methodist Episcopal Church in Philadelphia, because "the colored people belonging to the M. E. Society convened to take into consideration the evils under which they labored, arising from unkind treatment of their white brethren, who considered them a nuisance in the house of God, and were pulled them from their knees, while in the act of prayer, and ordered them to the back seat"

WHEREAS, This most decisive act of our religious colored people in the United States has nothing like it in the world, if we except the resolutions of the Haitians, under Toussaint, Christophe, Petion and Boyer. These men were to Hayti and San Domingo what Allen, Coker and Absalom Jones were to the colored Christians of the United States. It was one of the cases of manhood Christianity. All recognized that they proved the manhood of the descendants of the African race, in their resistance of the proscription in Church and State. Toussaint and Allen, by their manly actions and love of freedom, deserve to be remembered by all their African descendants to the latest generation:

Therefore, we think that the A. M. E. Church should commemorate the first efforts of individual organization among the people called Methodist, and especially as the man who was leader in the efforts of manhood Christianity was the fonnder and the first Bishop of the A. M. E. Church, Richard Allen. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That we recommend the Bishops to appoint a committee of five who shall have complete control of the whole matter and arrange for the celebration in all of the conferences, and at Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Pa., November, 1887.

The following committee was appointed: Bishops J. M. Brown, T. M. D. Ward, H. M. Turner, R. R. Disney and Dr. B. W. Arnett.

The committee met and appointed J. M. Brown, president; B. W. Arnett, secretary.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

First, That the Chief Pastors of the African Methodist Episcopal Church request that next November, a date in that month be hereafter fixed to commemorate the one hundredth year since our existence commenced, and that service be held in all of our churches throughout our connection. The order of exercises to be fixed by each conference, quarterly conference and pastor and church; the general arrangement to be fixed by a committee hereafter appointed.

Second, As our publishing interest has long suffered because of her indebtedness, that a contribution be made by all of our churches, and whatever is collected will be appropriated to assist in paying off the debt now resting on our Publication Department.

Third, That the detail of all arrangements be left with the General Manager and his committee.

Fourth, That all moneys be sent to Bishop J P. Campbell, 1923 North Eleventh St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Fifth, That the first Sunday in November he observed as "Century Day" by all the churches.

Sixth, That the ministers and officers of the churches select some person to deliver an address or addresses on the subjects named in the programme.

Seventh, That all persons having subjects assigned them on the general programme will prepare them for publication in the Centennial volume. The average length of each address to be twenty-five minutes,

GENERAL CONFERENCE NOTICE.

Direct all communications to John W. Gazaway, 214 West Vermont St., Indianapolis, Ind.

This is pertinently put: "Boycott your temper, strike your vices, and work for your living."

I have been benefited by praying for others; for making an errand to God for them I have got something for myself.

It is in vain for anyone to speak of divine things without something of divine affection. He has not been able to prevail upon himself to be holy, and no marvel if he fail to prevailing upon others.

Affections hunt us again into God's fold when we have leaped out They are God's file to rub off our dust; God's soap and fuller's earth to remove spots; God's fan to blow away our chaff.—Francis Roberts.

BOOKS.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints. 1st. Because it furnishes the best manual method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. Because "it shows how to preach with ease and grace, and yet with power and success." 3rd. Because "it exposes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to correct them." Its reviewers advise ministers to read the work carefully, because "they will find it much that they never thought of"—because "the very hints they most need to receive are not furnished by other homiletical works"—because "it is replete with shrewd, hard, good sense;"—because "it is a book for all ministers, however educated,"—because it is earned by many to be the most helpful book they ever read. "Worth its weight in gold."

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FOR PREACHERS AND OTHER PUBLIC SPEAKERS

Dr. Porter's Hints to them is one of the most useful. "Worth its weight in gold," says the Christian Guardian. $1.25.

For teaching every one how to do good, "The Winning Worker; or, the Possibilities, Duty and Methods of Personal Effort to Win Souls to Christ," by the same author. Order of J. C. Embry, 631 Pine Street, Philadelphia. Why not make presents that will do good?

"WORTH MORE THAN ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD."—"A young minister and local preacher, who is a preacher would have been saved from failure by the early study of such a book."—Christian Guardian.

IS THE BIBLE TRUE, AND FROM GOD?

Read Dr. Porter's late book called "Christianity Demonstrated By Experience." It will settle the question forever and set your souls on fire. Buy a copy and keep it to lend to the poor society, and especially to unbelievers. On sale by Rev. J. C. Embry, Price, $1.50. A new supply just received.

"I OUGHT TO WRITE YOU THAT MY WIFE IS DEAD."

This is a sad duty that many a widower is obliged to perform, but in the following instance the writer was not a widower. It is from a farmer in Ira, Jasper Co., Iowa, and is dated Feb 8 1886.

"I ought to write you that my wife is dead, in order that the predictions of the physicians should become true; but thank God she lives, and is getting better as fast as could be reasonably expected; is up all day generally, and is able to get around quite lively; appetite good. Did not get the beef extract, as you advised, but killed a fat heifer, and ample justice is done to the steak."

The dynamic value of one pound of good steam coal has been estimated by Professor W D Rogers as equivalent to the work of one man one day, while three tons would represent his work for twenty years, counting three hundred working days in a year. It is only about 256 years ago that the first Thanksgiving Day was observed in this country. Old Massasoit and his sunny braves sat down to dinner with the long faced Puritans. The Indians brought deer from the woods, and the palefaces supplied fish, clams and corn. Ten years later when the last batch of bread in the colony was in Governor Bradford's oven and starvation was staring our New England ancestors in the face, a good ship from Ireland appeared with provisions, and the day appointed for fasting was changed into a day of thanksgiving.—Washington Public Opinion.

Truly Your Brother,
G. M. WITTEN, P. E.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

To the presiding elders of the Columbia Annual Conference. Dear brethren: Please inform me by postal at once if you have any applicants for the ministry or candidates for local orders.

To the General Officers of the Connection: Dear brothren, as many of you as expect to visit the Columbia Conference at Newberry, S. C., Dec. 7th, you will favor the pastor by dropping him a postal to that effect, who is leaving no stone unturned that will add to the pleasure of the conference.

Your yoke-fellow in Christ,
C. PINCKNEY NELSON, Pastor,
Address, Newberry, S. C.

NOTICE.

To the Presiding Elders of the West Texas Annual Conference: You will please notify me at once as to the number of candidates each will have for the traveling work. Likewise we will be pleased to have the General Officers communicate the fact to me that they intend visiting the conference, so I will be able to prepare homes for them. This is imperative.

H McKENNA, Pastor,
Bastrop, Texas, Box 2.

TO SECRETARIES OF CONFERENCES.

DEAR BRETHREN:—Many thanks for favor. Please send me a copy of your last conference minutes.

Secretary of Education, Box 263, Athens, Ga.

PROGRAMME OF THE GREAT CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH TO BE HELD IN ALL THE CHURCHES IN THE MONTH OF NOVEMBER, 1887.

1. In all the cities where there are two or more A. M. E. Churches; as in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Wilmington, Charleston, Nashville, Savannah, Atlanta, Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, etc., etc., we earnestly recommend a grand union opening meeting on Wednesday night, November 9th, or on the night of the 16th, uniting all the choirs of the city in one grand sacred concert. Local committees will see to it that the exercises are made lively and effective—a real time of gladness, thanksgiving and praise Let pastors, choirs and officers be all thoroughly alive to the occasion.

2. On Thursday or Friday night a public oration or several addresses on the independence and successful work of our Church We urge that this meeting be made free of charge, and that tickets therefor be given to all respectable persons who will attend.

3 On Friday, or on the same night of addresses, prepare a "Centennial Banquet." Make it a season of congratulation and pleasure for all.

4 On Sunday morning a Centennial prayer-meeting from 5 to 7 A. M. At 10 o'clock a sermon on the rise and progress of the Church. Text, Acts 13, 41: "Behold, ye dispisers and wonder, (and perish), for I work a work in your days, a work which ye will in no wise believe, though a man declare it unto you." (Collect your envelopes)

5. At 2 P. M. Sunday school concert with short addresses. (Collect your envelopes).

6. At night, a eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Collect your envelopes. Conclude with the prayer of thanksgiving. (See evening prayer, Ritual of the A. M. E. Church, page —), and then repeat the Creed and sing: "From all that dwell below the sky," etc., ending with the doxology, "Praise God from whom all beesings flow," and benediction.

II PART.

Programme of the grand concluding celebration to be held in Philadelphia, commencing on Wednesday, November 23d.

1. Wednesday night, Union Sacred Concert, at ..... hall, ... street, Philadelphia.

2. Thursday night (Thanksgiving Day) Centennial Banquet at each of the churches, or such other exercisee as each pastor and his committee may decide to have.

3. Friday night, Grand Literary Meeting, with speaking by the following named gentlemen, at ..... hall, ... street.

Speakers: Prof. T. McCants Stewart, of N. Y.

2. Rev. ——, of Fla.

3. Rev. C. S. Smith, of Tenn.

4. Rev. William J. Lawe, of the Iowa Conference.

5. Portrait of Bishop Allen, life size, excuted by the colored artist ——— to be presented to the connection by Rev. C. T. Shaffer, through Bishop Payne. Address and reply.

III PART.

1. On Sunday morning, a centennial prayer meeting at 5 o'clock.

2 At 10 30 A. M., centennial sermon on the rise and progress of the Church—text, Acts 13, 41. Collection of envelopes.

3. At 2 P. M Union Sunday School concert, with short addresses, by chosen persons. Collect envelopes. Philadelphia Sunday schools to be united as follows: Bethel, Zion Mission and Murray Chapel Sunday schools together at Bethel; Allen Chapel and Mt. Pisgah Sunday schools together at Allen; Union Church and Morris Brown, at Union.

4. At night, hymn, O, God our help, etc, 701, Ritual 16 A eulogy on the life and influence of Richard Allen. Conclude with the prayer for the clergy and people. Ritual of the A. M. E Church, page 160. The prayer for all men, and the general thanksgiving, page 162. Sing the hymn 862, Ritual No. 12, and doxology, "Praise God," etc., Ritual No. 26. Collect envelopes, and report the amount. The creed and benediction.

NOTICE.

We again urge the pastors who shall take part in the Centennial to make returne promptly to this office, payable to Bishop J. P. Campbell. Send by postal order; if possible, but when this cannot be done, register the money in a letter addressed to J. C. Embry, and be sure to mark inside, "Centennial Fund."

In all cases, give the name of the pastor, and the name of the church, and tell us the conference you are in, as we desire to credit each conference with the amount sent by it in our report. By doing this you will oblige us, and facilitate our work.

☞A receipt will be sent to each and all persons immediately on receiving their money.

J. C. EMBRY, Manager.

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Bishops of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint-commission of the African M. E. Church and African M. E. Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15-17, 1885

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in May, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date fixed. Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops,

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

WITH A BOTTLE

Of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral at hand, one may feel comparatively secure against the various diseases arising from sudden changes of temperature, exposure to drafts and storms, and the inclemencies of spring and fall. "Of the many preparations before the public for the cure of Colds, Coughs, Bronchitis, and kindred diseases, there are none, within the range of my experience and observation, so as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral," writes Thos. G. Edwards, M. D., of Blanco, Texas.

George W. Dick, of Newton, Mass., says: "Two years ago I took a severe cold, which, being neglected, was followed by a terrible cough. I lost flesh rapidly, had night sweats, and was confined to my bed. A friend advised the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I began to take this medicine, and, before finishing the first bottle, was able to sit up. Four bottles effected a perfect cure."

The Western
Farm Mortgage Trust Co.,
Lawrence, Kan.
PAID UP CAPITAL, $500,000

THE WESTERN FARM MORTGAGE CO. of Lawrence, Kansas, has reorganized as "The Western Farm Mortgage Trust Co." with a paid up Capital of FIVE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS. The PRESIDENTS of two NATIONAL BANKS in LAWRENCE are amongst the largest Stockholders and Officers. This in face of the adverse reports as to the Company's management and stability—all of which was started by business rivalry.

The following letter is in reply to inquiry about the Debentures.

AMERICAN LOAN & TRUST CO., 113 Broadway,
New York Nov. 16th, 1887.

Mr Frank Skinner, Agent Western Farm Mortgage Co., Phila.

Dear Sir:—We are in receipt of yours of the 15th inst. cone rning the Western Farm Mortgage Co. The letter referred to by you was written by us, but the remark quoted that "the Co. was unable to furnish the securities which they certified were during on file in their office," which was appended to the circular, did not emanate from us; it is a pure fabrication. Since that letter was written, the Mortgage Company have forwarded the securities we asked for and The Western Farm Mortgage Co's Debenture Trust account stands as follows:

Bonds and Mortgages in hand, duly certified according to contract as to value—duly transferred and assigned and assignments recorded 2936,853
Debentures issued and certified. 130,500
Excess of Securities, 16,663
Amount of Excess of Securities required by contract, 9 478
Surplus of Securities over 5 per cent. required by contract, 8,606

Signed, W. D. SNOW, Secretary.

"Frank Skinner,
102 S. 4th St., Phila., Pa.

The undersigned were invited by the officers of the western Farm Mortgage Company, Lawrence, Kan., to look into the affairs of the company. In accordance with the request we have devoted as much time as was at our command to the matter. The books, records and securities of the Company were found to be in a fairly and fully presented to us. From our examination we are satisfied that the total face value of the assets of the Company exceed its liabilities in the sum of four hundred and fifteen thousand and six hundred and seventy-two dollars. In the estimate we have taken the appraised value of the real estate sixteen and two-thirds per cent. That business is being conducted so as to have been conducted prosperously. S. O. THACHER, Pres. Nat Bank, Lawrence, Kan.

GEO. W. E. GRIFFITH,
President Merchants' Nat. Bank, Lawrence, Kan."

They evidently thought well of the Company's credit and business as the following telegram shows:

Lawrence, Kan., Nov. 24, 1887.

Frank Skinner,
102 S. 4th St. Philadelphia.

Have organized as the Western Farm Mortgage Trust Company, with paid up capital of Five Hundred Thousand Dollars. The directors are composed of the best known capitalists of the West, who buy large amount from the world-renowned author of the "Umderground Railroad," Mr. William Still, of Philadelphia. A draft for $100 enclosed is the result of his timely mention of Wilberforce to the old Anti-slavery Society of Philadelphia, of which he is an honored member. This act Wilberforce will never cease to appreciate.

A short time prior I was sitting in the Springfield depot, waiting for the train to Delaware, where the North Ohio Conference was just convening; a friend hailed me with the words, "I have good news for you concerning Wilberforce?" Answering my quick inquiry, he told me that a friend in Greene county had just made his will, in which, after reserving $500 for his Church (the A. M. E.) and a stated amount for monuments for his wife (herself and aged sister, he provided that all the remainder of his estate, not less than $30,000, should become an endowment fund for Wilberforce University. The emotions at once awakened were beyond expression. We at once proceeded to find our two trustees, Messrs. Dickson and Buford, and break the glad news to them. Brother Hall was present and hesitated not to say he had been thinking of pursuing a similar course with his own property (valued at $6,000). We took the train that afternoon, went to Delaware and when opportunity was given, made known the munificent gift. Bishop Campbell took the floor all radiant with joy. He told of the grand liberality of Bishop Shorter and his sainted wife; alluded to his own purpose in giving $1,000 to Wilberforce, namely, to inspire others to exercise a kindred benevolence, and strongly intimated that one who stood near to him in life would not fail to follow the example of her departed sister. And others spoke, and ere we left the information was imparted that a fund of $1,000 was available at Hamilton, Ohio, and arrangements were making for its transfer. How often do we recall the oft repeated words of Bishop Shorter in hours of financial gloom: "There is money in the country for Wilberforce" We share his faith and believe that the dawn is breaking. Accompanied by Bishop Payne we called on our aged friend at Yellow Springs, and his own lips confirmed the statement of the donation of $30,000. Returning to the University additional light was given, which I may not now reveal

A LETTER FROM THE CONGO VALLEY.

The following interesting letter was handed us by Mr. Wm. Still:

PALABALA STATION,
L. I. MISSION OF THE A. B. M. UNION
CONGO FREE STATE, S. W. A.,
October 6, 1887

WILLIAM STILL, ESQ.,
Philadelphia, Pa.:

DEAR FRIEND.—Yours of July 15th came safe to hand early in September. You know not how much comfort the renewed assurance of your sympathy and prayers affords me. I arrived at the above station on the 20th of May after an overland journey, in a hammock, of eleven miles. Would that I could describe the picturesque scenes of the Congo River and country as it impresses me. I can only say that the limited portion seen by my admiring eyes is more beautiful than anything I have ever seen in nature. The evergreen blnffs of the mighty river and the gigantic peeks of the monntainous valley are truly grand. What a contrast to the benighted minds of the inhabitants! I arrived at the close of the rainy reason and, therefore, enjoyed the cold season first. We are expecting rains now within the next ten days This is our spring time. I begin ning to get very warm. Two days ago it was ninety-eight degrees Fh in the shade. It seems so strange to see the trees putting ont fresh leaves and the flowers blooming when we have been in town was found to be the witch Oi course the man had to die. He ordered all his slaves ont and armed them and declared himself ready to meet the new chief's party. The rich man being the stronger, they ended it after a quarrel. We heard the noise and went over to the town, and the face of the Uganga was something fearful. He was dressed and painted and he was quite disguised. This matter did not satisfy the minds of the people, as people continued to die. The next thing we knew they had taken to the valley a poor helpless woman, a wife of the dead chief, and killed her. She was done in the morning (Sabbath) while we were in services. The chief was questioned but he would not say he had done it nor would he say he had not. We sent down to the State official saying such a thing had happened. They came up at once to arrest the chief. The had man could not he found. This gave birth to a contract between all the chiefs and State that anch is not to be the case again, and that if such a thing should happen the chief allowing it is to be arrested by the other chiefs and delivered to the State. The Lord bless these feeble efforts and use them to his glory.

There are at work in the Valley Missionary Societies as follows: the English Baptist, American Baptist, Bishop Taylor's Mission, a committee of Free Will Offerers in England (just beginning work), Swedish Mission and the Roman Catholic Church. The Bishop himself has been in the valley more than three months. He is not more than ten miles from us, but we have not seen him. He has been trying to use the engine of his Congo steamer to take up the steamer by traction. There were two men ont from America to do the work, but it has been a failure. The boiler-maker was up to spend some time with us and he said that he told the Bishop as soon as he saw the Congo hills that a traction engine would never take up the steamer. It seems too bad that such a waste of time and money should have been. The man that was up here had been discharged with only £8 ($40) given him to live on until he could find work. We were all very sorry for him. Has no work as yet. There are eight of us at this station and we are all very well. I have bed the station girls given to my care and teach the primary classes and the highest English classes in our daily school. I asked one of the boys of my class to write you a letter, which you will find enclosed. Shall be glad to have you print a few extracts from my letter and the letter in full from the boy. The letter is poor English, but when you think of the dear little fellow being a wild savage ten years ago you would look in wonder on him now. I wanted his own composition and handwrite, so I asked no changes. My own is composed too hastily to go to press, but I thought if the his on the cnstome of the people just it would save my having to write it again. I have so little writing time.

You asked as to my situation. I am not situated at all as yet. A very loving English lady, whose husband died here last Christmas and whose companion I am in the school work, kindly opened her doors to me until I could build, or have built, a house. I have written to friends asking that they afford my house. It will cost only two hundred dollars, and I imagine I would feel more at home in a house given me by friends ont of love and sympathy then have my Board make an appropriation for it. Much love to the doctor and family and dear Mrs Still and Mrs. Harris. I wrote the doctor from London Have not had a fever. Love to all friends.

Yours in Africa,
L. C. FLEMING

P. S.—Rev. Edwin Small, M. D, leaves na for America by this mail. His wife was very sick on her way out and came back from Madeira Islands. She has been sick ever since The doctor has not been very well lately either, so he goes He takes the first Congo boy with him to America. You perhaps remember that the doctor sailed from New York September, '86. This boy whom he takes has been to England and speaks English as well as the boy from whom you got the letter. This boy has been also. I enclose a picture of a group of carriers. Our horses as yet are these dear forms. I do feel so sorry for them. Shall send some better once as soon as I get ont some chemicals for my camera. It rained a little to-day —10.h. L. C. F.

LAW.

BY REV. D. TIMOTHY M'DANIEL, A. B

MR EDITOR:—Allow me to break the long-reigned silence by predicating a few thoughts under the above caption. The commonly received definition of law is, "A prescribed rule of action" God is eternal and law sprang from him, therefore law is as old as the Nebular Hypothesis operated under a law. The stars and all the planetary system move by law. The sparkling dewdrop or the falling leaf, the rushing mighty waters are all governed by law. In a word, from the above definition of the term law, that animate and rational beings alone are governed by law, but the irrational are governed by law, while the rational rebel and disobey. We boast of our superiority in every respect, but there is none of God's creatnres so rebellious as that of the "masterpiece of his creation"—man. Suppose the sun would rebel a time or two, what would become of this world of ours? Suppose the earth would rebel and stop her revolution around the sun; but she does not disobey the laws made by the Creator, therefore every thing moves in harmony.

Now, Mr. Editor, the General Conference of '84, sitting in the city of Baltimore, did make a law and set apart a day known as "Endowment Day" to be observed throughout the connection by the great and small, yea the bond and free, for the purpose of raising money to educate those that desired an education. A better thing has never been done in our Church than the setting apart of the above-named day. "Knowing to whom the schools are to belong in the future," looking over the statistical table of the Columbia District until my eye glanced on the column of endowment money for last year, I was utterly surprised to see in the district just mentioned only fifty-six dollars and some cents raised on Endowment Day. I could not realize the truthfulness of the figures. I don't know as yet how much money in this district was raised on endowment this year, but I have had a convereation with a member of the brethren, and some, to my surprise and hurt, have disregarded the law enacted by the highest legislative body of our Church. To my mind the Latin saying "False uno false omnibus" is true, which may be translated "Guilty of breaking one law guilty of breaking the whole."

Some of the brethren on Endowment Day will leave their work and go visiting that day and leave some for preachers to preach and raise what money they can on that day. I say this because I know it to be true. Brethren, is this right? Did we not solemnly promise when we entered the conference that we would be governed by the Discipline of the African Methodist Episcopal Church? Yes, we promised that and we are morally bound to keep our promise. If we had made a promise to do something that was evil, we would not be bound morally to keep our promise, but it is a righteous promise and, therefore, we are bound morally to hold sacred our promises made. Will flowery speeches on the conference floor and other places educate a race or the schools? I answer, No; a thousand times no! If we would educate ourselves we must sacrifice and raise the cry, On to success! on to success until every mountain of difficulty melts before us as the dews before the rising sun.

Brethren, let us sacrifice and do our whole duty on that and keep the vows which we have so solemnly made, both in the presence of God and man. I speak to the brethren of the Columbia District, to which I belong We must arouse ourselves that we might see the great responsibility resting npon us. Is it right that we would let other districts do more for Allen, which is our district, than we ourselves? The great cause of education demands that we have a concert of action. Would that we would imitate that great and noble Christian hero, the late lamented Rt. Rev. James A. Shorter, who was a great philanthropist and lover of education, that almost with his dying breath made sacred the cause of education by giving a thousand dollars of his hard-earned means.

Brethren, let us awake to our duties. Some of us have work that ought to do great things for the cause of education that scarcely does anything. Who is to be blamed—the people, or the preacher, who is the leader? I allow you to answer this question yourselves.

THE SEA OF GALILEE.

If there be one word which fell from the Divine Teacher that impresses the mind more than another by its sublime simplicity, it is "Peace," for there is so much here to suggest it. Nature moves on in her luxuriant course, peacefully, calmly, with no discord. The freshness of the morning, the repose of noonday, the golden tints and purple shadows of evening, the reflections of the stars on the bright surface of the sea, all bring in continued succession the messages of peace Much more is this so now than when Jesus dwelt as Canaan's sojourner. The city of his adoption is in ruins. On the sea to-day sails no boat with a deck npon which he could sit and teach the multitudes on the shore. The multitudes are gone to rest. The synagogues are in ruins, and "the cities wherein most of his mighty works were done" are no more. The jealous Herod and his host of admirers are gone. But there are the same mountains that echoed his voice. Here, like a diamond, still is spread the blue sea on whose tronbled waters he walked in the "fourth watch of the night"—where twice he rose and "rebuked the winds," and said, "Peace, be still"; and it is here that he came to meet his disciples after his resurrection.—Edward L. Wilson in the Century.

Some curious phenomna are appearing in the section of country between Summerville and Charleston, which was so greatly disturbed by the earthquake shock of August 31, 1886 There are many deep pits on the margin of which have been thrown up pure white sand, such as is seen only on the seashore. On this sand has sprung np a dense growth of sea plants. It is evident that the seeds from which these plants have sprung have been ejected from great depths, where they have doubtless been buried many centuries without losing their germinating powers.—Savannah News.

THE CONNECTIONAL ASCENDENCY GAINED BY INCREASED EPISCOPAL EVANGELIZATION.

Great and exceedingly important is the topic now before us. Its grave bearing upon the subject of our argument causes me to ponder long before I attempt to form a sentence on it. Nothing that has been advanced; nothing that can be advanced demands such serious consideration as " the connectional ascendency to be gained by increased Episcopal evangelization." The grandest efforts which can be made by any religious organization are those which are designed to Christianize the world. Nothing more sacred could be an incentive to justify the setting apart of a hundred Bishops. And it is at this point that I again acknowledge divine guidance, although I have been sacrilegiously gainsaid for even doing this

An Episcopal church government that can be made subservient to the process of bringing souls to Christ, is worthy of the most extensive consecration to this "aim and object."

Bishop in the highest exalted sense are the evangelists of the Church—the ones unto whom may be fittingly given the mandate—"Go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying—The kingdom of God is at hand." They are evangelists; and being able to prominently engage in the eucharistical services, they are more than evangelists as they stand before the people and tell them "that the kingdom of heaven is at hand"

Eight more such personages, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, added to the half a dozen faithful ones now performing this holy work, would just give that much more of force unto it At any stated period throughout the land there could be simultaneously preached fourteen episcopal discourses instead of six. These would be eight times more effective than six, for each would produce its own individual effect. Marked impressions would be made upon multitudes of hearers who are not reached by the African Methodist Episcopal Church to-day. By this increase of evangelical power, the peculiar cry for —" Members! members! members!"—would be answered with "cloven tongues of fire" and an upheaval of the ments of moral nature culminating in sound conversions and effectual confirmations. The increased multitudes having the gospel preached unto them by such an illustrious band of episcopal evangelists, would be startled as by the "sound of a rushing mighty wind," and yield a host of converts to be added to the connection. To meet at this assumption is to put at a discount the preaching of the gospel.

The most important duty of a Bishop is to preach. He does more for the connection by this means than he does by art parliamentary skill. His character attracts attention and creates a burning desire to hear him. Wherever he may go, he will find an auricus throng ready to listen to the word of God falling from his lips. Let him in their presence "do the work of an evangelist"—preach, reprove, rebuke, exhort—and with all the whole truth, reason of righteousness, temperance and judgment to come —let him do all this and his proportion of work will be done in advancing the connection and in far exceeding

Increase the force, and just in proportion do you increase the ascendency of the connection Let fourteen Bishops, all of one accord, at any time go forth to do the specific work of evangelists, and just so surely will the Holy Ghost attend their efforts and make incalculable the results. Sinners will be convicted, mourners will be converted and souls will be added to the Church. Let episcopal power be exercised on the attitude of its efficiency in this direction, and the real worth of the organization behind it will produce the highest degree of honor among angels. The connection will show itself to be one of the grandest institutions existing for the Christianization of the world. It will, by this means as it can by no other, be revered as an indispensable auxiliary to all other Christian organizations. And one fact will have a bearing on this point. Some years ago Bishop Waugh preached in a certain part of Maryland to a mixed congregation and so earnestly affected a white man in the congregation that he took a trip to Baltimore for the purpose of relieving his mind, but could get no rest, night nor day, until he sought and obtained religion. Let the connection provide the means to increase this kind of work and it will attain unto the highest object of its creation.

I might gradually erect a convincing influence among all the colored people of the land; it will reach them as it cannot reach them by any other medium. The holy flame which will grow out of this arrangement—the commandments for the purpose of appreciating the best means of effecting certain classes, the conclusions to go forth on a designated day to concentrate every effort on them, the united solicitation for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon myself as recipient of the gift, and all the energy that can be directed for evangelism by the Bishop will bring the colored population more signally under the influence of the A. M. E. Church than it ever has been in the course of its existence. Looking at the matter in this light, and considering the spiritual needs of the colored people, nothing greater, indeed, it may be asserted, can be designated as a means of building up the connection.

In all the work of the ministry nothing has a more significant bearing upon the world than evangelism for its conversion Nothing more seriously demands the attention and approbation of every true-born Christian. This is the process, sacred, noble and inestimable, that requires every evangelical organization to strain itself for its advancement. If no other proposition is worthy of consideration as a reason for making Bishops and presiding elders and pastors, this is all sufficient for the justification of the establishment of as many of them as are demanded for this holy purpose.

Let fourteen Bishops go forth as the evangelistic pioneers of the A. M. E. Church and they will produce wonderful results. Let them be ordained and let them see the needs of the colored population as they alone can see them; and let them make provision to meet those needs in every spiritual respect—let them make revival work frequently a specialty, appoint their days for each and all to preach at the same time in different parts of the country so what would be known as "the Bishops' Evangelical Day," and thus preaching all with one accord, they would arouse many of those whom they would find in a state of uneasiness and "in the work of the Lord would be revived from year to year, Christendom would be inspired and the connection would be drawn nearer to other religious organizations for co-operation. Apart from them it would be conspicuous as the great evangelical body of the world and be accepted as the benefactor of every denomination. It would make such a grand display of uniqueness and man's moral worth that it would crush the racial labels emanating from the Episcopalian Church, beat back the enemies concentrated at given points to contest its onward movement and at close array for earnest work in every line of action—for building up good societies, for advancing the missionary cause, for promoting education and increasing the love for temperance. It is impossible to recount all the good results which would follow on this line by the establishment of such a Board of Bishops. The whole race would be improved to such an extent that its voice would be irresistible in every part of the land. Reformation crowds would be moved even among those who dwell in the slums and spend their money for grog. The aspiration for good would be increased in those who spend their thoughts upon the frivolities of life and disregard even the sanctity of the Sabbath day. Every where one would see steady advancement in morals, religion, education and refinement. The episcopal force—the primary cause of all these results—would truly show the connection to most terrible in battle an army with banners." Its increase to the highest state of its efficiency is as much of a necessity as is the appointment of pastors to various charges and the perpetuation of conference sessions. Let the glorious work be done.

STRAY SHEEP.

"A little fun now and then
Is relished by the wisest men."

These "stray sheep" are not fired of maliciously, but just as a sportsman shoots at birds he sees. They give us a diversion from the hard work we have been doing for weeks to benefit the Church. And so we take up our gun to shoot at the marks put up before us. We aim now at the one called "Superintendency." If I supposed this time to give you a full description of Sierra Leone, he cannot do so to-day, and don't know when I shall be able to do so fully, having so much to do, and so many more important matters to write about. We feel I am compelled to do so hurried ly, having always an uncertain interval of time at my disposal.

Any one headed fellow knows that superintendency is one thing and episcopacy and ordination are two other things. The one thing is a general system, and either one of the two things is a specific method by which you carry out the general system. Superintendency is nothing less than this either by discussion or relation. The episcopacy, as it has been carried on in the A. M. E. Church for more than a generation by the district system (which is far better than the rotary), is just as much a superintendency as it is by the rotary system. No one can confound it with either one of the subordinate methods in existence, except by superficiality. His argument will be just as sound and convincent as the following sum in addition: 2 horses plus 4 pigs plus 6 sheep plus 24 men make 36. A general oversight of the Church is superintendency, no matter which method you adopt to observe it. I like our present one and am opposed to innovations—changes which weaken. The best thing for us to do is to improve the machinery we have instead of substituting it with something new. If we are all the while planting scions and cutting them down we never will have any trees.

Wilmington, N. C.

WHY?

BY "WANDERER"

Mere statements prove nothing. For two years I have been a close observer, and of the one hundred and twenty-five sermons that I have listened to only three contained valid arguments; five were of sound reasoning, and ten expressed the right idea of Christianity and piety. The remainder was words, words, words, that gave no adequate idea of God, humanity or Christianity. Rhetoric is an excellent affair to beautify an argument, to embellish a sermon. But all the fine rhetoric in the world would never make one Christian, hence the failure of preachers. For two years not a convert in the church; the pastor unable to get a congregation until night; unable to protract a meeting for one week; no influence over the rising young men and women. Why? Mr. Editor, I am about to reveal a secret—I have in my mind a particular church which at one time was the flower of a city. When its bell rang its pews were filled. Now it never has a congregation of more fifty, and the question that must be: Why? I pause, I blush to utter the truth. But the church is a failure. Some one is responsible. No wonder Paul said that the gospel must have power, the Holy Ghost and much assurance.

What do you think of a pastor who will allow the young members of his church to actually give a ball to procure money to buy him a suit of clothes to go to the annual conference? Here is one instance where only the words of the gospel came to the people; no power (right thinking), no Holy Ghost, no assurance except that the pastor wanted money, and he would destroy law and gospel to get it. Our Discipline says, "It is the duty of pastor, elder or deacon to enforce vigorously, but calmly, all the rules of our Church." Is this a thing has occurred two years in succession. Is there any wonder that such a church is a failure? The presiding elder is not responsible, for it is done after his last quarter is held The Bishop is not responsible, for he will not hear of it unless some God-fearing person will acquaint him of the fact. These are the men who are pushed to the front to lead our sons and daughters to Jesus Christ, the eternal Son of God. Word sermons, word-begotten actions. The Church needs men who know God. Who know what religion is, what Christianity is, what piety is, what truth is, who know the law and dare to enforce it.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM AFRICA.

HOME ST., FREETOWN,
SIERRE LEONE, W. C. A.,
October 27, 1887.

DEAR DR. LEE:—It is our heartiest desire to promote a union of spirit between ourselves and our American brethren, and I cannot help thinking that you on the other side of the water will feel a more brotherly spirit towards us as we become less strange and more familiar to each other by means of our correspondence. If distance separ ery much that you cannot hear from us oftener, say at least once a month. The CHRISTIAN RECORDER, on the other hand, is most heartily welcomed by us, and in personal seems to bind our feelings to the brethren more than anything else. But I must remind you that we have not received the last two numbers yet.

I purposed this time to give you a full description of Sierre Leone, but cannot do so to-day, and don't know when I shall be able to do so fully, having so much to do, and so many more important matters to write about. We feel I am compelled to do so hurried ly, having always an uncertain interval of time at my disposal.

Any one headed fellow knows that superintendency is one thing and episcopacy and ordination are two other things. The one thing is a general system, and either one of the two things is a specific method by which you carry out the general system. Superintendency is nothing less than this either by discussion or relation. The episcopacy, as it has been carried on in the A. M. E. Church for more than a generation by the district system (which is far better than the rotary), is just as much a superintendency as it is by the rotary system. No one can confound it with either one of the subordinate methods in existence, except by superficiality. His argument will be just as sound and convincent as the following sum in addition: 2 horses plus 4 pigs plus 6 sheep plus 24 men make 36. A general oversight of the Church is superintendency, no matter which method you adopt to observe it. I like our present one and already. They must be supported and a great many of our pupils will be thrown on us for maintenance. Can our Church in America meet these requirements and the demands which will naturally arise as time goes on? Why not? When George Muller had 300 orphans and desired to have a thousand, he prayed for £58,000 to build an orphanage for 700 children and he obtained it all. We serve a great King and we ought not to limit his power. Let us master faith; only want of faith will prevent us.

This new work, among heathens and Mohammedans, I humbly desire to recommend to your prayer. In all our efforts which we are trying to make for the establishment of our mission in this dark land, we are absolutely dependent on God's grace and blessing. There are numerous difficulties now staring us in the face, which compel us in the most helpless manner to look up to him for help and guidance; and we believe he will supply all our needs, both of men and means, however many they may be. We are just completing some alterations in our church. The pulpit was one of those antiquated shapee, more like a sentry box; and the communion rails, so extensively arranged as to cause all the officers of the church and after whoever pleased, could rush in there; in fact, it was far from being as sacred as it should We have entirely remodeled the whole concern, all accomplished by the special effort of our elevation of the people by so much do we advance the religious progress of the world. The great need of the Church and the world is an enlightened conscience upon the great work of Christian missions. Could we possibly put the attention of our preachers to the means at hand for disseminating missionary information. "The Missionary Record," published by Dr. Townsend, for this purpose, would be in the hands of every preacher and member of the Church.

AN OPEN LETTER.

TO THE LAKE PROVIDENCE DISTRICT OF THE NORTH LOUISIANA CONFERENCE OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH:

DEAR BRETHREN:—We write you this open letter to convey to you the sentiments of high regard for the noble work which you have done and which you are doing for God, your race and the children entrusted to your care, and thus far have you well. When physical weakness almost compelled you to quit the field of labor, and when pestilence, desolation and death moved over our great country, leaving their dreaded footprints as they passed unmolested on, your voice has cried, "Onward with the cross and up with the banner of salvation." We are in sympathy with your work on the above-named district. We all soon shall appear at the annual connell to render in our reports, which I hope will be second to none. We must roll up $600 Dollar Money this conference year.

You have had a grand time spiritually, now let us have a grand time financially. Our district has greatly increased. We have 288 more than when we took charge of the district. Our Sunday school department has beat herself. We have 24 Sunday schools, 1,055 pupils; Sunday school books, I,190; increase of pupils since last year, 436; amount of money raised since last conference year, $330.80 Thus you see we have been doing what we are commanded to do. However, the work has been one of great struggle, but, remembering our calling as sons of the Master's work, we have marched on, passing through storm after storm, riding tha tempestous waves of trial, holding the warrant in hand that God gave us to arrest the world of darkness. While the billows are heaving high, we hear the footsteps of Jesus on the waters of salvation; amid the fitful moanings of the blast, the watchword is heard of joy, " Maranatha, the Lord is coming."

EDUCATION.

Wayman's Normal Agricultural High School, Delhi, La. While assembled in district conference of the above named district, April 28th, 1887, held on the Milliken Bend Circuit, we deeply considered the condition of our poor people in North Louisiana. We therefore agreed to establish a high school under the above named. A board of trustees elected and instructed to commence at once collecting money. On the 14th day of September, 1887, we collected our first dollar.—We went on, trusting in God, and since then we have purchased 31½ acres of land, a beautiful location, west of the town of Delhi, near the V. S. & P. R. R., paying one hundred dollars cash and having a balance on hand of about $50 or $60; and yet we are still going ahead in this great needful cause. Though we have been very ill and suffering severely from a carbuncle, but by strict medical skill we have just recuperated. We have not forgotten the Centennial. Look out for us, for we are coming! Many eyes are looking to see whether success or failure will ultimately rest upon our banner. We cordially agree with Dr. Hurley in an article in the RECORDER of October 6th, 1887. Pray for me in my herculean efforts to advance the race.

Church News.

Rev. W. H. Coleman, Jackson, Miss., writes: Our church is growing spiritually as well as in numbers. Pray for us that the good work may continue to go on.

Rev. W. B. Hammond, Paris, Ill., writes: On arriving here, Aug. 27th, I found a debt of $60 on the church. By the help of God we have paid it off and repaired the church, having raised over $276 by an entertainment and a camp-meeting. Our outlook is cheering.

Rev. Robert Lewis, Mandario, Fla., writes: All of our people here are farmers and gardeners. The Lord has blessed our labo s here this years. We have built a new church 22 x 36 at this place, also a new church at Orangedale, and repaired the church at Fruit Cove. We have had 25 converts and added 3 to our Lord's command to teach all nations; we contend we belong to the whole world home to the heart of the Church. What we do for the world at large, we do for ourselves individually, and by as much as we contribute to the individual of the world we do by so much do we advance the religious progress of the world. The great need of the Church and the world is an enlightened conscience upon the great work of Christian missions. Could we possibly put the attention of our preachers to the means at hand for disseminating missionary information. "The Missionary Record," published by Dr. Townsend, for this purpose, would be in the hands of every preacher and member of the Church.

Our Sunday school department has beat herself. We have 24 Sunday schools, 1,055 pupils; Sunday school books, I,190; increase of pupils since last year, 436; amount of money raised since last conference year, $330.80 Thus you see we have been doing what we are commanded to do. However, the work has been one of great struggle, but, remembering our calling as sons of the Master's work, we have marched on, passing through storm after storm, riding tha tempestous waves of trial, holding the warrant in hand that God gave us to arrest the world of darkness. While the billows are heaving high, we hear the footsteps of Jesus on the waters of salvation; amid the fitful moanings of the blast, the watchword is heard of joy, " Maranatha, the Lord is coming."

EDUCATION.

Wayman's Normal Agricultural High School, Delhi, La. While assembled in district conference of the above named district, April 28th, 1887, held on the Milliken Bend Circuit, we deeply considered the condition of our poor people in North Louisiana. We therefore agreed to establish a high school under the above named. A board of trustees elected and instructed to commence at once collecting money. On the 14th day of September, 1887, we collected our first dollar.—We went on, trusting in God, and since then we have purchased 31½ acres of land, a beautiful location, west of the town of Delhi, near the V. S. & P. R. R., paying one hundred dollars cash and having a balance on hand of about $50 or $60; and yet we are still going ahead in this great needful cause. Though we have been very ill and suffering severely from a carbuncle, but by strict medical skill we have just recuperated. We have not forgotten the Centennial. Look out for us, for we are coming! Many eyes are looking to see whether success or failure will ultimately rest upon our banner. We cordially agree with Dr. Hurley in an article in the RECORDER of October 6th. 1887. Pray for me in my herculean efforts to advance the race.

Church News.

Rev. W. H. Coleman, Jackson, Miss., writes: Our church is growing spiritually as well as in numbers. Pray for us that the good work may continue to go on.

Rev. W. B. Hammond, Paris, Ill., writes: On arriving here, Aug. 27th, I found a debt of $60 on the church. By the help of God we have paid it off and repaired the church, having raised over $276 by an entertainment and a camp-meeting. Our outlook is cheering.

Rev. Robert Lewis, Mandario, Fla., writes: All of our people here are farmers and gardeners. The Lord has blessed our labo s here this years. We have built a new church 22 x 36 at this place, also a new church at Orangedale, and repaired the church at Fruit Cove. We have had 25 converts and added 3 to our Lord's command to teach all nations; we contend we belong to the whole world home to the heart of the Church. What we do for the world at large, we do for ourselves individually, and by as much as we contribute to the individual of the world we do by so much do we advance the religious progress of the world. The great need of the Church and the world is an enlightened conscience upon the great work of Christian missions. Could we possibly put the attention of our preachers to the means at hand for disseminating missionary information. "The Missionary Record," published by Dr. Townsend, for this purpose, would be in the hands of every preacher and member of the Church.

Rev. W. F. Crawford, Pinckney, Ark., writes: I can't see for my life what the last General Conference was thinking about when it raised the presiding elder's salary to $1,000 a year and traveling expenses. Does it cost him and his family more to live than it does any other traveling minister and his family? I think not. Does he do more work for the Church than any other preacher? I think not. Why make any better arrangement for him than for any other traveling minister?

Rev. C. H. Chiles writes: The A. M. E. Church in Mississippi is growing finely. I have built a church at Pickens Station worth $350, with eighty members. This is the only A. M. E. Church on the I. C. R. R. between Jackson and Grenada, Miss., a distance of 125 miles. On the first Sunday in July the new church was dedicated to God. Presiding Elder A. Jackson preached the dedication sermon, and the writer prayed the dedication prayer. At 3 o'clock P. M. Rev. John Diggs preached, and at 7.30 o'clock P. M. Rev. Embry, of the A. M. E. Z. Church; since that time my church has been growing. Our present indebtedness is only $120, which we hope to settle by the 1st of January. We have a fine Sunday school with about forty scholars. I solicit the aid and prayers of our many friends and readers.

Mr. Henry Wells, Winchester, Va., writes: Our new brick is under roof, as you will see by this clipping from the Winchester Leader. We want the many readers of the RECORDER to see how our church work is progressing. We have been behind for years. Now we are coming to the front. The A. M. E. beacon light in the valley of Old Virginia: "The new African M. E. Church, on North Main street, is rapidly approaching completion. It is now under roof, and it is the expectation to have it ready for occupancy by Christmas. The building is of brick; when completed will be a very convenient, handsome church, and the pastor, Rev. Robert Davis, and the official brethren, deserve credit for the energetic manner in which they have conducted the good work, nor would we forget our citizens who helped along the enterprise by their contributions. Of course more money is still needed, and anything left will be sent to John T. Marker, will be thankfully received and properly applied."

Rev. G. H. Wade, Clinton, Iowa, writes: Clinton is one of the largest lumber manufacturing cities on the banks of the great father of waters. Our church work is in a healthy and prosperous condition, both spiritually and financially. Having arrived here August 14th, I commenced to finish the wall begun work by Rev. S. A. Hardison, D.D., to complete the new brick church. I have raised over $30 in my church and expect on the third Sunday of this month (October) to raise $125 more, and shall, if the Lord is willing, raise $200 by December. October 9th was our first quarterly meeting. Being my first experience under Presiding Elder Rev. J. W. Malone, " the old war-horse," as he is better known, I was deeply impressed. It being the first time

THE CONNECTIONAL ASCENDENCY GAINED BY INCREASED EPISCOPAL EVANGELIZATION.

Great and exceedingly important is the topic now before us. Its grave bearing upon the subject of our argument causes me to ponder long before I attempt to form a sentence on it. Nothing that has been advanced; nothing that can he advanced demands each serious consideration as "the connectional ascendency to be gained by increased Episcopal evangelization." The grandest efforts which can he made by any religious organization are those which are designed to Christianize the world. Nothing more sacred could he an incentive to justify the setting apart of a hundred Bishops. And it is at this point that I again acknowledge divine guidance, although I have been sacrilegiously gainsaid for even doing this

Any branch of church government that can be made subservient to the process of bringing souls to Christ, is worthy of the most extensive consecration to this 'aim and object."

Bishops in the most exalted senee are the evangelists of the Church—the ones unto whom may he fittingly given the mandate—"Go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. And as ye go, preach, saying—The kingdom of Heaven at hand." They are evangelists; and being able to prominently engage in the encharistical services, they are more than evangelists as they stand before the people and tell them that the kingdom of heaven is at hand."

Eight more anch personages, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, added to the half a dozen faithful ones now performing this holy work, would jnst give that much more of force nnto it At any stated period throughont the land there could be simultaneously preached fourteen episcopal discourses instead of six. These would be eight times more effective than six, for each would produce its own individual effect. Marked impressions wonld be made npon multitudes of hearers who are not reached by the African Methodist Episcopal Church to-day. By this increase of evangelical power, the peculiar cry for would be answered with "cloven tongues of fire" and an nnbroken wave of demonstrations of moral natnre culminating in sound conversione and effectual confirmations. The increased multitudes having the gospel preached unto them by such an illustrious band of episcopal evangelists, would be startled as by the "sound of a rushing mighty wind," and yield np hosts of converts to be added to the connection. To sneer at this assnmption as opposed to innovations—changes which weaken. The best thing for us to do is to improve the machinery we have instead of snbstituting it with something new. If we are all the while planting scions and cntting them down we never will have any trees.

Wilmington, N. C.

WHY?

BY "WANDERER."

Mere statements prove nothing. For two years I heve heen a close observer, and of the one hundred and twenty-five sermons that I have listened to only three contained valid arguments; five were of sound reasoning, and ten expressed the right idea of Christianity and piety. The remainder was words, words, words, that gave no adequate idea of God, humanity or Christianity. Rhetoric is an excellent affair to beautify an argument, to embellish a sermon. But all the fine rhetoric in the world would never make one Christian, hence the failure of preachers. For two years not a convert in the church; the pastor unable to get a congregation until night; unable to protract a meeting for one week; no influence over the rising young men and women. Why? Mr. Editor, I am about to reveal a secret—I have in my mind a particular church which at one time was the flower of a city. When its hell rang its pews were filled. Now it never has a congregation of more than fifty, and seldom that number. Why? I peuse, I blush to utter the truth. But the church is a failure. Some one is responsible. No wonder Paul said that the gospel must have power, the Holy Ghost and much assurance.

What do you think of a pastor who will allow the young members of his church to actually give a ball to procure money to buy him a suit of clothes to go to the annnal conference? Here is one instance where only the words of the gospel came to the people; no power (right thinking), no Holy Ghost, no assurance except that the pastor wanted money, and he would destroy law and gospel to get it. Our Discipline says, "It is the duty of pastor, elder or deacon to enforce vigorously, but calmly, all the rules of the society." Why this thing has occurred two years in succession. Is there any wonder that snch a church is a failure? The presiding elder is not responsible, for it is done after his last quarter in his charge. The pastor not responsible, for he will not hear of it unless some God-fearing person will acquaint him of the fact. These are the men who are pushed to the front to lead our sons and daughters to Jesus Christ, the eternal Son of God. Word sermons, without thought and actions. The Church wants men who know God; who know what religion is, what Christianity is, what piety is, what truth is, who know the law and dare to enforce it.

AN INTERESTING LETTER FROM AFRICA.

HOWE ST., FREETOWN,
SIERRE LEONE, W. C. A.,
October 27, 1887.

DEAR DR. LEE:—It is our heartiest desire to promote a union of spirit between ourselves and our transatlantic brethren, and I cannot help thinking that yon on the other side of the water will feel a more brotherly spirit towards us as we become less strange and more familiar with each other by means of our correspondence I therefore regret very much that you cannot hear from us oftener, say at least once a month. The CHRISTIAN RECORDER, on the other hand, is most heartily welcomed by us, and its perusal seems to bind our feelings to the brethren more than anything else. But I must remind yon that we have not received the last two nnmbers yet.

I purposed this time to give you a full description of Sierre Leone, but cannot do so to-day, and don't know when I shall be able to do so fully, having so much to do, and so many and important matters to write ahont. When I write I am compelled to do so hurriedly, having always an uncertain interval of time as my disposal.

The work opening ont here before us is truly astonishing. Every branch appears to be increasingly interesting. We have nothing to fear if we can only take hold of the opportunity now presented. As the year is nearing its close I will promise to forward then statistical account of our work for the past year, which will speak for itself; but at present I have serious cause to be somewhat anxious. In a relaxing tropical climate like this, so unfavorable to health, we ought to have at least another missionary near at hand in case of a breaking down in either case, so that the work may be carried on without interruption. Reinforcement is both needed and desired so as to insnre, humanly speaking, permanent and essential success. It is evident that the well-being and extension of the A. M. E. Church mission in this country must depend entirely on the Church in America. The Church Missionary Society has been trying to cast the burden on the native church here, which is old enough, one may snppose, to take on themselves their own responsibilitiee; but I fear, with all their native appliances, they will not be able to exist without help from abroad. The A. M. E. Church has begottan a child in this colony and she must see to her infant. The child, thank God, is in our hands; it is growing and God, is in our hands; it is growing and doing well. If we wish our child in due time to become a strong and useful men, his bringing np will he more costly as his education progresses. The child may gradually begin to earn something for himself, but this something will not for many years be in any way proportionate to his increasing expense. I make these remarks, for I see the strong necessity of strengthening the basis of operation here, particularly as we are about to proceed onward to new ones. Let us garrison strongly this mission, and then we shall he well prepared for the march. We want a half dozen men next year in Africa, and of course the means to snpport them and their work. With only a few more mission aries and a little more expense, the effect produced by our Church, as far as I have studied the question, would be snnother. Why? I peuse, I blush to utter the truth. But the church is a failure. Some one is responsible. No wonder Paul said that the gospel must have power, the Holy Ghost and much assurance.

What do you think of a pastor who will allow the young members of his church to actually give a ball to procure money to buy him a suit of clothes to go to the annnal conference? Here is one instance where only the words of the gospel came to the people; no power (right thinking), no Holy Ghost, no assurance except that the pastor wanted money, and he would destroy law and gospel to get it. Our Discipline says, "It is the duty of pastor, elder or deacon to enforce vigorously, but calmly, all the rules of the society." Why this thing has occurred two years in succession. Is there any wonder that snch a church is a failure? The presiding elder is not responsible, for it is done after his last quarter in his charge. The pastor not responsible, for he will not hear of it unless some God-fearing person will acquaint him of the fact. These are the men who are pushed to the front to lead our sons and daughters to Jesus Christ, the eternal Son of God. Word sermons, without thought and actions. The Church wants men who know God; who know what religion is, what Christianity is, what piety is, what truth is, who know the law and dare to enforce it.

Yours truly,
J. R. FREDERICK.

P. S.—Since writing the above I have had the pleasure of receiving the RECORDER of October 6th. 1887. Pray for me in my herculean efforts to advance the race.

MISSION WORK.

BY REV. G. B. TAYLOR.

There are constant and pressing demands for enlarged and more intelligent work toward the enlightenment and salvation of the whole. He who said, "Go ye unto all the world and preach my gospel," has never contemanded the order. This work is pressing more closely the conscience of the Church than ever before in the history of Christian missions. The missionary operation of the Church is not a dividend. It is one great effort to evangelize and save the whole world. The domestic and foreign work are only two in name, it is one in fact. In the mirror of modern missions, the wonderful progress of the nineteenth century, every enlightened Christian man may gaze upon the face of the world and see the family likeness of universal kinship in Christ. And no Christian man or woman shall make the distinction in the heart of home and foreign; whether he give to the heathen at his door or the brother in the wilds of Africa or the jungles of India. Our idea of missions must so enlarge as to compass the fullness of our Lord's command to each all nations; so contract as to bring the whole world home to the heart of the Church. What we do for the world at large, we do for ourselves individually, and by as much as we contribute to the individual elevation of one soul, by so much do we advance the religious progress of the world. The great need of the Church and the world is an enlightened conscience upon the great work of Christian missions. And we very urgently call the attention of our preachers to the means at hand for disseminating missionary information. "The Missionary Record," edited by Dr. Townsend for this purpose, should be in the hands of every preacher and member of the Church.

AN OPEN LETTER.

TO THE LAKE PROVIDENCE DISTRICT OF THE NORTH LOUISIANA CONFERENCE OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH:

DEAR BRETHREN:—We write you this open letter in order to convey to you our sentiments of high regard for the noble work which you have done and which you are doing for God, your race and the children entrusted to your care, and thus far have we been well. When physical weakness almost compelled you to quit the field of labor, and when pestilence, desolation and death moved over our great country, leaving their dreaded footprints as they passed unmolested on, your voices has cried, "Onward with the cross and up with the banner of salvation." We are winding up our first year on the above-named district. We all soon shall appear at the annual connoil to render in our reports, which I hope will be second to none. We must raise $500 Dollar Money this con'erence year. Yon have had a grand time spiritually, now let us have a grand time financially. Our district has greatly increased. We have 280 more than when we took charge of the district. Our Sunday school department hse beat herself. We have 24 Sunday schools. 1,055 pupils; Sunday school books, 1,190; increase of pupils since last year, 436; amonnt of money raised since last year $330.80 Thns you see we have been doing what we are commanded to do. However, the work has been one of great strain. The remembering our calling and the stnpendous work we have marched on, passing through storm after storm, riding the tempestous waves of trial, holding the warrant in hand that God gave us to arrest the world of sinners. While the bilod we are heaving high, we hear the footstepe of Jesus on the watera of salvation; amid the fitful moanings of the blast, the watchword is heard of joy, "Maranatha, the Lord is coming."

Church News.

Rev. W. H. Coleman, Jackson, Miss., writes: Our church is growing spiritually as well as in nnmbers. Pray for us that the good work may continue to go on.

Rev. W. B. Hammond, Paris, Ill., writes: On arriving here, Aug. 27th, I found a debt of $60 on the church. By the help of God we have paid it off and repaired the church, having raised over $276 by an entertainment and a camp-meeting. Our ontlook is cheering.

Rev. Robert Lewis, Mandarin, Fla., writes: All of our people here are farmers and gardeners. The Lord has blessed our labo s here this years. We have built a new church 22 x 36 at this place, also a new church at Orangedale, and repaired the church at Fruit Cove. We have had 25 converts and added 31 to the church, making na 102 full members. We have given to the county one acre of land lor a county school. African Methodism is in the lead here.

Rev. W. F. Crawford, Pinckney, Ark, writes: I can't see for my life what the last General Conference was thinking about when it made me a healthy and prosperous position, both spiritually and financially. Having arrived here August 14th, I commenced to finish the well begun work by Rev. S. A. Hardson, i. e., to complete the new brick church. I have raised over $30 in my church and expect on the third Sunday of this month (October) to raise $125 more, and shall, if the Lord is willing, raise $200 by December. October 9th was our first quarterly meeting. Being my first experience under Presiding Elder Rev. J. W. Malone, "the old war-horse," as he is better known, I was deeply impressed. It being the time of the M. E. annnal conference, we were favored with a very able sermon in the morning by Bro. Miller. Presiding Elder Malone took advantage of the opportunity and went to the Opera House to hear the Bishop (Mallalieu). He said, "It was the best sermon I ever heard from a white man." It must have done him good, for he preached an hour and fifteen minutes, setting forth the life, suffering and death of Christ with such power, earnestness and eloqnence that sinners cried for mercy in the meantime. Back sliders reclaimed, one of which had been seduced by the awful wickedness of Chicago—he became a habitual drunkard. He moved here and under the great pressure of that wonderful sermon he, with uplifted hands, rose from his pew and, with knees smote like Belshazzar, and trembling like Agrlpa, came forward to the altar, fell in the writer's arms and gave anew his heart to God. God was truly there. We have had eleven accessions. At night Rev. Farris preached a very interesting discourse. Nineteen years ago this church was inrned over to our Church by the M. E. Church. Brother Clinton, who was then the pastor of the M. E. Church, gave George Benson, who was a member of our conference, the papers, who carried them to our conference, which met at Springfield, Ill., was also with us and made some interesting remarks.

Rev. E. B. Scott, Mississippi, writes: Through the omnipotent power of God we are yet alive and going ahead with the good work. Ever since the enrrender the good people of St. Luke M. E. Church have been trying to build a church. Rev. J. K. Brooks was the first to stir np the intelligent minds of the good-meaning people about a house of worship in 1883. He started the building his first year and was removed from the work at that place. In 1883 Rev. A. H. H. Dixon, assisted by Bishop H. M. Turner, laid the corner-stone, and in the spring of 1883 the frame-work was erected and was covered in the weather, good or bad, all of the summer and winter. Early in 1884 I received from Bishop H. M. Turner a communication appointing me to the Kingston Circuit. On going to this part of my work—St. Luke—I found the good folk of that church ont of doors, as to a house of worship. It being in the winter I could do nothing just then, hnt when the spring opened up I called a meeting of the board of trustees and stewards. The officers and congregation had become very disheartened about their church. I told them we must learn to trust the Lord whose wonderful power is sufficient. So in the name of the God of Jacob we started off. After our plans were all fixed, Revs. Henry Williams and Joe Christmas, both Baptist, together with their large congregations, expressed earnest and Christian desire for us to have a church by coming joining my little handful and contributing liberally, enabling us to collect that day the sum of $64.45. After the laying the house covered we had three or four services in it before we got the windows and doore in, when a cyclone swept the building down and carried the greater portion away. We stopped for another year before we could do anything more. My poor people were terribly disheartened at this calmity, having no money, and being debt to the merchants and landlords, were obliged to resort to the old place of worship. The owner being a member of my church and one among the distressed, readily consented to our holding meetings in one part of her house as previously done. There we met for worship the balance of the winter. By the help of God we devised another plan and went to work on it, and, I am pleased to say, we were able to fill the pulpit and pews of the new church by the fourth Sunday in August. We had our new church dedicated by Rev. R. W. Weathers, and Rev. H. M. Craft preached the dedication sermon. Thus we had a grand time. Just a few weeks before going into my new church I was thinking of what I would like to have to beautify the interior of my church. I had no Bible or hymn book. I remembered that the good Lord has always taught us to ask and it shall be given unto you, so I asked and waited, so the Lord gave me another plan upon which to work. I asked all I met, white and colored, Baptists and all, who give to the Lord. They responded to my desire very nicely, giving the following articles: Sister Laura Mas'que gave a Bible; Mrs. G. Masque gave a hymn book; Sister Julia Masique, a Sacrament pitcher; S. Royal, Baptismal bowl; Miss Sarah Masique, a glass for Sacrament; Sister Biddy also gave a Sacrament glass; Mrs. H. Liggon gave two chairs for the pulpit and dressed it with immense taste at her own expense; Brother Bibson and wife gave two chairs; Sister E. Record (Baptist) gave a lamp chandelier; Mrs. M. E. Liggon gave a lamp; Mr. Isaac Masique and wife gave table; Mr. Otis Masique gave a table; Mr. E. Bowie gave a waiter; Mrs. L. Harrgave gave a tablecloth. The total amount given was $31.25. We feel overwhelmingly thankful to the good God for his goodness. This is my last year. Some good man will find at that point of this circuit something that has never been on it before; that is a good, comfortable church. We are now hard at work for the conference claims. Pray lor a continuation of our success.

Tone up the system and improve the appetite by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It will make you feel like a new person. Thousands have found health, and relief from suffering, by the use of this great blood purifier, when all other means failed.

SAM SMALL'S BROTHER.

WHY DID GOD MAKE SO MUCH OUT-DOORS? TWO WOMEN'S EXPERIENCES.

"Hem Small, Evangelist!"

The proverbial philosophy of 'Old 81," the venerable plantation darkey, who gave the world through the medium of Small's pan maxims of worldly wizdom, clothed in a verhisge of irresistible humor, has found a permanent place in humorous literature.

Great surprise was shown when it was announced that he, having been converted under the ministrations of "Sam Jones," would become an evangelist.

At first thought, a humorist in the pnipit seems incongruous. Is it really so?

No donht the mere buffoon attempting to turn men's hearts to solemn truths would meet with only contempt. Bnt truth is not hidden in gloom. Genuine humor frequently illustrates and fastens in the mind bits of wisdom that would otherwise pass unheeded

In his enlogy of Henry Ward Beecher, Rev. Dr. Parker says: "Whenever he came among men, he brought June sunshine and music, and made desponding and surly men feel that a fuller and warmer summer, 'the Kingdom of Heaven,' itself was 'at hand.' That is genial christianity.

Mr. Small belongs to a witty family. He has a brother connected with Armcy Knox's and "Fat Contributor's" Texas Siftings, a paper which has had phenomenal success in the field of humorous litrature. Mr. Frank A. Small is the present representative of that popular paper in England, and like his distinguished brother, he takes a deep interest in the welfare of other people.

Under date of 48 Porten Road, Kensington W. London, Eng., Sept. 27th, 1887, he writes: "While at Yalding in Kent yesterday, I met Prof. S. Williams, Head Master of the Cleaves Endowed school. In the conrse of conversation about America, Professor Williams remarked that Warner's safe cure has been of great benefit to his wife, who has been much troubled with a disordered liver. Warner's safe cnre (an American preparation) was all she had taken, and she had experienced none of bar old trouble for some months past.

Mrs. Annie Jennese-Miller, editor of New York Dress, and a very popnlar woman in the fashionable world, says in her own magazine for October: "Warner's safe cure is the only medicine I ever take or recommend. In every instance it gives new energy and vitality to all my powers." This distinguished woman also says that for ladies this great remedy is "peculiarly effective."

Sam Small is likely to succeed as a moral teacher. When we remember how near together in human nature lie the fountains of laughter and of tears, the deep effect his discourses must have on the masses can easily be imagined.

"Why did God make so much out-doors?" exclaimed a little girl. We know not. He has made it and we should grow in it, broad, charitable and genial, judging everything by merit, not by prejudice.

Obituary.

Mrs. Lucy B. Lynch, widow of the late Rev. Benj. W. Lynch, of the A. M. E. Church, deceased Sept. 21st, in Jersey City, aged 79 years, in the full triumph of Christian faith.

Brother John Steward died at Jackson, Miss., October 8th, aged 40 years. He was the oldest stewad in the church here. He left a wife and six children. The church and community will miss him. His funeral services were attended by the pastor.

Sister Martha E. Hill, an examplary Christian and member of the A. M. E. Church at Logansport, Ind., departed this life in great peace Sept. 23rd, 1887, aged forty-five years, five months and seventeen days. She left five orphan children and other sorrowing relatives, with a host of friends. The inneral service took place Sept. 25th, at the A. M. E. Church, conducted by its pastor, Rev. J. Coleman, assisted by Elder J. Bnndy, after which the remains were carried to their final reeting place in the city of the dead, followed by a large concourse of friends.

MR. J. T. TROWBRIDGE

Has been called the Thackeray of writers for boys. He will not only contribnte a serial story to the Youth's Companion for 1888, hnt also a true narrative of his own boyhood and his early struggles for literary distinction. The latter will be supplemented by a similar paper written by Miss Alcott, in which she will give the autobiography of her girlhood. Some of her "Little Women" will appear here without any of the disguises of fiction.

BREAKING DOWN THE COLOR LINE.

The question of prohibition is doing much to break down the color line in the South. Mrs. E. L. SAXON, of Tennessee, in describing the recent struggle over the prohibition amendment in that State, says she was especially struck by this feature of the contest.

"I was amused to see how completely the color line was sunk on election day. Prior to it, for weeks, we had listened all over the State to the all but unrivalled eloquence and logic of Dr. Price, of North Carolina, a negro as big and black as he was learned and sl quent, making thousands of votes for Prohibition by his arguments. White men and women crowded his audiences as well as black, and on election day the best and loveliest white women poured coffee and hot bread from the same table side by side with colored women. It was a pathetic picture to see how powerless both were, and how high the ballot placed the commonest drunken cur above them. Amid it all, not once was a woman insulted. I was at every polling-place in the city, and mingled freely among the crowds, trying to secure votes.

"My heart is not broken; the lesson was worth four years' struggle, just to let it come to women in its full force, and show them that only a power to help make laws will ever put woman's impress npon the law."

HAVE YOU CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, OR ASTHMA?
ARE YOU GOING INTO CONSUMPTION?

By means of the Pillow-Inhaler, sufferers in every part of the land have been cured of the above diseases, and many who were for years afflicted are now strong and well.

The Pillow-Inhaler is apparently only a pillow, but from liquid medicines that are harmless (i. e., carbolic acid, iodine, etc.), it gives off an atmosphere which yon breathe all night (or abont eight hours), whilst taking ordinary rest in sleep. There are no pipes or tnbes, as the medicine is contained in concealed reservoirs, and the healing atmosphere arising from it envelope the head. It is perfectly simple in its workings, and can be used by a child, with absolnte safety. Medicine for the reservoirs goes with each inhaler, ready for use. The wonderful and simple power of the Pillow-Inhaler is in the long-continned application. Yon breathe the healing vapor continnously and at a time when ordinarily the system is at rest. The vapor continnously and at a time when ordinarily the cavities of the nose and bronchial tnbes become engorged with mncns, and catarrh, throat and lung diseases make greatest progress. From the very first night the passages are clearer and the inflammation is less. The cure is sure and reasonably rapid.

Wm. C. Carter, M.D., Richmond, Va., a physician in regular practice, says. "I believe the Pillow-Inhaler to be the best thing for the relief and cnre of lung tronbles that I have ever seen or heard of."

Mr. R. D. McManigal, of the firm of McManigal and Morley, Minera and Shippers, Logan, Ohio, writes: "I suffered fifteen years with catarrh of the throat. I used a Pillow-Inhaler, and after four months' use of it my throat is entirely cured."

Mr. H. G. Teele, 50 Bryan Block, Chicago, Ill., says: "I suffered fifteen years from a severe case of catarrh; coughed incessantly day and night. I bought a Pillow-Inhaler, and since using it my cough is gone, my lungs are no longer weak and sore, and I am in better health than I have been for years."

If yon are a sufferer, send for a pamphlet that will tell you all abont it, and let you see what people say of it who have been cured. The Pillow-Inhaler Co., 1520 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

Consumption Surely Cured.

To the Editor:—

Please inform your readers that I have a positive remedy for the above named disease. By its timely use thousands of hopeless cases have been permanently cured. I shall be glad to send two bottles of my remedy FREE to any of your readers who have consumption if they will send me their Express and P. O. address.

Respectfully,

WHERE is the humanitarian whimpering of anch men as Rev. H. O. Pentecost now that the colored lahorers in Lonisiana have been butchered for doing less than Knights of Labor did in Pittsburg, in Chicago and in other places. Mr. Pentecost is supported by his congregation in his praise of anarchy and denunciation of the law that attempted to protect the country Will he lift up his voice in denouncing the cowardly killing of the Louisiana negroes? Will the great Christian papers or the great Christian pulpits of the North lift up their voices against the unjust treatment given the negroes? Will our great pictorials paint the case as it is? What an opportunity for Nast to depict the strong, intelligent armed men, with all power in their hands, not only refusing to give the demanded negroes, but unreasonably arresting and killing helpless men; the lion slaughtering lambs and gloating over his strength. The general hubbling over the injnetice of England toward Ireland might shed a few of its big drops over the Louisiana eviotions.

THE CANTATA of Qneen Esther, rendered by the choire of Union and Allen A. M. E. Churches in the American Academy of Mnsic, Philadelphia, December 2d, was well received by an andience of respectable size. So far as we are able to judge, the parts were well performed; some parts were exceptionally well. The singing was good. Mr. J. H. Gardner, as King, rendered the character with pleasing ease and grace, and his voice was exceptionally fine. Miss Mary L. Tanner, who assumed the role of Qneen, had fine opportnnities for the exhibition of her really superb voice. Her conception and rendition of the part was almost faultless. The other principal characters were: Herman, Mr. W. J. Truitt; Zerish, Miss Georgia Lewis; Mordecai, Mr. Thos. Cheetnut, whose plaintive tenor voice is tonchingly sweet; Mordecai's Sister, Miss M. V. Hall, and Mise A. C. Williams and Mrs. D. Johneon as Maids of Honor, all of whom merit a generous meed of praise. The management was in the hands of Prof. W. I. Powell, and reflects great credit npon his ability.

LAST WEEK a white man and colored woman presented themselves to a Camden (N. J.) white preacher for marriage. The woman was heavily veiled. The minister asked her to unveil. She declined to do so; he enatched the veil from her face and, after discovering her to be colored, ordered the couple to leave. We are not certain whether New Jersey has a law to protect her Canoasian citizens from the money. How blessed is this tendency when sanctified to human good and Divine glory. Brother Gant has been the bone and sinew of our Church in Yellow Springs. Sister Gant is one of the most pleasant hostesses. Though of the same surname as our brother, N. T. Gant, Esq., of Zanesville, Ohio, who is also a very wealthy, wise and faithful African Methodist, and for many years a trustee and friend of Wilberforce University, the gentlemen are probably not relatives.

The frequent reference made to our race variety's indifference to its own cause and disinclination to depend npon itself, instead of the wealthier variety, has received a severe snnb by doings in the African Methodist Church and, we are informed, in the A. M. E. Z. Church Mr. Hill, of Austin, Texas, died in our communion after dedicating $10,000 or $12,000 to institutions of colored persons. Stephen Smith left about $100,000; Henry Gordon, several thousand; Bishop and Mrs. Shorter, $2,000. There are others whose deaths will reveal a growth of confidence and interest in similar enterprises. The fact is Afro-Americans have been condemned before they have been thoroughly tried; they were expected to bestow their money on helpless institntions, if not before they had had any money, certainly before they had had time to turn it over in their hande and feel its weight well. Men balance the possession of money against the cironlation of money before they deal it ont freely and largely.

Besides this, it is wise men who accnmulate money extensively—at least wise respecting money—and wise men must see public institutione tested in many respects before they can make them their beneficiaries; hence institutions by and for colored persons have justly been held on trial dnring the twenty-five years of self-direction. Wilberforce University has been owned and controlled by colored men about twenty-five years. Very humane wealthy white men have contrihnted to its growth and prosperity quite largely, rather experimenting. A few white and very many colored men and women, not wealthy, have contributed of their mites. The institntion has grown in respectability and in the confidence of observers. This is, as the President implies, hut the dawn of a brighter day for Wilberforce and for all the institintone and efforts of the race-variety that have braved the storms of the past.

WHERE ARE YOUR CENTENNIAL DATA?

"Bruno," in the Philadelphia Tribnne, seems to think "these African Methodists don't know what they are doing." Others have sympathy with this thonght. Always glad to give a reason for the hope that is within me, we give some of the data npon which we rely. Richard Allen says, "February, 1776, I came to Philadelphia. Preaching was given out for me in St. George's Church (M. E.). I strove to preach as well as I conld, but it was a great cross to me; bnt the Lord was with me. We had a good time, and several soule were awakened and were earnestly seeking redemption in the blood of Christ. I preached at different places in the city. My labor was much blessed. I soon saw an important field open in seeking and instructing my African brethren, who had been a long forgotten people, and few of them attended pnblic worship. * * * I established prayer-meetings; I raised a society in 1786 of forty-two members. I saw the necessity of erecting a place of worehip for the colored people. I proposed it to the most respectable people of color in this olty, but here I met with opposition. I had but three colored brethren that united with me in erecting a place of worship—the Rev. Absalom Jones, William White and Dorris Ginning. * * * We all belonged to St. George's Church. We felt ourselves much cramped, hnt my dear Lord was with ne, and we believed if it was his will the work would go on, and that we wonld he able to succeed in hnilding the house of the Lord. * * * We viewed the forlorn etate of our colored brethren and that they were destitute a place of worship. They were considered a nuisance."

It will be noted that Richard Allen says, "I raised a society in 1786 of forty-two members." This was a METHODIST society. Those who attempt to make it appear that African Methodists have worked themselvee up to a centennial heat too early may observe that they might have been a year earlier than they are with the eame propriety that Wesleyan Methodism datee from 1739, when Mr. Wesley organized a society.

Allen's society in 1786 was still Methodist Episcopal, hs was Wesley's in 1739 Episcopal so far as church membership goee, bnt with the birth of Methodism religions societiee assumed a characteristic meaning. Bnt later on Richard Allen narrates scenes that took piece in a house of worehip, when he, Absalom Jones and William White, with others, withdrew from the society constituted of Canoasians chiefly, never to return, hired a store-room and held worship hy themselves. "Here was the beginning of the first Africon Church in America," eays Allen. This church, remhcmher, was Methodist, not Episcopalian. Richard Allen says, "We were in favor of being attached to the Methodist Connection." This is said to have been in the year 1787.

The Methodist Elder stationed in Philadelphia refneing to preach for them, an election being held to determine what they shonld do, all bnt Richard Allen and Abealom Jonee determined to attach themeelvee to the Church of England. Bnt prior to this the aite now occupied by Bethel Church had been bargained for by a committee appointed hy the African (colored) Methodist Society, Richard Allen being probably chairman of that committee. Afterwards a majority of the committee conolnded to settle on a lot on Fifth street, where the old St. Thomae' was established. Richard Allen went with them and helped to erect the Church as a Methodiet Church, but when they decided to be Episcopalians he left them, saying he conld go with them no further. Having held on to the lot on Sixth street himself, he bought a building that had been used as a blacksmith shop, and, moving it on the lot, opened there a Methodist church, probably about 1790. Thne Richard Allen and Abealom Jones led the revolt against unbecoming discrimination in the house of God, establishing the first colored Methodist society, and probably the first colored religions society, bargaining for the first lot on which a colored church was organized and which still belonge to African Methodists and giving to the world its first African Methodist Bishop and the first African Connection.

It has not been the design nor the declaration of the authorities of our Church to celebrate the Centennial of African Methodist organization as a connection, bnt the "raising" of the "first colored Methodist society, ont of which grew the African M. E. Church." Having stated above that the society raised in 1796, as well as that raised in 1787, was Methodist, we think we have had all that is necessary to warrant the celebration of the one hundredth year of self-conducting African (colored) Methodism. Bnt African Methodism is the connection that came ont of the whole affair; hence it is "onr centennial." It is true some of us have, on the wave of enthnsiasm, spoken of the matter as though the organization of the connection were meant. Some have even seemed to forget that the blacksmith shop was not located on Sixth street as an operative shop. It was only a building that had been nsed as a smith shop in its former location. A cognate mistake is that Richard Allen himself was a blacksmith, whereas he was probably a shoemaker. But these mietakes are such as are liable to follow in the wake of any great movement in religion. An endless series of misrepreeentetions follow Weeley.

ANDREW J. CHAMBERS AS BISHOP SHORTER'S EULOGIST.

The following enlogy, read before the North Carolina Conference, brought tears to every eye. The closing sentences pictured Bishop Shorter standing by Bishop Campbell's chair and calling him away from earthly toil and cares, overwhelmed Bishop Campbell and caused audible lamentations throughout the congregation. Business had to be suspended for two hours afterward to allow the waters of the soul to still their troubled currents.

EULOGY.

A hero is gone, a conqneror is fallen and heaven is enriched by another pure soul! Just one short year has swept us by since Bishop Shorter linked his sage council to that of Bishop Campbell and assisted in piloting the storm-tossed ship of Zion, sailing amid breakers within the borders of the old North State, into quiet waters and calmer seas. And yet Shorter, the golden, is powdered dnst today. His whole character was like the adamant of eternal years, from whose presence villainy fled downward like a mountain avalanche, and corruption and wrong dreaded as they dread the judgment morn. In weeping amid the hills of Ohio, while his brave soul hovers o'er our heads and bids us, with the soft, soothing cadence of autumn's melancholy winds, to "Stand by the ship!" In ealogy we thne epitomize his life: Good men loved, trusted and followed Shorter; bad men hated, feared and fled from him. He was symbolic of all that is noblest in man, and the antithesis of every grovelling propensity in human nature. A magnificent model for the young of our land, and a dazzling luminary for the old of his generation. His duplicate is to come; he is not here today. In a period when treachery, bribery and cunning sit in high places, and truth trailed in the dust, and honesty was at a discount, and fair dealing among men was ont of tune with the times, the most skeptical breathed not one foul suspicion against Shorter's fair fame. And when an enemy assailed our Church we panoplied our breast with his resplendent honesty and hid the heathen rage. Lnst to the slighing winds of this plaintive season. Do they not seem to breathe softer as an evidence of sympathy with our stricken sonls at Shorter'a grave? And when we cast fearful glances toward the presiding Bishop's chair and contemplate the picture of Shorter standing by his side whispering, "Bishop Campbell, Bishop Campbell, come, come, oh, come away," and we think of Campbell's age and his splendid services to us and ours, the sorrowing heart of this conference sinke to the depths of poignant grief, and with the prophet of old we cry ont, "My father, my father, the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof." And npon the smoking altar, erected by their masterly hands, we pledge anew undying devotion to our God and to African Methodism amid the pines of North Carolina.

CENTENNIAL OF AFRICAN METHODISM.

BY REV. E A JACKSON.

In the city of Philadelphia, November, 1787, a body of faithful humhandmen met, cast forth from their hande a seed unnamed and nnknown. This seed perchance fell into a loamy and productive soil and lay there until the illumined rays of God's love penetrated through the long years of deferred justice, bid it rise, thereby causing it to germinate and send forth one tiny shoot at first, which the faithful husbandmen named Bethel, and npon the shoot the foliage appeared; then the branches The first branch appeating there npon any very great magnitnde the hnsbandmen called Allen, and from ecclesiastical respect placed to that name Bishop, designing him to be a worthy overseer and reaper in the newly fallowed vineyard of God's much despised people. This much venerated and reverenced church-father, as he lifted his eye, beheld and saw the fields white for the harvest of his people, was, no doubt, hnoyed and urged forward forcibly by Christ's etrong admonitione to his disciples: "He that reapeth receiveth wages and gathereth fruit nntil life eternal, that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together." And we note with pride that the venerable church father did not leave the field until the reaper and the sower, were enable to rejoice together. Ere he had left the field thie tiny school, watched over and carefnlly worked by faithful husbandmen and watered by the divine dews of God's approving love, sent ont ite branches of eignal or greater magnitnde than the first. This shoot, in the very midst of its adversaries and the greatest thraldom the world has ever beheld, much resembled the banyan tree of India, sending forth shoots from its branches which, reaching the grond, take root and form new stalks till a single tree multiplies almost to a forest.

Then we behold with unveiled faces thirteen distinct branches that have all sprung in the last ten decades from this shoot of one centnry's growth; who have and are acquitting themselves with the highest honors conferred by one mortal upon another as Bishop or spiritual overseer and adviser of God's people.

We are then encouraged to submit our growth spiritually, educationally and financially to the consideration of a candid world. Permit us to revert your minds back ten decades over the intricate and almost unsurmountable difficnltiee we have had to encounter. As a connection ten decades ago we consisted of only a few score of sonls; but, all praisee be to onr God, we can, today, after a weary march of one hnndred years, hoast, if we may, of lay members in full connection, 1,601,072, and probable number, 100,000; probationers, 168,462; probable number, 200,000; Sabbath echool echolars, 1,691,065; of this number 319,656 are members and probationers, giving a number of children and sonls under our care and spiritual influence, 1,371 409, whose voicee have been and are resounding from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Gnlf to the Lakes in Methodistical praises to our God.

"Hold the fort, for we are coming,
Jeens signals still,
Wave the answer back to heaven,
By thy grace we will."

The echoes of this million of voicee are caught npon the zephyrs of eve and borne to the Southern and Northern land and o'er the briny deep to Afric's golden strand; she is spreading her wings as an eagle and soaring to the loftiest domes, ascending, Jehovah God reigneth! Jehovah reigneth! This proclamation will continue nntil the remotest nations in final recognition will exclaim in God's name:

"Waft, waft, ye winds, her story,
And you, ye waters, roll
Till, like a sea of glory,
It spreads from pole to pole."

Ye brethren and sisters of the A. M. E. Church, move forward with uplifted heads, for the God of Israel hath, in our march of one hundred years, given us, in fact, or partially so, forty per cent of all the sonls of African descent in all this broad land. The above facts state very largely our position as to our being a spiritual fulcra of the Church. We will now unfold the doors of our educational progress of one hundred years' growth and ask you to take a peep. At the same time we ask you to weigh well our surrounding circumstances and the material possessed by us at starting. We will now present to you fourteen of our most prominent institntions of learning: Wilberforce University, Wilberforce, O.; Allen University, Columbia, S. C; Paul Quinn College, Waco, Texas; St. James Academy and Industrial Seminary, New Orleans, La.; Kittrell Industrial School, Vance county, N. C; Divinity and Industrial School, Jacksonville, Fla.; Morris Brown College, Atlanta, Ga; Dickerson Memorial Seminary, Portemouth, Va; Turner College, Hernando, Miss.; Western University, Quindaro, Kan; Normal and Preparatory School, Cartersville, Ga; Payne High School, Cuthbert, Ga; Sumpter School, Sumpter, S. C; Asheville School, Abbeville, S. C The above schools have originated by the action of the several conferences and the money for the support of theee schools and seminaries of learning has come chiefly through the generoe contribntions of the members of the A. M. E Church.

From the dedicated walls of these institutions have gone forth two hnndred graduatee, besidee thousande who have prepared themeelvee for the immediate work as preachere and teachers Theee schools are manned with npward of fifty professors and assistants, with from two to three thousand students preparing for life-work in the various callinge as African Methodists.

We note that from the early dawn of African Methodism she has shown herself as a noble army of consecrated devotees who have put into it their life and acquisitions and wrought patiently and prayerfully under God's great ends. We behold the Methodists following the advancing armies into the Southland, from which it had been debarred through that most damnable curse the world has ever beheld, even carrying there God first and schools second. Its early founders, with, in fact, our present fathers, such as Bishop Brown and others, are imbued with the idea that God first and schoole second are the golden keys of knowledge that will unlock to the uninitored and weak the treasures of gospel trnth and the possibilitiee of intelligence and virtne No donbt that from the burning plains of the Southland to the chilly plaine of the West many a mother has pointed to each echolarly gentlemen of the race as Benjamin Banneker, the astronomer, Thomas Fnller, the deft calculator, James Dernam, the skilled physician and Dr. Blyden, the scholar and teacher, with tears in her eyes, one hand resting on the boy's head and the other pointing to these distinguished gentlemen as if eeying, "Be like them and you may one day stand where they do." Is there not in this womanly example the fundamental leseon impressively set forth by our Church that the lowly and lofty are not so far apart in their nature, and that the way npward to a better life is open to every mortal who will be industrious and true to the God-given powers he ehares in common with all the human race?

We will enmmerate a few of the early organs of our race. Our Discipline, setting forth our position as a Christian body, 1817; a hymn book, heralding forth in song the tidings of salvation, 1829. The Christian Herald pnt in its appearance in 1841. In 1852 the Christian Herald was changed to the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, bnt its usefulnees was proscribed nntil 1861, when, through the Christian Commission, it did valuable service as a teacher and instructor in books and thousands of homes that knew nothing of the onter world. Since that time we have a large circulation of the very best literature, edited by such gentlemen as Drs. J. C. Embry, Tanner, Lee, Smith and others. We therefore submit our position as an educational fulcra of the Church to a candid public. This little school one hundred years ago sprung into life under the most appalling circumstances. Surrounded with poverty, inexperience, and withal friendlees, has in its march, in the midst of its adversaries, been like the sun when winter has gone, shedding abroad over the earth its warmth and light, causing the mountains and hills to shont for joy; the valloye and plaine, the streame and beautiful flowers all in their own way to tell of the God-given powers in it to attract as a magnet and draw around it friends, credit and institutions of learning until it commands to-day upwarde of $147,734,655. May her friende and foes alike, in strong acclamations cry: "Ye messengers of God, go on, like the beams of the morning fly till earth's remotest nation hath heard a Saviour's voice."

WHO WAS RICHARD ALLEN: WHAT DID HE DO?

SYNOPSIS OF A DISCOURSE BY DR. J. T. JENIFER IN HIS CHARGE, PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The minister said: "This world in all ages has had its chief characters to champion great ideas. The characters have usually taken the lead in all great efforts to the betterment of the condition of mankind. Sometimes these champions of progress and reform are found at the summit of society, but generally they are born of the rank and file of the plain people, penally in obscurity, the cradle of genins. Among the leading spirits that are providentially raised up to lead on great religious movements has been one of our own race, Richard Allen, of Philadelphia, a slave-born colored man, whose heroic and pions actione of one hundred years ago we meet to-day to commemorate In 1760 there lived in Philadelphia, on Fourth street, near Spruce street, in the honee of one Benjamin Chew, a man and his wife, both held as slaves On the 14th day of February these two had born unto them a son, whom they called Richard. The parents of Richard, with three other slaves, were sold into Delaware to one Stokely. In 1777 Richard embraced religion, joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at 17 years of age. At that time the Church was as unpopular as its color ed member. In 1782 Richard was licensed to preach, being 22 years old. Such his thirst for liberty he purchased his was freedom and returned back to Philadelphia in 1786 and joined St. George's M. E Church, where he was permitted to preach to the colored people at the 5 o'clock meetings Richard Allen was the first colored man licensed to preach in the M. E. Church. Through his influence the colored members of St. George's Church greatly increased, so much so that their white brethren began to feel that their colored brethren were growing in their way. Tradition says that the first evidence of this was that "the officers passed a rule compelling their colored members to sit but one in a pew and that next to the wall." This did not work well, for the building soon became lined with the black members. They then said they should go into the gallery. This was complied with, but they went up next to the pulpit, when things waxed warm, as was often the case with Methodists in those dave, the colored brethren became a little noisy. They were then ordered to the rear gallery. In accounting for the establishment of the A. M. E. Church, history tells ne that in 1787 the colored people of Philadelphia connected with St George's M E. Church met to consider the unkind treatment received at the hands of their white brethren. Caste in the church was so intense and prejudice at the altar of God so arrogant that while at prayers the colored brethren were pulled off their knees and ordered to the back part of the house. For these and other unkind treatments they resolved to withdraw from their white brethren. A committee, conoisting of Richard Allen, Absalom Jones, William Gray and William Wilcher, was appointed to select and purchase a lot, with a view of building a honee where they might worship God with a freedom which their conscience dictated. Richard Allen bargained for a lot on the corner of Lombard and Sixth streets. But a man of his committee having selected a lot on Locnet street, those who came ont of St. George's Church decided to build a house on it. Richard Allen assisted them, and when they began to build, after prayer, he took ont from the foundation the first shovelful of dirt. At the meeting of the little society to choose what religious body they should connect themselves with all bnt Richard Allen and Abealom Jonee decided in favor of the church of England—Episcopal. The honse was dedicated and Richard Allen invited to become the pastor. Bnt he refused, saying: "I am a Methodist; I think that form of religious worship at present suits the colored people best." Having himself bargained for the lot at the corner of Sixth and Lombard and paid for it, Richard Allen purchased some of the old blacksmith shop, hanled it on the lot, fixed it np as a house of worship. Those of the Methodist faith soon gathered abont him and the "Allenites," as they were called, increased in nnmbers daily. Then began a tedious series of expensive law enits and perplexing oppositions from their white brethren, who tried to get their property. Finally victory was gained in the courts, a charter obtained from the General Assembly of Pennsylvania. A new house of worship was erected, which in 1798 was opened, dedicated by Bishop Asbury, and "they called it Bethel." This was the origin of African Methodism. Twenty-nine years after, in 1816, a Convention of colored Methodists from several States, who had similar grievances, assembled at Philadelphia in April, organized the first General Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church which gave it its organic connectional form. Having been elected by the first General Conference to the General Superintendency, April 11th, Richard Allen, who had been seventeen years an elder in good standing, was ordained Bishop of the connection, and the first colored man in America ordained to the Episcopal office.

The minister continuing referred to the early struggles which caste and color prejudice in society, church and State that swept all before it which bore the impress of Africa. Richard Allen and his followers refused to submit to such treatment at the altar of God. The A. M. E. Church had its origin in stirring times in politics as in religion. Amid the most disheartening ostracism in church, in society, in schools, in politics and business, with no gospel preached to them bnt such as suited the slave power, the colored people found refnge from the blighting influence of caste in their own churches. The minister dwelt npon the motives of the A. M. E Church founders and quoted from statistical reports of 1884 to show their great wisdom. In that year there were 405 000 members, 3417 Sunday schools, 178,284 scholars, 2540 ministers, 9760 local preachers, 3978 churches, 203,049 books in libraries, twelve schools and colleges with 2400 attending students; the value of property, $4,106 926, seven general departments, seven general officers, ten Bishops, forty-six annual conferences, and total amount collected per annum for religious and educational purposes, $816,647 79 The preacher spoke of the leading men and women of the African race, such as orators, preachers, scholars, authors and teachers, many of whom were slavee or the children of slaves. He also spoke of the greatness of the fathers of the Church and their aime, and then asked the queetion: "Has the day come to end what Allen began? Has the day for eeparate colored churches, so-called, past; and would it not be better for the race to abolish them?" No, for several reasons. Because the distinct work is not yet finished; because that which called the African M. E. Church into existence and has made colored churches a necessity in America yet prevails, namely, caste. We need them because the masses of the present generation of our people feel freer and better satisfied in them; because they are their own creations and their own possessions, and exhibit an effort at self-help. The wisest as well as the simplest among us would gladly welcome the day when, in accord with the spirit of the gospel of Christ, and with the genius of American institutione, we should feel as free to go to others on amicable terme of Christian fellowship as we feel free to welcome them among ne. Therefore the most effective method to remedy the evils of colored churches, if they be evils, is to make them better in every way. Marvellous has been the advancement of the race since the days of Allen, and what the improvement in the manners and methods in colored churches. Four hndred and five thonsand sonls commune at our altars. Several millions worship God in our temples. Over two thousand ministers preach in our pulpits, dispensing the word of life. Richard Allen died March 16, 1831, bnt his work goes on. Let us, then, be prayerful and humble and work for the glory of God and the cause of mankind till the Master shall say, "Well done."

OFFICE OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

SPECIAL NOTICE TO ALL WHO HAVE BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS WITH THIS DEPARTMENT.

1st. We do not take postage stamps. If you cannot obtain Post Office Money Order, which is the safest method to send money, you can send by registered letter. These are issued by every post office in the United States. If your postmaster insists on selling you stamps you insist the more on having him register your letter.

2nd. Send the exact amount of money required to pay for the goods you order. When this is not done our rule is to send that amount of supplies which the money sent will pay for.

3rd. When you order from us, always write plainly at the bottom of your letter the place where you wish your supplies sent. Very often persons write us an order from one place on a circuit desiring it sent to some other place, and do not mention this very important fact.

4th. For all money sent to us for Sunday school literature we send a postal card receipt, numbered. If your order is delayed, or if there is any irregularity concerning it, write to us about it, but be sure to give the number of your receipt card and the name of the person who sent the order or signed his name to it. When a pastor writes to us that his superintendent sent us money, etc., we do not know who is the superintendent unless he writes us his name. Always send the names of persons and not names of churches, schools, circuits, stations, etc.

5th. Sign your name to your communication We cannot tell who sent a letter to us when there is no name signed to it.

6th. Write your name in large, plain letters. Avoid flourishing. It is useless and often renders obscure what would otherwise be legible writing.

7th. Never send a postal note, money order or express package without any instruction accompanying it. How do we know what to do with money sent thus?

8th. We have lost a great deal of money by sending supplies C. O. D. because the parties whom we thus favored failed to take them from the express office. In consequence of this neglect and absolute loss which we have borne because of it, we have decided to positively refuse to grant any more C. O. D. favors to anyone. Please do not request them.

9th. Our business is conducted on a strictly cash basis. If you are not familiar with our prices write to us when you wish to buy and we will freely quote them or send you a catalogue, price list, blank and return envelope.

10th. Always collect your money for supplies and have it appropriated for them at least two weeks before the beginning of each quarter; this will prevent much delay. Very often orders do not arrive until one-half or two-thirds of the quarter is past; in which case we have to print an extra amount of literature for the benefit of two or three persons or else lay ourselves liable to a "raking over" by them.

11th. When the Teachers' and Scholars' Quarterly, the Juvenile and Gem Lesson Papers are ordered, they are rolled in one package together. The catechisms, song books, primary lessons, reward cards and other such matter are never in one wrapper. When you order both inquire for two packages at the post office.

12th. If your city has the free delivery system have your mail directed to the street and number. Unless you do this it will be returned to us while you are abusing us for neglect.

13th. Every pastor is hereby earnestly requested to have some one, who is permanently located in his work, elected Sunday school supply clerk, whose duty it shall be to send for all orders for his Sunday school supplies.

We hope this will be done at once by each pastor and that he will send us the name of the one elected to this office. This method of communicating with us through a person who has permanent location in a place will lessen difficulty and greatly facilitate intercourse between us and our patrons. It is hoped that this request will receive immediate attention. We have purchased new books in which to record the names of Sunday school supply clerks and we anxiously await their names. A postal card will serve for this purpose. Hoping that the above instructions will be received with the kindly spirit with which they are given, and praying the blessing of Almighty God upon all those who are, with us, intrusted with the child ren's welfare. Fraternally,

C. S. SMITH.

KEEN AS A SURGEON'S KNIFE.

On the Chicago Limited Express, one of those splendid trains that leave New York over two of the great trunk lines of this country and make the dash to the metropolis of the west with such remarkable speed, an elderly gentleman was, a few days ago, seized with a violent attack of asthma. He had been a sufferer for many years and his efforts to breathe were dreadful to witness. A physician was found on the train, but relief seemed impossible. Everything was done for the comfort of the passenger, but he speedily grew worse. His face assumed a livid hue, and it appeared that he only had a few minutes to live. Suddenly a lady in the car seized the porter by the arm, sent him flying to the range in the dining car for boiling water, while from a satchel she drew out one of Drs. Starkey and Palen's Compound Oxygen Inhalers. By the time the porter had returned with a pailful bowl filled with boiling water, the lady had the corks out of the bottle, the glass tubes fitted, and, in less time than it requires to tell it, the inhaler was smersed in the heating liquid. A moment more and the ozone began to evolve and the inhaling tube was placed in the sufferer's mouth. He was so exhausted that he could only breathe the gas in a spasmodic manner, but at the end of a minute his inhalations became more lengthy and regular, and at the end of five minutes the wheezing ceased and he was able to rest easily. Of course the sufferer was greatly weakened, but he had no recurrence of the attack. The entire train was ramp with praises of Compound Oxygen during the balance of the journey.

Apropos of this case, J. B. Kenyon, a merchant of Bedford, Ohio, writes to us Mrs. Starkey and Palen, September 11, 1885:

"Your Compound Oxygen has worked wonders with me; has made a new man of me. I have not had an attack of asthma since using it, though I was in very bad shape when I began. I would not do without the 'Compound Oxygen' for ten times its price. On retiring at night I go to sleep at once, and never rested better in my life than I do now. Shall recommend it to all my friends."

A complete and interesting treatise on the cures effected by Compound Oxygen will be sent, postage prepaid, to any one curious to know its valuable properties. Address Drs. Starkey and Palen, 1529 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.

NOTICE.

EVERGREEN COTTAGE,
Wilberforce, Ohio, Aug. 24, '87.

The Ellison Bank of the A. M. E. Church are hereby informed that a joint meeting of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Zion Church will be held at Montgomery, Ala., on the 15th of December, 1887, to be opened at 10 A. M.

The object of the joint meeting is for further consideration of the question of "organic union" according to the Articles of Agreement of the joint commission of the African M. E. Church and African M. E. Zion Connections, held in Washington, D. C., July 15–17, 1885

In view of the importance of such a meeting before the General Conferences of the two Connections, in MAY, 1888, we beg that the Bishops of both connections will arrange their official obligations and printed private affairs, as to have no excuse for absence from the Montgomery meeting in Alabama at the date fixed. Signed in behalf of both Boards of Bishops.

DANIEL ALEXANDER PAYNE,
SINGLETON THOMAS JONES.

NOTICE.

All communications intended for the Sunday School Union of the A. M. E. Church that are addressed to Rev. C. S. Smith, Nashville, Tennessee, will be received. It is not necessary to give the name of the street nor the number of our business place. Rev. C. S. Smith, Nashville, Tenn., is sufficient. Tele grams addressed to Advance way will reach us. We are fully settled in our new headquarters and prepared for business.

C. S. SMITH, Secretary.

CATARRH CURED.

A clergyman, after years of suffering from that loathsome disease, Catarrh, and vainly trying every known remedy, at last found a prescription which completely cured and saved him from death. Any sufferer from this dreadful disease sending a self addressed stamped envelope to Prof. J. A. Lawrence, 212 East 4th St., New York, will receive the recipe free of charge.

NOTICE.

I should be informed at once how many candidates presiding elders will bring to the North Louisiana Conference and how many General Officers and visiting ministers will attend. Preachers will provide for their wives as well as for their horses.

P. M. MARTIN, Pastor.
Shreveport, La.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP should always be used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic and is the best remedy for diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

BOOKS.

HINTS TO SELF-EDUCATED MINISTERS.

Reasons why all preachers should read Dr James Porter's Hints. 1st. Because it furnishes the most natural method of preparing to preach effectively. 2nd. Because it shows how to preach with ease and grace, and yet with power and success. 3rd. Because it exposes numerous errors in all branches of ministerial service, and how to correct them. In reviewers advise ministers to read the work carefully, because "they will find it is much better than they thought of." because "the very hints they most need to receive are not furnished by other homiletical works," because "it is large with shrewd, hard, good sense;"—because "it is a book for all ministers, however educated,—because it is assured by many to be the most helpful book they ever read. "Worth its weight in gold."

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FOR PREACHERS AND OTHER PUBLIC SPEAKERS

Dr. Porter's Hints to them is one of the most useful works that will delight to hold." says the Christian Guardian. $1.25.

For teaching everyone how to do good, "The Winning Worker;" or, the Possibilities, Duty and Methods of Doing Good to Men," by the same author. Over 100 pages. Price, 75 cents. Plain Sense, Philadelphia. Why not make presents that will do good?

"WORTH MORE THAN ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD.' to young ministers and local preachers. "Many a preacher," says the Methodist Recorder, "is a failure by the early study of such a book."—Christian Guardian.

IS THE BIBLE TRUE, AND FROM GOD?

Read Dr. Porter's late book called "Christianity Demonstrated By Experience." It will settle the question forever and set you at rest on fire. But a copy and keep it to lend to the poor society, and especially to unbelievers. 75 cts. By Rev. J. Kinbry. Price, $1.50. A new supply just received.

The Best Remedy

For Dyspepsia is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Other medicines may give temporary relief; but Ayer's Sarsaparilla makes a positive and permanent cure, as thousands can testify all over the country.

"My stomach, liver, and kidneys were in a disordered condition for years," writes R. Wild, of Hutto, Texas, "and I never found any medicine to relieve me, until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than six bottles of this remedy cured me."

Mrs. Joseph Aubin, of Holyoke, Mass., was for a long time a severe sufferer from Dyspepsia, trying, in vain, all the usual remedies. At last she began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and only three bottles restored her to perfect health.

"I have gone through terrible suffering from Dyspepsia and Indigestion," writes C. J. Bolsner, 152 Chardon st., Cambridgeport, Mass., "and can truly say Ayer's Sarsaparilla has cured me."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla,

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Price $1 ; six bottles, $5. Worth $5 a bottle.

THE CENTURY.

BY J. L. BUCKNER.

A hundred years have past and gone,
Since first the grand old Church did rise;
A hundred more goes sweeping on,
Her towers prondly kiss the skies.

She sweeps the ocean like a lark,
With sails all set for Canaan shore;
She's ploughed through sorrow, deep and dark—
She's heard the midnight tempest roar.

But 'mid the rattling of the storm,
They nailed her colors to the mast;
And now she bears the weary home,
She shelters from the stormy blast.

Her bolts and timber yet are sound,
Her sails have caught the Southern breeze;
She's bearing forth the gospel sound,
To heathen lands beyond the seas.

She's spreading like a green bay tree,
How grand her long dark branches rise,
Her leaves are fluttering o'er the seas
Her golden fruits have reached the skies.

She stands all battle-scarred and worn,
Through many a conflict she has past;
The trunk with lightning still is warm,
She stood the fearful Southern blast.

'Mid fire and smoke, 'mid blood and tears,
Our fathers worked and reared this tree;
And now she spreads her branches wide,
She's known and loved from sea to sea.

She's grandly stood a hundred years,
God grant she stands a hundred more;
Yea, till the King of kings appears,
To bear her to the golden shore.

Then with the blood-washed 'round the throne,
'Mid every nation, great and small,
Through blood and tears and toil she'll come,
To crown our Saviour Lord of all.

THE URGENT DEMAND OF ALL DEPARTMENTS OF THE CHURCH FOR A COMPLIANCE WITH THE FOREGOING ARGUMENT.

"What reason dictates to be done" wisdom commands us all to do. The establishment of a project by incontrovertible argument cannot be ignored without loss and inconvenience. When the Rebellion had its beginning in the United States, Gen. Sherman was consulted and asked how many men would be needed to crush it. He said 250,000 men. This assertion struck the wiseacres with surprise and they said that he was crazy. Disregard of his suggestion brought disaster and time proved the correctness of his conclusion. After this he was again consulted, but said, "O, I don't like to give an opinion for fear that they will say I am crazy." It is just so with some people who cannot see beyond their noses; they think everybody else a fool who can. But at the same time they never destroy the force of a fact.

If it is proved that we want more Bishops, as my learned friend, Dr. T. G. Steward, says it is; if the argument all along the line germain to this subject has stood unassailable, as Bishop Brown's argue, The Mouthpiece, says it has, what else can we do in conclusion but endeavor to bring the propositions home to every decent thinker? The sum and substance of the whole discussion now requires us to bring it to a focus.

All that we have said and proved must be subjected to, and settled according to the urgent demands of all departments of the Church. The cause of missions, which has been suffering ever since, have been in the hindmost, and which could be made a meritorious cause in the sight of all the people, demands something more for its success than the display of the abject powers of an able secretary It requires the application of the greatest amount of ecclesiastical force that can be developed by an episcopal agency, systematized, districted, well defined and made thus to be of the most practicable effect, so that the incumbents, trumpet-tongued and full of fire, can go into every section of the land and cry out, "The harvest fields are ripening and the laborers are but few." Thousands upon thousands are waiting to give response to such a grand incentive.

The Publishing Department, prostrated and gyved like a mighty giant prevented from manifesting his strength to rise and stand upon his feet, says, "Let the twenty-eight hands of fourteen Bishops be applied to my outstretched form, and let the cheering order, 'Now, then!' be uttered whilst a united effort is made to lift me, and I'll arise, shake upon my feet, break every fetter, shake my Samsonian locks and electrify the whole connection" All the latent power of this circumscribed worldly great institution appeals unto the thinking men—the men of reason throughout the Church—to do that which will be the most efficient method of bringing about a grand and glorious development. Who would not spend five hundred dollars to make a thousand, and, moreover, to proportionably increase a people's moral worth?

The work of education is obscured like the light of the sun by a sombre cloud. It says to the Church, "Remove these obstructions and I will shine. Clear the way for me, and I will put a halo over every altar and a nimbus around the head of every priest. Let my course be uninterrupted and I will prove to you that in connection with the grace of God, 'knowledge is power.'" It pleads not for secretaries, but for Bishops, for an ample number of them, for men who, by virtue of their office, will be able to touch the heart of every multitude when they shall stand up and say, "Hear us for our cause, and be silent that you may hear." It pleads for Bishops to do this as Bishop Campbell did it at Asbury Park.

The Church Extension arrangements, the Sabbath school work and all, send up cries in this direction. Let those whom it may concern take heed and comply with the argument to sustain them. Let them pay one attention to—

1. The preliminary remarks made to guard them against cliques and combinations;
2 The present condition of the Episcopacy;
3 The great amount of Episcopal work that is to be performed;
4 The character of the men needed to do it;
5. The number of additional men required to do it;
6 The men suitable for election to the office;
7. The complement of them to be kept in existence;
8. The means of preserving this complement;
9. The regulation of the episcopal districts;
10. The provisions to be made for the oldest Bishops;
11. The business ideas to a greater extent needed in the episcopacy for the advancement of Church work;
12 The animation created in Church organizations by episcopal visits;
13. The necessity of having Bishops on extra occasions;
14. The connectional strength that will be manifested by an adequate number of these officials;
15 The power of life that will be made to African Methodism by the influence of such a complete board;
16. The temporal advantages which will be gained by such a board;
17. The power it would wield over the General Conference sessions;
18. The condition of affairs peculiar to colored people that demands such a force;
19. The connectional ascendency that will be gained by this increased means for episcopal evangelization;
20. The urgent demand of all departments of the Church for a compliance with the argument on them, and all these deductions in all their bearings in every direction, and just so surely as they do it reason will overcome prejudice and immature notions so that no just one will say that the assumptions are erroneous. The truth will be admitted, the necessity will be observed, the benefits will be secured. It will be at once concluded that the all-important step should be taken to accomplish the work before us. It will be conceded that it should be done to reach the teeming millions, black, white and red, on the continent and on the islands in the Caribbean Sea. The power of the Lord God of Hosts will be invoked, every resource of the Church will be brought into command, and a mighty assault will be made upon the unregenerated world By thorough and substantial organization the connection will be qualified for stupendous accomplishments between the present and the time to come, when the greater centennial period shall dawn in 1916. It is wise now to begin to make the organization develop its strength for that time. Let us at once put an end to all bickering, extinguish all jealousy, stamp out all envy and cultivate love for one another so that we may build up the walls of Zion for the end of the century that is to come Let us coolly, calmly and devontly deliberate upon the propositions laid before us and let each one esteem others as better than himself. Whilst we weigh all these measures to make the Church stronger, and look forward to the period when the connection shall have lived one hundred years, let us have go ill feeling towards each other. Let us put our candidates all in a row and then view them and make our selections from them. Far be it from any one concerned to abuse and villify any brother for the purpose of defeating him. This is an auspicious time for us to indulge in loving kindness that our hearts and minds may be blended together in a zealous manner for our Master's cause. The vintage is coming on us to do our best in supplying it with our ablest foremen to lead on in giving it efficient service. It seems that such have been designated and that none would have a more important bearing upon the interests of the Church than the Rev. O. T. Shaffer. So important is this point in our argument that personal relationship should always be discarded and the qualification of the men be accepted. Taking this in connection with all the other weighty propositions, let us turn our attention to them that we may be blest in our decision. If we do this, great indeed will be our future progress! Step by step the old Church will move on in developing all its energies. It will bring in the talents of outside men and build up agencies to produce a moral effect in every avenue of life. It will by the grace of God make the very nation hear its voice in the time of peace and the time of war. Twenty-nine years hence, when this my labor of love shall be remembered or forgotten and a million of members shall have heard all beating in unison to celebrate the great centennial year, they shall say:

"That thou, O God, didst first inspire
Our fathers with supreme desire
To found a Church whose creed should be
The good of man, the love of thee."

MORMONISM.

A DAY IN SALT LAKE CITY.

BY REV. R. L. BEAL.

LEXINGTON, MO., Dec. 3, 1887.

MR. EDITOR:—On the 10th of September the writer, in company with his wife, left San Francisco (the entrepot of the orient, where we had labored for two years in the interest of African Methodism) to meet the Missouri Conference, to which we were assigned by transfer. On our way East we had determined to stop over at Salt Lake City to learn somewhat of the habits and customs of the denizens who claim this as their head-centre. We reached the city the morning of the 12th and took quarters in one of the leading hotels. After a short rest we started out with eyes and ears opened to do the town Our way led through Temple street, which leads directly to Temple Block, the greatest point of interest. By the way, has an altitude of 4,261 feet above sea level; an area of 5,730 acres, and a population of about 30,000 inhabitants It is laid out principally in blocks of ten acres each, the streets running due to the cardinal points. They are boulevards each 132 feet wide, including sidewalks, which are twenty feet in width. The majority of the streets are bordered with shade trees and enough to afford ample room for building gardens, orchards and ornamental grounds The fullness largely conceals the houses in summer, giving to the city the appearance of one immense garden. On reaching the east side of the site upon which the costly edifices are built, we were informed that the inclosure surrounded by a high adobe wall is called

THE CITY

SACRED SQUARE.

The Temple Block is the Sacred Square of the Latter-day Saints. It covers an area of 10 acres and contains the Temple now in course of erection, Tabernacle, Assembly Hall, The Endowment House and the architects' offices, workshops, etc Through the kindness of the porter at the lodge gate in front of the great Temple, which has been in course of erection since April, 1853. It is constructed of speckled granite brought from the mouth of Little Cotton Canyon, some twenty miles to the southwest of the city. A smooth, polished finish is given to the surface of this granite, which gives a stately and fine appearance to the structure. The mean length of the Temple is 186½ feet, including towers, by 99 feet in width. On the east end three towers, as also on the west On the front and rear of the building, high up in the centre, is this motto in largely carved letters that are gilded: "Holiness unto the Lord," which same is front of all the business establishments of the Mormons. Leaving the Temple, which it is expected will be completed in four or five years, we drew near to the Tabernacle, directly west. It is elliptical in shape Passing through one of the northern doors in company with many others, it being a gala day in honor of nearly 300 volunteers from New York City city with their wives, who had visited the city that day on an excursion, we were taken in company by one of the elders, who kindly took us into the different parts of the several buildings, giving a history of their designs; also he explained to us the tenets and dogmas of this new faith. From him we gained useful information with regard to the interior and exterior of this mammoth building, the Tabernacle. It is 250 feet long by 150 wide and 70 feet high from the floor to the ceiling at its highest part, or 80 feet from the floor to the top of the roof. Its interior presents an oval arch, which is festooned with evergreens and artificial white flowers, which had been hung for over eleven years. Its accoustics are perfect; a pin fall can be heard in any part of the building, which some of the company tested to their own satisfaction. The seats of the roof are composed of a lattice work and rest upon forty-four sandstone piers, each three feet by nine in size and from 14 to 20 feet in height. A gallery, extending around the building except at the west end, is 400 feet long by 30 feet in width. The seating capacity is 10,000. It has twenty doors, most of which are 9 feet wide and all open outward, so should any danger arise within, egress from the building can be easily obtained. In the east appears conspicuously a bee-hive, which is placed there to teach the devotees industry. In the west is the great platform which is reached by broad steps at either end; crouching down are two massive lions, denoting strength and permanency. In the rear of the platform is a large organ, which is constructed entirely by Mormon citizens of native cedar brought from one of the mountains. It was designed by Joseph Ridgee, Esq. The dimensions of this organ are, front towers, of which there are two, have an altitude of 58 feet. width 30x33 feet. Its bellows are supplied with air by a water motor. It has 57 stops, contains a total of 2 648 pipes, ranging in length from 2 feet to 32 feet. We had the pleasure of listening to this grand volume of music, which made the room impressive, despite the place and its teachings. It has a chorus of 200 voices. What a power, if they could be wielded in the right direction to lift up fallen humanity. Bishop Clawson, one of their Bishops, assisted in giving useful information. Doctor, could you have been present to see the earnestness depicted on the countenance of the Elder who explains the doctrine of Mormonism, I am assured you would have prayed that divine light may lead him in the right direction to accept the truth as it is in Christ Jesus our Lord On the South side of the tabernacle is the Assembly Hall. Its dimensions are 68 feet wide by 120 feet long, and is 130 feet to the top of the tower rising from the centre of the building. It is Grecian in design and one of the handsomest buildings of its kind it has been our pleasure to visit. It has a seating capacity of 3,000. Here the different orders of priests, of which there are two (the Melchisidek and the Aaronic), recieved their anointment and consecration, as it is called. The ceiling of this building is divided into sixteen panels. Each panel is occupied by historic paintings of the early rise of the Church. Figures representing the Saviour, Moses, Elijah and Elisha are given, also a certain angel called Moroni, showing the pretender, Joseph Smith, supposed prophet, the hill Cumorah where the plates were hid that contained the mystical "Book of the Mormon," which none but the highest dignitaries of the Church would have their blinded followers believe that they have seen. Leaving the sacred enclosure, we wended our way back to the last gate, directly opposite which is the publishing house, called "Desert News" Publishing Co. We were kindly received and were conducted, after inquiry, to the office of President Woodruff, who is acting pro tempore, until the election of a canon to rule and guide the temporal and spiritual welfare of the Church. Please pardon the length of this paper. In our next we shall give other matter gathered, also our summary of Mormonism as we saw it. We are also assisted in the preparation of our papers by pamphlets given us by the "Desert Company."

THREE MINUTES' TALK.

PAPER NO. I.

BY REV. JOHN N. ABBEY.

It is not our purpose to occupy the space and time allotted us in talking of matters for General Conference legislation, but to call the attention of the brethren to a matter of equal importance to our widespread connection—connectional love. We observe that there is a want of deep, unwavering spirit of connectional love within the bounds of each annual conference. Many of us in the ministry and laity are anything else but real African Methodists; we are not thoroughly indoctrinated into the Methodist faith; we see more and more the lack of proper connectional interest. Our zeal for the success of every department of the Church of our choice is not great enough. We leave too many things to take care of themselves—to live if they can Inasmuch as it takes the nation to maintain and run this government, so does it require the aid and influence of every African Methodist to keep our Church in perpetual motion, instead of privately and publicly criticising the management and mode of operation of the publication, educational, missionary and Sunday school departments (as many of us are doing). Let us spend our time, talents and money in making them come up to our ideas, but be it remembered that connectional love takes in the whole Church and we cannot well afford to contribute to a portion of our Church interest and neglect the other. Pastors should see that our own literature is circulated in their charges. They should urge the members to supply themselves with our hymn books, book of Discipline, catechisms, "Turner's Polity," "Tanner's Outlines," "Life of Allen," the Missionary Record, Children's Recorder, Sunday School Record. and last, but not least, the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The RECORDER is our own Church organ, and no man can be an African Methodist who is not a subscriber to and reader of it. We should see that no Sunday literature is used in our schools but our own. Most especially should our catechisms be used by all of our schools. Train the children up in our faith and when they are grown up they will not depart from it. Connectional love upon the part of the ministry and laity is the only safeguard to our garrison We are not through; we have only touched the subject, but will stop, as our three minutes are about out.

BETTER THAN EVER.

LESSON HELPS FOR 1887.

The Sunday School Union of the A. M. E. Church is prepared to furnish the best series of Lesson Helps that can be obtained. We have received testimonials from scores of our most prominent Sunday school workers endorsing and emphasizing the high quality of our periodicals. Our aim is to do the very best we can to meet the demands of our Sunday schools. A full list of our periodicals and their prices, will be found on another page of this paper. As we are the only authorized publishers of lesson helps for A. M. E. Sunday schools, we expect to receive that patronage which respect for law and denominational interests demand. LIFE'S INTERPRETATION.

Alas, a dreary world it is,
Where life groans 'neath the wheels of sorrow;
To-day—a path of mysteries,
Thro' which we pass to thee To-morrow!
Monotonous it is to thus
Go on, yet never reach an ending.
Can any one explain to us
Whither this strange earth-life is tending?

A cheerless world, where hopes must grow
On tender vines—so easy broken!
But has it not, in whispers low,
To us of future bliss oft spoken,
And made us feel that the grand Real
Must be, or Shade had no existence;
And, tho' the mists of Time conceal,
Earth's life shown Heaven in the distance?

The restless wings of Discontent
Are but outspread to lift us higher;
And Joy's bright life must soon be spent,
To bring unto conscious grief—Desire!
The hand of Pain were raised in vain
If it set not our hearts to crying,
And Heaven's light will quite explain
The meaning of Earth's life so trying!

Ah, yes, thank God! there's Life beyond;
The Real has wakened up the Seeming.
Shade but to Substance can respond,
And Heaven will end Earth's restless dreaming.
Can Thought soar higher or Hope aspire
Above God's thought or wish of giving?
Nay, spirits never could desire
Beyond their measure for receiving!

"MORE BISHOPS" UNDER REVIEW.

BY REV. P. M. LEWIS.

No. 7.

DR. JAS. H. A. JOHNSON'S XII. ARTICLE.

In this article there has not been a discriptive word used by the writer sufficiently strong to describe the importance of Episcopal visits amoug our churches and people, although, as I think, a stress has, in some places, been put upon the wrong object To this and some other objectioual features I shall briefly argue.

If, as it is claimed, the people esteem the office as pre-eminently sacred and have a conception of the sanctity of the office as such in itself, then they misunderstand the true nature and bearing of the office, and the less we attempt to encourage their miscouception the bet ter for all

As Methodists understand it, there is no sanctifying elemeut in the office itself, any further than there is in the office of any other name and order of gospel ministers, but the sanctity of the Bishop is publicly recoguized and declered by the office, and he, from his good for all, we must not, as Methodist Episcopals, elect such a large number above what has always been deemed necessary to superintend the numbers and organizatione of Methodist Episcopals as will throw us out of the grace of the world as intelligent Christians, capable of self-government.

Let our Church guard well itself agaiust thet sophistry which would heve it depart from all well-established customs and usages to make this greatly increased ratio of Bishops, and plan and virtually change the spheres and degrees of their work.

Allow this well-regulated rule to be departed from, and a similar wisdom to that which urges this departure will spring up in every locality amoug us, and argue and press the imaginary wisdom and necessity of other departures, and endless will be the troubles and confusion in our Church, if not final ruptures, and ot a truth a disintegratiou of our beloved Zion—"Our Fathers' Church." Remember the lasting troubles of other great Christian churches, whose initiatory steps to bring on troubles were simply departing from some well-established custom. Yes, we would do well ever to remember Audover of to day.

Episcopal visits have all of the good effects that have been claimed by Dr. Johneon and more; but elect that number and the effects will be very different. There is a certain degree of special respect and honor to be paid, if not to the occupents of that office in order to maintain the dignity of the office and thereby keep the occupants in such honored and distiuct positions before the Church and world as will secure to them the personal bearings and labors of the best results among all.

Now, to do this is required first of the ministry of our Church to be fully imbued with that holy Ghost which gives every true minister of the gospel the missiouary spirit which makes him esteem every one above himself and which would make him to accept the office and Bishop for all they mean among Methodists.

Now, to be plain and truthful, I do not tbiuk that our ministers and Church, as a whole, have made themselves particularly famous for their proper positions and efforts to build in this kind of work.

Let a Bishop come to the most of us once in a conference year and the most willing among us do the best we can to make him comfortable and to respect and provide for him; and some narrow-miuded people in and out the Church will begin to mutter at once, "The Bishop's expenses are too much; better let him stay away." Now, take that class of ministers who will openly and silently argue with them, which class is likely to be in the majority and what will be the results? Why, a prevailing sentiment that Bishops are more expensive than beneficial. Add to this, now, the facts that our Church does not used eight more Bishops, that a majority of our ministers and lay members do not want such a number elected, and the fact that the Christians and the secular world would ridicule aud condemn us for such unusual and unwise actions as Methodist Episcopals and the evils brought on us by such steps would be more than our Church could carry.

But I must not fail to uote that the sanctity of the Christian ministry, learning, wisdom, piety and oratorical power, experience and tact, sanctified by Jesus, comparatively speaking, the same good effects npon the persons they visit amoug se the visits of the Bishops would. Let me prove this. Notify your people that Dr. Lanch, Dr. T. G. Steward, or John Turner, or Dr. G. T. Watkins, or Dr. Tanner, or Dr. Embry, or any of a host of others as eminent as these spoken of will pass through, preach, lecture or hold any kind of a meeting, and our audience rooms will be filled, if good weather, and the best results obtained.

Give us a greater number of such ministers and our Church will continue to stay in the front rank of Christian organizations

THE A. M. E. AND A. M. E. Z. ORGANIC UNION.

BISHOP CAMPBELL ON THE MEETING OF THE A. M. E. AND A. M. E. Z. BISHOPS IN BALTIMORE IN ALABAMA ON THE SUBJECT OF ORGANIC UNION.

All government, both civil and ecclesiastical, is from God. The African Methodist Episcopal Church is a branch of the ecclesiastical government from God. I adopt the classic language of the immortal Lincoln and say that this government is "of the people, by the people and for the people." Have the Bishops or the clergy in themselves the General, annual or quarterly conferences representing the spiritual government of the Church, the right to alter, amend or change the said government, or change their name, without the voice of the people, expressed by their inalienable and God-given rights—their votes—directly for that purpose, which to my certain knowledge never has been done? Did the General Conference which met in the city of Baltimore, Maryland, in May, 1884, appoint a commission to meet a like commission of the Zion M. E. Church for the purpose of forming an organic union between these two ecclesiastical bodies? Was that commission appointed, and did the General Conference provide that that commission should formulate and decide upon the same, or that their report should be returned to the General Conference? Or did the General Conference provide that that commission should make return to the Bishops in banc to consummate said union without submitting their agreement to the people and await their decision, expressed by their votes upon the same? If the General Conference did not so authorize the Bishops to meet to ter said purpose, how can the Bishops meet with said commission and form any agreement which the people will be bound to respect without their consent, represented by their clergy? How, then, can the Bishops, with their episcopal vows before them, the book of Discipline, with certain restrictive and inviolable rules, in their hands, which they are bonud to protect and defend from profanatiou by unholy hands, as sacred as the Ark of God which was given into the care of Obed Edom—how can they meet, with said commission, or with the Bishops in banc, to alter, change or amend one syllable without the authority of the people who form an ecclesiastical government which can only be changed with this commissiou been submitted to all the churchee of the African Methodist Episcopal connection, their quarterly and annual conferences which have been held since the sitting of the last General Conference, for their approval or rejection? If not, agein I ask: How can our Bishops, with their ordinatiou vowe before them, certain restrictive and unalterable articles of the Book of Discipline in their hands, unauthorized at this late day meet with said commission or with Zion M. E. Bishops, to alter, change or amend one syllable?

Finally, has the General Conference itself the right to alter, amend or otherwise change the organic uame without the consent of the people, expressed by their votes in a meeting for that specific purpose?

I pause for a reply.

One of the Bishops of the A. M. E. Church.

THE INDIANA ANNUAL CONFERENCE AND TOBACCO.

BY REV. J. MITCHEM.

LETTER NO III.

Some men, while discussing this tobacco question, and especially those preachers who use tobacco, seem to entertain the same idea and use about the same argument that those men do who are not in sympathy with the prohibition of the rum traffic. They say that it is a waste of time and money to write and pass resolutiuse to prohibit the preachers from chewing and smoking tobacco, for we can never stop it. We some man say that it is just as easy for the General Conference to make a law to prohibit them from leaving their wives and marrying again while the former is living and still remain a member of the A. M. E. Church—why may think that it will be easy for the General Conference to make a law to prohibit the preachers from using tobacco. I wish to inform you who thus think that it will depend altogether on our understanding and choice, for I have lived long enough to know that it is very hard work to get any class of men to make a law to prohibit themselves from doing what they like to do, for just so long as our churches send lay delegates and the annual conferences send itinerant delegates to the General Conference who are slaves to the tobacco habit to make laws to govern the Church, we need not look for any change in regard to this tobacco question; we had just as well look for the rum sellers to make a law to prohibit themselves from selliug rum. Now, then, since we have passed resolutions in our conference to prevent any person who uses tobacco from being received into the conference on probatiou, or into full membership, or be ordained to the office of Deacon, or Elder, unless they solemnly promise to refrain from chewing or smoking forever, I do now, heuceforth and forever euter my solemn protest against electing and ordaiuing any man to the high and holy office of Bishop who smokes or chews tobacco, who does not and will not solemnly promise to refrain from using it forever.

I humbly confess, Mr. Editor, that I am too obiuse to understand how we cau elect and ordain any man or men to the high and holy office of Bishop (in the A M E. Church) who is a slave to the filthy habit of chewing or smoking tobacco, unless he solemnly promises to refrain forever from its use, and at the same time expect to be called a consistent clase of men. I cannot see how we can even be considered as dealing honestly with our brethren in the annual conferences if we should attempt to show such partiality—I meau by objecting to men being ordained Deacons or Elders who use tobacco and then ordain another brother to the office of Bishop who uses tobacco.

I am not a delegate to the General Conference, but if I am alive and the Lord will permit, I shall be there next May and will use all ot the influence that I can command against the election and ordination of any one to be Bishop who uses tobacco and has not pledged himself to refrain from its use, I am also in favor of locating every traveling preacher, deacon, elder and every Bishop in the A. M. E. Church who now uses tobacco in the form of chewiug or emokiug and will not promise to quit using it.

Mr. Editor, I see no way by which we can save our boys from this filthy and unchristian practice of chewing and smoking tobacco, unless we can stop the preachers and Bishops from saying to our boys: "This is the way, boys; follow me; it will not hurt you if you use it in reason and do not make a hog of yourself." Now, Mr. Editor, I admit that the hog has very filthy habits, but he will not, of his own free will and accord, go and stick his nose into a lot of filth—how can they force, or beguile him to eat it or chew it, and if he did eat it, I know of nothiug in this world that would render his meat so unfit for man's use as food In fact, I do not now remember but the animals in the world which are so follows: 1st, a tobacco worm; 2nd, a human being; 3rd, a mountain goat, which is said to be one of the filthiest animals ou earth.

THE AMERICAN GIRL.

BY MRS. BELLE B. DORCH.

"We live in a new and exceptional age. America is another name for opportunity. Our whole history appears like a last effort of the Divine Providence in behalf of the human race."—Emerson.

In regard to women this is certainly an exceptional age. In the last century women have made rapid strides and have put forth many lasting efforts in behalf of the human race. This is ue less true of the American women Furthermore, we say that the American girl is the typical girl of the age Turn to whatever part of the world you will and you will find some more quick witted, more ready to act, more masculine or composed of more executive ability than the American girl. She is graceful in her movements. On the whole, she is a lolly, good soul. Take her in any station of life and you will always fiud her light-hearted. Gayety seems to be one of her netural qualities. By this we do not mean to say that she kuows no sorrow, for, like all mortal beings, she has her portion. Living as she does under a free and independent form of governmeut, she is bound to breathe its spirit. Consequently her life, in general, is free. No special forms of duty are placed or forced upon her. She learns all kinds of domestic work without being compelled to do it.

The modern girl can go from the kitchen to the parlor and be at home in either. She realizes the necessity of an intellectual, a physical and a moral education. She is not surpassed in the fine arts The American woman is culturefined and attractive. Modesty is a. ship is free. If the girl has been properly reared by her parents there should be no fear to let her meet her lover alone. When we watch her, we tell her she only needs to do just as she is.

The beauty of American girls is constantly commented upon. We are almost tempted to say that they are as beautiful and graceful as the Grecian women.

We come now to the real worth of the American women.

Years ago woman's place was a secondary one; her educational privileges were limited; she could not enter certain colleges; but since educational institutions have been readjusted, we have as the result active women. Notice the streets of any commercial city and you will see as many women with dinner buckets in hand as you will see men. Some of them are clerks, book-keepers, factory girls, etc. It has been truly said that "the American girl is a wholesome product of a healthy age."

Years ago if a woman was caught in a public place, she was disgraced Hence, her position was a cramped one; but Christianity came and with it the elevation of womanhood. The Americans are a restless and over-active set of people, but it is said, "To condemn the result of American life is to condemn the cause." We do not hear so much of woman's power because most of the editors of the leading papers and magazines are men, and they are actually too jealous to recognize them as great lights. Sumner once said, "Give me standiug room and I will move the world." Just so with our American women; all they ask for is room, a little more voice.

Most of the books that are being written to-day are composed by women. They have proved themselves excellent physicians and lawyers. Certain positious are denied them, but this simply shows the absurd weakness of some of our leading men. American women have done much to elevate America. Had they a little more voice, the liquor question would be settled by prohibiting the manufacture of liquor. Polygamy, the most striking feature of the Mormon mouster, would be swept from the land.

Now, we do not mean to say that woman is such a power that she would reconstruct the whole government, but we do mean to say that some of the perils that reflect on this grand government would be eradicated.

The American girl is far above the girl of any other nation, inasmuch as she has attained self-indepeudence The leading thought in the mother's mind is no longer—"How shall I educate my daughter, and how shall I dress her, in order that she may get a good husband?" But the thought is: "How shall I educate my daughter, in order that she may attain self-depeudance and make her way to the best advantage through the world?"

The American girl is a thoroughgoiug, self possessed one, and the idea that she must marry for a social position or to secure support is absurd. It is said that the country has not one honest Margaret, Dora, or Rebecca; they have all been transformed into Maggies, Beckies and Fanuies. When we think of the intellectual strength which our Margarets possess, it seems strange how they can be addressed by these trifling contractions. It sounde just as nonsensical to call a woman "Becky" as it does to call a business man "Jonnie." Under this head we, of cours, include the Afro-American girl; for she is just as much of an American as the Anglo-Saxon.

Other writers who have occasioually written on this subject seem to include the white girl only. The time is not come when we can write on a general subject without distinguishing the black from the white. The time will not come until the Afro-American receives his rights throughout the country and until he becomes more united as a people. The opportunities of the Afro-American girl are far behind those of her white sister. Positions which she might hold with credit are denied her. But we say to our young girls: Be patient and fit yourselves for the highest position that your country can give you, and uothing will be lost. We waut women for the hour. The American girl is the girl of to-day, and we say to her to exercise her strength and judgment. By so doing, the world will feel the effects of it.

THE MANY THINGS SPOKEN OF.

BY REV. R. S. QUARTERMAN.

MR. EDITOR:—Please allow space for a few lines from one in South Florida. I think too much has been said about the Presiding Eldership. One-half of the brethren who have written articles to do away with the Presiding Eldership did not mean what they were writing; also so many long articles, saying that we only need three more Bishops, or five more Bishops. Now I say, when the General Conference convenes, let that body decide how many we need and elect them. I think we are too hasty by writing so much. We should take the matter into our secret closets and ask God to choose the men for the Episcopacy. God has laid the A. M. E. Church all the way from its infancy to the present date, and if we will trust him, he will lead us on ward until the war of life is over. The most of the brethren are standing out against the Presiding Eldership wanted the public to know that they were studying about something. If we make the Presiding Elder's District smaller and have only one Presiding Elder to every eight or nine appointments, it is our money that we pay them with, and who has anything to do with it? All of these able writers who have written so many able articles against the Presiding Elder system take a small notice very closely in the Centeunial Record, to see how much was contributed to relieve the Church from the heavy debt that now hangs over her. There are some who always want the world to know that they are living; now let your work tell what you are, for if we will trust in the Lord, he will give us such meu as are worthy of this office

Mr. Editor, I do not understand just how things will be next year, but I judge it will be a fearful fight. The Prohibition Party has succeeded in carrying fourteen counties out of the eighteen that have voted, still there is almost as much liquor used now as ever in these couuties. The jugs, bottles, kegs, tin buckets, etc., are coming in on every train, and there are just as many drunkards now as ever. I say let us stop and consider the matter. We are temperance ministers: we say now as we have said before: do away with intoxicating liquors; allow no one to use it, stop the trains, steamboats, wagons, carts and anything else from bringing it into a community. This is the point we as temperance ministers want to work after and nothing else.

THE CLOSING SCENE OF REV. A. J. CHAMBERS' SUCCESSFUL ADMINISTRATION IN WILMINGTON, N. C.

BY M. L. WHITEMAN.

Truly, Ethiopia has streiched forth her hands and princes are coming ont of Egypt. To be loved is one of life's grandest blessings, and the last night spent in Wilmington by Rev. and Mrs. Chambers is proof positive that they bed won the hearts of Wilmington's loyal citizens. For several months Wilmington has realized the fact (reluctantly) that a man like Rev. Chembers was not he allowed to remain in any one place in the South long, so great is the demand for such men in this section. So great and influential has been the work done in this city, that from the mountains to the sea the cry is, "Send us Rev. Chambers!" So Wilmington, seeing that she could not keep him, determined to send him to the annual conference with flying colors, and for weeks and months the citizens have been planning for the grandest testimouial and banquet that the little "city near the sea" has ever witnessed.

Monday evening, Nov. 21st, the date of this unique and recherche occasion, was one of those delightful moonlight eveninge which seem to draw one away from the transitory things of earth and place him in sweet communion with the Crystal Stream, the Mystic River. The Opera House, which was donated by its lessee, was filled with the most elite white and colored citizens, and sweet music was discovered by Scott's Orchestra. Baltimore's distinguished philosopher and lecturer, Rev. Dr. J. H. A. Johnson, presided. Rev. F. W. N. Peabon, the erudite and dignified Lutheran minister, delivered a timely and eloquent address on "Our Duty to Our Superiors and the Ways and Means of so Doing." He paid many glowing tributes to Mr. Chambers and to the venerable Bishop Payne, whom the Lutherans edncated. He held Rev. Chambers forth as a model for present and future generations. After the address, Dr. Peebhan, in fitting language, presented a purse in the citizens' name, after which, another from the firemen was presented by one of the public school pedagognes. Then the zenith was reached in Mr. Chambers' sublime and masterly reply, which the leading democratic papers pronounce "a masterpiece of eloquence, common sense and rare ability;" but we all know that gentleman's oratorical powers. The gentleman proved himself a profound thinker and one of the liberal of the age. Time and space again he had to pause till the vast audience's applause would cease, and after charming, convicting and covering in sixty minutes, sat down conqueror amid deafening cheers from right-minded men and lovely women. Then Mrs. Chambers, a sweet brunette with a wealth of golden brown hair, was ushered on the stage. The lovely, amiable lady was attired in a delicate lavender silk, with black lace over-dress. Many remarked her modesty, love and goodness, and indeed, she did present the picture of a shy, yet trustiug, sweet innocent child. Rev. D. J. Sanders, of the Afro-American Presbyterian, presented the lovely lady with a magnificent present from St. Stephen's A. M. E. Sabbath school, in which she was a faithful, earnest teacher. Prof. Jas. B. Dudley, in a few choice words, tendered her (Mrs. Chambers) a purse from the Harmonic Singing Association, a class formed and taught most anccessfully by her. After a modest, yet grateful, acceptance, expressed in looks by the lady and words by her noble husband, congratulations were in vogne for a while. The guests vied with each other in saying nice things, after which the happy people repaired to the reception room, which they found most artistically decorated by ladies from Mr. Chambers' congregation. Such a bonutiful repast as was spread! The tables eteuded around the entire room and groaned beneath the weight of delicacies, anpervised by caterer Jones. Gallant men attended fair, good and bandomely attired ladies, and when diamouds and electric lights flashed against all that beauty—the eight was dazzling.

Two years ago Rev. Chambers came into North Carolina to be one of, with and for the people. Little did we think we were receiving Moses. Since then he has been independent in thought and action, yet lived for his people. No colored man ever held the lofty position which Mr. Chambers seemingly holds among our citizens. His doctrine is one that the negro must adopt to succeed, i. e., that the negro and white man are brothers, and must get closer together; that we must love a man for his merit, not his color; that the negro must solve the political and industrial problems for himself, and to do so must love, not hate, the Caucasian; that it is better to be right than president; that we must not be satisfied with a mediocre state of anything, but must aspire to reach the topmost round of all that is good, grand, noble and manly. The country knows that Mr. Chambers wields a facile pen second to none, and that no man of his age has surpassed him. It is possible and probable that the voice of our subject will yet sound and resound in the halls of Congress on the great leading national questions, and were the executive reins of the grand republic placed in his dexterous hands, he would guide to victory, for he is identified with that progressive class of men who engineer the car of progress. We will yet hear of him as one of the leaders of the nation. Wait and watch. Already light shines through the clouds, for the Southern papers are still copying his triumphal speech, delivered at the extra call of conference in Raleigh, N. C., Aug., 4th, '86, when he (Mr. Chambers,) so nobly defended the South, and his great church of seventeen hundred members sustained him. Our subject is not "born to blush unseen and waste" his wisdom on small things; but he will leave the world better for having lived in it. He is making a name that will live in history when monuments of marble will have crumbled and this generation will be sleeping, sleeping, sleeping.

A STORMY VOYAGE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28th, 1887.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN RECORDER:

I am sure that you will feel satisfied with my information in connection with my route from British Guiana.

I left October 9th, and after twenty-two days' passage, I reached Halifax. During these days we had many stormy hours.

"Soon the storms will all be over,
And we'll anchor in the harbor."

I remaind there with Rev. Skerrett, of our Church, who is doing a good work. Left with Rev. Crosby for Amherst, whose work is on the increase and who is preparing for the erection of a new parsouage, as the present one is small. Leaving there I went to St. John and St. Johnny, N. B., whose church is on the wings of progression. My time being limited, I did not remain there many days, but embarked on the steamer "State of Maine," for Boston, but ere my journey was accomplished I had to be launched at a place which was only part of my journey, the reason for this being that the steamer, having encountered such a storm that had not the capacity to ride safely, one of the result would have been only God knows.

"Jesus, refuge of my soul.
Let me to Thy bosom fly;
While the waters near the roll
Till the storm of life is past."

The captain with whom I traveled seemed to say that I am a Jonah when storms come on. What do you think of this assertion? I was obliged to finish my journey by land. After reaching Boston I was cordially received by Rev. T. Gould. I am now in New York for a few days. You may like to know why I took that out-of-way route. Necessity knows no law and when indeed, she did present the picture of a shy, yet trusting, sweet innocent child. Rev. D. J. Sanders, of the Afro-American Presbyterian, presented the lovely lady with a magnificent present from St. Stephen's A. M. E. Sabbath school, in which she was a faithful, earnest teacher. Prof. Jas. ing, was born in the State of Pennsylvania (U. S. A.) His earlier years were devoted to the service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, wherein he also did much good work. In the year 1787, on the 20th of November, pressed by the exigencies of the times, he disconnected his relationship with the church of his following, and went forth as the champion of the new relig ous body, which he styled the African Methodist Episcopal Church, as whose interest he preached his first words in presence of a handful of listeners in a humble blacksmith's shop in the city of Philadelphia. Notwithstanding the jeers and scoffs and the opposition he is related to have encountered, he continued fearlessly to advocate the cause of Christianity; and though he has long passed to that "bourne from whence no traveler returneth," his good work lives after him, and to-day the A. M. E. Church joyfully celebrates its centenary with upwards of a million and a half of acclaiming members and followers. Such, at least, are some of the many facts told by Rev. Mr. Miller in his able and eloquent discourse on "Centennial" Sunday.

The celebration by the congregation in this island of the Centeunial was a decided success, and one which must, as intimated, produce a lasting impression on the minds of all who attended it. The programme included four services, the first being celebrated at half-past four o'clock in the morning, and at which the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered. At 11 A. M. the usual preaching service was held, the pastor delivering a short, touching address, at the close of which "centennial" dollars and "thanksgiving" thereof were liberally contributed. The next service, at half-past two, was for the children of the Sunday school, at which there was a large gathering of young folks, their parents and friends. The little ones were addressed hya couple of the church brothers, as also by the Rev. Mr. Hageman of the R. D. Church, this city. The last and most impressive of the services was held in the evening at half-past seven o'clock, conducted by the pastor, and attended by an assemblage which put the seating capacity of the sacred house to a severe test, and which listened with interest to the sermon, the text wharefof was appropriately chosen from the prophecies of Isaiah, "A little one shall become a thousand. The sermon concluded, some thirty-five persons (male and female) were received and accepted as full members of the church, after which ceremony the Rev. gentlemen announced his willingness to attend to that item of the programme so essential for the carrying on of the great work, viz., contributions. Mutual willingness appeared to be felt, and at the end of the steady stream of emigration towards the altar, the minister announced that the amount of the day's collections summed up a handsome figure, which inspired him with feelings of renewed gratefulness, and proved unmistakably the disposition of the people of this island to foster undertakings which help to elevate a morals of the community. He also gave a fitting meed of praise for the many kindnesses which had been shown to himself as well as to the church by the general public, for which he was truly grateful. The pronouncing of the Apostolic benediction brought the day's exercises to a close. The event was marked by the filling of new and comfortable seats, as also by the in-laying of handsome carpets for which light not only presents a more effective and pleasing coup d' œil, but is at the same time far safer than that hitherto in use. In honor of the day, the church was neatly decorated with flowers and garlands, and prettily made inscriptions. A painting of angel-trumpeters, surmounted by the words, "All hail the glorious future," was placed above the rostrum, the effect of which, as well as of the other adornments, showed to great advantage in the gas light. A word of praise is due the choristers for the excention of their part, which went far towards making the celebration what it was—a grand success.

In conclusion, a word about the A. M. E. Church in this island may not be out of place. It is now little over ten years since this form of worship was introduced in this island, to which but a small number of persons were then attached. Since that time, however, the number of followers has steadily increased, and it is pleasing to know that to-day its congregation is tolerably large. At the present time the A. M. E. congregation can boast of having a place of worship of their own, the foundation stone of which was laid by Rev. E. M. Harper, who left at a well advanced stage of its construction. Owing, however, to Mr. Harper's departure work upon it had to be suspended, but operations were resumed on the arrival amongst us, about a year ago, of the present minister, Rev. R. F. Miller. This gentleman at once set to work to hasten its completion, with what result those who attended the church on Sunday last witnessed. In order to reach its present advanced stage an uphill struggle has been encountered; but those difficulties are insignificant when compared with the gratification which must now be felt, alike by the pastor and his flock, at the success which has so far crowned their efforts. Like all concerns of a public nature which must be done and where the means of accomplishment are lacking, aid in various shapes was asked and freely received; and no better proof of the activity of the minister and his congregation, and of the munificent nature of our people can be given than by the present condition of the structure, which is now on the verge of completion.—The St. Thomas Tidende of November 23rd.

RIGHT WILL PREVAIL.

BY REV. J. BRADEN, D. D.

We clip the following from the Southwestern Christian Advocate. Dr. Braden is a white man. As such he represents the moral nobility of his variety.

The negro problem has long been under consideration. The church, the State and society have struggled with the question and have made much progress towards its final solution. Fifty years ago slavery held the sway in this land. But the question as to its justice was agitated. Men were divided. Some contended that it was wrong, others that it was authorized in the Bible. The discussion continued till at last right triumphed and the negro was set free. Then he was made a citizen. This was opposed by many but again right prevailed. The Church undertook to help him and did nobly, and schools were opened and the intellect of the negro was developed. Some wondered whether the negro could learn, some doubted, and others denied him the capacity. But he learned. The field hand became the teacher, lawyer, doctor, preacher. But his color was in the estimation of many little less than a crime, for which he must be set off by himself, kept out of the presence of the white, only as he appeared in the capacity of servant. This prejudice invaded the Church as well as society, and separate congregations must be organized, although while they were slaves, in the South at least, all could worship together. But changing his relation from a slave to a freeman made the association in some way intolerable, and perhaps the distast of the white man that was gendered in the negro by slavery, and his own infirmity in intelligence, wealth, culture, social life, made him not only willing in many cases, but glad to be separated from his old masters. Separate congregation, seperate conferences, seperate schools, separate cars, separate hotels, separate apartments in public halls, separate places of abode—of by themselves in certain localities in cities obtained the force of custom if not of law. What if the negro had been freed, only to remain in the State in which he was when he was declared free? He was told he was free, but if he wanted to go to another State, he was reminded that he was only free in the State where he lived, would he not feel that his freedom was a farce? Neither for business or pleasure could he leave the State.

He would reasonably ask, "If I am free, why not give me the privileges of any freeman to go where I am inclined?" Nothing less would satisfy him and his many truly grateful white friends. The pronouncing of the Apostolic benediction brought the privileges that belong to any citizen of the United States? If he chooses to worship in any church open to the public, why may he not worship there? He has been a member of the Methodist Church by the same blood, is accountable to the same Judge, will be invited to the same Heaven, or sent to the same hell, with his Anglo-Saxon brother.

As the question of his freedom shook this country until he was emancipated, so the question of his rights will not rest until the negro has the same rights as a citizen, of holding office, of church, of school, of public conveyances, of hotel, of place of residence, of position in community as others of lighter skins. The war has not ended. It is being fought, not with cannon and saber stroke, but with ideas that were enunciated hundreds of years ago, and their basis are found in these words: "Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you do ye even so unto them." Right will prevail.

Church News.

Rev. J. W. Williams, Forest, Miss., writes: Rev. Watson has just held my last mission quarterly conference. He was as a kind father. The stewards, leaders and trustees represeuted the church in their usual way.

Rev. W. B. Norris, Oxford Circuit, Philadelphia Conference, writes: I felt somewhat discouraged on being assigned to my declining years to a work that gave little promise, but I have been encouraged by the willingness of the people, as well as by their thrift and religious zeal.

Rev. J. Coleman, B.D., Columbus, Ohio, writes: Dear Brother, I thought perhaps you would like to hear something from Columbus. We have been in this field about two months. We were received in the kindest and most cordial manuer. The people gave us a fine donation and reception about the middle of October. On the 30th we had our Endowment Day, at which the people gave us $93.50, clear of expenses, for the cause of education. Last Sunday was a big day in Columbus for African Methodism. Dr. T. A. Thompson, assisted by the Masonic and other secret societies, laid the corner stone of the Second A. M. E. Church, which is now being erected and promises to be an important part of the religious force of our city. Elder Thompson has been very nuwell since the adjournment of the conference. His indisposition is caused by rheumatism. Ohio holds the fort, politically. It is very sickly in the city.

Rev. J. H. Martin, Shreveport, La., writes: The corner-stone of our new church was laid Sept. 18th. We had with us our Presiding Elder Rankins and Rev. H. B. Parks, Vicksburg, Miss. We raised $90.15. On the 20th of November the church was dedicated to God by our much-beloved Bishop A. W. Wayman, D.D. He delivered two sermons ou that day that will not soon be forgotten. We have raised the Sunday school from twenty-six to ninety scholars; raised up to date for trustees' use $525.50 Total raised for all purposes $1,236 75. We are at work for the Master. Soon after I was in the city I met a gentleman on the street: he said to me, "Doctor, your church is not on the records of the city chronicle." But, today, it is said to be the finest colored church in the city. By the help of the Lord we mean to push the battle to the gate. Had we a few more men like the Rev. G. W. Rankins the North Louisiana Conference would surely succeed. We have been very successful this year, having nearly doubled our membership and improved the furniture of the old church.

Mr. Zion Ross, North Fayette, Miss., writes: Our fourth and last quarterly conference of the North Fayetta Circuit was held by Rev. W. H. Weathers, presiding elder of the Natchez District. Brother John R. Thomas was elected Secretary. The members of the conference were all at their places with well prepared reports. The session was harmouious throughout. We have just closed a protracted meeting from which we have added to the church eighty, and still they come crying, "I have been redeemed." Our pastor, Rev. A. J. Williams, is loved by all his flock and congregation The Lord's Day was a grand one. With sorrow I note the death of the elder'schild. He was called home by a dispatch to look upon his young child the last time in this life; but what made the day grand is this: we bad six converts and seven joined the church. The Sacrament of the Lord was conducted by the pastor. We raised for pastor, $51.40. and on Saturday, $15.60. Total, $67. The conference passed hearty resolutions of approval and commendation on Elder Weathers' work, requesting the Bishop to return him to us again.

Rev. C. Wright, Harrisburg, Pa., writes: Wednesday evening, October 12th, our quarterly meeting opened. The ministers of the Harrisburg District, with their delegates, were present. Important topics were well discussed. The interest taken by our people in education and the condition of the public schools were reviewed and resolutions offered on the subject. Prof. Wm. H. Day was introduced and made some interesting remarks. He complimented the ministers upon the flourishing condition of the several churches and harmouy among the people. The chairman of the committee on resolutions, Rev. L. Hood, presented the following, which was adopted: "Whereas, We, with regret, hear of the sad state of the schools of some parts of this distr ct, namely: dilapidated school houses, incompeteut teachers, undisciplined schools, etc., be it therefore resolved, that we, the members of this district meeting, now assembled, do hereby enter our solemn protest against the injustice that is being perpetrated upon our people; and we pledge ourselves to use available means in our power to have a speedy remedy. Resolved, further, that it is the opinion of this district meeting that whenever and wherever separate schools are forced upon our pepole, competent colored teachers should be employed." Able debates were made by Revs. Howard, Smith, Hood and Wright on the temperance question. A resolution of thanks was offered by Rev. Hammond, returning sincere thanks to the congregation of Rev. Carter Wright, to the citizens of Harrisburg, and to the press for courtesies extended. The annual conference will be held in this city in June next. The place of the next meeting of the district conference will be decided upon hereafter. During the evening the Sunday school choir rendered some delightful music. The convention adiourned sine die, after which an elegant reception was given by the ladies of the congregation in the lecture room.

UNION CHURCH, Philadelphia, held extra meetings last Sunday and raised over $300 by the same easy method that had brought them $1,700 previously, thus making in their two efforts of this season $2,000. Dr. Derrick, of Sullivan Street Church, New York, preached at both sessions. The people were well pleased with his discourses. Union Church is now prepared for a revival of religion, dontdless, for getting begging out of the way is a good step in that direction.

THE PRESIDENT'S annual message is a unique affair as compared with those preceding it in our own history or with those of rulers in other countries, in that it takes cognizance of bnt one single fact—the surplus in the National Treasury. As a state paper it is not lofty, comprehensive nor scholarly. The following specimen of English grammar from the speech may be used by teachers in discussion of false syntax:

"The farmer and the agriculturist, who manufacture nothing, but who pay the incressed price which the tariff imposes upon every agricultural implement, upon all HE WEARS and upon all HE USES and owns."

ON THE 8th instant it was our pleasure to attend the annual meeting at the Old Folks' Home, Philadelphia. This meeting is always attended by a good number of Philadelphians as well as by the hundreds of inmates. This late meeting was no exception. Thomas Walter, Israel Johnson, William Still, Joseph S. Thompson, T. H. Boling and Mrs. Boling, Mr. Adams, Henry Lang, Mrs. Lewis, Miss Mary E. Harper and others were there to aid in entertaining the old people as well as taking practical steps toward the perpetuation and usefulness of the institution.

Israel Johnson, treasurer, stated that the institution was greatly in need of funds. Mr. William Still, president of the Board of Managers, conducted the meeting with becoming ease and dignity. Miss Mary Harper's elocution and Mrs. Lewis' songs gave spirit to the meeting. Bethel Church, this city, contributed $25 to the home. What a grand opportunity there is here for all our Philadelphia churches to consecrate a few dollars annually to the service of God. What an opportunity, too, for individual benevolence. Anyone may live to be old. In such a case he would be glad to have the comforts afforded at the Old Folks' Home.

END OF "MORE BISHOPS" SERIES.

There must be very few who do not agree with Dr. Johnson that we shall be obliged to increase the number of our Bishops. Few believe that we need to elect eight next year. The logical tendency of our Church is in favor of standing just as firmly and fairly on the foundation of common sense and justice to the connection in reference to Bishops, as in respect to other ministers. We do not pretend to know which nor whether any of our Bishops will be retired from active work next year, bnt we do know that the Church, that for the good of the cause, unbesitatingly retires faithful, noble ministers from the especial pastorate, has no time to deal in mere sentimentality when the age and infirmities of a general pastor place him in precisely the same relation to the requirements of his office that those of the especial pastor do him to his office. It is not ambition that retires the superannuate from the especial pastorate; it is reason and right: it is not necessarily ambition that may observe the necessity in the general case. It is useless to raise the cry of "dying in the harness;" especial pastors are just as anxious to "die in the harness" as general pastors. It is not probable that the next General Conference will, notwithstanding there may be some retirements, elect more than six nor fewer than four Bishops. Very few African Methodists can agree with our correspondent, that the Church should maintain the number fourteen, especially by the plan suggested by the doctor.

We fail to see that district episcopal supervision is general supervision in the original meaning. The doctor certainly has not been strong in this point, nor the point mentioned next above. From the drift of talk, we may infer that the district system will be maintained beyond the next General Conference, bnt it is not the best method for our Church. The future is going to be very different from the past, in respect to the relation of our Church to the general Church and to the people in this country. The Church, is sure if it is wise, to require its Bishops to settle throughout the field occupied by the Church, with high respect to the residence of the people. It is going to prevent episcopal growing. Bnt the district supervision, if a Bishop is to reside in "his district," will compel general moving of all Bishops once in four years, while in the case of supervision by rotation a Bishop might not be compelled to move at the end of each quadrennium. We cannot see how the election of the eight Bishops can bring about nearly all the prosperity and progress pointed ont by Dr. Johnson, though we expect each quadrennium to place us in respect to usefulness above where it fonnd us.

We shonld be very slow to tell four hnndred thonsand people, three thousand preachers and two hundred and twenty-five delegates, not only that they need just eight more men, but that they need just a certain specified eight men for any given office.

This nominating has probably rendered these well-meant and well-written articles nnpopnlar. Snch nominating has been done from General Conference to General Conference for many years, but its propriety may be severely questioned. It is not likely that the election of anyone of twenty-five to forty of our ministers to the episcopate would bring ruin npon our connection.

Many of the themes treated finely by Dr. Johnson, under any other title would have been read mnch more largely, by reason of not being beclouded by prejndice against the subject. We do not believe our Church is able to support fifteen Bishops. Bnt if it need that number it should have them even though they were not so well paid. This point the doctor seemed not to reach.

Now, with reference to the space given to Dr. Johnson, privately complained against by so many, we have to say that Dr. Johnson is not a sinner above others in respect to nsing space. He has been too silent during the past three and a half years. Besides this, there has been no more then our ordinary amount of matter allowed to grow old on acconnt of crowded colnmns. Dr. Johnson and others have written more extensive and some less interesting series to the RECORDER heretofore. We heard nothing of the twaddle that the editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER then, was "too modest" to say "Dr. Johnson don't write any more." We have treated Dr. Johnson precisely as we would any other brother nnder similar circnmstances. He is a thoughtful, clear writer; we are glad to have a word from him as from any other minister or brother when convenient.

Where articles have been devoted especially to nominations for the Bishopric we have, as a rule, failed to publish them, coming from whomsoever, as they would seem repnisive to every person thus made conspicnous; even where snch nominations have been made incidentally the publication of them has been a concession to the judgment of others. Yet we cannot forget that some of the loudest declaimers against snch nominations now, were among the most advanced in 1879 and 1880 as well as 1883 and 1884. Many of the same men who were mentioned now were mentioned on those two occasions. It has always appeared in bad taste to the present editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, bnt officially he has done in this respect what seems to have been the custom in this office. One of the most serious objections against the act is, that, though every man mentioned is known to have some elements of disqualification, these are never referred to. The publication of more reference to comparison of two men recently—we repeat, the mere reference to comparison, not comparison—has brought down npon this editor's head one of the most unjnst, nnreasonable and nntruthful tirades that it has been his privilege (?) to suffer. We refer to an article published in the Southern Recorder, from the Rev. Andrew J. Chambers. We suggest that it is plain that the nomination act has been carried qnite far enongh.

After all, have brethren not overlooked more weighty questions to attend to this? Though Dr. Johnson has treated other important questions, he has done so, as stated above, only in their relation to "More Bishops."

The single subject of church extension to which he referred in good style and logic is broad and demanding. There are only a few who appear to notice jnst what we are suffering for want of a well organized department for this pnrpose. In the present qnadrennium we have probably lost in the First Episcopal District alone no less than $25,000 worth of property that an extension board could have saved. Are we being similarly affected elsewhere? We have reason to believe that we are in some other places. It is not at all improbable that this qnadrennium has lost to us more than forty thousand dollars and from one thonsand to two thousand members for want of an extension board. Bnt the series of Dr. Johnson will be marked and referred to long in the future, as wise in respect to many more things than this; as the qualifications of Bishops, department of Bishops, popular advocacy for the people by Bishops, their relation to the masses in their struggles, their leadership. Let other brethren take up the topics of law-abiding, harmony of action, uniformity of construction of laws, the subordination of wants to necessities, etc., etc.!

NOTES ON CENTENNIAL COLLECTIONS.

The Rev. W. A. Dove, Hannibal, Mo., sent the Publishing House $70.

Wilberforce Chapel is usually up with the leading churches in all connectional collections. It sends $25 as the result of Centennial collections. The Rev. C. W. Dorsey and the good professors, students and other citizens, have the thanks of this Department.

THE LOST CHORD.

Seated one day at the organ,
I was weary and ill at ease,
And my fingers wandered idly
Over the noisy keys;
I know not what I was playing,
Or what I was dreaming of then;
But I struck on a chord of music,
Like the sound of a great Amen.

It flooded the crimson twilight,
Like the close of an angel's psalm,
And it lay on my fevered spirit
With a touch of infinite calm.
It quieted pain and sorrow,
Like love overcoming strife;
It seemed the harmonious echo
From our discordant life.

It linked all perplexed meanings
Into one perfect peace,
And trembled away into silence,
As if it were loth to cease.
I have sought, but I seek it vainly,
That one lost chord divine;
It came from the soul of the organ,
And it entered into mine.

It may be that Death's bright angel,
Will speak in that chord again
It may be that only in Heav'n
I shall hear that grand Amen!

OUR WOMAN'S COLUMN.

The women of Grovetown, Ga., have undertaken to raise money to build a church in memory of Paul Hayne.

There are about 25,000 women in New York already organized in trades unions and labor organizations of various kinds.

Miss Irene E. Jerome, the artist, has married Mr. Thomas H. Hood, a Chicago lawyer. They live in Oak Park, Ill.

There are one hundred women studying in the Harvard Annex this year. There is an endowment fund of $100,000. Bnt $500,000 isneeded

A law has been passed in Waldeck, Germany, forbidding the granting of a merriage license to a person addicted to the liqnor habit

A lady in Saline County, Kan., came within sixteen votes of defeating the most popnlar man in the county for the office of Register of Deeds.

The South Brooklyn Ferry Company has substituted women for men as collectors on both sides of the river. They work ten hours a dey and get sixty dollars per month. The company finds them as efficient as men and more honest.

A Chinese woman has given birth to triplets Luckily they are girls, for, by Chinese law, if they were all boys, they would have to be turned over to the authorities and beheaded, as it is supposed that one of three snch children will be the future invader of the Empire.

Frances Willard has an admirable article in the current number of the Homiletic Review in behalf of ordaining women as preachers. There is not one man in a hundred who can preach as well as Miss Willard. Perhaps that is just the tronble. The weaker brethren in the ministry are a little afraid of women's competition.

A CARD FROM ELDER SHAFFER.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN RECORDER:

Dear Brother—I beg the favor of space in the colnmns of the paper to correct what I conceive to be a false impression which is being made relative to myself npon brethren of the Church.

It will be remembered that, in the course of a series of articles for the RECORDER, from the pen of Dr. Jas. H. A. Johnson, of the Baltimore Annual Conference, a nnmber of brethren were suggested as in some degree possessing characteristic fitness for the office, or the position of Bishop of the A. M. E. Church. Now, among the names mentioned was that of my own, and I assure you and all concerned that it was not only a surprise to me, I not having the remotest idea of snch a thing, bnt that it was a source of very considerable annoyance to me, as it pnt me in a perfectly false and nnwarranted position. Seeing, however, that there were a number of others in the same position, possibly as much to their discomfort as myself, and looking at it in the light of a simple proposition of one man, and that as a newspaper article it would soon be a thing of the past; and thinking that possibly the doctor was simply indnlging in a little pleasantry and furnishing amusement for the Church at the expense of a few brethren whose marked characteristics were that, going on in the even tenor of their way with no flonrish of trumpets, had tried to do their duty in their spheres of activities, to which fact, with God's help, they had achieved whatever success they have attained; bnt, learning recently that my name is still being associated with others and being discussed as a possible candidate and aspirant for the Bishopric, I therefore take this method and opportunity to say to all concerned that my name was used without my knowledge and in a connection in which I had never most remotely associated it in thought, much less in words, for several sufficient reasons, among which is my sense of the nature and functions of that high and holy office in God's Church and my want of fitness for the same, for I conceive that a Bishop ought to be a man of the highest piety, of the profoundest thought, widest research, most marked executive ability, of keenest insight into human character—a man of perfect integrity of purpose and thoroughly consecrated to God and humanity. In fact, a man of snch breadth of intellect, snch nobleness of soul and liberality of views as to be able to embrace, as the nohle Wesley, humanity, and who hehce is above these petty strifes and jealousies which are so distracting to the Church and which should never obtain among Christians, much less ministers and Bishops of the Church of God. Whatever else I may do and possess a fitness for, I disclaim a fitness for snch a position, and therefore disclaim any aspirations.

Doctor, please do me the very great kindness to insert this in your present issne, as it is a matter of so much personal interest to your brother,

C. T. SHAFFER.

Character is worth more than gold.

ARE OUR LEADERS DEAD OR DUMB?

BY REV. C. S. SMITH.

The thoughtful observer of the present environments of the colored people in all that relates to their industrial and political well-being, and the quiet attitude of those to whom they look for advice and counsel, leads one directly concerned to ask: Are our leaders dead or dumb? Never since the downfall of slavery did the condition of the colored people of the South press for notice and consideration as it does to day. Emancipated from chattel slavery, they find themselves reduced to wage servitude. Enfranchised by constitutional amendment, their citizenship is denied and their vote suppressed by a despotism as cruel and heartless as that which dooms political offenders to eternal night amid the darkness of Siberian mines. When seeking living wages for labor well performed, under the pretext of "getting rid of idle vagabonds," they are cowed into subjection by the musket's fearful charge, and the wounded, bleeding bodies of Louisiana laborers are left to perish amid its dismal swamps. Wifehood and childhood have no rights that Southern wagemasters are bound to respect Their motto is: "If we offer the negro a penny a day he will hire and he asks for more he shoot him on the spot" Our men petition the Interstate Commerce Commission for redress of grievances growing ont of unjust treatment by heartless railroad managers, and the Commission answers: "We have no jnrisdiction in the case" Our woman removed by the stern decrees of war from the grasp of licentious masters and brutal overseers, who seek the protection of the law for themselves and their daughters from the grasp and cunning of the lustful vampires that swarm in every city and village of the South, are shot down like dogs even in the courts of justice. Texas and Tennessee refuse to adopt prohibition and Atlanta falls back into the hands of the rum power and the report is heralded throughout the land that the "ignorant" and "immoral" negroes defeated prohibition; notwithstanding that Turner and Gaines and Price and a host of others did as valiant service for the cold water cause as any of its most earnest advocates. The President sends his annual message to Congress, and not a single reference does he make to the injustice and oppression under which our people in the South are smarting and writhing. In the great journals and magazines of the country, and in all of the national assemblages, the colored man is being discussed, but almost invariably in an unfavorable light. Harper's weekly, in a recent issue in discussing the "Southern Problem," says that it is "a question which for every good reason in the nature of our government should be left to the adjustment of the States." The North and South have indeed shaken hands across the bloody chasm, but with the colored man in it. We are in the chasm, and where are the voices that shall speak forth from among us and point us to an opening through which we can get out? Are our leaders dead or dumb? If not, why their silence?
